In respect of administration staff, dealing with verifying identity is part of the Department's work in administering vetting cases and, in HR, when recruiting new members of staff. The Department's Special Investigations Unit also provides fraud awareness training to divisions on request.

Independent Committee on Examination Standards

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) pursuant to the answer of 9 January 2006, Official Report, column 426W, on the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority, when the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority will be in a position to reconstitute the Independent Committee on Examination Standards; [46530]

(2) what plans she has to abolish the Independent Committee on Examination Standards. [46899]

Jacqui Smith: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) intends to have the reconstituted Independent Committee on Examination Standards in place to begin a new programme of work by the autumn. The management of the Independent Committee on Examination Standards is the responsibility of the QCA, as regulator for examination standards in England.

Inter-ministerial Meetings (Scottish Executive)

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many inter-ministerial meetings her Department has held with the Scottish Executive since May 1999; and what the (a) Scottish Executive Department concerned, (b) subject and (c) date was in each case. [39804]

Maria Eagle: Ministers have regular dialogues with Ministerial colleagues in the Scottish Executive, discussing a wide range of issues of mutual interest. It is not our practice to disclose details of such meetings.

Local Education Authorities (Structure)

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which local education authorities have (a) moved from two tier to three tier, (b) moved from three tier to two tier, (c) reviewed their three tier structure and decided to keep it (i) entirely and (ii) in part, (d) reviewed their two tier structure and decided to keep it (i) entirely and (ii) in part and (e) operate a mixed two tier and three tier structure. [48241]

Jacqui Smith: As at January 2005 there were 24 local authorities (LA) in England that had a total of 367 middle schools, 235 of which were for children aged 9 to 13. The table lists the 24 local authorities and details of numbers of schools for each.

Annual Schools' Census

We are not routinely informed of LAs' plans for reorganisation until they decide to proceed and publish statutory notice but we do know that a number of LAs are looking at their middle school systems in the context of falling rolls and surplus places.

The following LAs have obtained approval for reorganisation schemes to remove some of their middle schools for implementation from 2005 onwards:

Devon

Dorset

Northumberland

Norfolk

Milton Keynes and Worcestershire.

We have no information to suggest that any LAs are considering moving from a two tier to three tier structure. We do not routinely collect information about reviews of education provision conducted by LAs in relation to two and three tier structures.

The organisation of school provision is a local matter. LAs have overall responsibility for ensuring that there are sufficient schools to meet local needs and final decisions on proposals to change the pattern of provision would normally be made by the local School Organisation Committee (SOC) or schools adjudicator.

Mature Students

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the 10 most popular subjects taken up by mature students in the most recent period for which figures are available. [39877]

Bill Rammell: The latest available information is given in the table.

The 10 most popular subjects for mature[1] enrolments, at English HE institutions, 2004/05

JACS subject	Enrolments
Total mature enrolments, all subjects	1,212,365
of which:
Nursing	140,755
Combined[2]	101,150

The 10 most popular subjects for mature[1] enrolments, at English HE institutions, 2004/05

JACS subject	Enrolments
Business studies	66,080
Academic studies in education	58,815
Training teachers	45,775
Social work	39,705
Management studies	39,085
Computer science	39,000
Others in subjects allied to medicine[3]	32,825
Psychology	32,700

[1] 'Mature' enrolments are those aged 21 years or over on undergraduate courses or 25 years or over on postgraduate courses.

[2] Around 70 per cent. of these are students at the Open University who code a large number of their courses as 'Combined' in their HESA return.

[3] Includes 'Environmental health', 'Occupational health', 'Occupational therapy' and 'Counselling'.

New School Providers

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether the delivery of education to a specified number of pupils will be a pre-requisite of the authorisation of a new school provider. [46437]

Jacqui Smith: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 30 January 2006, Official Report, column 87W, which explained that decisions about the provision of new schools will be taken by local authorities, in their modernised role as the commissioners of education in their areas, or by the schools adjudicator. Local authorities and the schools adjudicator will consider all proposals for new schools on their individual merits.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether her Department will impose limits on the number of new school providers in any given local authority area. [46454]

Jacqui Smith: No. I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 30 January 2006, Official Report, column 87W, which explained that decisions about the provision of new schools will be taken by local authorities, in their modernised role as the commissioners of education in their areas, or by the schools adjudicator.

Postgraduate Courses

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of entrants to postgraduate courses in 2004-05 had already obtained (a) an honours degree and (b) an ordinary degree; and how many and what proportion had attained (i) first, (ii) upper-second, (iii) lower-second and (iv) third class honours. [40527]

Bill Rammell: The available information is given in the tables. Details of degree classifications on entry to postgraduate courses are available for entrants to postgraduate certificate of education courses only.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average A-level attainment has been of entrants to postgraduate courses leading to qualified teacher status in each year since 1995. [40526]

Bill Rammell: The information requested is not held centrally.

Pupil Performance

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress has been made towards replacement of the pupil achievement tracker and the performance and assessment reports with RAISEonline; and if she will make a statement. [47061]

Jacqui Smith: RAISEonline is being developed jointly by my Department and Ofsted.

An initial pilot of RAISEonline took place in December 2005 with 250 users. An extended pilot of the full system involving 2000 users will take place in May 2006. The full system is expected to be implemented in July 2006, as planned.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent on producing the revised version of the 2005 unvalidated Secondary Performance and Assessment reports; and if she will make a statement. [47063]

Jacqui Smith: These are matters for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Maurice Smith, has written to my hon. Friend and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Maurice Smith, dated 30 January 2006:

Your recent parliamentary question has been referred to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of schools, for reply.

You asked how much was spent on producing the revised version of the 2005 unvalidated Secondary Performance and Assessment reports.

In response, the "New Style" PANDA based on 2005 unvalidated data released on 23 December 2005 contained an error. The analysis in table 3.4.14 excluded A* grades from the calculations. The error required one line of programming code to be corrected. Following the correction the production of the revised documents required IT processing time which incurred no additional cost. The only additional cost was for a letter sent to all secondary schools informing them of the error and the remedial action being taken. This additional letter cost £1,500.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Jacqui Smith and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

School Improvement Services

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps her Department is taking to assist local authorities with School Improvement Services rated unsatisfactory by Ofsted. [47433]

Jacqui Smith: Where the Secretary of State is satisfied that a local authority is failing to perform its duties to the minimum standards required, the Secretary of State has the power to intervene. Forms of intervention and engagement are decided in the light of independent evidence and tailored to the specific needs of the local authority. The authority will receive co-ordinated support and advice from officials in the Government Office, DfES advisers and from senior officers of the Primary and Secondary National Strategies. Action taken to improve local authority services following an Ofsted unsatisfactory rating has included establishing partnership arrangements with a high performing local authority and directing the outsourcing of the strategic management of services. Similar action will be taken in future in the light of evidence from the new Joint Area Review undertaken by Ofsted and other inspectorates. From this April, Directors for Children and Learners (DCLs), based in the Government Offices, will provide tailored support and challenge for every local authority in their region. This will be based around annual priorities meetings, at which DCLs, local authorities and their partners discuss local priorities in the context of national priorities and the action being taken to address areas of weakness and concern.

Schools Funding (England)

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the real terms change in total revenue funding per pupil in schools will be in England between 1997–98 and 2007–08; and what the equivalent change was between 1979–80 and 1997–98. [41128]

Jacqui Smith: By 2007–08, total revenue funding per pupil will have increased nationally by over £1,400 in real terms since 1997–98, an increase of some 50 per cent. Information is not available prior to 1997–98 on the same basis.

Notes:

1. Funding consistent with Education Standard Spending Education Formula Spending plus all schools-related revenue grants in DfES's departmental expenditure limit which are relevant to pupils aged 3–19. Funding excludes child care and Surestart.
2. Calculations are based on full-time equivalent pupils aged 3–19 in maintained schools in England. This includes estimated numbers of three-year-olds funded through state support in maintained and other educational establishments.
3. Includes funding for academies and specialist schools but excludes CTCs.
4. Pensions transfers to Education Formula Spending have been deducted from 2003–04 onwards, with notional transfers for the final two years.
5. Real terms figures have been calculated using the September 2005 gross domestic product deflators with 2004–05 as the base year.

Services Education

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent representations she has received on the education of service children in state schools. [47908]

Jacqui Smith: We received a paper from the right hon. Member for Witney (Mr. Cameron) on behalf of the head teacher of a primary school in his constituency with a high proportion of children from service families. The paper outlines the background to his case that schools with service children should be recognised and supported, provides details of the difficulties faced by the children and by schools like his, and suggests possible solutions.

I had arranged to meet the right hon. Member and the head teacher to discuss these issues. The right hon. Member had to cancel that meeting but I remain happy to meet him to discuss this important matter.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps her Department is taking to meet the particular educational needs of the children of servicemen and women; and if she will make a statement. [47156]

Jacqui Smith: Children of servicemen and women can face extra challenges in education, mainly because their parents' redeployment leads to frequent changes of schools. A working group comprising head teachers from schools with significant numbers of children of service personnel, officials from the Ministry of Defence and the Department for Education and Skills, and the Children's Education Advisory Service (an MOD agency that supports service families) meets regularly to examine the needs of these children and identify possible solutions. Funding arrangements are in place to help schools manage high pupil mobility and local authorities are encouraged to use their funding flexibly to help service schools. DfES officials also work closely with Service Children's Education, an MOD agency responsible for forces schools abroad, to ensure that service children get the same education abroad that they would receive in this country. The school admissions code of practice advises admission authorities to take account of the needs of service families. Admission authorities can accept applications from parents returning to the area some months in advance and allocate a school place for when the family returns. In areas with a significant standing presence of service personnel, service representatives should be invited to join the admissions forum.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many school pupils in England are the children of servicemen and women. [47157]

Jacqui Smith: The information is not collected centrally.

Special Measures

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) if she will list local education authorities in which there are (a) three to five and (b) more than six schools in special measures; [46411]

(2) if she will list the local education authorities in which (a) three, (b) four, (c) five, (d) six and (e) seven or more schools are in special measures. [47370]

Jacqui Smith: The information is set out in the following tables:

Local authorities with 3 to 5 schools in special measures

Local authority	Number
Barking and Dagenham	3
Bradford	5
Bristol	5
Cambridgeshire	3
Cornwall	5

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many schools have been in special measures for longer than nine terms in each year since 1995. [47368]

Jacqui Smith: The number of schools that have been in special measures for more than nine terms at the end of each academic year since 1995 is set out in the following table:

Academic year	Number of schools in special measures for more than nine terms
1996/97	6

2004/05	3

Two schools are currently still in special measures after nine terms.

Teachers

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 12 October 2005, Official Report, column 533W, on teachers, how many first degree initial teacher training qualifiers at English higher education institutions were domiciled (a) within the UK and (b) overseas. [40437]

Bill Rammell: Figures for the academic year 2004/05 were released by the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) on 10 January, so figures for 2003/04 and 2004/05 are given in the table.

First degree initial teacher training (with QTS) qualifiers at English HE institutions

Domicile	2003/04	2004/05

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many teachers in England have reported a violent incident against them carried out by (a) a pupil and (b) a parent or guardian of a pupil in each of the last 10 years. [45894]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many teachers were employed in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in the (i) City of York and (ii) North Yorkshire Education Authority in each of the last 10 years. [46800]

Jacqui Smith: The following table provides the full-time equivalent number of regular teachers employed in maintained nursery, primary and secondary schools in the City of York and North Yorkshire local authorities in each January since 1996.

Full-time equivalent teachers in nursery, primary and secondary maintained schools in the City of York and North Yorkshire local authorities, 1996 to 2005

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what additional resources her Department is providing to schools to finance teachers' preparation, planning and assessment time; and if she will make a statement. [46985]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 31 January 2006]: Consideration was given to the additional resources that all schools might require to implement planning, preparation and implementation (PPA) time. Accordingly we estimate the cost of implementing PPA time from September 2005 will add an additional 0.7 per cent. to the cost pressures on primary schools for 2006–07—and that has been added to the universal cost pressures on schools for 2006–07 to give a Minimum Funding Guarantee (MFG) for nursery and primary schools of 4 per cent. for that year. The MFG figure for secondary and special schools will be set at 3.4 per cent. for 2006–07.

The overall increase in the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG) allocation for 2006–07 is 6.4 per cent., within which there is an indicative allocation of £70 million for implementing the final phase of workforce reform in primary schools. This funding will be consolidated into the DSG baseline for 2007–08.

Individual local authorities should decide, after consultation with their Schools Forums, how much additional funding they should allocate in 2006–07 for PPA.

Truancy

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils played truant from (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in each of the last five years. [46441]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested on unauthorised[1] absence is shown in the table.

[1] Unauthorised absence includes other forms of absence such as lateness, holidays during term time not authorised by the school, absence where reason is not yet established and truancy. Truancy forms only one part of the unauthorised figures.

Pupils with at least one session of unauthorised absence in maintained schools

	Number of pupils absent
	Primary	Secondary
2001	591,393	541,968
2002	564,445	566,644
2003	564,664	631,669
2004	567,503	696,600
2005	583,859	774,347

Trust Schools

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether trust schools will be entirely self-governing in respect of sex education. [47764]

Jacqui Smith: As for all maintained schools, trust schools will need to meet the requirements for sex education as set out in national curriculum science. They will also be required to have regard to the guidance on sex and relationship education issued by the Secretary of State when determining their sex education policy. Beyond this, trust schools will be free to use the non-statutory framework for personal, social and health education to develop their programmes further taking into account the views of parents and the needs of pupils.

University Students

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which 10 universities attracted the (a) highest and (b) lowest numbers of students from working class backgrounds in the last period for which figures are available. [39800]

Bill Rammell: Information for Higher Education Institutions is published by the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) in the annual publication "Performance Indicators in Higher Education". The latest available figures on the percentage of young full time first degree entrants from National Statistics—Socio Economic Classes (NS-SEC) 4, 5, 6 and 7 are shown in the table.

Vocational Education

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on her policy to extend vocational curriculum options for children aged 14-to-16 years. [47761]

Phil Hope: The 14-to-19 Education and Skills White Paper and the Implementation Plan (published December 2005) lay out detailed proposals for changes to the 14-to-19 curriculum. Key to these changes is the introduction of specialised diplomas, which will be available to young people from age 14, in 14 sector-related lines of learning. Specialised diplomas will provide young people with the skills and knowledge they need to progress into skilled employment, training and further or higher education; the diplomas will have a significant focus on applied learning. Employers are leading on the content development of the specialised diplomas, to ensure that these qualifications teach young people skills that have real currency in the labour market. The first five diplomas will be piloted from 2008; all 14 lines will be available from 2010, and there will be a national entitlement to a diploma course from 2013.

The 14-to-19 Education and Skills White Paper also proposed a work-focused programme to motivate 14-to-16 year-olds with relatively low attainment, who are at serious risk of disaffection, building on the lessons of the Entry to Employment programme for 16-to-19 year-olds. Pilots are to start from 2006–7, and the White Paper suggested a figure of up to 10,000 young people on the programme from 2007–8.

The Young Apprentices programme, which provides an opportunity for 14-to-16 year olds to gain a taste of 'real work' through two days a week (or equivalent) work experience, and to pursue qualifications that relate to particular occupational sectors, as well as following core national curriculum subjects, will continue to run. So too will the Increased Flexibility Programme, in which 14-to-16 year olds have the opportunity to study off-site at a college or training provider for one or two days a week throughout Key Stage 4. The pupils may work towards vocational and work related qualifications, and so develop their knowledge and understanding in a work context. GCSEs in vocational subjects will also continue to be offered: there are currently eight titles available, each of which is a double award. A further six titles are being developed; in some cases, these will be single, rather than double, awards.

In addition to these specific learning programmes, from September 2004 there has also been a statutory requirement for all pupils to undertake some work-related learning at Key Stage 4, through planned activity that uses the context of work to develop knowledge, skills and understanding useful for work.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

ASBOs (Legal Aid)

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the largest amount paid in legal aid has been in respect of an individual appealing against an antisocial behaviour order. [46184]

Bridget Prentice: The largest amount paid in legal aid in respect of an individual appealing against a free-standing antisocial behaviour order (ASBO) as at December 2005 was £3,230. These funds were granted to pay for an appeal to the Crown court.

This does not include those appeals against ASBOs that also form part of a wider appeal in civil and criminal proceedings. The ASBO element of these cases could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

City Status

Mr. Burns: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (1) whether she plans to award city status to towns to celebrate Her Majesty the Queen's 80th birthday; [47034]

(2) when city status will next be awarded to towns in the UK. [47035]

Ms Harman: There are no plans to make further grants of city status in the near future. It is for Her Majesty the Queen to decide when a grant of city status should be made. Competitions are usually held to mark important royal anniversaries which are national in nature, not personal. The Queen's 80th birthday is a personal anniversary, being marked by other events.

Immigration Appeals Centres

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many appeals have been heard at each immigration appeals centre in the UK in each of the last five years; and how many were successful in each centre in each year. [47192]

Bridget Prentice: Information taken from the databases of the AIT and its predecessor the immigration appellate authority (IAA), showing the proportion of successful appeals for all case types at the adjudicator and immigration judge stage, is set out for the past five years as follows.

Financial year	Number of decisions	Percentage allowed
2001–02	61,816	24
2002–03	92,941	25
2003–04	110,223	25
2004–05	105,590	28
4 April to September 2005 (2005–06)	48,638	30

The information for the period April to September 2005 is provisional.

It has not been possible to provide information on volumes of successful appeals broken down into individual hearing centres.

From the period April 2004 to September 2005 it has been possible to set out the volume of promulgations per hearing centre, although it is not possible to break this down into appeal outcomes.

Hearing centre	April 2004 to March 2005	April 2005 to September 2005
Birmingham/Walsall	11,956	5,186
Bradford	7,875	3,149
Field House	24	132
Glasgow	3,255	1,517
Hatton Cross/Surbiton/ Harmondsworth	26,305	12,529
Manchester	8,852	3,828
Newport	5,426	3,222
North Shields	4,964	1,962
Stoke/Nottingham	8,254	3,606
Taylor House/Croydon	28,147	12,750
Other	533	756
Total	105,590	48,638

The number of decisions in each period relate to the number of appeals promulgated in the period and not to the volume of appeal hearings.

Legal Aid

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what estimates she has made of the savings that would have been made had means testing for legal aid in (a) magistrates courts and (b) Crown courts not been abolished in 2001; and if she will make a statement. [47334]

Bridget Prentice: The previous means testing system was abolished because it was inefficient and costly to administer. In 1997–98, criminal legal aid contributions totalled £6.2 million, but the direct cost of administering the system was £5 million.

The purpose of re-introducing means testing through the Criminal Defence Service Bill is to ensure that the significant number of defendants who can afford to pay for their defence costs are now made to do so. The new means testing model will avoid the bureaucracy and delay associated with the ineffective contributory system of the past. Its implementation in the magistrates courts alone will deliver estimated annual savings of at least £35 million.

National Mediation Helpline

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many people are employed at the National Mediation Helpline. [44690]

Bridget Prentice: The Department has funded one full-time operator to work on the National Mediation Helpline for a year. Up to three other trained operators are available, on a part-time basis, to handle calls at peak times.

Visitor Visas

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what proportion of (a) oral and (b) written appeals against refusals for visitor visas were successful in each year since 2000. [46875]

Bridget Prentice: The proportion of family visitor appeals found in favour of the appellant in each year since 2000 at the adjudicator or immigration judge stage, is as follows.

1 April to 31 March	Paper hearing	Oral hearing
		Percentage
2000-01	32	64
2001-02	39	71
2002-03	39	66
2003-04	38	58
2005 (April to September)	31	52

The information for the period 2000 to 2004 is taken from the database of the asylum and immigration tribunal's (AIT) predecessor, the immigration appellate authority (IAA). The provisional information for 2005 is taken from the database of the AIT.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Consultant Referrals

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether, under the new consultant referral arrangements, a general practitioner may refer a patient to the relevant consultants' waiting list before his existing referrals have been dealt with. [47641]

Mr. Woodward: Under the new arrangements which I announced in January, all primary care referrals will be handled by a new central referrals management system from where, if they are non-urgent, they will be forwarded to new Integrated Clinical Assessment and Treatment Services (ICATS) for assessment of the most appropriate next step.

Separate arrangements will be put in place to find an appropriate and equitable resolution for existing referrals. These are currently being developed in collaboration with general practitioners and consultants.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people employed by the Northern Ireland Office are based in each of the parliamentary constituencies in Northern Ireland. [44516]

Mr. Woodward: The following table shows a breakdown of Northern Ireland Office staff across each of the 18 parliamentary constituencies.

Parliamentary constituency	Number of staff
Belfast East	690
Belfast North	49
Belfast South	672
Belfast West	3
East Antrim	172
East Londonderry	66
Fermanagh and South Tyrone	1
Foyle	7
Lagan Valley	107
Mid Ulster	1
Newry and Armagh	2
North Antrim	1
North Down	11
South Antrim	1
South Down	1
Strangford	19
Upper Bann	3
Total	1,828

The above figures include Northern Ireland civil service and Home civil service staff, industrial and non-industrial, permanent and temporary staff but not staff currently on career break, uniform Prison Service staff or Youth Justice Agency social workers at 1 January 2005.

Departmental Targets

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what data source he will use for the purposes of measuring performance against 2004 public service agreement target number 3; [29863]

(2) what data source he will use for the purposes of measuring performance against 2004 public service agreement target number 2; [29864]

(3) which data source he will use for the purposes of measuring performance against 2004 public service agreement target 1. [30279]

Mr. Hain: In common with the other Whitehall departments, the Northern Ireland Office provides details of the data sources used to measure performance against its 2004 public service agreement (PSA) targets in the Northern Ireland Office (NIO) SR2004 PSA technical notes which is available on the NIO website at http://www.nio.gov.uk. The SR2004 technical notes will also appear in the NIO's 2005 autumn performance report, due to be published on 15 December 2005, which reports progress against the PSA targets during the period April to September 2005.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the data required to measure 2004 public service agreement target number 1 are from consistent data sources. [29865]

Mr. Woodward: There are two elements to the Northern Ireland Office's public service agreement target number 1. The first relates to increasing confidence in the police and policing arrangements and the second to increasing Catholic representation in the police service.

The composite baseline measure for confidence in the police and policing arrangement element of PSA target number 1 was calculated using a weighted average of three indicators from the April 2004 Northern Ireland omnibus survey (NIOS) and four indicators from the 2003-04 Northern Ireland crime survey (NICS). The now continuous NICS will be used to measure progress towards achieving this part of the target.

Both surveys are conducted by the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency in accordance with national statistics principles. Their samples are drawn from a common sampling frame and are representative of the adult population of Northern Ireland. The NIOS, used to monitor performance during SR 2002, is conducted several times a year and has a smaller sample size than the NICS. From 2005, the NICS has moved from a biennial to a continuous basis, facilitating the production of more robust and more frequent performance measurement data than that previously available.

Data in relation to Catholic representation in the police has consistently been provided by the PSNI. The source of this data is the notification by existing officers of their primary school attendance. The religious affiliation of new recruits will be determined from their own declarations based on guidance issued by the Equality Commission.

Housing

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he will publish the Planning Policy Statement on housing in rural areas; and if he will make a statement. [47642]

Mr. Woodward: It is anticipated that draft Planning Policy Statement 14—"Sustainable Development in the Countryside", that will contain policies on housing in rural areas, will be published in the first quarter of 2006.

Martin Kelly

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions he has had with the Police Service of Northern Ireland in relation to the investigation into the disappearance of Martin Kelly from Holywood in County Down. [47827]

Mr. Woodward: I am being kept fully informed by the Police Service of Northern Ireland about any developments in this case. However, as this is part of a live police investigation, I am unable to comment further.

Private Pensions

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking to alleviate the financial difficulties of pensioners in Northern Ireland who have private pensions on which they pay a significant proportion of tax. [47591]

Mr. Hanson: Almost half of United Kingdom pensioners pay no income tax. For those who do, the age-related personal allowances in 2006–07 for people aged between 65 and 74 will rise from £7,090 to £7,280, and for people aged 75 and over from £7,220 to £7,420. This means that no person aged 65 or over will pay tax on an income of less than £140 per week.

This Government has introduced a number of measures since 1997 to help pensioners enjoy a better standard of living, including higher state pensions, pension credit, winter fuel payments and age-related payments. In addition to helping the poorest pensioners, pension credit specifically targets extra money on those with modest savings or income, for example, from a private pension. As a result of these measures across the United Kingdom over £10 billion more will be spent on pensioners in 2006–07 than in 1997.

Search Warrants

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many search warrants have been granted in each parliamentary constituency in Northern Ireland in the last 12 months. [48280]

Mr. Woodward: The Police Service of Northern Ireland do not hold this information on a central record. To obtain such details would require a manual trawl of records across all district command units and as such could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Troubles (Injuries/Deaths)

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) police and military and (b) civilian (i) deaths, (ii) serious injuries related to the troubles have occurred in each (A) ward and (B) constituency in Northern Ireland since 1976, listed in descending order. [47997]

Mr. Woodward: PSNI has advised that it continues to research this material, which must be cross-referenced with Historical Inquiry Team records before final submission.

The statistics collated by the PSNI relate to deaths only and, as presented, do not currently differentiate between security forces and civilians. Moreover, they are presented as a Northern Ireland wide total and do not breakdown by District Command Unit (DCU) area. To have to break down by serious injury etc. now would require a manual trawl of records at disproportionate cost.

Valuation and Lands Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to his answer of 2 December 2005, Official Report, column 838W, on the Valuation and Lands Agency, if he will place in the Library a copy of the updated Health and Safety in the Field Policy document to staff. [48038]

Angela E. Smith: Operation of the Health and Safety in the Field Policy has resulted in a number of amendments. These are being incorporated into a revised document, which will be available in March 2006. On issue a copy of this will be placed in the Library.

Waste Management Grant

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what changes there have been to the level of waste management grant to district councils in Northern Ireland since January 2005; and whether grants are ring-fenced for capital expenditure. [48285]

Angela E. Smith: The waste management grant to district councils for 2004–05 was £10 million, with a further £10 million anticipated for closing the scheme in 2005–06.

Since January 2005, the overall level of the next, and final phase of support, has been reduced to £9 million. This grant will now be made available over two years in two tranches; £7 million in 2006–07 and £2 million in 2007–08, and restricted to capital projects only. The scheme will close in March 2008.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Crown Prosecution Service

Mr. Amess: To ask the Solicitor-General what advice his Department issues for members of the public wishing to make a complaint against the Crown Prosecution Service; and if he will make a statement. [48110]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) operates its own complaints procedure. This is outlined in the CPS complaints leaflet; copies of which are available in the House of Commons Library and on the CPS website (www.cps.gov.uk)

If a member of the public contacts the Attorney General's Office to make a complaint about the CPS, they are directed to the CPS so that their complaint can be dealt with via the CPS's complaints procedure.

Where a complainant has exhausted the CPS's complaints procedure, they can have the handling of their complaint examined by the Correspondence Unit within the Attorney General's Office. The Unit does not undertake another review of the merit of the complaint itself, but will examine whether the CPS has handled the complaint in accordance with their established procedure.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Solicitor-General (1) what assessment he has made of the complaints procedures for the Crown Prosecution Service; [48115]

(2) whether he plans to review the complaints procedures for the Crown Prosecution Service; and if he will make a statement. [48119]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service manages its complaints procedure and reviews it at regular intervals. Officials indicate that the arrangements work satisfactorily.

Departmental Staff

Bob Spink: To ask the Solicitor-General how many disciplinary actions against civil servants employed in the Law Officers Departments (a) were commenced and (b) resulted in a sanction being applied in each of the last five years. [43503]

The Solicitor-General: The figures in relation to my Departments are shown in the following table.

	Disciplinary action commenced						Sanction
	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006

[2] No systematic records were kept prior to 2003.
[3] Ongoing.
[4] Since its creation, on 18 April 2004, the RCPO has not commenced any disciplinary action against civil servants employed or taken action that has resulted in a sanction being applied.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether assets and units of 16 Air Assault Brigade will be made available for taking part in the US Operation Enduring Freedom. [46977]

John Reid [holding answer 31 January 2006]: United Kingdom forces deploying to Southern Afghanistan—including elements of 16 Air Assault Brigade—will carry out tasks identified by NATO to help build the capacity of the Afghan Government, maintain security, and help the Afghanis rebuild their economy and society; they will initially come under Coalition command until Transfer of Authority for Stage III of ISAF expansion to NATO. UK forces will continue to operate under UK targeting directives and UK Rules of Engagement. Throughout, the UK force will operate in pursuit of the ISAF objectives.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence under which North Atlantic Council Resolution United Kingdom forces have been deployed to Afghanistan since 2003. [47996]

John Reid: The international security assistance force (ISAF) operates under the authority of United Nations' Security Council resolutions (UNSCRs). The North Atlantic Council does not pass resolutions but its decisions have defined the support given by NATO to the ISAF. The first of these was taken on 17 October 2002. On 16 April 2003 the council agreed NATO should take command of the ISAF later that year, and on 1 December 2003, confirmed NATO should proceed with the progressive expansion of the ISAF.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps have been taken in the past six months to lease further C-17s from Boeing to expand the capacity of the air bridge to Iraq. [45677]

Mr. Ingram: We keep our strategic airlift capability under review, and have considered a range of options for enhancing our capability. Over the past six months we have enhanced our capacity in support of operations in Iraq through the charter of large aircraft.

Conflict Prevention

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of his Department's budget was allocated to conflict prevention in (a) 2003–04, (b) 2004–05 and (c) 2005–06. [47129]

Mr. Ingram: All Defence expenditure contributes to the overarching Defence aim, which is to > "deliver security for the people of the United Kingdom and the overseas territories by defending them, including against terrorism, and to act as a force for good by strengthening international peace and security."

Conflict prevention is an integral part of this.

The costs of specific conflict prevention activities (including security and peace-building tasks) are voted for separately by Parliament, through either the HM Treasury reserve or the conflict prevention pools. As such, these funds do not form part of the Defence budget.

On this basis, the Department was voted additional resources for conflict prevention activities of around £1.5 billion in 2003–04 and £1.1 billion in 2004–05. For the financial year 2005–06, the resources required based on the level of conflict prevention activity in the financial year will be reflected in the spring supplementary estimates.

Daedalus Site, Lee-on-the-Solent

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the (a) public and (b) other bodies which are negotiating to acquire an interest in the Daedalus site at Lee-on-the-Solent; what the nature of that interest is in each case; and if he will ensure that local authorities and other interested bodies have opportunities for consultation before any commitment to transfer land is finalised. [47994]

Mr. Touhig: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) will be acquiring a freehold interest in the airfield site, which will enable them to implement the Government's maritime safety policy. Hampshire police will be acquiring a leasehold interest from the MCA. This will enable the police authority to continue with its important surveillance operations.

The South East England Development Agency (SEEDA) will be acquiring a freehold interest in the balance of the Daedalus site. In accordance with the Regional Development Agencies Act 1988, SEEDA will promote regeneration of the area including business efficiency, investment and competitiveness, employment and coatribute to the achievement of sustainable development.

It is the intention to reserve a right for the RN Gliding Centre to continue its glider training programme in accordance with MCA's operational procedures.

Upon decommissioning of the site in 1996 the Daedalus Strategy Group was formed comprising Gosport and Fareham borough councils and Hampshire county council. Throughout the holding period, the Ministry of Defence has consulted fully with this group and all key stakeholders. It is now more appropriate that these consultations should be continued by SEEDA and MCA.

DCAE Cosford

Mr. McFadden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) when he next plans to visit DCAE Cosford; [38985]

(2) how many jobs DCAE Cosford supports (a) directly and (b) indirectly in the West Midlands economy; and if he will make a statement. [38988]

Mr. Touhig: DCAE Cosford directly supports 1,243 jobs. Of these 562 are military personnel, 481 are civilian staff and 200 personnel are currently engaged as contractors. The Department does not hold a figure for the number of jobs indirectly supported by DCAE Cosford in the West Midlands.

Defence Ministers have no plans at present to visit DCAE Cosford.

Departmental Websites

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost of maintaining his main departmental website was for the last year for which figures are available; and how many visitors there were to the site in each of the last 12 months. [46301]

Mr. Touhig: The cost of maintaining the Ministry of Defence's main departmental website www.mod.uk was £127,192 in the financial year 2004–05. The website received the following number of visitors in each of the past seven months. Figures for the period January to June 2005 are unavailable.

	Number of visitors
July 2005	241,278
August 2005	223,588
September 2005	231,649
October 2005	206,174
November 2005	204,908
December 2005	160,392
January 2006	203,623

Aircraft Carriers

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the size of future aircraft carriers will prevent them from docking at (a) Portsmouth and (b) Plymouth; and if he will make a statement. [32169]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 30 November 2005]: Portsmouth was selected in 2002 as the base-port for the future aircraft carriers (CVF). The approach channel will be realigned and widened to permit safe access for the carriers, and some dredging work within the harbour will be also required. CVF will be too large to enter Devonport Naval Base.

Gulf War Illness

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what research has been provided to the Government on a possible relationship between the self reported use of nerve agent pre-treatment tablets and incidence of Gulf war illness. [46694]

Mr. Touhig: Research provided to the Government on possible associations between ill health among veterans of the 1990–91 Gulf conflict and exposures, including nerve agent pre-treatment set tablets, is generally in the form of published peer-reviewed medical/scientific papers and academic systematic reviews of such papers. Two reviews are considered of particular significance and authority.

The active ingredient in NAPS tablets is the compound Pyridostigmine Bromide (PB). In 2000, the US Institute of Medicine's review "Gulf War and Health: Volume 1. Depleted Uranium, Pyridostigmine Bromide, Sarin, and Vaccines", concluded that there was inadequate/insufficient evidence to determine whether an association does or does not exist between PB and long-term adverse health effects. In 2003, the UK Medical Research Council's review of research into UK Gulf veterans' illnesses noted that for many years PB has been used routinely to treat neuromuscular disease. This had involved much higher doses administered over long periods of time. No serious side effects have been observed as a result of the use of PB in this latter context.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many members of (a) the Fourth Armoured Brigade, (b) the Seventh Armoured Brigade, (c) the First Armoured Division Force Maintenance Area, (d) the RAF and (e) the Royal Navy involved in Operation Granby in 1991 have since been examined by the Gulf War Medical Assessment programme; how many in each category were found to be suffering from diagnosed neurological illnesses; and how many in each category are claiming war pensions for (i) neurological illnesses and (ii) non-neurological illnesses; [46864]

(2) how many cases of diagnosed (a) neurological and (b) auto-immune illnesses in 1991 Gulf war veterans have been examined by the Gulf War Medical Assessment programme since 1992. [46872]

Mr. Touhig: Since the Gulf Veterans' Medical Assessment programme was established in 1993, it has medically assessed 3,278 1990–91 Gulf veterans. Of those seen, 2,521 were Army, 299 Navy and 458 RAF, of whom 117,17 and 27 respectively had neurological disorders.

No unusual diseases or pattern of diseases were found. Of 161 cases of neurological disorder, the most common was migraine (43), followed by epilepsy (28) (22 idiopathic, 6 post traumatic) and multiple sclerosis (19). Of the 161 only one was medically assessed as a result of service in the Gulf. The remaining 71 veterans suffered a miscellaneous group of disorders, some of a genetic nature, others extant before deployment to the Gulf and others developing many years after return from the Gulf, none of which were assessed by Medical Assessment programme physicians to be caused by either deployment to the Gulf or medical countermeasures used during that campaign.

In relation to auto-immune illnesses, there have been three cases of systemic lupus erythematosus autoimmune disease, and three cases of common variable immunodeficiency. Two of the latter were asymptomatic and discovered by chance. None of these six cases was assessed as being due to service in the 1990–91 Gulf conflict. However, since 2002, routine investigations for immune diseases have not been routinely undertaken unless clinically indicated.

Information is not held centrally on the individual units that patients of the Medical Assessment programme served with in theatre, or the number of war pensions in payment to patients that have attended, and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Iraq

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the average number of insurgent attacks in Multinational Division South East is for each month since January 2005; where they have occurred; and if he will make a statement; [23063]

(2) how many incidents in Multinational Division South East for each month since January 2005 have been caused by use of improvised explosive devices; and if he will make a statement. [23120]

John Reid: The total number of attacks in Multinational Division (South East) since January 2005 is 562 making the monthly average 46.8. We assess that 115 have been caused by improvised explosive devices. This makes the monthly average 9.5.

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the infiltration by sectarian militias of (a) the Interior Ministry and (b) defence forces in Iraq. [33937]

Mr. Ingram: Ethnic, religious and tribal loyalties are widespread within Iraqi society. Part of the reform and democratisation process of Iraqi institutions is the removal of those individuals whose loyalties are not to the state. The performance of the Iraqi Interior and Defence Ministries and of the Iraqi Security Forces will be important factors in determining the rate of transfer to Iraqi control of security and we continue to make detailed capability assessments of the Iraqi Security Forces within the UK area of responsibility.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British soldiers have been wounded in Iraq; how many were returned home as a result of their injuries; and whether his Department keeps records of their geographical location in the UK when they return. [36699]

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British (a) servicemen and (b) women have been very seriously injured in Iraq in each month since March 2003. [39267]

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel in Iraq were wounded in (a) action and (b) accidents in each year since hostilities began, broken down by severity of injury. [45453]

John Reid: [holding answers 20 December 2005 and 26 January 2006]: Centrally available records show that some 230 UK personnel have been treated at UK medical facilities in theatre for wounds received as a result of hostile action between March 2003 and December 2005[1].

Our Notification of Casualty reporting records also allow us to give a figure for those categorised in theatre as Very Seriously Ill/Injured/Wounded (VSI), meaning that their life was imminently endangered. Some 40 personnel were categorised as VSI as a result of injury or wounds, however caused, in Iraq between March 2003 and December 2005[2].

Separate records show that between February 2003 and December 2005 some 4,000 military and civilian personnel (including a few Iraqis) have been medically evacuated from theatre. The great majority of cases were due to illness or accidental injury and not as a result of hostile action.

The MOD intends to publish casualty figures for Iraq on the MOD website in the next few weeks, identifying the number of personnel categorised as "Seriously Injured" and "Very Seriously Injured". The figures will be updated regularly. I will write to inform the hon. and right hon. Members prior to the first publication.

The Ministry of Defence keeps records of all armed forces personnel currently serving and where they are located. The Veterans Agency maintains up to date records of those troops that have been medically discharged in order to pay their medical pensions.

[1] Before October 2004, we only have centrally held records for the Shaibah UK Field Hospital. The figure does not include, for example, UK casualties of hostile action who were treated either by other UK Field Hospitals (early stages of operation only—for which unit records are not held centrally) or by coalition partners, or those with more minor injuries who did not receive Field Hospital treatment. From October 2004, the figure relates to all those wounded who were treated in any of the UK medical facilities in the UK-led Multi-National Division South East MND(SE) area. This figure excludes any personnel who subsequently died.

Iraq Service Medal

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many personnel are eligible for the Iraq service medal; how many medals have been awarded to date; and what the average time taken has been to award the medal; [43419]

(2) how many non-military personnel are eligible for the Iraq service medal; and how many have been awarded. [43455]

Mr. Touhig: The information is not held in the format requested, however, as at 20 January 2006 there have been 99,839 applications for the Iraq medal received from armed forces personnel of which 97,006 have been awarded. The current average waiting time from application to issue is three months.

As at 20 January 2006 there have been 933 applications for the Iraq medal received from non-military personnel all of which have been awarded.

Qinetiq

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the nature of the special share in Qinetiq to be retained by the Government. [43775]

John Reid [holding answer 19 January 2006]: The purpose of the Special (or Golden) Share in Qinetiq is solely to protect UK defence or security interests. The Ministry of Defence has held a Special Share in the Company for this purpose from the time of the Public Private Partnership Transaction with the Carlyle Group in 2003. The Government consider it necessary to retain this Special Share after the Initial Public Offering, adapted as necessary to reflect the new corporate structure of the Company.

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the Government plans to reserve a proportion of shares in Qinetiq for small shareholders. [43850]

John Reid [holding answer 19 January 2006]: The Government do not intend reserving a proportion of shares for small shareholders in the forthcoming Initial Public Offering of Qinetiq.

As is the case in any institutional offer, members of the public may apply for shares through a private client stockbroker, although there will be no allocation of shares reserved for that purpose. Members of the public will also be able to buy shares in Qinetiq once trading has commenced. The cost to the taxpayer of any special arrangement would be between £5 million and £23 million and based on advice from our financial advisers and it is the Government's view that inclusion of a retail offer in this way would not offer value for money for the taxpayer.

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the availability of shares in Qinetiq to retail investors. [43851]

John Reid [holding answer 19 January 2006]: As is the case in any institutional offer, members of the public may apply for shares through a private client stockbroker, although there will be no allocation of shares reserved for that purpose. Members of the public will also be able to buy shares in Qinetiq once trading has commenced. The cost to the taxpayer of making particular and special provision, based on previous experience, would be between £5 million and £23 million and based on advice from our financial advisers, it is the Government's view that inclusion of a retail offer in this way would not offer value for money for the taxpayer.

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the Government's policy is on the flotation of Qinetiq; and if he will make a statement. [43852]

John Reid [holding answer 19 January 2006]: The flotation of Qinetiq is the logical next step in the Public Private Partnership (PPP) for Defence Research announced in the 1998 Strategic Defence Review. The aims of the PPP were to strengthen the linkages between defence and civil technologies, encourage the commercial exploitation of the taxpayers' investment in science and technology, and create a sustainable future for DERA and its staff whilst retaining within Government (the Defence Science and Technology Laboratory) those functions not appropriate to the private sector. The Government, informed by the advice of its professional advisers, believes that an Initial Public Offering (IPO) now provides the best route for Qinetiq further to develop its excellence as a supplier of advanced technology in a global market. Following the IPO, the MOD will continue to retain a significant stake in the company, and a Special Share to protect the United Kingdom's defence and security interests in Qinetiq.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the value was of assets of Qinetiq prior to the sale of shares in 2002. [44096]

John Reid: The net asset value in the Qinetiq Group plc as shown in the annual report and financial statements for 2002 was £312.5million.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will refer the sale of Qinetiq to Carlyle in 2002 to the National Audit Office. [46895]

John Reid: The National Audit Office announced on 26 January that it would carry out a study into the Qinetiq Public Private Partnership. The study will include consideration of the sale to Carlyle, which took place in February 2003.

It is routine for the NAO to look at complex PPP transactions of this sort and it would have been very surprising if it had not wished to examine the Qinetiq privatisation. The MOD welcomes its involvement and looks forward to co-operating fully with their work.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what privileges his Department's special share in Qinetiq will confer after flotation. [47269]

John Reid: The special share that the Ministry of Defence presently holds in Qinetiq will be retained after the flotation of the company, to protect UK defence or security interests, as at present. Along with the principal agreement, the special share gives MOD the ability, among other things, to:

prohibit or restrict Qinetiq from undertaking activities which may lead to an unmanageable conflict of interest that would be damaging to the defence or security interests of the United Kingdom; veto any proposed contract, transaction, arrangement or activity which may result in what the MOD considers to be an unacceptable ownership, influence, control or activity of Qinetiq contrary to the defence or security interests of the United Kingdom; and require Qinetiq' s Board to take appropriate action to protect the defence or security interests of the United Kingdom.

Further detail of the rights conferred to MOD by the special share is available in the Qinetiq sale prospectus, a copy of which was placed in the Library of the House on 26 January 2006. This includes detailed summaries of the rights (pp.150 and 212), detail of restrictions on shareholdings (pp.17 and 55), and fuller details of the special share on pp. 244–247.

Service Children's Education

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of 15-year-olds in schools operated by Service Children's Education achieved five or more GCSEs or equivalent at grades (a) A* to C and (b) A* to C including English and mathematics in each year since 1995. [47158]

Mr. Touhig: Service Children's Education (SCE) was launched as an agency of the Ministry of Defence on 1 April 1996, at that point assuming responsibility for all Service schools located outwith the United Kingdom. I am therefore unable to provide the academic achievement for 1995. Academic results for 2005 currently await formal validation by representatives of Defence Internal Audit and will be published in the SCE Annual Report and Accounts, copies of which are placed in the Library of the House, prior to the summer recess. The relevant Agency results from 1996 to 2004 are set out in the tables:

Service Personnel

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 9 January 2006, Official Report, column 226W, on service personnel, what options he has identified for the use of trained mediators in the resolution of disputes; what measures were approved by the Service Personnel Group following its meeting of 19 January; and what the timetable is for further action. [47787]

Mr. Touhig: A number of options regarding the use of trained mediators in the resolution of disputes were discussed by the Service Personnel Executive Group on 19 January 2006. These are now subject to further discussion with the Equal Opportunities Commission and I will write to my hon. Friend when a course of action has been decided upon.

SevenCs

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will set out the rules governing the commercial operations of his Department and its agencies; how his Department applied the rules to the acquisition of SevenCs by the UK Hydrographic Office; and if he will make a statement. [47221]

Mr. Touhig [holding answer 31 January 2006]: Guidance covering the Ministry of Defence commercial policy and procedures is contained in the commercial toolkit (CmT) available through the acquisition management system at www.ams.mod.uk.

In relation to the UK Hydrographic Office the rules governing its commercial operations are set out in the Government Trading Funds Act 1973, the Government Trading Act 1990 and the Hydrographic Trading Fund Order 1996. In addition to this UK legislation, German civil law also governed the acquisition of SevenCs by the UK Hydrographic Office. In acquiring SevenCs the UK Hydrographic Office ensured that it did so within the applicable rules.

Soldiers (Retirement)

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what research he has commissioned into the appropriate retirement age of soldiers. [45938]

Mr. Touhig: In August 2001 the Army Policy and Resources Committee authorised a review of the soldiers' career structures. The review, known as the Non Commissioned Engagement and Career Study, reported its findings in November 2002 and recommended the introduction of a more flexible and efficient career structure for soldiers, that would meet the operational and administrative needs of the Army and the individual in the 21st century while enabling better use of those soldiers who wish to serve beyond a 22-year engagement. As a first step in November 2004 the longer career model (LCM) was introduced for the staff and personnel support branch of the Adjutant General's Corps offering the possibility of three-five years extension of service beyond the 22-year point. The LCM is also available to other cap badges and several are now actively investigating the feasibility of longer service for their soldiers. Plans to offer even greater flexibility in length of service for soldiers are also under consideration.

Territorial Army

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the Territorial Army were declared Fit For Role at the end of the last training year. [41654]

Mr. Touhig: The number of members of the Territorial Army that were declared Fit For Role at the end of the last training year is not currently held centrally and can only be provided at disproportionate cost. I can confirm that as at 1 April 2005, 19,290 officers and soldiers were declared as trained. It is this which determines whether an member of the TA may be called up for deployment.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the Territorial Army bounty is for (a) the first year, (b) the second year, (c) the third and fourth years and (d) five years and above; and how many bounties were claimed in respect of each band for 2004–05. [43676]

Mr. Touhig: The rates of Territorial Army bounty can be found in the following table.

Rates of training bounty payable from April 2005-April 2006

	1st year	2nd year	3rd/4th year	5th and subsequent years
Group A (Higher Training obligations for officers and soldiers)	371.00	816.00	1,260.00	1,462.00

Group B—Officers, Officer Cadets and Soldiers in the Officer Training Corps (OTC)	127.00	148.00	180.00	180.00

[1] In certain individual cases involving special business or domestic reasons, COs may permit trade qualified personnel of independent and specialist units to undertake the lower training liability.

Note:
Excludes non regular permanent staff officers and soldiers

The number of TA bounties paid in 2004–05 can be found in the following table. It should be noted that these bounties paid were for qualification of bounty in the training year 2003–04.

52nd Lowland Regiment	474	389	(82)

No decisions have yet been taken on the future establishment for the Territorial Army Infantry Battalions. An announcement will be made in due course.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) establishment and (b) strength was of Territorial Army (i) staff, (ii) Royal Armoured Corps, (iii) Royal Artillery, (iv) Royal Engineers, (v) Royal

Signals, (vi) infantry, (vii) Army Air Corps, (viii) Royal Army Chaplains Department, (ix) Royal Logistics Corps, (x) Royal Army Medical Corps, (xi) Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, (xii) Adjutant General's Corps, (xiii) Royal Army Veterinary Corps, (xiv) Small Arms School Corps, (xv) Royal Army Dentistry Corps, (xvi) Intelligence Corps, (xvii) Army Physical Training Corps, (xviii) general list, (ixx) Queen Alexandra's Royal Auxiliary Nursing Corps, (xx) Officer Training Corps and (xxi) unallocated staff in (A) 1997 and (B) 2005. [45644]

Mr. Touhig: At 1 April 1997 the establishment and strength of the Territorial Army was 59,000 and 56,200 respectively. At 1 April 2005 the establishment and strength of the Territorial Army was 41,610 and 36,180 respectively. Table A provides a breakdown for the Territorial Army strengths by Arm and Service. Dentistry

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children are not registered with an NHS dentist; and what assessment her Department has made of the merits of revising the provision of school based dental checks for children. [42918]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information on the number of children not registered with a national health service dentist is not collected centrally.

As at 30 September 2005, the number of children registered with an NHS dentist with a general dental services or personal dental services contract in England was 6,927,299. This is estimated to be 59 per cent. of the total child population in England.

The National Screening Committee is currently reviewing the arrangements for the screening of children's dental health.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the providers of each of the dental access centres in England. [43533]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Dental access centres operate under personal dental services arrangements. Therefore, it is the local primary care trust (PCT) that is the provider. The following PCTs operate one or more of the 53 dental access centres in England.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of people were registered with an NHS dentist in (a) Yeovil constituency, (b) Somerset, (c) South Somerset and (d) England in each year since 1995. [28223]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 18 November 2005]: The information requested is shown in the table.

Notes:
1. The drop in registrations between September 1997 and September 1998 is mostly attributable to the reduction in re-registration period from two years to fifteen months.
2. Most PDS schemes that have registrations have a re-registration period in excess of fifteen months, so the figures for PDS schemes are generally higher than they would have been for the same attendance pattern under CDS.
3. Prison registrations are included in these figures.
4. Salaried dentist registrations are not included in these figures.
5. A dentist with a GDS or PDS contract may provide as little or as much NHS treatment as he or she chooses or agreed with the PCT.
6. The Dental Practice Board has no information concerning the amount of time dedicated to NHS work by individual dentists.
7. The areas have been defined using practice postcodes within the current boundaries.
8. Areas have been defined using the Office of National Statistics All Fields Postcode Directory.
9. Population data at constituency area are not available.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of children in Hereford constituency are registered with an NHS dentist. [44613]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is not available in the format requested. However, the proportion of children registered within the Herefordshire Primary Care Trust as at November 2005 was 70 per cent.

Notes:
1. The percentages of the population registered with a dentist (or registration rate) have been estimated by including patient registrations in the area of the dentist, that is, according to the postcode of the dental surgery and not the patient's address. So the registration rates for some areas may be affected by some patients receiving dental treatment in a different area from the one in which they live.

2. Estimates have been calculated using population estimates for the nearest year for which data are available. Percentages for 2005 have been calculated using 2004 mid year population estimates.
3. Information on children registered with a dentist at constituency level is not available as a percentage of the total number of children in the constituency. This is due to population data not being available at constituency level.

Drug Treatment Programmes

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what average time a patient requiring (a) residential and (b) in-patient specialist drug treatment was on a waiting list for treatment in the last period for which figures are available. [44641]

Caroline Flint: The last period for which these figures are available is for the three months July to September 2005. The average waiting time for patients on a waiting list requiring residential drug treatment was 2.6 weeks, and 3.1 weeks for patients requiring in-patient specialist drug treatment.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many drug treatment places for abuse of illegal drugs were available in each of the last five years. [47706]

Caroline Flint: We do not record the number of places. Drug treatment is measured by activity. In 2004–05, 160,450 were in treatment—an increase of 28 per cent. on the previous year.

Feltham Young Offenders Institute

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of prison health care provision was at Feltham Young Offenders Institute in the last three years for which figures are available. [45460]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The funding allocation for health care provision for Her Majesty's Young Offenders Institute, Feltham was £4.5 million in 2003–04, £4.7 million in 2004–05 and £4.8 million in 2005–06.

HIV/AIDS (Hertfordshire)

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 20 January 2006, Official Report, column 1667W, on HIV/AIDS, what assessment she has made of HIV infection rates in Hertfordshire. [46370]

Caroline Flint: The data available on HIV infection is by strategic health authority (SHA) rather than county and relate to new diagnoses rather than infection rates.

The most recent data available on HIV diagnoses in Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire SHA is available on the Health Protection Agency's website at: www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/hiv_and_sti/hiv/epidemiology/hars_tables.htm

Influenza Pandemic Planning

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many occasions the Cabinet Committee on Influenza Pandemic Planning (MISC 32) has met since it was established. [46492]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I have been asked to reply. Information relating to internal meetings, discussion and advice and the proceedings of Cabinet and Cabinet committees is generally not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

Mental Health

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, what treatment and resources are provided to ex-servicemen suffering post combat mental heath illness who are also alcohol or drug dependent; and if she will make a statement.

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 31 January 2006]: National health service services for post traumatic stress disorder and alcohol or drug dependence are freely available to all, including ex-service people. In addition, the Ministry of Defence funds a range of services provided by Combat Stress, specifically for this group.

The NHS is working closely with the Ministry of Defence and Combat Stress to ensure that services work more closely together.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effects of the use of prone restraint in (a) mental health and (b) care institutions; and if she will make a statement. [45282]

Ms Rosie Winterton: While all restraint positions are potentially harmful, there is no empirical evidence which indicates that the prone position carries a greater risk of harm to patients than other restraint positions.

Individual authorities are required by the Code of Practice of the Mental Health Act 1983 to have clear policies on the use of prone restraint and other forms of physical restraint. Physical restraint should take place only as a last resort, not routinely. Any restraint used should also be reasonable in the circumstance, apply the minimum force necessary to prevent harm to the patient or others, for only as long as is necessary and be sensitive to gender and race issues. This advice applies in all healthcare settings and to all age ranges. Trusts should regularly audit their physical restraint procedures to ensure these are consistent with the framework of clinical governance.

The Department emphasises the recognition and prevention of aggression and violence wherever possible and published guidance in 2004, "Mental Health Policy Implementation Guide: Developing Positive Practice to Support the Safe and Therapeutic Management of Aggression and Violence in Mental Health Inpatient Settings".

We also commissioned guidance from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE), which looked at the management of aggression and violence, including restraint. NICE published "Disturbed (violent) behaviour: the short-term management of disturbed (violent) behaviour in in-patient psychiatric settings" in February 2005.

In September 2005, the National Health Service Security Management Service formally launched its training programme, "Promoting safer and therapeutic services", following the successful piloting of this in a number of national health service trusts.

The National Institute for Mental Health in England (NIMHE) is also reviewing positive practice standards in relation to the safe and therapeutic management of aggression and violence. NIMHE, together with the National Patient Safety Agency, who are undertaking a project on preventing and managing violence, will publish guidance and a checklist early in 2006 to ensure that all restraint procedures meet rigorous standards. The project team is also developing proposals for the accreditation and regulation of physical intervention trainers.

MRSA

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of MRSA there have been at Essex Rivers health care in the past 12 months; and at which locations. [44974]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The best available information is from the mandatory meticillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) blood stream infections surveillance which started in April 2001. This information is collected at trust level. The most recent data shows that there were 37 MRSA bacteraemia reports from April 2004 to March 2005 in Essex Rivers healthcare national health service trust.

Neuroblastoma

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients in England were diagnosed as having neuroblastoma in each of the last three years. [47414]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl dated 2 February 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question concerning how many patients in England were diagnosed as having neuroblastoma in each of the last three years. I am replying in her absence. (47414)

The most recent available information on registration of newly diagnosed cases (incidence) are for the year 2003. Numbers of newly diagnosed cases of neuroblastoma registered in England between 2001 and 2003, are given in the table.

New Hospital (St. Albans)

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assurances her Department gave the former hon. Member for St. Albans of a new hospital being constructed by the West Hertfordshire NHS Trust. [41119]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There have been no assurances given about the proposed new Hospital in Hatfield. However, in July 2004, my right hon. Friend the then Secretary of State for Health (John Reid), did approve Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire Strategic Health Authority's strategic outline case, "Investing in Your Health", which included the option of building a new hospital in Hatfield. A clear timetable was set out that would see East and North Hertfordshire National Health Service Trust completing and submitting a detailed outline business case for the new hospital by the end of 2006. Firm assurances can not be given because the final investment proposals are subject to confirmation as part of the business case process.

NHS Contracts

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what calculations were made to estimate the cost of (a) the consultant contract, (b) agenda for change and (c) the new general medical services contract, as provided in her Department's public expenditure questionnaire 2005 for the Health Committee; and whether there have been cost overruns on each of these contracts. [36604]

Mr. Byrne: The consultant contract was costed on a methodology agreed with the British Medical Association and on that basis the estimated cost of the contract, and the funding, was £133 million in 2003–04 rising to £250 million in 2005–06. In late 2004, we adjusted the tariff for 2005–06 by £150 million in response to suggestions from the service that this was the further cost pressure. However, our national survey, published in February 2005, indicated that the actual additional cost to the service was around £90 million.

Agenda for change costs were estimated from experience in a number of early implementer sites to be consistent with the agreed funding envelope of £480 million in 2004–05 rising to £950 million in 2005–06.

There are concerns based on monitoring in a number of sample sites that initial costs may have been higher than expected, and follow-up work is currently being carried out on the costs of implementation within each strategic health authority to test this. The agenda for change funding envelope is due to increase in 2006–07 and 2007–08 and it is too soon to conclude whether or not the overall envelope will be exceeded.

For the general medical services contract, forecast spend based on available primary care trust data is shown in the table.

Forecast spend against PCT allocated resources

Financial year	Allocation	Outturn	Over
2003–04	5.7	5.8	0.1
2004–05[1]	6.8	6.9	0.1
2005–06[1]	7.4	7.5	0.1

[1] Forecast outturn, that is still subject to finalised PCT accounts.

Optometry

Angela Browning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions her Department has had with optometrists concerning their payment system for NHS eye examinations; and if she will make a statement. [34513]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 5 December 2005]: I met with representatives of optometrists and dispensing opticians on 27 October 2005. One of the issues raised was their concern that changes might be made to current arrangements for a nationally negotiated sight test fee, with sight tests funded from a national budget. I assured them that we did not envisage any changes to these arrangements.

The fee for the national health service funded sight test is currently subject to a three-year agreement, which ends in March 2006. Negotiations on the sight test fee for 2006–07 are due to begin shortly.

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much each of the Suffolk primary care trusts will receive in 2006–07 per head of population; and what the national average is expected to be. [44637]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Revenue allocations per head of population to primary care trusts (PCTs) in Suffolk, as well as the England average, for 2006–07 are shown in the table.

Allocations to PCTs are based on the population weighted for a number of factors. These factors include:

age related need—to recognise that people tend to have greater need as they grow older; additional needs—to reflect difference in health need over and above that accounted for by age; and unavoidable difference in the cost of providing services.

PCT allocations per head of population

PCT	2006–07 allocation (£000)	2006 population	2006–07 allocation per head (£)
Central Suffolk	106,743	100,398	1,063
Ipswich	179,944	144,219	1,248
Suffolk Coastal	115,682	99,209	1,166
Suffolk West	256,665	244,287	1,051

Prisons (Health Care)

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans her Department has for the contracting-out of prison health care. [45461]

Ms Rosie Winterton: We have no central plans for the contracting out of prison health care in the public prisons. From April 2006, primary care trusts will be responsible for commissioning health care services for prisons in their area. They will do this in conjunction with their prisons according to the needs of their population.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many contracts have been awarded to private sector companies for the provision of healthcare within HM Prison Service; and if she will list the (a) prisons and (b) companies concerned. [45459]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not available centrally. It is for the primary care trusts, working in conjunction with the prisons in their area, to commission services based on the needs of their populations. Large contracts with private sector companies, for the provision of health care, are not the norm in the public sector prisons although Her Majesty's Young Offenders Institute, Feltham has recently entered into a contract with SERCO for the provision of primary health care services.

Worcestershire Royal Hospital

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will investigate the series of complaints made against the Worcestershire Royal hospital concerning poor care in the hospital; and if she will make a statement. [45557]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 26 January 2006]: This is a matter for West Midlands South strategic health authority (SHA) which is responsible for ensuring that its primary care trusts commission services to meet the needs of the local populations and that those services are of an appropriate quality. The SHA is looking into the matter and will write to the hon. Member with its findings.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Brownfield Development (Hammersmith and Fulham)

Mr. Hands: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) how many hectares of brownfield land have been developed in Hammersmith and Fulham in each year since 1997; and how many new homes have been built in the course of those developments; [45272]

(2) what percentage of new housing development in Hammersmith and Fulham has been on brownfield land in each year since 1997. [45274]

Yvette Cooper: The available estimates are from land use change statistics, shown in the following table.

	Previously-developed land developed for all uses (hectares)	New dwellings on previously-developed land[1] (number)	Proportion of new dwellings on previously-developed land[1] (percentage)
1998	9	213	96
1999	4	106	93
2000	3	101	100
2001	9	61	98
2002	3	n/a	100

[1] Excludes dwellings from conversions and change of use.

Buncefield Oil Depot

Mike Penning: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make it his policy to suspend all new developments around (a) oil depots and (b) refineries until the inquiry into the Buncefield oil depot fire by the Health and Safety Executive has reported; and if he will make a statement. [47589]

Yvette Cooper: Decisions about development in the vicinity of oil depots and refineries are, in the first instance, matters for local planning authorities. The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) has established consultation zones around these sites. Within these zones, local planning authorities have to consult the Health and Safety Executive about proposed development so that it can advise them about the risk from the sites and their potential effects on nearby development.

The Health and Safety Executive and the Environment Agency are currently investigating the causes of the incident at Buncefield. So far the investigation has not revealed any grounds to change the basis of HSE's existing advice to planning authorities. Until the causes of the incident are established it would be premature to comment.

Mike Penning: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will take steps to stop the reduction in (a) full-time and (b) retained (i) fire stations and (ii) firefighters in Hertfordshire until the inquiry into the Buncefield oil depot fire by the Health and Safety Executive has reported; and if he will make a statement. [47590]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Fire and Rescue Authorities are required by the Fire and Rescue Service National Framework to have in place and maintain an Integrated Risk Management Plan (IRMP) which reflects local need and sets out plans to tackle effectively both existing and potential risks to communities. It is, therefore, for Hertfordshire Fire and Rescue Authority to determine appropriate fire cover and the level of service in its area. I am sure that the authority will wish to consider all issues associated with the Buncefield oil depot fire before reaching a final decision.

It is not the role of Ministers to agree the operational proposals in an authority's plan; that is for elected members of the authority concerned. They are best placed to act on the professional advice of principal officers and to balance the competing local demands on available resources for the benefits of the communities they serve.

Fire Services

Peter Viggers: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what factors relating specifically to fire control led the Government to decide that the south east regional government area is the most appropriate area to be controlled from a single fire control centre. [47995]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The report "The Future of Fire and Rescue Control Rooms in England and Wales: Update 2003" by consultants Mott MacDonald concluded that a regional approach is the optimal way of delivering fire and rescue control services. Government office for the regions boundaries have been chosen because they help maximise benefits and simplify issues such as funding, ownership and accountability. A further benefit is that the regional resilience teams, with whom the control centres will work, follow the same boundaries.

John Bercow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what measures have been taken by his Department to incorporate the proposed housing expansion and development within the Buckingham constituency into the new Buckinghamshire and Milton Keynes Fire Authority budget. [47759]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Local Government Finance Settlement for 2006-07 and 2007-08 that was laid before the House by my hon. Friend the Minister for Local Government on 31 January 2006 took account of projected population growth in each authority's area. This grant combined with council tax, specific grants and reserves determine the annual budget of an authority.

However, the population projections do not take into account events that have not yet occurred, such as population change as a result of proposed housing expansion, as these are affected by future policy changes or local decisions. There is no additional specific grant available to fire and rescue authorities relating to housing expansion.

Gershon Efficiency Submissions

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will deposit in the Library a copy of the Gershon efficiency submission from each (a) local, (b) police and (c) fire authority in England. [47144]

Mr. Woolas: Annual Efficiency Statements from each local authority are already in the public domain on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website at: http://www.odpm.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1134484. The 43 territorial police forces in England and Wales publish information about their efficiency plans in their annual policing plans. All English fire and rescue authorities have provided Annual Efficiency Statements but the figures are provisional and currently subject to revision. These will also be published on the ODPM website in due course.

Housing

Lynne Jones: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many (a) council tenancies, (b) registered social landlord tenancies and (c) private landlord tenancies there were in (i) England, (ii) the West Midlands and (iii) Birmingham in each of the last 20 years. [42222]

Yvette Cooper: Information is not collected centrally on the number of tenancies although estimates for social tenancies can be made using stock figures. The number of private tenancies can only be estimated from housing surveys and is not available at local authority level.

Stock figures by local authority district and region are published for the local authority sector for 1994 to 2005 and the registered social landlord sector for 1997 to 2005 on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website in tables 116 and 115 respectively. Figures are also given for England and for the Government Office Regions. The links for these tables are at:

The number of private sector tenancies can be estimated from housing surveys and the estimates for West Midlands and England are tabled as follows. Due to the size of these surveys it is not possible to obtain reliable estimates at local authority level.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) how many hectares of (a) greenfield and (b) brownfield land have been developed in each London borough in each year since 1997; how many new homes have been built in each development; and if he will make a statement; [42635]

(2) what percentage of new housing development in each London borough has been on brownfield land in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [42949]

Yvette Cooper: The available estimates are from Land Use Change Statistics, shown in the following tables. Amounts of land changing to residential uses are shown up to 2003. Estimates of percentages of dwellings on previously-developed land are also shown for 2004 on a provisional basis. Numbers of new dwellings built on all individual developments could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Total numbers of dwellings built in each London borough are published in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's Housing Statistics.

Industrial Development (East Midlands)

John Mann: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what are the biggest three industrial development sites available in the East Midlands. [45746]

Yvette Cooper: Many sites allocated for industrial use within the region are subject to planning permission being issued and/or the provision of major infrastructural improvements before becoming readily available. With this proviso, the three largest sites in the region are all in Derbyshire, at Markham Vale (Chesterfield), Stanton Works (Erewash) and Castlewood (Pinxton/South Normanton).

Jewish Festivals

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what his Department did to (a) celebrate Hanukkah and (b) mark Yom Kippur in 2005. [46755]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister values the diversity of its staff and promotes awareness of religious festivals and events. The equality and diversity unit provide information on the ODPM intranet about six major faiths: Buddhism, Christianity, Hinduism, Islam, Judaism, and Sikhism. This includes information about the major festivals which is regularly reviewed and updated. The equality and diversity unit make available to staff a number of SHAP calendars of religious festivals every year and the ODPM has organised a programme of seminars which have included seminars on faith communities.

Local Government Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) whether it is his Department's policy that a business premises partly used as a domestic residence for individuals should be liable for council tax; [48058]

(2) whether it is his Department's policy that a domestic residence part used for business purposes by the occupiers should be liable for business rates. [48059]

Mr. Woolas: Primary legislation provides that a property used partly for non-domestic purposes and partly for domestic purposes shall be liable for business rates and council tax. Legislation also ensures that only the non-domestic and the domestic elements of the property are valued for business rates and council tax respectively.

London Resilience Strategic Emergency Plan

James Brokenshire: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether Rainham in the London borough of Havering has been identified as one of the (a) primary and (b) back-up (i) landfill and (ii) bulk debris examination sites referred to in the London Resilience Strategic Emergency Plan. [47037]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A contingency plan exists for the clearance, removal and disposal of debris post catastrophic incident in London. A landfill site located in Rainham has been identified as one of the primary landfill and bulk debris examination sites referred to in the London Resilience Strategic Emergency Plan.

This plan is due to be reviewed and updated to reflect new national guidance on the development of a site clearance capability in England and Wales, published by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister in October 2005. As part of this work landfill sites identified in the London plan will be reviewed for their continuing suitability.

MORI Poll

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the cost of the MORI poll was in respect of (a) perceptions of the effectiveness of his Department held by board members and unit heads within the Department and (b) perceptions of the effectiveness of his Department held by external stakeholders of the Department; and if he will make a statement. [47408]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Meriden on 25 January 2006, Official Report, column 2190W.

Overcrowding (London)

Mr. Khan: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what his latest estimate is of the number of households in London living in overcrowded housing conditions. [42921]

Yvette Cooper: The number of households in London that do not meet the bedroom standard over the three-year period 2002–03, 2003–04 and 2004–05 was 194,000.

Information on compliance with the statutory overcrowding standard is not collected systematically and reliable estimates for London on this basis are not available. However, in the autumn of 2001, it was estimated that 25,000 households across the whole of England were living in conditions that breached these standards. This was based on data from the "Survey of English Housing" for the period 1997–98 to 1999–2000 and from the 1996 "English House Condition Survey".

RNIB Talking Books

Mr. Wills: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what percentage of local authorities meet the costs of the Royal National Institute of the Blind talking books for users scheme. [46778]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

The Government do not hold this information centrally; however, according to the Royal National Institute of the Blind (RNIB), 131 English local authorities subscribe to the RNIB talking books scheme.

Sex Offenders Register

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) whether his Department has responsibilities in relation to the vetting of registered sex offenders in relation to employment in local authorities; [47032]

(2) what advice the Government have issued to local authorities on the employment of staff on the sex offenders register whose work involves contact with the public. [47031]

Mr. Woolas: Local authorities are independent bodies responsible to their electorates who work within the framework of law as laid down by Parliament.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the property-based taxes in which the Valuation Office Agency has an involvement other than council tax, business rates, inheritance tax and capital gains tax. [47145]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

The Valuation Office Agency will provide valuations and advice to Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs, through its District Valuer Services business stream, where requested, for Corporation Tax, Income Tax, Stamp Duty Land Tax and VAT.

TREASURY

Breast Cancer

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what data sources are used by his Department to estimate the number of cases of breast cancer each year; and what the latest estimate is of the number of such cases. [47988]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 2 February 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent parliamentary question concerning what data sources are used by his department to estimate the number of cases of breast cancer each year; and what the latest estimate is of the number of such cases. I am replying in her absence. (47988)

Information on newly diagnosed cases of cancer is collected and registered by the nine regional cancer registries in England. Extracts from the registration information are then submitted to the Office for National Statistics (ONS). Annual figures for the incidence of cancer in England (based on newly diagnosed cases) are published by ONS in the series 'MB1, Cancer statistics registrations', which is available on the National Statistics website:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk = 8843&Pos = &ColRank = 1&Rank = 224

The most recent available information on registration of newly diagnosed cases of breast cancer is for the year 2003. There were 36,509 newly diagnosed cases of breast cancer in females and 295 in males in England in 2003 (code C50 in the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision).

Child Trust Funds

Mr. Davey: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) research and (b) analysis his Department has conducted relating to the income level of eligible families who do not open child trust fund accounts; and if he will place the results in the Library. [47928]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A statistical and distributional analysis of the child trust fund will be published in 2007 and placed in the Library.

Construction Industry Scheme

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of (a) small, (b) medium and (c) large contractors were contacted by his Department during consultations on the forthcoming reforms to the Construction Industry Scheme. [47258]

John Healey: The information in the form sought is not available. However, as part of the consultation exercise starting in November 2002, over 20 meetings were held nationwide with industry representatives. We distributed over 1,000 hard copies of the consultation document. Our website containing an electronic version of the document received more than 3,000 hits. Over 200 individuals and businesses responded.

At a national level, ongoing formal consultation has taken place through the Construction Industry Reform Implementation Panel (CIRIP), which meets monthly under a HMRC chair. CIRIP represents a wide cross-section of trade professional and software house interests.

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much HM Revenue and Customs has spent since the introduction of the Construction Industry Scheme in 1999 on (a) informing the construction industry about the correct determination of employment status and (b) enforcing compliance on employment status. [47259]

John Healey: No specific data is held on the cost to HM Revenue and Customs (and the former Inland Revenue) since 1999 of informing the construction industry about the correct determination of employment status.

HM Revenue and Customs police employment status as part of their general employer compliance activity.

They do not routinely collect data in respect of the policing of specific types of employer obligations. It is therefore not possible to identify the amount spent on enforcing compliance with employment status.

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many workers from (a) Great Britain and (b) the European economic area have registered for the Construction Industry Scheme in each year since 1999; [47262]

(2) how many and what percentage of individuals from European economic area countries who are registered under the Construction Industry Scheme are also registered for national insurance. [47263]

John Healey: In 2004–05 there were around 900,000 active subcontractors registered for the Construction Industry Scheme. No records are kept of the country of origin of subcontractors registered for the Construction Industry Scheme.

Contractors

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many contractors identified under the leverage exercise by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs came under investigation in (a) 2004 and (b) 2005; and how many he expects to come under investigation in 2006. [47261]

John Healey: The CIS leverage exercise was undertaken on a two-year basis for 2004–05 and 2005–06. The number of cases selected for review were 2,192 in 2004–05 and 2,280 in 2005–06. Some cases selected for review, particularly those commenced in late 2005–06, will not be concluded until 2006–07.

Council Tax

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 19 July 2005, Official Report, column 1681W, on council tax, following the postponement of the council tax revaluation in England, if he will place in the Library the remaining written advice. [47044]

Dawn Primarolo: There is nothing I can usefully add to my earlier answer. For reasons I gave then, it would not be appropriate to disclose the advice concerned.

Departmental Expenditure

David Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what proportion of Government spending in each year since 1997 was allocated to (a) Her Majesty's Court Service, (b) predecessor judicial institutions and (c) magistrates courts. [39964]

Ms Harman: I have been asked to reply.

The information can be found in the following table.

1. 2005–06 was the first year of operation of the HMCS inclusive of the magistrates courts. The figure shown here represents the latest delegated budget position.

2. Prior to 2005–06, DCA allocated funds to local authorities to cover only 80 per cent. of the funding of the Magistrates Courts Committees. The balance of funding came from the LA themselves and this figure is not reported above.

3. Unification changes funded in 2005–06 relating to harmonising of the magistrates courts into the central Government accounting framework. The key changes to the magistrates costs included 20 per cent. balance of funding from ODPM (£87 million), capital charges introduced with the new resource accounting methodology applied to the magistrates element (£73 million) and in addition there were also some DCA HQ departments transferred across into HMCS (£24 million).

4. Figures are shown in terms of net costs, i.e. after netting off any income from fees and fines. Capital spend is included within both comparators and depreciation is subtracted from the combined figures, with the exception of the magistrates courts which did not charge depreciation on the assets before 2005–06. Note that estimated depreciation figures have been used.

5. The 2004–05 figures represent latest estimated provisional outturn and are subject to change.

6. Figures for 1996–97,1997–98 and 1998–99 have been drawn from previous years DCA departmental reports, which did not report on a Resourcing Accounting and Budgeting Stage 2 basis. Therefore we have attempted to put these figures.

Earnings

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the (a) average and (b) median (i) hourly and (ii) weekly gross earnings (A) including and (B) excluding overtime were for (1) male, (2) female and (3) all (x) employees, (y) full-time employees and (z) part-time employees aged (aa) 16 to 17 years, (bb) 18 to 21 years, (cc) 22 to 29 years, (dd) 30 to 39 years, (ee) 40 to 49 years and (ff) over 50 years in (I) Scotland and (II) each of the unitary local authority areas in Scotland in the last period for which figures are available; [46135]

(2) what the (a) average and (b) median (i) weekly and (ii) hourly gross earnings were (A) including and (B) excluding overtime of (1) male, (2) female and (3) all employees (aa) working in the private sector, (bb) working in the public sector and (cc) not classified in (I) Scotland and (II) each of the unitary local authority areas in Scotland was in the last period for which figures are available. [46143]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply. His responses will be placed in the Library.

Economic Activity (South-West)

Mr. Wills: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to increase the rate of economic activity in (a) Swindon, (b) Wiltshire and (c) the south-west. [46826]

John Healey: The Government has put in place policies that will raise the trend rate of growth for all English regions and local areas, including Swindon, Wiltshire and the south-west.

GVA statistics show that between 1989, when comparable regional records began to 2004, the south-west region enjoyed the highest average annual GVA growth of all the English regions bar the south-east. It is also experiencing employment levels close to record highs, after increasing by 184,000 since 1997. The employment rate in Swindon of 80.1 per cent. and Wiltshire of 80.5 per cent., are well above the national average of 74.3 per cent.

The Neighbourhood Statistics Service provides a wide range of statistical information at parliamentary constituency level, taken from the 2001 census and other sources. This service is available on the National Statistics website at http://neighbourhood.statistics.gov.uk./

Financial Protection Products

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to examine whether the sale of financial protection products through non-advised channels is compatible with the regulatory requirement to treat customers fairly. [46896]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Financial Services Authority (FSA) is responsible for the regulatory requirement for financial services firms to treat their customers fairly. The FSA is operationally independent of the Government. I will ask the FSA's chairman, Sir Callum McCarthy, to write to the hon. Member.

Fuel Prices

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the European Union's concession to France on fuel prices in rural areas; and if he will reduce fuel prices in the islands of Scotland by three per cent. until 2011. [47746]

John Healey: The French Government made a recent decision to allow their regional councils to introduce reduced rates of duty for road fuel consumed within their territories.

This decision required the prior approval of the Council of Ministers and the Commission to allow a derogation from the Energy Products Directive permitting this measure. We assessed the French Government's application when they made their application for derogation to the Commission last year.

The UK Government believe that taxation policy is a matter for individual member states. Within the UK, however, we believe that allowing variations from the national fuel duty rate for one region or another would represent a departure from the principle of uniform duty rates across the UK. It would also conflict with our environmental objectives and create potential for fraud.

Gold Reserves

Tim Loughton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the sale proceeds were of gold reserves sold in the last five years; and what the current equivalent value is. [48079]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: 395 tonnes of gold were sold from the reserves between July 1999 and March 2002. The proceeds in dollars, and further details, can be found on page 27 of "Review of the sale of part of the UK gold reserves" published by the Treasury in October 2002 (http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media//9EFEF/GoldReserves.PDF).

At closing market prices on 30 January 2006, the total value of this gold would be approximately £4,082 million.

The programme was part of a prudent restructuring of the foreign currency and gold reserves aimed at achieving a better-balanced portfolio. As a result of the programme a one-off reduction in risk of approximately 30 per cent. was achieved (as measured by value-at-risk).

The proceeds from the sales were reinvested in interest bearing foreign currency assets in broadly the same proportions as the foreign currency assets held in the net reserves (40 per cent. dollars; 40 per cent. euros; and 20 per cent. yen) and these have earned returns over this period.

It is inappropriate to measure gains or losses resulting from fluctuations in market values over a short-term period.

HM Revenue and Customs Estate

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the oral answer of 26 January 2006, Official Report, column 1505, on HM Revenue and Customs Estate, how many companies competed for the contract which was won by Mapeley in 2001 regarding properties included in his Department's estate. [46915]

Dawn Primarolo: The competition for the contract that was eventually awarded to Mapeley comprised three stages.

1. A Pre-Qualification Questionnaire for which 10 submissions were received
2. An Invitation to Submit an Outline Proposal that involved five consortia.
3. An Invitation to Negotiate that was issued to three consortia.

The NAO looked at the STEPS contract and published a report on 7 May 2004.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his answer of 30 November 2005, Official Report, column 523W, on home information packs, (1) what assessment (a) HM Treasury and (b) HM Revenue and Customs have made of the revenue to be generated from levying VAT on home information packs; [48102]

(2) whether VAT will be levied on home information packs. [48150]

Dawn Primarolo: The exact nature of the packs, and how they will be provided, is still under consideration by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, following a consultation on draft regulations which ended on 30 December 2005.

Population Estimates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the net change to the (a) number of households and (b) population size in each government office region in each of the next 20 years. [47878]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 2 February 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your question concerning the projected change in households and population over the next 20 years. I am replying in her absence. (47878)

Household projections are the responsibility of the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister. The 2002-based interim household projections are the latest available set and these are being updated to take into account more recent information on household formation and the 2003 based subnational population projections. Table 1 shows average annual household growth for the Government Office Regions in England between 2001 and 2021.

The population projections are demographic trend-based projections that indicate what the population levels of an area are likely to be if recently observed trends in fertility, mortality and migration were to continue. They take no account of future development which may affect trends.

Like subnational population projections, household projections are trend based and illustrate what would happen if past trends in household formation were to continue into the future. The projections are heavily dependent on demographic assumptions used. These projections are not policy based forecasts of what the government expects or intends to happen.

Regulatory Reform Orders

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many regulatory reform orders his Department has laid before Parliament in each of the last five calendar years. [46812]

John Healey: HM Treasury has laid one regulatory reform order before Parliament since their introduction in 2001. This was the Credits Union Order in 2003. Further information on this can be viewed at: http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/regulation/regulatory_reform/orders_made/2003/credun.asp

Tax Credits

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the letter from the hon. Member for St. Albans of 14 October and the answer of 13 October 2005, Official Report, column 428, on tax credits, what steps he is taking to expedite the repayment of the overpayment relating to the constituents of the hon. Member, Mr. and Mrs. Keys; if he will send to the hon. Member his Department's calculations used in the assessment of the case; and if he will investigate the case further. [42623]

Dawn Primarolo: I have further examined this case, and have written to the hon. Member to explain the calculations used.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures are in place to ensure that the risk of companies fraudulently claiming research and development tax credits is minimised; and if he will make a statement. [47332]

John Healey: HM Revenue and Customs manages non-compliance through a process of risk assessment and deploys resources according to the risks identified.

'Supporting growth in innovation: next steps for the R&D tax credit', published in December 2005, announced that HMRC will set up specialist R and D units. These units will develop specialised expertise to ensure more consistent handling of claims, together with an effective focus on non-compliance.

Tax Investigations

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 17 January 2006, what estimate he has made of the cost of providing the information sought; what information he would need to collect to be able to answer the question at a proportionate cost; how many officials within (a) his Department and (b) HM Revenue and Customs spent some or all of their working day on tax investigations in 2004–05; and what estimate he has made of public expenditure on tax investigations for that year. [45676]

Dawn Primarolo: In 2004–05 resourcing data within the Inland Revenue (now HMRC) was kept by reference to the operational directorates dealing with a mix of processing, customer support, compliance and corporate support work. To calculate the figures requested for investigation work it would be necessary to:

identify all the "investigation" functions within each of the operational directorates, ascertain or estimate the time spent by staff on those investigation functions, and estimate the costs and full-time equivalent figures.

Reconstructing the figures required for the historical period in the original question would have taken a considerable amount of research and analysis of disparate and, in the earlier years, paper based records.

Our best estimate of staff employed on all Inland Revenue investigation work in 2004–05 is 14,800 at a cost of £424 million, this will include tax investigations.

Tourism (Wales)

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many new jobs have been created in the tourism sector in Wales since 1997. [47650]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the national statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 2 February 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about tourism-related jobs in Wales. I am replying in her absence. (47650)

While statistics of new jobs created are not available explicitly, statistics from surveys enable comparisons to be made of net changes, in numbers of jobs, from year to year.

The attached table shows the number of employee jobs in tourism-related industries in Wales for each year from 1997 to 2004, the latest year for which information is available. This total is obtained by combining figures for employee jobs in the following industries, as identified by Standard Industrial Classification 2003:

Hotels and other tourist accommodation

Restaurants, bars and canteens

Transport

Travel agencies/tour operators

Recreation services.

These estimates are from the Annual Business Inquiry and, as with any sample survey, are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

UK Financial Regulation

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much central funding was spent on UK financial regulation in each year since 1995. [46220]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The following table shows Government expenditure on the Registry of Friendly Societies and on insurance supervision from 1995 to 31 November 2001. Other forms of UK financial regulation were not funded by the Government over this period. After 31 November 2001 the Financial Services Authority (FSA) assumed full responsibility for UK financial regulation. The FSA is funded via an industry levy and not by the Government.

Unpaid Pay-as-you-earn Tax

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much has been collected by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs in unpaid pay-as-you-earn tax since the leverage exercise began in 2004. [47260]

John Healey: It is not possible to say how much pay-as-you-earn tax has been collected by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs since the leverage exercise began. Of the cases selected for review under the exercise, many remain under inquiry and are not expected to be concluded until later this year and in some cases beyond.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the staff manual for the Valuation Office Agency. [46963]

Dawn Primarolo: The Valuation Office Agency's staff handbook "The Guide" has been placed in the Library of the House.

VAT

Mr. Weir: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his answer of 20 December 2005, Official Report, column 2808W, on VAT, what the total cost to his Department of the VAT reduction on the specified schemes was in each of the last five years. [48230]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Revenue and Customs do not collect data on the revenue cost of this VAT reduction.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much VAT fraud has been reported in each region of the UK in descending order in the last year for which figures are available. [48013]

Dawn Primarolo: A regional breakdown of VAT fraud is not available.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders have been issued by courts in (a) Merseyside and (b) Wirral in each quarter since the penalty was introduced; and what percentage of these were issued where the claimant was aged (a) 10 to 14, (b) 15 to 19, (c) 20 to 24, (d) 25 to 29 and (e) 30 years and over. [45860]

Hazel Blears: The available information is given in the following tables.

Arnhem Support Centre

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average time was for the Arnhem Support Centre to clear entry visa applications under the new system from the receipt of the documentation from the embassy of origin in the last period for which figures are available; and what the average time was in the last period of the old system. [46147]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

Information from the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal (AIT) indicates that an immigration appeal, comprising both in-country and entry clearance cases, lodged between April 2004 and the end of March 2005 took an average of 54 weeks to be decided by an immigration adjudicator following the appeal being lodged with the Immigration and Nationality Directorate (IND) of the Home Office, either directly by the appellant or having being forwarded to IND from the entry clearance post.

Provisional information for entry clearance appeals lodged after 4 April 2005, up to September 2005 only currently covers a low volume of appeals. It is therefore difficult to provide an accurately indicative figure for the average waiting times from appeal lodgement to a decision by an immigration judge for appeals lodged in this period. Accounting for the times allowed for the respondent to prepare the appeal bundle in entry clearance cases, it is expected that appeals are decided by an immigration judge approximately 27 or 35 weeks from the date of lodgement, dependent on the type of case. This includes time allowed for international transit of documents to and from the tribunal.

The entry clearance appeals decided prior to the commencement of the AIT were lodged with the original decision maker in accordance with the procedure rules of the Immigration Appellate Authority (IAA), the appellate body subsequently replaced by the AIT. Once lodged the appeals were transferred to the IND for preparation before being forwarded to the IAA to be decided by an immigration adjudicator.

With the commencement of the AIT entry clearance appeals can be lodged either directly to the AIT or with the relevant entry clearance post. Where an appeal is lodged with the relevant entry clearance post it must be endorsed and forwarded to the AIT as soon as reasonably practicable, and in any event within 10 days.

ASBOs

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many young people have been taken to court for breach of antisocial behaviour orders in the last year for which figures are available. [45957]

Hazel Blears: The information held centrally, on the Home Office court proceedings database, only covers breach proceedings where there has been a conviction. antisocial behaviour order (ASBO) breach data are currently available from 1 June 2000 to 31 December 2003 for ASBOs issued since 1 June 2000. During 2003, 305 persons aged 10–17 breached their ASBO on one or more occasions.

Community Safety Partnerships

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures are used to assess the effectiveness of community safety partnerships; which have underperformed against these measures; and what assistance has been given to each underperforming partnership. [46079]

Hazel Blears: The Home Office has performance management arrangements in place to measure the effectiveness of Community Safety Partnerships (CSPs) in Wales and Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships (CDRPs) in England. Under these arrangements, challenging targets for crime reduction have been agreed with each CSP and CDRP and the Home Office and Government Offices/Welsh Assembly Government regularly monitor progress against them. The Home Office and Government Offices/Welsh Assembly Government also work with partnerships to support them in monitoring or improving performance. The targets are to be delivered by 2007–08.

Community Wardens

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what provision he has made to fund community wardens in neighbourhood renewal funding areas when the current funding period expires. [47365]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have been asked to reply.

There are no plans to fund community wardens in neighbourhood renewal funding areas when the current funding period expires.

Companies (Ownership)

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what indications he has received from (a) companies whose headquarters are in the United Kingdom, (b) companies under the management or control of companies based in the European Union, (c) companies under the management or control of companies from the United States, (d) faith based organisations and (e) not-for-profit organisations regarding interest in bidding for contracts for the end-to-end management of offenders. [46515]

Fiona Mactaggart: The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) engages with public, private and voluntary sector providers through a variety of channels. As a result some expressions of interest in providing future NOMS services have been received from all sectors. However these indications have been informal and non-specific in nature and therefore at this time, clarity as to the commercial and legal status of these organisations has not been obtained. In due course a more formal process will be undertaken, at which time it will be possible to be more specific, but in accordance with European Union procurement rules.

Designated Areas

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he had with the police in designating the area specified in the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 (Designated Area) Order 2005 (S.I. 2005 No. 1866). [46129]

Paul Goggins: The Home Secretary met representatives of the Metropolitan Police to discuss the area to be designated . The area is based on the operational experience of the Metropolitan Police as to where demonstrations are likely to take place which hinder the proper operation of Parliament, cause a security risk, or are a risk to the safety of members of the public .

Elder Abuse

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the number of cases of elder abuse that occurred in the last 12 months. [46551]

Hazel Blears: The Home Office does, via the British Crime Survey (BCS), measure levels of violence against adults (ages 16 and over) in private households. The risks of being a victim of violence are published annually by age group for men and women. The most recent figures, based on the 2004-05 BCS, showed that the overall risk of being a victim of violence was less than one per cent for both men and women aged 65 or over.

The risk of becoming a victim of violent crime was 0.4 per cent. for men aged 65–74, 0.2 per cent. for men aged 75 or over, 0.5 per cent. for women aged 65–74, and 0.5 per cent. for women aged 75 or over. In terms of domestic violence, the 2004-05 BCS indicates that the risk among men and women in these ages groups is low (0 per cent. and 0.1 per cent. among men and women aged 65–74, respectively, and 0 per cent. for both men and women aged 75 and over).

However, it is recognised that the core BCS measure of domestic violence may be an underestimate as some victims may be unwilling to report experience of domestic violence to an interviewer, and it does not cover adults living in institutions.

Harmondsworth Detention Centre

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many detainees have (a) committed and (b) attempted suicide in Harmondsworth Detention Centre over the last six months; and how many of these detainees had been placed under suicide watch procedures. [47067]

Mr. McNulty: There has been one apparently self-inflicted death at Harmondsworth in the last six months.

Twenty-six detainees have self-harmed at Harmondsworth since the beginning of July 2005. Of these, five detainees were already on watch procedures prior to self-harming. Following each incident, the detainee concerned was placed on a watch.

Home Detention Curfew Scheme

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners on the home detention curfew scheme (HDCS) have sentences of four years and over; and what the exceptional circumstances were allowing entry into the HDCS in each case. [45866]

Fiona Mactaggart: Prisoners serving sentences of four years or more whose offences were committed prior to 4 April 2005 are statutorily ineligible for release under the home detention curfew (HDC) scheme. Those whose offences were committed on or after 4 April 2005 are not statutorily ineligible for release but are presumed unsuitable unless there are exceptional circumstances. No prisoners serving four years or more have been released on HDC.

Police Response Times

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average response time to an emergency call to the police was in Uxbridge in each year since 1998. [46605]

Hazel Blears: Data on time taken to respond to emergency calls is not collected centrally. This is essentially an operational matter for the commissioner and this query could therefore be directed to the Metropolitan police.

Polygamy

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many men who were not UK citizens were permitted to enter the UK with more than one wife in each of the last five years. [47160]

Dr. Howells: I have been asked to reply. Entry to the United Kingdom that results in the formation of a polygamous household is not permitted under the immigration rules. Therefore, no men have been given entry clearance to settle in the UK, or for other long-term purposes (.g students, work permit holders), with more than one wife.

However, the immigration rules do not prevent polygamous households from entering the UK for the purpose of a visit. If an entry clearance officer overseas is satisfied that each applicant meets the requirements of paragraphs 40 and 41 of the immigration rules relating to visitors, they may grant a man and more than one of his wives entry clearance as visitors at the same time. UKvisas does not have a separate record of how many such visit visas are issued.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners who had committed two violent offences previously were released on parole in the last five years; and how many of those released reoffended (a) within two years and (b) within five years. [46420]

Fiona Mactaggart: The information requested is not centrally collated. National two-year re-offending rates are published on the Home Office's website. The data relates to offenders who were discharged from prison or began a community sentence in the first quarter of 2002. www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs05/hosb2505.pdf. Five-year re-offending rates are not available.

Prisoner release rates are available from the Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2004 publication. www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs05/hosb1705.pdf.

Prisoners

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) female and (b) male prisoners who declare themselves as Muslim were held in each prison establishment in England and Wales for each of the last five years for which figures are available. [45849]

Fiona Mactaggart: The information requested, as recorded on the Prison Service IT system, is provided in the following table.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners are to be deported upon their release; and if he will make a statement. [45872]

Fiona Mactaggart: The immigration and nationality directorate (IND) considers the cases of foreign nationals sentenced to a term of imprisonment to determine their liability to removal and whether removal is appropriate.

As each prisoner's case is assessed on its own merits, it is not possible to predict how many will be deported at the end of their custodial sentences.

Probation Service

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent changes he has made to the arrangements for probation officers interviewing offenders; and if he will make a statement. [46181]

Fiona Mactaggart: The National Probation Directorate at the Home Office updates its guidance to the Probation Service from time-to-time but there has not recently been a significant change in relation to interviewing offenders.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the proposed changes to police boundaries on the national probation service. [46507]

Fiona Mactaggart: We will consider how best the probation service, as well as the wider criminal justice system, can take into account changes to police structures once final decisions on future police boundaries have been taken. Co-terminosity in the criminal justice system remains an important principle.

Shoot to Kill Policy

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the status is of the Metropolitan Police Service's policy on shooting to kill suspected suicide bombers. [45969]

Hazel Blears: All police use of firearms is subject to the usual law on the use of force. In particular, the Criminal Law Act 1967 provides that the police may use such force as is reasonable in the circumstances to effect an arrest or to prevent crime. The law applies to the operational tactics developed by police to deal with suspected suicide bombers as it does in any other case.

Speed Cameras

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was collected through fines from speed cameras in each local authority in the last year for which figures are available. [46263]

Paul Goggins: Information on the total revenue from speed camera convictions is not collected centrally. The information collected by RDS-OCJR identifies the number of fixed penalties ordered to be paid and the number and amounts of court fines issued for such offences within each police force area. Not all fines and fixed penalties will have been paid.

According to the Department for Constitutional Affairs, the 2005-06 national fines payment rate target is 81 per cent. and performance is currently on trajectory to achieve this.

Suicide

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many detainees have committed suicide in (a) Harmondsworth and (b) Yarl's Wood in the last five years; and if he will list the nationalities of each. [48149]

Mr. McNulty: There have been two apparently self-inflicted deaths at Harmondsworth in the last five years. The nationalities of the two people concerned were Ukrainian and Eritrean respectively.

There has been one apparently self-inflicted death at Yarl's Wood in the last five years. The nationality of the person concerned was Angolan.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Afghanistan

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proportion of the funds pledged during the London Conference on Afghanistan will be channelled into the Counter Narcotics Trust Fund. [49267]

Dr. Howells: In total, US$77.5 million has been pledged by the international community to the Government of Afghanistan's Counter Narcotics Trust Fund. This includes US$60.1 million worth of assistance pledged during the London Conference on Afghanistan (31 January to 1 February) by the UK, US, Sweden and Korea.

The UK commitment of £30 million includes an initial £10 million from the Afghan Drugs Inter-Departmental Unit and £20 million from the Department for International Development.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the proportion of Afghan warlords opposed to the Taliban who are involved with the production and trading of narcotics. [48768]

Dr. Howells: No such estimate has been made. Given the complexity of the situation in Afghanistan, it would not be possible to collect the data necessary to make this assessment.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the proportion of Afghan warlords who have (a) supported and (b) opposed the Taliban. [48769]

Dr. Howells: The term "warlords" is most often used to describe militia commanders, or others exercising influence in the provinces, not appointed by the central Government. The vast majority of warlords opposed the Taliban regime, and many played an active role in the regime's overthrow in 2001, including in some cases by contributing forces to the Northern Alliance.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the role of warlords in the political order in Afghanistan. [48770]

Dr. Howells: The Government assesses that the negative influence of "warlords" in Afghanistan's political process is gradually diminishing. Those who chose to embrace the new democratic process were required to cut all links with militia groups before putting themselves forward as candidates at the September 2005 parliamentary and provincial elections. Those who still remain outside the democratic process are finding their influence reduced by nation-wide disarmament programmes and the growing control exercised by centrally-appointed Provincial Governors and Afghan National Army and Afghan National Police forces. But this is a long process—democratic institutions, although now established, are fragile and the political process of resolving violent conflict will take time to have effect, though the Government of Afghanistan is determined to see it through.

Ascension Island

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the human rights position of Ascension islanders in respect of (a) rights of abode, (b) ownership of property and (c) appeal rights in cases of deportation; and whether rights differ between native-born and immigrant islanders. [47242]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: There is no indigenous population, or "islanders", on Ascension Island. People working and living there do so for the duration of their contracts. None of those individuals currently working and living on Ascension, whether born on the island or not, has the right of abode or the right to own property. The human rights of those currently on Ascension Island are protected by those human rights instruments which have been extended to the island, including the European Convention on Human Rights. Procedures relating to deportation for breach of the immigration rules are governed by the Entry Control Ordinance. There is a right to make representations to the Governor against any deportation order.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library the timetable he provided to the Ascension Island Council for the introduction of legislation regarding property, immigration and property rights. [47243]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Government have provided no such timetable to the Ascension Island Council.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on access for civilian aircraft to Wideawake Airfield in Ascension Island; and if he will make a statement. [47244]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The agreement between the UK and US Governments relating to Wideawake Airfield, which came into force on 1 October 2003, provides for up to four non-scheduled civil aircraft movements (take-off or landing) per week. This facility has not been used on a regular basis. This is a matter for commercial decision by potential operators.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions have taken place in the last 12 months with the US Administration on changes in the Administration of the Ascension Islands. [47245]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: There has been no change to the basis on which people work and live on Ascension Island. The administration of Ascension Island is a matter for the UK Government and the Ascension Island Administration. The UK has regular contacts with representatives of all organisations based on the island including the appropriate US authorities.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the reasons were for the rejection of a desk study into the Ascension Island Fisheries Protection Project; and what estimate was made of the cost of such a study. [47246]

Ian Pearson: A desk study on Ascension Island's fish resources was conducted in 1990. Another desk study would not add greatly to the information available from this earlier work (a further study would have cost approximately £30,000) and is not considered an appropriate use of Foreign and Commonwealth Office funds.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the potential revenue from the sale of fishing licences for tuna in the seas around Ascension Island. [47327]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Revenue accruing from the sale of fishing licences for Ascension Island was, up until 1 April 2005, combined with that for St. Helena. The figure for 2003–04, the most recent available, was approximately £128,000. Because of the level of uncertainty surrounding both the current state of the stocks of migratory fish in that part of the Atlantic and the intentions of distant water fishing fleets, Ascension Island has not sold any fishing licences since 1 April 2005. It is therefore difficult to estimate the potential revenue from the sale of fishing licences for Ascension Island.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Ascension Islanders have reached retirement or the end of their contracts in each of the last 10 years; and how many have been allowed to remain on the island thereafter. [47439]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: There is no indigenous population, or "islanders", on Ascension Island. People working and living there do so for the duration of their contracts. Figures on retirement or termination of contracts are a matter for the individual organisations based on the Island and are not centrally held. A small number, less than 5, have remained on the Island on the expiration of their contract. Their cases are under review.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what consultations took place with Ascension Island User Organisations before the preliminary summit meeting between islanders and officials of Her Majesty's Government. [47440]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: There is no indigenous population, or "islanders", on Ascension Island. People working and living there do so for the duration of their contracts. The Government have regular contacts with representatives of the principle Use organisations as part of their ongoing work in administering Ascension Island.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the progress of the legislation to provide a right of abode and a right to own property on Ascension Island; and how much was spent by Her Majesty's Government in providing legal advice in preparation of the legislation. [47441]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: There are no plans to introduce legislation to develop a right of abode in Ascension Island. The cost of legal advice provided by the Constitutional Adviser on the Overseas Territories amounted to less than £2,500.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library representations he has received from the Ascension Island Council since the end of November 2005. [47442]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I have placed a copy of the letter dated 7 December 2005 from Ascension Island Council in the Library of the House.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what were (a) the names and (b) grades of the UK officials of Her Majesty's Government in the delegation which visited Ascension Island in November 2005. [47443]

Ian Pearson: The Head of Overseas Territories Department, Tony Crombie, a Senior Management Structure officer in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), together with two D6 officers and two B3 officers responsible for Ascension Island in the FCO, and officials from other UK Government Departments, made up the delegation visiting Ascension Island in November 2005.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the Economic Study on Ascension Island which was commissioned in September 2005. [47444]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: A copy of the Economic Study by the Oxford Policy Management Group, which was completed in October 2005, has been placed in the Library of the House.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many new houses have been (a) started and (b) completed by the Ascension Island council since it was established. [47445]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Ascension Island council has approved the construction of four houses which are due for completion in 2006.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had in the last six months on the future of Ascension Island. [47453]

Ian Pearson: Ministers and officials have had discussions with a range of interested parties, including Ascension Island councillors and other persons working and living on the Island, over the past six months.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) how many people have been (a) deported from and (b) required to leave Ascension Island (i) in each of the last five years for which records are available and (ii) since 30 November 2005; and to where they have been deported; [47454]

(2) how many people have been (a) deported or (b) required to leave Ascension Island and removed to St. Helena (i) in each of the last five years for which records are available and (ii) since 30 November 2005. [47458]

Ian Pearson: There is no indigenous population on Ascension Island. People working and living there do so for the duration of their contracts. Employees whose contracts end, and are not renewed, are required by law to leave the Island. Figures are held by employer organisations, and we therefore do not have access to this information. The employment contracts usually place on the employer an obligation to return the employee to a specified location at the end of the contract. Approximately 70 per cent. of those working and living on Ascension Island originate from St. Helena. We are aware of two people being removed from Ascension Island. One was removed to the UK, the other to St. Helena.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what compensation arrangements are in place for small business owners (a) deported from and (b) required to leave Ascension Island following his announcement of 30 November 2005. [47455]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Government made no announcement on 30 November 2005. My noble Friend the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, wrote to Ascension Island councillors on 19 January 2006 to set out the Government's policy. There is no right of abode on Ascension Island. Employees whose contracts end, and are not renewed, are required by law to leave the Island. We have no plans to change this. Those working on the Island are aware of these conditions when they are recruited. There is, therefore, no question of compensation. Almost all the individuals operating the approximately 15 small businesses on the Island are already employed by the main organisations based on Ascension, or the Ascension Island Administration, or are the spouses of these employees. They may therefore continue to remain on the Island as long as the relevant contracts last.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what consultations were undertaken prior to his announcement of 30 November 2005 that the circumstances of inhabitants of Ascension Island were to be altered. [47456]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Government made no announcement on 30 November 2005. There has been no change to the basis on which people work and live on Ascension Island.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what compensation arrangements are in place for individual inhabitants (a) deported from and (b) required to leave Ascension Island following his announcement of 30 November 2005. [47457]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Government made no announcement on 30 November 2005. My noble Friend the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, wrote to Ascension Island Councillors on 19 January 2006 to set out the Government's policy. There is no right of abode on Ascension Island. Employees whose contracts end, and are not renewed, are required by law to leave the Island. Those working on the Island are aware of these conditions when they are recruited. There is, therefore, no question of compensation.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the Wideawake Agreement with the United States Government; and what is the current operational status of Wideawake Airfield on Ascension Island. [47459]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Wideawake Airfield is a military airfield. The 2003 Agreement between the UK and US Governments concerning the use of Wideawake Airfield on Ascension Island by civil aircraft not engaged in scheduled international air services provides the basis for non-scheduled civil flights (e.g. charter flights). This facility has not been used on a regular basis.

British Virgin Islands

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his Department's expenditure on internal security and policing was for the British Virgin Islands in (a) 2002, (b) 2003, (c) 2004 and (d) 2005; and what expenditure is planned for 2006. [47098]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The following sums have been spent on policing and internal security in the British Virgin Islands during 2003–04, 2004–05 and 2005–06 financial years.

As the British Virgin Islands also receive further support from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office through a number of regional initiatives including training/exchange programmes and courses, as well as receiving on-going support from FCO funded advisers, figures for the cross-Territory (regional) support of security initiatives is also included.

	FCO funding for the British Virgin Islands	Cross-Territory (regional) funding
2003–04	345,039	1,013,165
2005–06	8,198	957,045

The above figures do not, however, include local expenditure made at Post through the Governor's Delegated Fund. Figures for 2005–06 are anticipated. Allocations for 2006–07 have not yet been made.

The 2002–03 figures are not included as they are not immediately available. I will therefore write to my hon. Friend with this information as soon as it becomes available and will place a copy in the Library of the House.

Burma

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment the Government has made of whether (a) Serbia and (b) Montenegro are making arms sales to Burma. [48615]

Dr. Howells: The Government has not made a formal assessment of possible arms sales by Serbia or Montenegro to Burma. Serbia and Montenegro's Law on Foreign Trade in Weapons, Military Equipment and Dual Use Goods states that the Ministry of Foreign Affairs will consider the > 'level of violation and or respecting of human rights and freedoms in the country of final destination', as well as the EU Code of Conduct on arms exports before approving an export licence.

Charles Munyaneza

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what steps (a) were taken (b) are planned by his Department to satisfy itself that Charles Munyaneza has no case to answer under international law on war crimes and genocide; [48206]

(2) what discussions he has had with the Chief Prosecutor of the UN International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda on the case of Charles Munyaneza. [48209]

Ian Pearson: Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials discussed the matter with the Office of the Chief prosecutor on the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda (ICTR) on 27 January and again on 31 January. The ICTR confirmed that it has not issued an indictment relating to Charles Munyaneza and does not intend to do so. The case is also being considered by the UK police. Decisions on whether an individual has a case to answer under UK criminal law are a matter for the police and the Crown Prosecution Service.

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government has taken to implement the international arrest warrant for Charles Munyaneza. [49192]

Ian Pearson: Recent media allegations concerning Charles Munyaneza, a Rwandan national, are being investigated by the UK police and Crown Prosecution Service. It would be inappropriate to comment on international arrest procedures while that investigation is ongoing.

China

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications for UK security of the reciprocal arrangements made between China and Iran concerning long-term oil supply to China. [47022]

Ian Pearson: Iran is the world's fourth largest oil exporter. China imports around 13 per cent. of her oil from Iran. The details of commercial arrangements between China and Iran are a matter for those two countries.

We consult very closely with China on policy towards Iran. We welcome the agreement reached on 30 January between the Foreign Ministers of the UK, China, France, Germany, Russia and the US concerning Iran's nuclear programme.

Correspondence

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he will respond to the letter from the hon. Member for Sutton and Cheam dated 15 March 2005, on behalf of Mary Stevenage, regarding human rights abuses in Cuba. [47990]

Mr. Douglas Alexander [holding answer 2 February 2006]: Although a reply was prepared to the hon. Member's letter, for reasons we are looking into, it does not appear to have been issued. This has now been rectified and a response was sent on 1 February.

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he will reply to the letter dated 10 August 2005 from the hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, concerning the export of handcuffs. [48884]

Dr. Howells: I am sorry that my right hon. Friend has not had a reply to her letter. An administrative error meant that the letter referred to was not received in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office until 24 January 2006. A reply will be sent shortly.

Dr. Oscar Biscet

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received about the situation of Dr. Oscar Biscet, imprisoned in Cuba; and what representations he has made to the government of Cuba on Dr. Biscet's case. [47757]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: We regularly receive expressions of concern about Dr. Oscar Elias Biscet's situation. We are very concerned about his situation, particularly the effect of the severe conditions of his confinement on his health. Our Embassy in Havana continues to monitor Dr. Biscet's case and maintains close contact with his supporters and family. Most recently, a member of our embassy staff met his wife in December 2005. The Government consider his imprisonment to be a violation of his civil and political freedoms, and in particular his freedom of expression as recognised in Article 19 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which includes the right > 'to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers'.

We regularly raise the situation of all political prisoners in Cuba with Cuban authorities both in London and Havana, and call for their immediate release. During our presidency of the EU we issued a number of statements reiterating this message. The Minister responsible for relations with Cuba, Lord Triesman most recently raised this issue with the Cuban Ambassador on 8 November 2005 at the APPG Cuba meeting.

EU Committees

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many meetings of the (a) Joint Committee (EC-Kingdom of Cambodia), (b) Joint Committee (EEC-China) and (c) Joint Committee (EEC-India) have taken place during the UK presidency of the EU; who presided over each meeting; which other UK representatives were present; what provisions were made for representation of the devolved Governments; and if he will make a statement. [39044]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: There was no EC-Cambodia Joint Committee during the UK presidency. The EC-India Joint Commission met on 24 25 October 2005. The UK was represented by officials from the British high commission in Delhi. EC-China Joint Committee met on 4 November 2005. There was no UK representation at this meeting. Commission officials presided over both meetings.

The UK Government takes into account the views and interests of the devolved administrations when formulating the UK's policy position on all EU and international issues which touch upon devolved matters. Provision for attendance at EU meetings by Ministers and officials of the devolved administrations is set out in paragraphs 4.12–15 of the Concordat on Co-ordination of European Union Policy Issues (part of the Memorandum of Understanding between devolved Ministers and the UK Government), a copy of which is available at: http://www.dca.gov.uk/constitution/devolution/pubs/odpm_dev_600629.pdf

Ministers from the devolved administrations have attended and do attend councils, by agreement with the lead Whitehall Minister.

European Anti-fraud Office

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what measures are being discussed in the EU to develop the European Anti-Fraud Office in preparation for future transformation into the European Public Prosecutor, as referred to in OJ C122, volume 48, 20 May 2005; and if he will make a statement. [48287]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Official Journal C122, volume 48, 20 May 2005 refers to the European Anti-Fraud Office's June 2003-July 2004 Activity Report. It contains a reference to the potential creation of a European Public Prosecutor's Office under the European Constitutional Treaty. Under the terms of the Treaty, the creation of a European Public Prosecutor would not be automatic, as it would first require the consent of every member state.

No measures are currently under discussion to prepare for a European Public Prosecutor. The UK has made it clear that it remains unconvinced of the need for an EPP, whether under the Constitutional Treaty or the current treaties.

Hamas

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications of Hamas' victory in the recent elections to the Palestinian Legislature for security in the region. [48109]

Dr. Howells: Following its meeting on 30 January, the Quartet (UN, EU, US and Russia) acknowledged the positive role of the Palestinian Authority security forces in helping maintain order during the recent elections. It expressed its view that progress on further consolidation, accountability and reform remains an important task. We support this position.

Hamas now has a choice to make between the path of democracy and the path of violence. The onus is on Hamas to change their approach to Israel, renounce violence and disarm. We are watching developments closely and taking stock of the situation.

Interpal

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has received on the activities of Interpal; and if he will make a statement. [47828]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed the issue with his Israeli counterpart most recently in July 2005 and I have dealt with parliamentary correspondence on Interpal. In these discussions, it was noted that, following allegations of connections to Hamas, the Charity Commission had investigated Interpal on several occasions and had found insufficient evidence to support taking action against Interpal.

Iran

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the extent to which (a) UK and (b) EU banks have ceased business with Iran; and if he will make a statement. [48592]

Dr. Howells: We are not aware that any UK or EU banks have recently ceased business with Iran. ABN Amro reportedly closed its offices in Iran in October 2004.

According to media reports, UBS said on 22 January that it would no longer deal with individuals, companies or state institutions in Iran, and Credit Suisse Group said on 23 January that it would stop new business with Iran.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what fora are available to the EU to express its concerns about human rights in Iran to the Iranian Government; and if he will make a statement. [48752]

Dr. Howells: Iran's poor human rights record is a long-standing concern of the EU and an important factor in shaping EU policy towards Iran.

During the UK presidency, the EU issued public statements and made representations to the Iranian authorities about human rights violations on more than 15 occasions.

The EU should also be able to discuss human rights concerns within the framework of the EU/Iran Comprehensive Dialogue, established in 1998, and the EU/Iran Human Rights Dialogue, established in 2002. Regrettably, however, these dialogues have not taken place since April 2003 and June 2004 respectively, despite the efforts of successive EU presidencies and the European Commission at both ministerial and official level.

The EU also voices its concerns in international fora. All EU member states co-sponsored the resolution on human rights in Iran adopted by UN General Assembly in December 2005.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs under what conditions negotiations on the EU-Iran Trade and Co-operation and Political Dialogue Agreements would resume; and if he will make a statement. [48754]

Dr. Howells: The EU has not taken forward negotiations on the draft EU-Iran Trade and Co-operation Agreement or the draft EU/Iran Political Dialogue Agreement since August 2005 when Iran unilaterally decided to resume uranium conversion activities, in violation of its commitments to the E3/EU and contrary to requests in the International Atomic Energy Agency Board of Governors resolutions.

The EU agreed at the 16 December European Council that whether the EU's long-term relationship with Iran improves or deteriorates will depend on progress by Iran in the EU's areas of concern. These include Iran's attitude towards terrorism, the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, Iran's approach to the Middle East Peace Process, human rights and fundamental freedoms, and regional issues.

Iraq

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the incidence of corruption in reconstruction projects in Iraq. [47856]

Dr. Howells: There have been several comprehensive assessments of financial management of the Iraqi reconstruction effort, the most prominent of which is the series of reports published by the Special Inspector General for Iraq Reconstruction. Given concerns about levels of corruption in Iraq generally, the Government does not fund Iraqi institutions directly. All UK reconstruction programmes are monitored continuously, and where we have had any financial or management concerns we have taken action to address them.

The UK is committed to working with the Iraqi Government, alongside the International Monetary Fund, World Bank and other donors, to improve accountability and transparency in Iraq's public finances. Iraq is making progress in developing its anti-corruption institutions. These now include a Board of Supreme Audit, Inspector Generals resident in each Ministry and a Commission for Public Integrity, which can refer cases to the Central Criminal Court of Iraq. In addition, our efforts include encouraging Iraq to adopt international legal frameworks and standards in natural resource management, including the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative.

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received on the abduction and detention incommunicado of (a) Qutaiba Hamdani, (b) Uday Nasser (c) Badr, (d) Yasser Hamad and (e) Firaz Imad in Iraq in February 2004. [49368]

Dr. Howells: In March 2004, our Representative to the United Nations in Geneva received a copy of a letter from the UN Special Rapporteur for Torture, Mr. Van Boven, which referred to those named in the question. The only other representations we are aware of on behalf of these individuals are those from the hon. Member himself.

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 30 January 2006, Official Report, column 122W, on Iraq, whether he has (a) requested and (b) received information from (i) UK officials, (ii) UK armed service personnel and (iii) Iraqi official sources relating to the whereabouts of Mr. Quitaba Hamdani, Mr. Uday Nasser Badr, Mr. Yasser Hamad and Mr. Firaz Imad referred to in the letter of 12 March 2004 from Mr. van Boven, UN Special Rapporteur on Torture. [49369]

Dr. Howells: We have requested information about action taken by UK and US officials at the time of the van Boven letter. We have not approached the UK military or Iraqi officials.

Any reply to the Special Rapporteur's letter would have been sent by the Coalition Provisional Authority (CPA), which was dissolved at the end of June 2004. A search of the CPA's permanent records has taken place without finding the Special Rapporteur's letter or any reply.

At the time of Mr. van Boven's letter there was a great deal of militia activity of the type mentioned in his letter and many reports from different sources urging that they should be investigated. In so far as it was possible in each case full investigations were undertaken and attempts made to stop illegal detention.

Ivory Coast

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in the Ivory Coast. [48743]

Ian Pearson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) on 26 January 2006, Official Report, columns 2240–241W. Talks continue in New York on targeted UN sanctions against individuals blocking the peace process. The UK strongly supports their imposition.

Kazakhstan

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of Kazakhstan on bringing its laws and practices on due process and freedom of expression into line with international standards. [47296]

Mr. Douglas Alexander [holding answer 2 February 2006]: Freedom of expression is a fundamental right and recognised under international law. It is also vital to the development of a modern society. Both bilaterally and alongside our EU partners we reminded the Kazakh Government throughout 2005 that the credibility of their bid for the chairmanship of the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE) in 2009 rests on the soundness of their commitment to continue political reforms and comply fully with all OSCE undertakings and standards, which include those on freedom of expression. On 10 and 17 November 2005 the UK as presidency of the EU, issued statements expressing deep concern about reported harassment of opposition parties and restrictions on freedom of the media, particularly with regard to printing and distribution and circulation seizures of independent newspapers during the presidential election campaign. These concerns were reflected again in the EU presidency statement which the UK issued immediately following the presidential elections in December 2005.

Kazakhstan's ratification of the UN International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR) in December 2005 and the release of opposition leader Galymzhan Zhakianov in January 2006 are two recent positive steps taken by the Kazakh authorities in relation to due process and freedom of expression. The EU OSCE statement on 19 January 2006 welcoming his release reiterated calls for Kazakhstan to respect its international commitments on ensuring freedom of expression.

When he met Foreign Minister Tokayev following the presentation of his credentials on 9 January, our newly accredited ambassador to Kazakhstan, Paul Brummell, assured the Foreign Minister of the readiness of the British Government to work with Kazakhstan to promote the human rights agenda across its whole spectrum. In the current financial year the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has invested approximately £20,000 in projects relating to freedom of expression, including legal support for independent media, the introduction of jury trials and training of judges.

We will continue to raise, both bilaterally and with our EU partners, the importance of freedom of expression in Kazakhstan and look for opportunities to provide suitable assistance.

Madagascar

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the operation of the Small Grants Scheme in Madagascar. [48572]

Ian Pearson: The Small Grants Scheme in Madagascar was discontinued when the British embassy closed in August 2005.

Middle East Peace Process

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on Iran's approach to the Middle East Peace Process. [48763]

Dr. Howells: We have long-standing concerns that groups seeking to undermine the Middle East Peace Process through violence draw support from inside Iran. We have called on Iran to renounce all links to groups using terror and violence, and support a solution to the Palestinian question based on the principle of two states living side-by-side in peace and security. The EU has said that progress in its relations with Iran will depend on action by Iran to address the EU's political concerns, including in the areas of Iran's approach to terrorism and its attitude to the Middle East Peace Process.

President Ahmadinejad's recent comments calling for Israel to be 'wiped from the map' were unacceptable. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has condemned them unreservedly. The Palestinian Authority has also rejected them and said that the focus should be on adding Palestine to the map, next to Israel.

Nepal

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the recent reports of human rights violations in Nepal. [49088]

Dr. Howells: The UK has made repeated statements deploring human rights violations by both the Nepalese security forces and the Maoists. We have been deeply troubled by the Maoists' decision to end their ceasefire and by their return to violence. In January 2006 the Maoists carried out over 40 bomb attacks, 350 kidnappings, and engaged in 70 clashes with security forces. This has resulted in large numbers of deaths and injuries amongst the royal Nepalese Army, the police and civilians. We have also been gravely concerned by human rights abuses carried out by the security forces and by the Government's infringements of civil liberties and democratic freedoms, and by the arrest of a large number of political party leaders and activists.

In response to events in January, the UK has joined the EU in issuing a statement available at:

http://www.eu2006.at/en/News/CFSP_Statements/January/2701Nepal.html

in which we said:

"The EU strongly condemns the use of force to suppress the Nepalese people's exercise of fundamental rights, including the right to freedom of assembly and freedom of expression. The EU calls upon the King, the Government of Nepal and the Security Forces to immediately restore all political and civil liberties in accordance with Nepal's international obligations, immediately release all political prisoners and human rights defenders, and ensure that political and civil rights, including freedom of assembly and freedom of speech, can be exercised peacefully. The EU strongly condemns the resumption of Maoist violence, including the recent murder of an election candidate. The EU underlines the obligation of all parties to fully respect international humanitarian law, including by way of protecting civilians and facilitating the access of humanitarian organisations seeking to aid affected persons."

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support his Department (a) is giving and (b) plans to give to Nepalese (i) human rights agencies and (ii) aid organisations in (A) India and (B) the United Kingdom to assist the restoration of constitutional democracy in Nepal. [49245]

Dr. Howells: The UK does not support or plan to support any Nepalese human rights agencies or aid organisations in India or the UK to assist the restoration of constitutional democracy in Nepal.

However, the UK has supported a number of civil society and human rights organisations in Nepal on a wide range of issues for several years. As part of the Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP) Nepal strategy, the UK has funded several local and international organisations since 2002. These have included the Nepalese National Human Rights Commission and the International Committee of the Red Cross. The largest single contribution to any such organisation has been to the UN human rights monitoring operation under the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights, to which we have contributed over £800,000. The GCPP also funds the Nepalese human rights non-governmental organisation (NGO) called Advocacy Forum. The Embassy's Small Grants Scheme also funds a number of small indigenous NGO groups. Our assessment is that we will continue to need to strengthen civil society and human rights organisations for the foreseeable future and we are intending to maintain our support under the GCPP.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not fund any aid organisations but the Department for International Development runs a bilateral aid programme to Nepal worth £36 million in 2005-06.

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the government of Nepal about (a) detention of political leaders, (b) suppression of the media and (c) human rights violations. [49246]

Dr. Howells: Following the arrest of party leaders, political activists, members of civil society and human rights defenders on 19 and 20 January, I summoned the Nepalese Ambassador to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) to explain his government's actions to senior FCO officials. I urged the Government of Nepal to release all of the political prisoners detained in the most recent round up of activists and party leaders.

I also issued a statement in which I said,

"The UK is extremely concerned by the King's actions, and we can see no grounds for these anti-democratic measures. I call on the King urgently to release those arrested, and to find ways to resume dialogue with the political parties."

The full text is available at:

expressing concern about the most recent round of arrests and of the infringements on human rights and democratic freedoms. In that statement we called on the King, the Government of Nepal and the security forces to immediately restore all political and civil liberties, release political prisoners and human rights defenders, and ensure that political and civil rights, including freedom of assembly and freedom of speech, can be exercised peacefully.

We are encouraged to note that some of the party leaders who were detained have now been released. But there are approximately 250 political activists still in detention in Kathmandu and another 250 outside. This includes one of the top party leaders who remains under house arrest.

The UK has made a number of representations to the Government of Nepal about restrictions on the media and abuses of human rights over the last year. During the UK's presidency of the EU, we led a senior officials level EU Troika visit to Nepal, in which we raised these issues and publicly urged the government and security forces to respect human rights and to use security legislation with utmost caution. In response to the arrests in January the EU demarched the Nepalese Foreign Minister on 27 January calling for the immediate release of recently detained political prisoners.

Nigeria

Michael Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Nigerian Government about recent attacks on oil installations and oil workers in the Niger Delta; and what assistance the UK Government are providing. [47631]

Ian Pearson: We have been in close contact with the Nigerian Government about recent attacks on oil installations in the Niger Delta, including the kidnapping of a Briton and three other expatriates on 11 January. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary spoke personally to President Obasanjo of Nigeria on 21 January. We were delighted at the hostages' safe release on 30 January. More broadly, we maintain a close dialogue with the Nigerian federal and state authorities on security and development in the Niger Delta, which includes support for Nigeria's extractive industries transparency initiative and other measures to improve accountability and governance.

Non-proliferation Treaty

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps are being taken to strengthen the non-proliferation treaty in accordance with the December 2003 European Union strategy against the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction; and if he will make a statement. [48750]

Dr. Howells: The Council of the European Union's "Six-monthly Progress Report on the implementation of Chapter III of the EU Strategy against the Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction" contains comprehensive details of steps being undertaken to strengthen the non-proliferation treaty. The report is published on the Council of the European Union's website at:

http://register.consilium.eu.int/pdf/en/06/st05/st05279-en06.pdf

Overseas Territories

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make each of the overseas territories eligible for EU and UK funding for infrastructure development to enhance resilience against natural and man-made disasters; and if he will make a statement. [46904]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

Funding for infrastructure development features prominently in both DFID and EU programmes to support the Overseas Territories. We have worked closely with the EU on a number of projects. Notable recent examples include new airports on Montserrat, Anguilla and Grand Turk and road infrastructure on Providenciales. DFID is also providing funding for an airport on St Helena to maintain access after the island's passenger and supply ship reaches the end of her working life in 2010. On Pitcairn, work to pave the Hill of Difficulty, the only access road from the harbour to the main settlement of Adamstown, and make essential repairs to the jetty and slipway was completed during 2005. In addition we are planning to fund jointly with the EU repairs to the harbour wall on Tristan da Cunha and the construction of a breakwater on Pitcairn.

DFID's programmes focus on those countries which still need development assistance along the path to self-sufficiency. We would normally look to the wealthier Overseas Territories to finance their priorities for capital expenditure from their own resources, including under normal commercial borrowing terms. The EU also largely focuses its development programmes on those Overseas Countries and Territories (OTC)s whose economic development is least advanced. Similarly, we would not expect EU grant funding for infrastructure to be available for those OCTs with ready access to commercial borrowing.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely (a) medium-term and (b) long-term impact of climate change on the vulnerability to natural disasters of each of the overseas territories; and if he will make a statement. [46906]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: A Department for International Development (DFID) commissioned report by the Tyndall Centre called the Impacts of Global Climate Change on the UK Overseas Territories (OTs) found that long-term weather characteristics are likely to change. It concluded that regional warming in the Caribbean could be as much as 6 degrees by 2100, and slightly less in the South Atlantic and Pitcairn.

The report identified common areas of concern as many OTs share similar characteristics. In particular, many are islands with populations reliant on a fragile natural resource base. The effects of climate change include severe tropical storms and hurricanes in the Caribbean and likely increases in the severity and frequency of low rainfall events and droughts in all areas. Global sea level rise is now projected to be as much as 0.9 meters by 2100 and in the medium-term raised sea levels will exacerbate the effects of more severe storms, directly affecting coastal infrastructure and tourism.

On 30 January the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) published the book 'Avoiding Dangerous Climate Change'. Although not specifically directed at the impacts of climate change on OTs, the book discusses many of the potential impacts that OTs can expect to see in the future, such as degradation of marine ecosystems and increases in global sea levels.

As the international community makes efforts to tackle this global problem, the UK is keen to raise awareness in OTs of the impacts of climate change on their societies. For this reason the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and DEFRA have been working together to encourage OTs to be part of the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change and the Kyoto Protocol. The UK will build on this and share its knowledge and experiences through the UN's Inter-Governmental Panel Working Group looking at impacts, vulnerability and adaptation to climate change.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his Department's expenditure on internal security and policing was for each of the overseas territories in (a) 2002, (b) 2003, (c) 2004 and (d) 2005; and what expenditure is planned for 2006. [47097]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The following table details recorded expenditure for internal security and policing in each of the overseas territories during the financial years 2003-04 and 2004-05. The 2005-06 figures are anticipated. Allocations have not yet been made for the next financial year. As a number of cross-territory (regional) policing and security initiatives are supported by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, these figures are also included. The following table does not, however, record local expenditure at post which may have been supported through the Governors'/Administrators' delegated funds.

Neither the British Indian Ocean territory nor the sovereign based areas of Cyprus have been included in the table as this funding is provided by the Ministry of Defence.

[1] Estimate

The figures for 2002-03 are not included as they are not immediately available. I will therefore write to my hon. Friend with this information as soon as it becomes available and will place a copy in the Library of the House.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to involve local communities and Overseas Territories' Governments in decisions on policing and security strategies and resourcing in each of the Overseas Territories; and if he will make a statement. [47101]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The precise constitutional arrangements for policing and internal security differ from Territory to Territory. But a common thread is that law and order is, rightly, a matter of concern for the whole community. Governors routinely discuss matters relating to internal security, including policing, with their Territory's Government. It is the Territories'

Government that apportions resources for the staffing and operations of the range of government activities, including policing. The Overseas Territories Law Enforcement Adviser, based in Miami, and other experts as appropriate, provide professional advice to Overseas Territories Governments and law enforcement agencies when necessary.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was contributed by (a) his Department and (b) Overseas Territories' Governments towards policing and internal security in each of the Territories for each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [47102]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The following table details funding by both the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Overseas Territory Governments on policing and internal security during the past three years. The information on Territory Government spending is not always directly comparable as there are differences in the way that they apportion internal security resourcing.

I also refer my hon. Friend to the answers I gave him today (UIN 47097 and UIN 47101) to his questions numbered 47097 and 47101 for further information on the FCO's support for internal security and policing.

Palestinian Election

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the implementation of the Agreement on Movement and Access between the Government of Israel and the Palestinian Authority following the recent Palestinian legislative elections. [48594]

Dr. Howells: We welcome the fact that the Rafah border crossing, with the help of the EU Border Assistance Mission, remained open in the period leading up to and beyond the Palestinian Legislative Council elections. However, we are concerned that the Kami crossing in the northern Gaza Strip has been closed since 15 January; that the United Nations Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs has reported an increase in the number of obstacles to movement in the West Bank; and that the deadline for the introduction of truck convoys between Gaza and the West Bank by 15 January was missed.

We call upon Israel to act on its commitments in the Movement and Access agreement and also call upon the new Palestinian Government to commit itself to non-violence, recognition of Israel and acceptance of previous agreements and obligations, including the Roadmap.

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the effect of the election victory of Hamas on the UK's relations with the Palestinian Authority. [48701]

Dr. Howells: Our policy is clear that democracy means accepting the results of elections, provided they are free and fair. The Palestinian Legislative Council elections are not an exception to this principle.

On 30 January the Quartet (UN, US, EU and Russia) and the EU at the General Affairs and External Relations Council reiterated their view that there is a fundamental contradiction between armed group and militia activities and the building of a democratic state. A two-state solution to the conflict requires all participants in the democratic process to renounce violence and terror, accept Israel's right to exist, and disarm, as outlined in the Roadmap. We support this approach.

Hamas now has a choice to make between the path of democracy and the path of violence. The onus is on Hamas to change, and fundamentally they have to change their approach to Israel. We are watching developments closely and taking stock of the situation.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his Lebanese counterpart regarding Hamas's victory in the recent Palestinian elections. [47855]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had the opportunity to discuss Hamas' victory at last week's Palestinian elections with his Lebanese counterpart.

Rendition

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when (a) he and (b) his officials were first informed of the existence of United States interrogation centres in third countries. [45300]

Mr. Straw: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him today (UIN 45312).

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to his written statement of 20 January 2006, Official Report, columns 37–38WS, on rendition allegations (inquiries), for what reasons the Government declined in 1998 the two requests from the US Administration to refuel flights carrying detainees to the US; and where the flights originated in each case. [46697]

Mr. Straw: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Sheffield Hallam (Mr. Clegg) today (UIN 45312).

Road Map

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the policy of Hamas towards the Palestinian Authority's commitments under the Road Map, with particular reference to the commitment to seek to curtail terrorism; what steps he plans to take to promote the Authority's adherence to the Road Map following the elections for the Legislative Council; and if he will make a statement. [47774]

Dr. Howells: Both Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas and the Israeli Government remain committed towards making progress against the Roadmap.

On the 30 January the Quartet (UN, EU, US and Russia) reiterated its view that all members of a future Palestinian Government must be committed to non-violence, recognition of Israel, and acceptance of previous agreements and obligations, including the Roadmap. We urge both parties to respect their existing agreements, including on movement and access. We support this approach.

Hamas now has a choice to make between the path of democracy and the path of violence. The onus is on Hamas to change their approach to Israel, renounce violence and disarm.

UN Mechanisms (Gaza)

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 9 January 2006, Official Report, column 1704W, on Israel, when Sir Emyr Jones-Parry will be making his next statement at the United Nations Security Council open consultations; what other United Nations mechanisms are available to the UK for raising this matter; and if he will make a statement on Lieutenant General Halutz's response to the Government's concerns about low flying aircraft over Gaza. [47528]

Dr. Howells: We are concerned by Lt. Gen. Halutz's comment that the Israeli Air Force will continue to conduct operations including low-flying aircraft over the Gaza Strip. We will continue to call upon Israel to act in accordance with international law and to review its policy of collective punishment.

The British ambassador to the United Nations (UN), Sir Emyr Jones-Parry, raised this issue with the UN Assistant Secretary General for Political Affairs on 31 January. She confirmed that this is an issue that the UN is aware of and that they are currently discussing these actions with the UN Relief and Works Agency. We will continue to follow this situation closely. We will also raise this issue with the Government of Israel.

United States

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of the (a) number and (b) location of interrogation centres operated by the United States Administration; [45312]

(2) what assessment he has made of US compliance with international human rights laws in the operation of its interrogation centres; [45313]

(3) whether a UK (a) citizen and (b) resident has been subject to an international rendition by the United States since 1995. [45373]

Mr. Straw: The Government's efforts to counter the threat of international terrorism must, by their nature, involve a degree of confidentiality. If we are successfully to detect and disrupt terrorist plans and activity, we must protect our sources and methods. We must also protect our counter-terrorism, and wider intelligence, relationships with key allies, including the United States, which are essential to the security of our citizens.

At the same time, any Government in a democratic society should be as open as it can be without jeopardising security. This principle guides our counter-terrorism policy. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office Human Rights Report of 2005 made clear our view that respect for human rights is vital, not least for long-term success in the fight against terrorism.

Over the last few weeks, the Government have been as open as possible with the House. Ministers have given a number of oral and written answers to hon. and right hon. Members in connection with "extraordinary rendition". I have also responded to letters from hon. and right hon. Members, and issued two written ministerial statements. I have informed and updated the House as far as possible within the constraints described above, I shall continue to do so.

There is a great deal of information on the work of the intelligence and security agencies which cannot be divulged publicly. Because of this, and other special circumstances relating to the work of the agencies, Parliament established the Intelligence and Security Committee; much information is provided to this committee in confidence.

We have no evidence that the United States Government has rendered any detainee through UK territory or airspace (including the overseas territories) during the present United States Administration (i.e. since January 2001), and we are clear that it would not do so without our permission.

US Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice's statement of 5 December made clear that the US Government has for decades rendered terrorist suspects from one country to another, and set out the basis on which it does so. Except in so far as UK responsibilities or obligations are engaged by such renditions (for example, because a detainee passes through UK territory), this is not a matter for the UK Government. Like any other country, the UK can only be responsible for compliance with its own legal obligations and responsibilities. My written ministerial statement of 20 January summarised what we know of renditions through UK territory or airspace since May 1997. It is a matter of public record that a number of UK citizens, and non-UK citizens formerly resident in the UK, have been transferred to Guantanamo Bay (whence all the UK citizens have since been returned to the UK). We are not aware that any other UK citizens have been the subject of an international rendition since 1995. Given the open nature of our society, however, with huge flows of foreigners into and out of the UK, we cannot be sure whether any other non-UK citizens formerly resident in the UK have subsequently been the subject of international rendition.

It is also a matter of public record that the US Government has operated facilities in which terrorist suspects may be detained and questioned in Afghanistan since 2001, at Guantanamo Bay since 2002 and in Iraq since 2003.

I have today placed in the Library of the House a copy of my reply to a letter from the right hon. Member for Richmond, Yorks (Mr. Hague).

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Fair Trade Fortnight

Helen Jones: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what steps are being taken to mark Fair Trade Fortnight in the House. [49263]

Nick Harvey: As in previous years, the Refreshment Department will mark the Fairtrade Fortnight (6–19 March 2006) by running a special promotion of Fairtrade goods throughout the House of Commons cafeterias. In addition to those Fairtrade products always available—coffee, tea, chocolate, snack bars and, most recently, sugar—a wider range of biscuits, dried fruits, snack bars and fruit juices will be promoted under the Fairtrade Foundation's banner, "making Fairtrade your habit". The Department has also secured a consignment of Fairtrade bananas and pineapples, which will be offered during the fortnight.

Freedom of Information Act

Bob Spink: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what total sum has been received by the House for the provision of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in its first year of operation. [48496]

Nick Harvey: The House has not made charges for the release of information in the first year of operation of the Act.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Democratic Republic of Congo

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans he has to meet representatives of the Democratic Republic of Congo as head of the African Union. [49324]

Hilary Benn: The new chair of the African Union is President Sassou-Nguesso of the Republic of Congo.

While I do not have any immediate plans to meet President Sassou-Nguesso or his representatives, officials from both DFID and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office are in regular contact with members of the Republic of Congo Government and are seeking to establish suitable senior level meetings at the earliest opportunity.

Ethiopian Women (Fistulas)

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding he has allocated in 2005–06 to treat women in Ethiopia with open fistulas; and if he will make a statement. [48869]

Hilary Benn: I have not allocated any funds specifically for this purpose. DFID's approach is to provide support to improving health services so that care for patients can be improved.

Fair Trade Produce

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much and what proportion of his Department's catering budget was spent on fair trade produce in the last period for which figures are available. [49235]

Mr. Thomas: Precise figures are not available, but our contracted catering service providers estimate that in the current financial year 2005–06, approximately £70,000, or 20 per cent. of total expenditure on food, drink, etc, was spent on Fairtrade items.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's policy is on the procurement of fair trade produce for consumption on its premises. [49273]

Mr. Thomas: It is DFID's policy that all hot and cold beverages served within the Department are sourced from Fair Trade sources. In addition, our in-house caterer actively promotes and uses Fair Trade products wherever possible, including fruit, confectionery and disposable cups, etc.

Government Accountability

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what action the Government are taking to support (a) parliaments in African countries and (b) the Pan-African Parliament (i) to hold their governments to account and (ii) to improve the effectiveness of public expenditure; and if he will make a statement. [47788]

Hilary Benn: The purpose of DFID support to African parliaments is to help them to hold their governments to account, monitor public expenditure and represent constituency and public interest.

In Kenya, DFID is working with parliamentary committees such as the Public Accounts Committee and the Public Investments Committee to strengthen their oversight of public resource management and expenditure. We are also supporting the Kenyan National Assembly to develop effective information, research and legal services. Our support for a new library will help Members of Parliament and Parliamentary Committees to scrutinise the executive more effectively. Similarly, in Malawi, DFID is providing support to the national parliament to monitor state spending, the budget and taxation. In Nigeria, Tanzania and Sierra Leone, DFID is working jointly with USAID and an international non-government organisation, National Democratic Institute, to strengthen parliamentary committees in these countries. In Ethiopia, Malawi, Uganda and Zambia, we are developing capacity building programmes for parliaments. DFID is also supporting the Parliamentary Network on the World Bank, which supports African parliaments to network and learn from each other.

The Pan Africa Parliament is a young organisation. It is an advisory and consultative body. It agreed its first forward plans at the end of 2005. European Parliamentarians for Africa (AWEPA) have asked for DFID support for the parliament. This is currently under consideration.

Hamas

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the impact of Hamas's success in the recent elections to the Palestinian Legislature on UK aid to the Palestinian territories. [47953]

Hilary Benn: This is a time of considerable political change in the occupied Palestinian territories. The Government fully support the recent statements by the Quartet and the European Union on 30 January. We also welcome President Abbas' affirmation that the Palestinian Authority is committed to the Roadmap, to previous agreements and obligations between the parties, and to a negotiated two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. The Government will continue to monitor the situation carefully in close co-ordination with the EU and other partners. We support the Quartet in urging measures to facilitate the work of the current caretaker government to stabilise public finances.

Jewish Festivals

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department did to (a) celebrate Hanukkah and (b) mark Yom Kippur in 2005. [46761]

Mr. Thomas: DFID's diversity policy and practice is overseen by a diversity manager, based in the human resources division.

DFID does not organise official celebrations for the festivals of any religion. The DFID 'Policy on Religious Observance' is available on the Department's intranet; I have also arranged for copies of this document to be deposited in the Libraries of the House.

Kenya

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the decision to grant a loan from the World Bank to the government of Kenya; and what representations his Department made concerning this decision. [47814]

Hilary Benn: DFID Kenya supported the World Bank's Reform and Capacity Building Project loan which is focused on public financial management reform and public sector reform. DFID has been closely involved in the design and development of the programme and are supporting complementary public financial management and public sector reform work.

High-level corruption has long been a feature of Kenyan life and the World Bank and DFID remain very concerned, particularly about the recent corruption allegations by the exiled former anti-corruption official, John Githongo. President Kibaki's Government was elected in 2002 on a zero-tolerance of corruption ticket. It is for Kenyans to decide whether they have lived up to this promise. It is for us to decide whether our assistance can be effective in bringing this about.

Mr. Githongo's report is serious and credible. The Kenyan Government now have a unique opportunity to demonstrate its commitment to implement the recently announced ethical code for Ministers. Swift and determined actions by Ministers and others named in the report would send an important signal of commitment to fighting corruption to the people of Kenya, private investors, and the international community. For example, the unprecedented resignation of the Minister of Finance on 1 February, will allow the allegations against him and his Ministry to be fully investigated.

Mr. Wolfowitz has made it very clear to me that he has raised the bar for project approval in corrupt environments. The World Bank has an integrity team looking at their entire portfolio in Kenya. Like us, the World Bank will not go ahead with any project until they are satisfied that the environment is acceptable and that they can account for the funds. Consequently they have decided to delay their support to projects planned in HIV/AIDS, roads, education, and the financial sector, where some concerns are still to be resolved. Clearly the environment is not yet right for their direct budget support either.

At the same time, the international community cannot just call for the highest standards from the sidelines. We have a duty to help the Government of Kenya and the Kenyan people to improve accounting systems to reduce the opportunities for misuse and corruption. The World Bank loan aims specifically to strengthen the very systems that underpin clean and efficient government: transparent, accountable, and responsive budgetary systems and effective public service. Supporting Government systems that reduce the opportunities for corruption is the only way to ensure that all Government of Kenya spending through this and future administrations delivers for its people.

Palestinian Authority

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary, Department for International Development what measures his Department has in place to maintain accountability for funds transferred from the UK and the European Union for assistance in the Palestinian Authority; and whether additional measures have been introduced following the increase in monetary aid at the G8 summit. [43195]

Hilary Benn: Both UK and European Union budget support for the Palestinian Authority (PA) is conditional on the achievement of specific benchmarks, intended to ensure value for money and the legitimate use of taxpayers' funds. They cover audit and accounting as well as issues such as pension reform, the wage bill and budget processes. The benchmarks require that the PA submit its annual financial statements to the Palestinian Legislative Council and be independently audited.

DFID, along with the International Monetary Fund and other donors that provide budget support through a World Bank Public Financial Management Reform Trust Fund, undertake twice-yearly reviews of the PA's progress against agreed benchmarks and maintain close contact with the PA at all times. Other forms of DFID assistance to the Palestinian people are channelled through organisations whose accounts are independently audited. All trust fund donors, including the UK, decided in December 2005 to hold back budget support payments due to the Palestinian Authority following the failure of the Palestinian administration at the time to meet agreed benchmarks, notably on pension reforms, the wage bill and external audit.

The agreement reached at the G8 Summit was to support the Quartet Special Envoy for Disengagement, Mr James Wolfensohn, in his intention to stimulate a global financial contribution of up to $3 billion per year over the coming three years. At the Ad Hoc Liaison Committee meeting in December, it was agreed by the international community that a pledging conference could take place in spring 2006, provided that progress had been made on political and economic issues.

This is a time of considerable political change in the occupied Palestinian territories. The Government fully support the recent statements by the Quartet and the European Union on 30 January. We also welcome President Abbas' affirmation that the Palestinian Authority is committed to the Roadmap, previous agreements and obligations between the parties, and a negotiated two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. We will continue to monitor the situation carefully in close co-ordination with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the EU and other partners.

Sexual and Reproductive Health

Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what steps the Government has taken with (a) UN partners, (b) EU Governments, (c) the US Administration and (d) other donor Governments to ensure comprehensive sexuality education remains part of HIV prevention programmes; [48812]

(2) what steps the Government has taken with (a) UN partners, (b) EU Governments, (c) the US Administration and (d) other donor Governments to ensure access to sexual and reproductive health supplies, including condoms, remains part of global HIV programming; [48813]

(3) what steps the Government has taken with (a) UN partners, (b) EU Governments, (c) the US Administration and (d) other donor Governments to ensure the linkage between sexual and reproductive health and HIV information and services is promoted as part of HIV programming; [48815]

(4) what steps the Government is taking to raise the profile of linked sexual and reproductive health and rights and HIV/AIDS funding, policies and services to combat HIV/AIDS at the United Nations General Assembly Special Session 2006. [48816]

Mr. Thomas: The UK uses every opportunity to promote the scaling up of comprehensive and evidence based HIV programming. We know that unprotected sex is the most common cause of infection, particularly in Sub-Saharan Africa. Worldwide less than one in five people have access to basic HIV prevention services (including sexual and reproductive health services). This "prevention gap" is fuelling the spread of HIV. Improving access to a comprehensive range of effective HIV prevention information, services and supplies including sex education for young people and condoms for all those who are sexually active, is therefore important and this is what our programmes supports.

The UK led the support for the Joint United Nations Programme on HIV/AIDS (UNAIDS) prevention policy "Intensifying HIV prevention" at its June 2005 Programme Coordination Board, which I attended. This policy clearly emphasises the importance of evidence-informed prevention and we took the opportunity in negotiating and agreeing this policy to engage in dialogue with UN partners, European Governments, the US Administration and other donor Governments on the importance of comprehensive sexuality education, linking sexual and reproductive health (SRH) and HIV programmes and access to SRH supplies including female condoms.

Building on this, as EU president, we steered and secured agreement on the first EU wide policy Statement on HIV Prevention launched on World AIDS day 2005. This affirms the commitment of all 25 European member states to comprehensive and evidence based HIV prevention programming including:

- Universal access to SRH health information and services
- Reliable access to essential SRH supplies including condoms
- Universal access to education and life skills and sexuality education
- Action to confront and address gender-based violence

We are co-chairing the Universal Access steering group with UNAIDS. This group is helping to ensure that the commitments made at Gleneagles and at the World Summit to develop and implement a package for HIV prevention, treatment and care with the aim of as close as possible to universal access to treatment for all those who need it by 2010 are turned into action. Within this process we continue to emphasise the importance of integrating comprehensive SRH information, services and supplies, including female and male condoms, and sex and sexuality education into HIV programming.

We believe that SRH services should play a more effective role in efforts to prevent HIV, but recognise that more resources are needed to do this. DFID has recently commissioned some work to explore how the way we work helps or hinders the linkages between HIV and SRH policy, programming and funding arrangements. The forthcoming United Nations Special Session (UNGASS) in June 2006 will be an important opportunity to highlight the importance of SRH to HIV programming.

The US does have different policies from the UK in a number of areas related to international development. This is particularly so in HIV prevention and SRH. We have, for example, different positions on issues promoting sexual abstinence and ensuring availability of safe abortion services as well as access to clean needles and syringes as harm reduction measures. There has been discussion of these differences in global and bilateral meetings. We will continue our dialogue with the UN, European Governments, the US Administration and other donors; but we will, as we always have, continue to work with US colleagues to promote country-led evidence-based and effective approaches to tackling the HIV epidemic and we will continue to promote the importance of access to a full range of sexual and reproductive health information, services and supplies.

Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's total bilateral aid spending was to reproductive health and HIV/AIDS in 2004-05, broken down by sector. [48814]

Mr. Thomas: In 2004-05, DFID's bilateral expenditure on projects which were targeting effective reproductive health services was £194 million. This figure is reported in the document entitled 'Statistics on International Development' (SID) 2005 (Table 20), (which is available in the Libraries of the House) and reflects all projects that were recorded as having a primary or significant focus on effective reproductive health services. It should be noted that some of these projects will also have had a primary or significant focus on other areas such as education or health systems development.

DFID's overall bilateral spend on reproductive health services is likely to be in excess of £194 million, as further money has been spent on reproductive health by multilateral agencies supported by the UK such as the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) and the World Health Organisation, and by partner governments receiving "Poverty Reduction Budget Support" (PRBS) from the UK.

The expenditure figure for all projects that were shown against the tackling HIV and AIDS marker as having a primary or significant focus is also given in SID (Table 20). However, this does not represent DFID's total bilateral expenditure on HIV and AIDS. A methodology for calculating total expenditure on HIV and AIDS related projects has been developed. Figures for HIV and AIDS expenditure in 2004-05 using this methodology will be available soon.

When referring to SID table 20 on DFID expenditure it is important to note that data for different markers cannot be added together. This is to avoid double counting of expenditure.

South-east Asian Tsunami

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the use made of aid allocated following the South East Asian tsunami; and if he will make a statement. [46131]

Mr. Thomas: A study by the National Audit Office of DFID's provision of humanitarian assistance following the tsunami is due to report shortly.

The initial report of the Tsunami Evaluation Coalition found that the relief phase was effective in meeting the immediate survival needs of those affected by the disaster. It also found that the speed with which money was donated and the unprecedented scale of funding allowed an early shift from immediate relief assistance to longer-term recovery. The report highlighted the need for better co-ordination of assistance and improved needs assessment in future disaster response.

An independent evaluation, commissioned by the Disasters Emergency Committee (DEC) on behalf its member agencies showed that there was rapid and extensive provision of appropriate relief and sensitivity to marginalised groups. Beneficiary surveys show a high level of satisfaction with initial relief work. The report concluded that overall the DEC agencies did a good job. However, there was a need for better co-ordination and greater accountability to beneficiaries.

The World Disasters Report also highlighted weak co-ordination between humanitarian non-governmental organisations (NGOs) in the response. The Indian Ocean disaster was exceptional in that large numbers of international NGOs were deployed to affected countries and with greater funding than previously experienced.

DFID has also been monitoring its response to the Indian Ocean Disaster. A report will be placed in the Library and published on the DFID website in February 2006.

Statutory Instruments

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State, Department for International Development if he will list the statutory instruments introduced by his Department since 6 May 2005. [46204]

Hilary Benn: None.

Sudan

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress has been made in dealing with the humanitarian crisis in Darfur. [47854]

Hilary Benn: There are 1.8 million internally displaced people and 3.4 million dependent on humanitarian assistance in Darfur. The priority is to provide assistance and protection for them, and to find a political solution that will allow people to return home and rebuild their lives.

Recent assessments indicate a major improvement in nutrition in Darfur with malnutrition rates almost half what they were in the previous year. Likewise the recent WHO Darfur survey showed mortality rates have, in cases, reduced by two-thirds since August 2004. These improvements are due to the massive scale of the humanitarian effort.

The UK is the second largest bilateral humanitarian donor in Darfur (after the US), providing over £96 million since September 2003. These funds have meant that hundreds of thousands of vulnerable people have been provided with shelter, food, water and basic health care.

However, the situation still remains extremely fragile. We are particularly concerned about the impact that deteriorating security is having on humanitarian operations, especially in South and West Darfur. If aid were reduced because of conflict, insecurity or funding shortages, the humanitarian situation would deteriorate very quickly. We are taking every opportunity to call for an improvement in security and to press for a negotiated political agreement in Abuja.

TRANSPORT

A21 Upgrade

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he will publish the Regional Transport Board's advice on priorities regarding the proposed A21 upgrade. [49266]

Dr. Ladyman: The south eastern region submitted its advice on priorities to central Government on 31 January. The text of the advice can be found on the regional assembly's website at http://www.southeast-ra.gov.uk/our_work/advocacy/rfa.html.

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport why was Boeing 747–132, registration N481EV, not diverted to Stansted after encountering engine trouble on 24 April 2004 rather than being allowed to fly over London; and what cargo this aircraft was carrying. [46886]

Ms Buck: The captain of Evergreen 747 N481EV elected to divert to Heathrow rather than Stansted because the weather and visibility were good there and he had identified Heathrow when overflying that airport before the engine trouble occurred. The safety of the aircraft and choice of location for diversion is ultimately the captain's responsibility and air traffic control facilitated his request.

The captain did not notify air traffic control that the aircraft was carrying anything other than normal cargo.

C-385/04 Ruling

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will give details of case C-385/04, Commission of the European Communities v. United Kingdom and Northern Ireland; what estimate he has made of the costs of an appeal against the ruling; and if he will make a statement. [48290]

Dr. Ladyman: Case C-385/04 is a case brought by the European Commission against the United Kingdom, pursuant to Article 226 of the EC treaty. The case was brought, because we did not implement Directive 2001/16/EC on the Interoperability of the Trans-European Conventional Rail System within the period prescribed, which ended on 20 April 2003.

The Regulations required to implement that Directive have now been through consultation and are intended to be signed and laid during February 2006. Accordingly, any issue of failure to implement will shortly become otiose and there is therefore no reason to appeal against the Court's ruling.

Commercial Aircraft

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will calculate the statistical probability of a commercial aircraft getting into difficulties in the flight path to Heathrow over London; and if he will make a statement. [46664]

Ms Buck: The Civil Aviation Authority has used its Mandatory Occurrence Reporting Database to review safety events inbound to and departing from London Heathrow, from 1 January 2000 to 31 December 2005. It has identified those reports in which in its opinion the crew experienced or might have experienced difficulties in carrying out normal procedures. In the few cases identified all the flights were completed safely.

Aircraft overfly portions of Greater London on both arrival and departure. Only seven incidents in the period met the chosen criteria, five on approach and two on departure, from 2,817,156 movements. CAA's estimate of the statistical probability of an aircraft getting into difficulties in the flight path to Heathrow is therefore as follows:

Considering approach only, 3.55×10^{-6} events per aircraft landing, or approximately one such event every ¼ million landings.

Considering approach and take off, 2.48×10^{-6} events per aircraft movement, or approximately one such event, every 400,000 movements.

These figures equate to about one event a year.

Concessionary Transport

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many pensioners in Tooting have (a) received discounted driving licences and (b) qualified for free bus travel in 2005. [47751]

Ms Buck: In the parliamentary constituency of Tooting, over 12,000 people aged 60 or older were eligible for concessionary travel on London's buses in 2005. In the whole of the London borough of Wandsworth, 36,000 people aged 60 or older were eligible. However, the take-up of concessionary travel in the constituency or the borough is not known. In London as a whole, the take-up rate of concessionary travel permits was 85 per cent. in 2004, the most recent year's data available.

The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) do not issue discounted driving licences. However, there is no charge for licence renewals either at the age of 70 and over or for medical reasons. The DVLA are unable to provide any information on the number of licence issues that occurred in any particular geographic area.

Departmental Estate

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) land and (b) property is owned by his Department in Forest of Dean constituency. [47255]

Ms Buck: The Highways Agency (an Executive agency of the Department for Transport) owns a maintenance depot in the Forest of Dean constituency. The depot is located at Bury Court which is near junction 2 on the M50.

Ece (Loss at Sea)

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the environmental consequences arising from the loss at sea of the Ece and its cargo. [49202]

Dr. Ladyman: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) have consulted extensively with the statutory bodies with responsibilities for the marine environment—primarily Defra for fisheries interests and the Joint Nature Conservation Committee for seabirds and mammals. The cargo of phosphoric acid is not considered to be a significant threat to the marine environment as it will rapidly disperse. The bunker oil already released from the vessel has formed a thin layer of oil on the surface but is expected to disperse naturally. The sea area around the wreck is being monitored on a daily basis. The MCA will respond to any leakage of cargo or bunker oils according to the national contingency plan for marine pollution from shipping and offshore installations.

Eddington Report

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the cost of producing the Eddington report. [43186]

Mr. Darling: Rod Eddington has been asked to provide advice to the Chancellor and myself. He is supported by a team of 10 civil servants drawn from the Department for Transport and HM Treasury. Programme costs are being shared between the Department for Transport and HM Treasury and being met from the existing budgets for those two Departments, with total spend to date totalling approximately £55,000.

European Transport Legislation

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the status is of legislation to establish a (a) European highway code and (b) vehicle register; and if he will make a statement. [48126]

Dr. Ladyman: I am not aware of any such proposals.

Harbour Revision Orders

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 30 January, to question 43154 on harbour revision orders, why it is not current practice to inform hon. Members about harbour revision orders affecting their constituencies; and if he will make a statement. [47815]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department has reviewed its practice in this matter and will be asking applicants to inform hon. Members when applications for Harbour Orders are made affecting their constituencies.

Infrastructure Investment

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made on each of the infrastructure investment projects announced by his Department on (a) 2 December 2004, (b) 9 July 2003, (c) 1 April 2003 and (d) 10 December 2002. [43567]

Dr. Ladyman: Tables have been placed in the Libraries of the House which set out the current status of each of the infrastructure investment projects listed in the press releases announced by the Department on (a) 2 December 2004, (b) 9 July 2003, (c) 1 April 2003 and (d) 10 December 2002.

M1 (Junction 9)

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reasons trees have been felled on both sides of the M1 motorway south of junction 9; and if he will make a statement. [48401]

Dr. Ladyman: The tree and vegetation clearance works currently being carried out adjacent to the M1 motorway between junctions 6A and 10 are part of the advance works for the motorway widening scheme which is due to start construction in March 2006.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) roadworks and (b) new road construction is planned in the vicinity of junction 9 of the M1 motorway over the next two years; how long such work will last; whether it will involve M1 lane closures; and if he will make a statement. [48402]

Dr. Ladyman: Construction of the M1 junctions 6A to 10 Widening scheme is due to start in late March 2006 and be completed by December 2008. The works will involve lane restrictions on the motorway, including contra-flow running at times. However, the contractor will be required to keep three lanes open in each direction during the day. Some lane closures will be needed overnight for specific work activities and details of these will be advertised in advance to forewarn motorists. There will also be occasions when this stretch of motorway will have to be closed overnight to allow bridge demolition works to be undertaken safely. The number of such closures will be kept to the absolute minimum and will be widely advertised in advance, along with details of the diversion routes. Advance works including site clearance of vegetation, site fencing and the construction of site compounds began in December 2005.

M181

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what action he intends to take to tackle the uneven surface of the M181 motorway; in what timescale; and if he will make a statement. [48404]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency expects to carry out localised repairs on the uneven surface of the M181 in the coming financial year (2006–07). The Agency will also be undertaking a study of the M181 road surface and depending on the findings of this study, resurfacing on parts of this route may be carried out within the next three years.

Ministerial Meetings

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list meetings (a) he and (b) his officials have had with the five largest bus companies in the last eight months. [48807]

Ms Buck: Department for Transport Ministers and officials have meetings with representatives from bus companies on a regular basis to discuss a range of bus and public transport issues.

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list meetings he has held with (a) passenger transport authorities and (b) passenger transport executives in the last eight months. [48808]

Ms Buck: The Secretary of State has met members of the Passenger Transport Authorities and Passenger Transport Executives on several occasions during his programme of visits around the country in the last eight months.

Motoring Offences

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will bring forward proposals to make it a criminal offence for the driver of a motor vehicle deliberately to stop at a green traffic light and to refuse to move the vehicle; and if he will make a statement. [48723]

Dr. Ladyman: There is no need to create a new criminal offence. The existing provisions under the Highways Act 1980, the Road Traffic Act 1988 and the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 are adequate for dealing with people who drive without reasonable consideration for other road users, and with drivers of stationary vehicles that are causing danger or obstruction at traffic signals.

Off-peak Travel

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to extend free off-peak travel on public transport to all 14 to 19-year-olds. [48219]

Ms Buck: It is already open to individual local authorities to offer concessionary bus travel to people up to the age of 18. There are no plans at present to make such provision statutory.

Park and Ride

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport in which (a) cities and (b) towns new park and ride schemes have been established in the last five years. [40583]

Ms Buck: Local transport authorities outside London (county councils, unitary areas and, in each former metropolitan county, the passenger transport authority and metropolitan district councils jointly) produced their five year transport plans in 2000 and every year since then have produced progress reports annually. They include forms listing how many schemes have been completed, but not their exact locations. Also the website www.parkandride.net lists most park and ride schemes.

Quiet Lanes

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent guidance he (a) has issued and (b) plans to issue to local authorities about the implementation of his policy of quiet lanes in rural areas. [47524]

Ms Buck: Quiet lanes are a Countryside Agency initiative that has the support of the Department for Transport.

In June 2004 the Department for Transport issued Traffic Advisory Leaflet 3/04 which described the two Quiet Lanes National Demonstration Projects and their impacts and offers advice for future schemes. Copies of this leaflet have been placed in the House Library.

The Department for Transport is currently finalising work on guidance on issues that local traffic authorities in England must consider when deciding whether or not to designate a road as a quiet lane (or a home zone) and when making use orders and speed orders. It is intended to publish the guidance as a Department for Transport Circular soon, in parallel with the publication of regulations.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the implementation of his policy of quiet lanes in rural areas, with particular reference to local authority areas in the south-east of England. [47525]

Ms Buck: Quiet lanes is a Countryside Agency initiative that has the support of the Department for Transport.

The Department commissioned research to examine the impact of the two National Demonstration Projects in west Kent and north Norfolk. The findings of this research were published by TRL Limited in 2004 and are summarised the Department for Transport's Traffic Advisory Leaflet 3/04 which was published in June 2004. Copies of this leaflet have been placed in the House Library.

The Transport Act 2000 gave local traffic authorities the powers to designate roads for which they are the traffic authority as quiet lanes. There is no requirement in the Act for authorities to provide the Department with details of their quiet lanes schemes.

Quiet lanes are identified in LTP guidance and contribute to the measures designed to improve shared priorities and quality of life issues. However, there has, so far, been no specific assessment of the impact they have had.

Railways

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy that funding for the policing of the railways continues to be provided solely by the railway industry; and if he will make a statement. [48365]

Derek Twigg: The Government remains committed to the principle that the costs of policing the railway should remain largely funded by the industry itself and most recently confirmed this policy when my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced the current review of the British Transport Police (BTP) in his statement to the House on 11 October 2005.

Road Improvements

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the Answer of 24 January 2006, Official Report, column 1994W, on road improvements, how many of the Highways Agency Targeted Programme of Improvements projects are on the basis of (a) fixed price, (b) time and materials and (c) other. [47319]

Dr. Ladyman: Three of the Highways Agency Targeted Programme of Improvements projects are in category (a), 39 of them are in category (b) and 17 of them are in category (c).

Three categories have been interpreted as follows:

(a) Fixed price: PFI (private finance initiative) schemes or the pilot fixed price contract for A500 City Road and Stoke Junction

(b) Time and materials: The ECI (early contractor involvement) form of contract where the majority of the payments are made on actual cost against the target cost plus fixed profit and overheads

(c) Other: This has been taken to include ECC (engineering and construction contract) option B (priced contract with bill of quantities) and ECC option C (target price with activity schedule).

Road Maintenance

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent on minor repairs to trunk roads and motorways in the last three years. [47488]

Dr. Ladyman [holding answer 31 January 2006]: The motorways and trunks roads of the strategic road network are managed by the Highways Agency, an executive Agency of the Department for Transport. The reporting of the cost of managing these roads is not broken down by category of road. The funding for minor repairs to the strategic network is contained within a wider programme of maintenance, which covers a number of network components such as carriageways, footways, cycle tracks, drainage, street lighting, signs, traffic signals, guard railing, safety fencing and embankment/cutting slopes. It is not possible to report expenditure exclusively for the 'minor repairs' element of a much wider budget. The figures for repairing roads on the network in the last three years are shown in the following table.

£ million

	Maintenance[1]
2002–03	796
2003–04	726
2004–05	732

[1] Resource and capital expenditure.

Road Traffic Accidents

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) fatal and (b) serious road traffic accidents occurred in the Tooting constituency in each year since 1997. [47756]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of fatal and serious personal injury road accidents that occurred in the parliamentary constituency of Tooting between 1997 and 2004 (the latest year for which figures are available), is given in the table. The accidents are those which occurred within the 2004 boundary of Tooting constituency.

Fatal and serious personal injury road accidents in Tooting constituency: 1997–2004

	Fatal Accidents	Serious Accidents
1997	4	71
1998	2	71
1999	2	38
2000	2	48
2001	1	54
2002	2	48
2004	3	43

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) young drivers and (b) passengers of young drivers have been killed in road accidents in the last five years; and what steps the Government are taking to reduce these figures. [47918]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of young car drivers, and the number of passengers of young car drivers killed in personal injury road accidents between 2000 and 2004 (the latest year for which figures are available) are shown in the following table.

Young car drivers and passengers of young car drivers killed in personal injury road accidents: 2000–04

	Age of driver
	17 to 21		22 to 25
	Driver fatalities[1]	Passenger fatalities[1]	Driver fatalities[1]	Passenger fatalities[1]
2000	195	158	117	72
2001	210	182	123	79
2002	215	157	132	72
2003	228	182	132	78
2004	214	189	144	84

[1] Deaths within 30 days of the accident.

On measures to reduce these casualties, I refer to my answers to the hon. Member for Tewksbury (Mr. Robertson) on 6 December 2005, Official Report, column 1118W and to my hon. Friend the Member for Hartlepool (Mr. Wright) on 14 December 2005, Official Report, column 2023W.

Rotherwas Access Road

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when a decision will be made on the Rotherwas access road in Hereford. [48433]

Dr. Ladyman: We are currently considering advice from the west midland region about the prioritisation of the Rotherwas access road and other schemes in the west midlands area. We plan to make an announcement responding to this advice in the spring.

School Transport

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to (a) subsidise and (b) facilitate independent travel to school by pupils. [48217]

Ms Buck: It is already open to individual local authorities to offer concessionary bus travel to people up to the age of 18. There are no plans at present to make such provision statutory.

Facilitating independent travel to school is a key objective of the 'Travelling to School' project which aims to make it possible for as many pupils as possible to walk, cycle or use public transport to travel to school.

Shellhaven Port

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he has taken to ensure that the developers of Shellhaven port make a financial contribution to the development of rail freight infrastructure in the Greater London area and beyond. [48734]

Dr. Ladyman: The Secretary of State will take into account all relevant matters in considering his decision on the proposed London Gateway port at Shellhaven. Interested parties have been invited to comment on representations received on issues, including road and rail access, raised in the Secretary of State's minded approval letter of 20 July 2005.

Speed Cameras

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the revenue was from fines resulting from speed camera convictions in Cambridgeshire in the latest year for which figures are available; and what sums were passed to (a) the Consolidated Fund and (b) the Cambridgeshire Safety Camera Partnership. [47920]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department only holds this information for offences detected by the Cambridgeshire Safety Camera Partnership within the national safety camera programme. The information is available for financial year 2004-05 and is shown in the following table.

Cambridgeshire: Fixed penalties from offences detected by cameras 2004-05

Total Fine Revenue	1,196,460
Partnership Costs	1,021,261
Passed to Consolidated Fund	175,199

Transport Innovation Fund

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the criteria are for a successful bid to the Transport Innovation Fund. [47895]

Ms Buck: The criteria against which allocations will be made from the Transport Innovation Fund are set out in the paper "Transport Innovation Fund: Guidance: January 2006", which was announced by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport in a written statement on 26 January 2006, Official Report, columns 66–67WS.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will place in the Library a copy of the documentation relating to each (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful bid by local authorities for the Transport Innovation Fund. [47898]

Ms Buck: There have been no bids for the Transport Innovation Fund as yet. I have, though, placed in the Library a copy of the decision letters sent to all authorities which bid in October 2005 for pump-priming funds to support the development of schemes including demand management.

My right. hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced details of the winning bidders in November 2005 (28 November 2005, Official Report, column 3WS) and the bids can be found on the DFT's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_foi/documents/divisionhomepage/610460.hcsp

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the written statement of 26 January 2006, Official Report, columns 66–67WS, on the Transport Innovation Fund, if he will list the schemes which are expected to make a major contribution to national productivity for which existing sources of funding are insufficient. [48721]

Ms Buck: The basis for allocating funding from the Transport Innovation Fund to schemes expected to contribute to national productivity is set out in the paper "Transport Innovation Fund: Guidance: January 2006" published by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January. No view has yet been taken on which schemes may meet the criteria set out in that guidance, as we wish first to seek the views of the regional development agencies.

Transport Projects (Tamworth)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding his Department has provided for transport projects in Tamworth since 1997. [48645]

Ms Buck: Since the introduction of local transport plans in 2000, the local authorities in the Staffordshire local transport plan area have received around £96 million in funding for local transport projects and maintenance schemes. In addition Staffordshire county council has also received £18.5 million in funding for major transport schemes.

Between 1997 and 2000 the local authorities in Staffordshire county council received £27 million in funding for local transport capital investment.

The Department does not have the data to identify a figure separately for local transport investment in Tamworth.

The Highways Agency has also funded major resurfacing and repair work to improve the safety of the A5 Tamworth bypass at a cost of £1.53 million. The work involved resurfacing both carriageways over a 5 km stretch of the A5 between the Marlborough Way junction and the A453 Mile Oak junction. They have also funded work to improve safety barriers and drainage. The work started in October 2005 and was completed in December 2005.

The Tamworth constituency will benefit from the Trent Valley four tracking scheme on the West Coast main line—19 kms of additional two tracks at a cost of £327 million. The work started in 2003 and will be complete in 2008.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Centre for Ecology and Hydrology

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate his Department has made of the costs of redundancies arising from the reorganisation of the Centre for Ecology and Hydrology. [47298]

Barry Gardiner: I refer my right hon. Friend to the answer given in another place by my noble Friend Lord Bach of Lutterworth to the noble Baroness Byford on 18 January 2006, Official Report, column WA107.

Departmental Expenditure

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the annual expenditure on vehicles by (a) his Department and (b) each (i) non-departmental public body, (ii) executive agency and (iii) other public body for which he is responsible in (A) Scotland, (B) Wales, (C) each of the English regions and (D) Northern Ireland was in each of the last three financial years; and what the planned expenditure is for 2005–06. [39991]

Alan Johnson: The following figures are those recorded for car hire and leasing over the years in question.

	Actuals		Budget
Entity	2002–03	2003–04	2004–05	2005–06
DTI	214,045	201,694	209,774	96,697
UK Trade and Investment (Admin)	5,569	6,586	24,709	10,682
Employment Tribunals Service	29,059	10,167	7,584	9,483
Insolvency Service	54,505	23,480	16,165	0

The Insolvency Service have not used the Department's finance system since April 2005 and we therefore have no budget information for them for this year.

The regional split of this expenditure cannot be supplied without incurring disproportionate cost. Information on the Department's other agencies, public bodies and sponsors is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

For details of expenditure on ministerial vehicles provided to the Department by the Government Car and Despatch Agency I refer the hon. Member to the letter of 20 December 2005 from the chief executive of the Government Car and Despatch Agency to the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker). Copies of this letter are available in the Libraries of the House.

Employers Liability Assurance

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether it is a requirement for companies to record details of their employers' liability insurance on their annual returns to Companies House. [46346]

Barry Gardiner: It is not a requirement for companies to include details of their employers' liability insurance on their annual returns to Companies House.

Employment

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many people have been employed in the manufacturing sector in each year since June 2001. [48093]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The table shows the number of people employed in the manufacturing sector from summer quarters of the Labour Force Survey. These figures are from the Office for National Statistics.

Manufacturing sector employment[1]
United Kingdom: summer quarters[2] 2001 to 2005, not seasonally adjusted

	Number of people employed
2001	4,433,317
2002	4,297,866
2003	4,022,643
2004	3,841,459
2005	3,731,802

[1] Employment includes: employees; self-employed; Government employment and training programs; and unpaid family workers.
[2] Summer quarters cover June, July and August.

European Commissioner for Trade

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on what dates he held meetings with the European Commissioner for Trade since October 2004. [47301]

Alan Johnson: My predecessor, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health, and I have met the European Commissioner for Trade on the following occasions since October 2004.

	Occasion
20 October 2004	Bilateral dinner, London
14 June 2005	Bilateral meeting, Brussels
18 July 2005	Informal EU Trade Ministers' dinner, Brussels
5 and 7 September 2005	EU-China and EU-India summits
21 November 2005	General Affairs Council and informal EU Trade Ministers' dinner, Brussels
11 to 17 December 2005	Regular meetings throughout the WTO Ministerial, Hong Kong

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what telephone conversations he has held with the European Trade Commissioner since October 2004. [47302]

Alan Johnson: My predecessor, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health and I have been in regular contact with the European Trade Commissioner by telephone during this period.

First-class Letters

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what percentage of first-class letters posted in the Peterborough city council unitary authority area met Royal Mail's online delivery target in the last year for which figures are available. [48668]

Barry Gardiner: This is an operational matter for Royal Mail Plc. The chief executive has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Flexible Working Hours

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the likely impact on South Swindon of a 24-hour economy; and if he will make a statement. [31659]

Alun Michael: DTI has made no specific assessment of the likely impact of a 24-hour economy on South Swindon. The Department sponsors the South West of England Regional Development Agency (SWRDA), which has a statutory purpose to further economic development in its area. The economic and physical regeneration of Swindon town centre is a key project for SWRDA.

Local authorities have an important role in assessing and responding to local economic need. I understand that Swindon borough council is considering how to take forward the findings of a recent review of the town centre night time economy, and is working to establish a new partnership which will, with SWRDA and the New Swindon Company (Swindon's urban regeneration company), take forward development of Swindon's economy.

Freepost Operators

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will introduce legislation to make illegal the deliberate imposition of costs upon a freepost operator through campaign mail. [46736]

Barry Gardiner: Misuse of the 'Freepost' product is an operational and contractual matter for the attention of the product's owner. Royal Mail have procedures for managing potential misuse of the service and these ensure that freepost operators are not penalised by systematic abuse.

Marine Bill

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the written answer of 23 January 2006, Official Report, column 1767W, on the Marine Bill, when the Government will undertake the public consultation on the Bill. [47529]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are planning to undertake the public consultation on the Marine Bill over a period of 12 weeks commencing in March 2006.

National Minimum Wage

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the number of employees in Wales who have been affected by the minimum wage since 2003. [48563]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The DTI estimates that approximately 70,000 people in Wales stood to benefit from the October 2003 uprating of the national minimum wage, based on the ONS' spring 2003 central estimates of low pay, the labour force survey and the 2003 new earnings survey.

The DTI estimates that approximately 70,000 people in Wales stood to benefit from the October 2004 uprating of the national minimum wage, based on the 2004 annual survey of hours and earnings and taking into account earnings inflation from spring and October 2004.

The DTI estimates that approximately 50,000 people in Wales will be covered by the October 2005 uprating of the national minimum wage, based on the 2005 annual survey of hours and earnings and taking into account earnings inflation from spring and October 2005.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the number of employees in Scotland whose wage has been affected by the minimum wage since 2003. [48564]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The DTI estimates that approximately 140,000 people in Scotland stood to benefit from the October 2003 uprating of the national minimum wage, based on the ONS' spring 2003 central estimates of low pay, the Labour Force Survey and the 2003 New Earnings Survey.

The DTI estimates that approximately 130,000 people in Scotland stood to benefit from the October 2004 uprating of the national minimum wage, based on the 2004 Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings and taking into account earnings inflation from spring and October 2004.

The DTI estimates that approximately 100,000 people in Scotland will be covered by the October 2005 uprating of the national minimum wage, based on the 2005 Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings and taking into account earnings inflation from spring and October 2005.

Personal Debt Advice

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what personal debt advice services are funded by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [48736]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department actively supports services that provide free and impartial personal debt advice. We have committed £1 million a year to National Debtline, a telephone debt advice service, funded jointly with industry and other Government Departments. This is helping to fund the recruitment of 30 additional trainee advisers and assisting with progress towards increasing their adviser resource to 84 by 2007.

The Department is also responsible for administering £45 million of the Treasury's £120 million Financial Inclusion Fund in grants for Face-to-Face debt advice providers in England and Wales. This funding, scheduled for distribution over the coming two financial years, is aimed at increasing the capacity and availability of Face-to-Face debt advice across the most financially excluded communities and vulnerable social groups.

Post Office Card Account

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he was first informed by the Department for Work and Pensions that its contract with Post Office Ltd. for the provision of the Post Office card account would cease in 2010. [48674]

Barry Gardiner: It was made clear from the outset that the contract for the Post Office card account was an interim measure and would end in 2010.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the likely impact on the post office network of abolishing the Post Office card account after 2010. [48678]

Barry Gardiner: The Post Office card account is only one of a large number of ways that people can access benefit and pension money form the Post Office. Post Office Ltd. is looking to develop new banking and savings products, which might offer still further options for card account customers who want to keep getting their money from the Post Office.

Benefits payments through post offices are just one of several issues which affect the future role of the Post Office and will need to be considered in that wider context.

Post Office Network

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what action the Government have taken in response to the conclusions and recommendations of the Cabinet Office Performance and Innovation Unit report, Counter Revolution: Modernising the Post Office Network, published in 2000. [48672]

Barry Gardiner: The Performance and Innovation Unit report was helpful in identifying the issues facing the post office network in 2000. Government accepted all the report's recommendations.

We have committed around £2 billion in support of the introduction of a range of measures aimed at creating an efficient and sustainable post office network. The network still faces significant challenges and we are considering what further measures may be required.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the Government funding arrangements provided in respect of the post office network since 1997. [48673]

Barry Gardiner: There was no significant funding for the Post Office Corporation prior to 1999, but since then Government support of almost £2 billion in total has been made available to Post Office Ltd. including:

	£ million
Horizon IT project	480
Contribution to "Your Guide" project	25
Support for the rural network to 2006	450
Community post office support	2
Support for urban network reinvention	210
Deprived urban schemes in England	15
Repayment of historic debt to Royal Mail[1]	726

[1] To April 2003.

The Government have also decided to extend support to the rural network for two further years to 2008, worth another £300 million. This is subject to state aid clearance.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many rural post offices in (a) England, (b) Yorkshire and (c) Beverley and Holderness have closed in the last 12 months. [48483]

Barry Gardiner: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). The chief executive has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Postal Services

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the total number of sub post offices in each county council and metropolitan borough area was in (a) 1997 and (b) 2005. [46678]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 30 January 2006]: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. The Chief Executive has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the total number of sub-post offices in the Milton Keynes unitary authority area was in (a) 2001 and (b) 2005. [47305]

Barry Gardiner: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). The chief executive has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the minimum number of post office branches required by the Royal Mail to fulfil the terms of its universal service obligation. [49198]

Barry Gardiner: This is a matter for the postal services regulator, Postcomm.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many (a) sub-post offices and (b) post offices there were in (i) Peterborough city council unitary authority area and (ii) Peterborough constituency in each year since 1997. [49290]

Barry Gardiner: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). The chief executive has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Royal Mail

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues in the Treasury on the tax treatment of employees of Royal Mail arising from a distribution of shares in Royal Mail to those employees. [46912]

Barry Gardiner: There have been no such discussions.

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many bicycles each Royal Mail delivery office has for their work, and if the Royal Mail will increase the use of bicycles for delivery. [47369]

Barry Gardiner: This is an operational matter for Royal Mail Plc. The chief executive has been asked to reply direct to my hon. Friend.

State-owned Enterprises

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment the Government have made of the extent to which new investment has been withdrawn as a result of the EU ban on investing in state-owned enterprises. [48889]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There is no ban on investment in state-owned enterprises. State investment in any company whether publicly or privately owned must comply with the European state aid rules.

Statutory Instruments

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the statutory instruments introduced by his Department since 6 May 2005. [46207]

Alan Johnson: The OPSI (HMSO) SI Registrar (siregistrar@cabinet-office.x.gsi.gov.uk) can provide a list of statutory instruments issued by individual Departments. Statutory Instruments which have been originated by Departments but eventually made by the Privy Council Office, are only listed under the Privy Council Office.

During the period 6 May 2005 to 2 February 2006 my Department registered 68 Statutory Instruments with the SI Registrar (one of which was a Privy Council Order). These are listed as follows:

2005 3524 Insolvency Practitioners and Insolvency Services Account (Fees) (Amendment) (No. 2) Order

Telephone Cold Calling

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what further steps his Department is considering to curb telephone cold calling. [48095]

Alun Michael: Under the Privacy and Electronic Communications (EC Directive) Regulations 2003, consumers are offered protection from telephone cold calling through the Telephone Preference Service (TPS) scheme. This has proved to be an effective deterrent with 11.2 million registrations to date. No one is allowed to make an unsolicited marketing call to a subscriber who has either previously notified the caller that they do not wish to receive such calls or has been registered with the TPS scheme for at least 28 days. We have no evidence of any need to consider further measures. We have no evidence of any need to consider further measures.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Freedom of Information Act

Bob Spink: To ask the Leader of the House what total sum has been received by his Office for the provision of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in its first year of operation. [48494]

Nigel Griffiths: No money has been specifically received by the Office of the Leader of the House of Commons for the provision of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Compensation Bill

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what assessment she has made of the likely impact of the Compensation Bill on collective conditional fee arrangements. [47948]

Bridget Prentice: The Government considers that part two of the Bill, which introduces the statutory regulation of claims management services, will have no impact on collective conditional fee agreements. Statutory regulation will ensure that those who provide claims management services must abide by rules and a code of practice, providing much needed consumer protection. This will not affect the various methods available for funding claims.

Family Law Act

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what average time it has taken for proceedings to be concluded under the new provision 42A of the Family Law Act 1996, as amended by the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004. [45696]

Bridget Prentice: This information is not collated centrally. Part of our places for the implementation of the Domestic Violence Crime and Victims and Victims Act 2004 is the better collection of statistical information. We are planning to research the impact of breaches and the implementation of the provisions of the Act.

Land Registry

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will take steps to ensure that the Land Registry holds details of the titles of all land in England; and if she will make a statement. [45940]

Bridget Prentice: Land Registry holds about 21 million registered titles to land in England and Wales. Most urban land is registered but much rural land remains unregistered. Registration is compulsory after certain specific events, for example, a sale of land or a transfer on death. Land Registry cannot otherwise compel registration but has a long term strategy of working towards a comprehensive register by persuading landowners of the benefits of voluntarily registering their holdings.

Office Equipment

Mr. Weir: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many (a) personal computers, (b) laptops, (c) servers, (d) printers, (e) scanners, (f) photocopiers and (g) fax machines (i) her Department, (ii) each (A) non-departmental public body, (B) Executive agency and (C) other public body for which her Department is responsible in (1) Scotland, (2) Wales, (3) each English region and (4) Northern Ireland owned in (x) 2003-04 and (y) 2004-05. [40092]

Ms Harman: Most of the Department's IT equipment is provided under service supply contracts with service providers. Details of the equipment owned by the Department, its Executive agencies, and its non-departmental public bodies, for which records are held, is provided in the following table.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Randall: To ask the Solicitor-General how many prosecutions for breaches of antisocial behaviour orders the Crown Prosecution Service has brought in (a) Uxbridge and (b) the London borough of Hillingdon. [48518]

The Solicitor-General: Police records are kept for the London borough of Hillingdon, which includes Uxbridge. Separate figures for Uxbridge are not retained. These records denote breaches of all antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) granted within the borough of Hillingdon. They also include ASBOs breached in Hillingdon but granted within other boroughs.

Figures for breaches of ASBOs prior to 2004 are unavailable.

In 2004, five adults were prosecuted for breach of an antisocial behaviour order.

In 2005, 42 adults and two youths were prosecuted for breach of an antisocial behaviour order.

Crown Prosecution Service

Mr. Amess: To ask the Solicitor-General what representations he has received about the performance of the Crown Prosecution Service in (a) Essex and (b) Southend in each of the last nine years for which information is available. [47965]

The Solicitor-General: A review of records indicates that neither I nor my predecessors have received representations from any MPs other than the hon. Member concerning the performance of the Crown

Prosecution Service (CPS) in Essex during the last nine years. I am told that three letters have been received from members of the public during this period making complaints about CPS performance in Essex, none of which appear to relate to Southend.

HM Crown Prosecution Service Inspectorate (HMCPSI) has recently conducted an "Overall Performance Assessment" of CPS Essex. The report is anticipated to be published during March.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Solicitor-General how much the Director of the Crown Prosecution Service has received in bonuses in each of the last two financial years for which figures are available. [48111]

The Solicitor-General: The salary arrangements for the Director of Public Prosecutions do not provide for bonus payments.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Solicitor-General on how many occasions the Crown Prosecution Service was (a) one day and (b) one week too late in taking action against a defendant in each of the last five years for which information is available. [48116]

The Solicitor-General: Generally speaking, there are no limitations on the time for taking criminal proceedings for indictable offences. In summary proceedings, the Justices will not try information alleging an offence unless the information was laid within six months from the time the offence was committed. However, the Crown Prosecution Service maintains no central records of occasions when this limitation is breached.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Solicitor-General how many complaints have been made about the Crown Prosecution Service since 1997; how many of those complaints have been upheld in each year; and what action was taken to redress each successful complaint. [48874]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) maintains a record of the number of responses sent to members of the public who make a complaint.

The figures for each year since records began are as follows:

	Number
1998[1]	2,423
1999	2,192
2000	2,793
2001	2,815
2002	3,080
2003	3,624
2004	3,915
2005	4,338

[1] April to December only.

A complaint may be made by any party in a criminal case or by a member of the public with no direct involvement in proceedings. Complaints may relate to a range of issues including the performance of one or more of the agencies involved or to matters of general policy. Therefore, it is not possible for the CPS to divide complaints into those upheld, those rejected, and those where redress was offered.

When responding to complainants, the CPS seeks to explain its role in criminal proceedings, the principles on which its decisions are based and, where there has been an admitted error, what steps it will take to ensure that the error will not happen again. However, it may not be appropriate to enter into a discussion of the evidence in particular cases, particularly with complainants who are not directly involved in a case.

Prosecution Statistics

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Solicitor-General how many and what percentage of prosecutions in Cambridgeshire were aborted in 2004–05. [48664]

The Solicitor-General: CPS Cambridgeshire finalised 15,122 defendant cases in the magistrates courts in 2004–05. A conviction rate of 85.6 per cent. (against a national average of 80.8 per cent.) was achieved. The discontinuance rate in the magistrates court was 9.5 per cent. against a national rate of 12.5 per cent. The rate of unsuccessful outcomes, which includes discontinuances, cases dismissed after trial and other disposals, as a percentage of completed cases in the magistrates court was 14.4 per cent. (against a national percentage figure of 19.2 per cent.).

CPS Cambridgeshire finalised 1,259 defendant cases in the crown court. A conviction rate of 81.2 per cent. was achieved (against a national average of 75.8 per cent.). 9.9 per cent. of Crown court cases resulted in a judge ordered acquittal or discontinuance, compared with a national figure of 14.2 per cent. The rate of unsuccessful outcomes, which includes judge ordered acquittals, acquittals after trial and other disposals, as a percentage of completed cases in the Crown court was 18.8 per cent. (against a national percentage figure of 24.2 per cent.).

The combined unsuccessful outcomes rate for magistrates and Crown courts was 14.7 per cent. (against a national percentage figure of 19.6 per cent.).

DEFENCE

Active Service Prosecutions

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the cases since 1997 in which all proceedings are complete where (a) military and (b) civil prosecutions have been brought against UK service personnel in respect of actions carried out on active service; what the (i) verdict and (ii) sentence imposed was in each case; and how many cases against UK personnel involving prosecution for actions carried out on active service are underway. [48010]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 2 February 2006]: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will make a statement on the degree of liability for prosecution in respect of actions carried out by UK service personnel on active service when hostilities involving the United Kingdom (a) have and (b) have not been formally declared; [48011]

(2) to what extent and in what respects the applicability of the law on armed forces conflict is affected by whether the United Kingdom is combating (a) another country and (b) stateless insurgents and terrorists; [48008]

(3) by what means the chain of command in the UK armed forces protects service personnel on active service from prosecution arising from mistakes made in the course of combat; and whether such measures are affected by the existence or otherwise of a formal declaration of hostilities. [48007]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 2 February 2006]: The chain of command protects service personnel by ensuring that they are properly trained and equipped, understand their duty and are deployed appropriately. Members of HM armed forces are always subject to military law, which comprises the criminal law of England and Wales and specified disciplinary offences. Court-martial proceedings will only take place after a decision to prosecute by the relevant service prosecuting authority who acts independently and objectively, after consideration of the available evidence.

A formal declaration of war or hostilities is not required to bring the law of armed conflict into effect, and whether a situation of armed conflict exists will depend on the facts and circumstances.

Afghanistan

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements (a) are in place and (b) will be made in future for the embedding of journalists with United Kingdom armed forces in Afghanistan. [48771]

Mr. Ingram: There are currently no "embedded" journalists with UK armed forces in Afghanistan. As with other operational deployments, the Ministry of Defence will put in place appropriate arrangements to facilitate media access as outlined in 2MOD Working Arrangements With The Media For Use Throughout The Full Spectrum of Military Operations", more commonly known as "The Green Book". This access will range from dealing with journalists who have travelled independently to the area, to MOD-organised visits for news and non-news media.

These arrangements agreed between the MOD and representative media organisations, were put in place following the experience of the Falklands Campaign, and have recently been revised in full consultation with the media following the most recent experience in Iraq and elsewhere. The Green Book is available on the MOD website.

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/CorporatePublications/Reports/OtherPublications/GreenBook/TheGreenBook.htm

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the (a) Harmony Guidelines and (b) Department public service agreement target 4 related to separated service will be breached as a result of troop deployments to Afghanistan. [47419]

Mr. Ingram: Although it is likely that the United Kingdom's planned deployment to Afghanistan in 2006 will result in a breach of the Harmony Guidelines in some areas, overall we judge that the impact on readiness for future operations is manageable.

As the Ministry of Defence Public Service Agreement makes clear, the Department's ability to achieve Harmony Guidelines, including separated service assumptions, is dependent upon the level of operational activity the armed forces are asked to undertake, and must be taken together with other assessments to provide a comprehensive picture of the Department's performance.

Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) C-130 Hercules, (b) Tristar, (c) VC-10 and (d) C-17A, Globemaster aircraft British forces have; and how many of each are fit for purpose. [45164]

Mr. Ingram: The following table shows the number of C-130 Hercules (K and J variants), Tristar, VC10 and C-17A Globemaster aircraft that are planned to be in service with the RAF at the end of the present financial year (financial year 2005–06). Aircraft are deemed Fit For Purpose (FFP) if they are available for tasking within a 24 hour period. Aircraft are not available for tasking if they are undergoing scheduled maintenance, modification programmes or any other unforeseen rectification work that can arise on a day to day basis. The figures do not reflect the fact that an aircraft assessed as not FFP may be returned to the front line at very short notice to meet the operational need.

Aircraft type	Total fleet	Numbers of aircraft FFP (average to date financial year 2005–06)[1]
C-17AGlobemaster	4	3
C-130K Hercules	25	10
C-130J Hercules	25	13
Tristar	9	4
VC10	16	9

[1] Figures have been rounded to the nearest whole number.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average number of operational flying hours an RAF (a) C-130 Hercules, (b) Tristar, (c) VC-10 and (d) C-17A Globemaster aircraft was in each of the last 12 months. [45161]

Mr. Ingram: The following table is derived from information held centrally on the number of hours flown by the respective aircraft type divided by the monthly average of aircraft Fit For Purpose.

Hours per FFP aircraft—2005

	January	February	March	April	May	June
VC10	71	86	103	105	111	95
C130J&K	75	72	117	99	115	107
C17	191	162	211	192	163	261
Tristar	118	124	160	180	164	162

	July	August	September	October	November	December
VC10	102	114	116	122	119	72
C130J&K	103	99	88	84	96	114
C17	239	244	177	221	178	236
Tristar	196	137	155	155	118	102

Armed Forces (Family Relationships)

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps his Department has taken to help armed forces members strengthen their family relationships and avoid divorce; and if he will make a statement. [45166]

Mr. Touhig: The Ministry of Defence pursues a range of policies aimed at helping personnel achieve a better balance between their work and their personal lives, where this can be done without affecting operational effectiveness. Our long term strategies seek to reduce pressure by lengthening tour intervals, improving career development and, through our future basing strategy delivering improved family stability throughout consecutive tours. We also provide access to a wide range of welfare services, where service families can go for advice and support at all times. We maintain close links with mediation and support organisations such as RELATE to help ensure that additional specialist support is made available whenever required.

Citizens Juries

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions his Department consulted citizens' juries on departmental policies in the last five years; in how many of those consultations the recommendations of the citizens' jury differed from existing departmental policy; and on how many occasions departmental policy was changed to reflect the recommendations of the citizens' jury. [46244]

Mr. Touhig: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Correspondence

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 14 December 2005, Official Report, column 2038W, on departmental staff (relocation), when he will write to the hon. Member for Twickenham. [49159]

Mr. Touhig: I replied to the hon. Member on Thursday 2 February 2006 and placed a copy of the letter in the Library of the House.

Mr. Michael Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he will reply to the letter of 21 September 2005 from the hon. Member for Worcester, reference 04427/2005, concerning Mr. Robert Smith and military medals for action in the Yemen. [49229]

Mr. Touhig: As was explained in my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for the Armed Forces' letter of 20 August 2005 (reference: D/US of S/DT 35 51/05/A), although British Nationals were involved in military activities on behalf of the Royalist Government of Yemen in the mid-1960s, they were not acting as members of the British Army. Thus the Ministry of Defence was not responsible for the issue raised in Mr. Smith's latest letter. I wrote to the hon. Member on 4 February to explain in more detail the MOD's position regarding this case.

Defence Training

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will consider inviting the National Audit Office to oversee the bid evaluation process for the Defence Training Review Transformation Programme. [48726]

Mr. Touhig: The Defence Training Review (DTR) Programme already has a senior independent auditor assigned to oversee the evaluation process. I have no doubt, however, that the National Audit Office will keep a watching brief on the DTR Programme as part of its regular business.

Defensive Air Suite

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many C2 aircraft in the Defensive Air Suite were (a) operational and (b) unserviceable on 31 January. [49117]

Mr. Ingram: On 31 January 2006 two RAF Tristar C2 passenger aircraft were available for operations. A third aircraft was undergoing scheduled maintenance. All three aircraft are fitted with a defensive aid suite and flight deck armour.

Departmental Assets

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the items of his Department's property worth over £100 that have been reported as (a) lost and (b) broken in the last 12 months. [47686]

Mr. Touhig: The Ministry of Defence discloses losses, in accordance with Government Accounting 2000, Chapter 18, within its Annual Report and Accounts. A copy for 2004–05 has been placed in the Library of the House.

The Committee of Public Accounts has agreed a threshold of £100,000 for the detailed reporting of losses in 2004–05. All losses below this threshold are reported within the Annual Report and Accounts, but only as an aggregated number of cases and total value. The MOD only reports losses in exceptional cases during the financial year and, therefore, data are not yet available for FY 2005–06.

For the purpose of responding to this question, it has been assumed that the term property relates to equipment and stores.

Property which is lost is defined as a stores loss and is reported in the Annual Report and Accounts by the following categories:

B1—Loss arising from fraud, theft and arson.

B2—All other losses.

For 2004–05, there were a total of 504 B1 and 8,304 B2 stores loss cases, i.e. an overall total of 8,808 stores losses. Eight were above the £100,000 reporting threshold and are disclosed in detail in Note 29 to the Departmental Annual Report and Accounts 2004–05.

Detailed listings of stores lost below £100,000 are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Breakages are accounted for either as a stores loss written off, as above, or as incurred through normal wear and tear. The latter are recorded at unit level in accordance with stores accounting regulations, but there is no requirement for formal disclosure within the Annual Report and Accounts. Details of breakages through normal wear and tear are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Depression/Post-traumatic Stress Disorder

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what criteria are applied when assessing whether service personnel suffering from (a) clinical depression and (b) post-traumatic stress disorder should (i) continue to be employed on peace-time duties and (ii) be deployed on active service. [48027]

Mr. Touhig: All instances of service personnel who are diagnosed as suffering from a mental health condition are assessed on a case-by-case basis, with input from the appropriate health professionals, including a consultant psychiatrist where necessary. In making a decision as to their deployability, all relevant factors will be taken into account, including the severity of the symptoms, the location and duration of the deployment, and the nature of the duties to be carried out. As a result of this process the individual may be medically downgraded and this in turn may prevent them from deploying on a particular operation or carrying out their normal duties in the United Kingdom.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements are made to ensure that service personnel on deployments have access to the medication required to manage (a) clinical depression and (b) post-traumatic stress disorder. [48028]

Mr. Touhig: Where an individual is suffering from clinical depression which is being effectively controlled by long-term medication, it is their personal responsibility to ensure that they deploy with sufficient quantities to last for the duration of their deployment. There are systems in place in theatre to re-supply patients who require further supplies of medication. However, sufficient stocks may not necessarily be held in theatre, and it is therefore incumbent on the individual to notify the deployed medical staff of their requirements in sufficient time for further supplies to be obtained.

The treatment of post traumatic stress disorder is not primarily drugs-based. Non-pharmacological intervention is the mainstay of treatment for this condition, and personnel deployed on Operation TELIC have access to mental health professionals at Shaibah Logistics base.

Executive Agencies

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) targets, (b) advice and (c) guidance his Department has given to executive agencies that fall under the remit of his Department on the reorganisation of their administrative functions on a regional basis; and if he will make a statement. [41647]

Mr. Touhig: Agency key targets are set annually and agreed with the Department and Ministers, taking into account wider government objectives and priorities. The Department has set no specific targets for the executive agencies for reorganisation of their administrative functions on a regional basis. Where potential reorganisation is being considered, advice and guidance on regional aspects are provided in line with the Ministry of Defence's commitment under the Lyons Review.

Freedom of Information Act

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many requests under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 his Department received in the first year of its operation. [47736]

Mr. Touhig: The number of requests under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOI) received by the Ministry of Defence in the first three quarters of 2005 was:

	Number
Quarter 1	1,843
Quarter 2	1,039
Quarter 3	851

The Department for Constitutional Affairs is committed to publishing quarterly information about departmental performance under FOI, including the volume and outcomes of requests. The bulletin for the third quarter can be found on the DCA website at http://www.foi.gov.uk/statsjul-sep05.htm and in the Library of the House. Statistics for the fourth quarter and an annual report will be published in March.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's policy is on charging for information requested under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [47737]

Mr. Touhig: The Ministry of Defence operates in accordance with the Fees Regulations made under the Freedom of Information Act 2000, which stipulate that requests should be processed without charge unless the effort involved exceeds the appropriate limit of £600.

Requests whose actual or estimated costs exceed the appropriate limit are not normally processed and there is accordingly no reason to charge for information. In this circumstance the MOD will assist the applicant to focus the scope of the request to bring it within the £600 threshold.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been received by his Department in fees for the provision of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in its first year of operation. [47738]

Mr. Touhig: No fees were collected by the Ministry of Defence for providing information in response to requests for information in the first year of the Act's operation.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's policy is on the time taken to respond to requests for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [47739]

Mr. Touhig: The Ministry of Defence aims to reply to all requests for information promptly and not later than 20 working days following the receipt of the request unless more time is required to consider the application of a qualified exemption or unless more time is allowed under the provisions of Statutory Instrument 2004 No. 3364.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many requests for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 were refused by his Department in its first year of the Act's operation. [47740]

Mr. Touhig: The number of requests where information was either partially or fully withheld (and where it was granted in full) during the first three quarters of 2005 were:

	Quarter 1	Quarter 2	Quarter 3
Partially withheld	127	90	58
Fully withheld	172	96	97
Granted in full	1,146	643	506

The Department for Constitutional Affairs is committed to publishing quarterly information about departmental performance under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOI), including the volume and outcomes of requests. The bulletin for the third quarter can be found on the DCA website at http://www.foi.gov.uk/statsjul-sep05.htm and in the Library of the House. Statistics for the fourth quarter and an annual report will be published in March.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of requests for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 were met within 20 working days by his Department in the first year of the Act's operation. [47741]

Mr. Touhig: The percentage of requests for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOI) that were met within 20 working days by the Ministry of Defence during the first three quarters of 2005 were:

	Percentage
Quarter 1	71
Quarter 3	80

The Department for Constitutional Affairs is committed to publishing quarterly information about departmental performance under FOI, including the volume and outcomes of requests. The bulletin for the third quarter can be found on the DCA website at http://www.foi.gov.uk/statsjul-sep05.htm and in the Library of the House. Statistics for the fourth quarter and an annual report will be published in March.

Future Aircraft Carriers

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what safeguards will be put in place to ensure that there is no conflict of interest in the secondment of the Managing Director of VT Shipbuilding to the position of Chief Executive of the Alliance Management Team for the Future Aircraft Carrier project. [47766]

Mr. Ingram: The new Chief Executive of the Future Carrier (CVF) Alliance Management Team (AMT) will be seconded to the civil service for the period of his appointment and will be required to observe the general conditions of conduct applicable to civil servants. He will not be a member of the VT Board; his shares will be held in a trust; and he will require the Ministry of Defence's consent to take up any appointment, other than with his previous employer, within two years of the end of the secondment. Under the CVF governance arrangements, he will report to the Alliance Management Board, consisting of senior company representatives of each of the Alliance participants and chaired by the MOD.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on progress on the future aircraft carrier programme. [44208]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence on 14 December 2005, Official Report, column 148WS, which outlines the major steps forward taken in our plans for the future aircraft carriers (CVF).

Subsequently, we also announced, on 24 January, that we will be co-operating with France during the CVF demonstration phase to produce a common baseline design that both countries can further use to develop their own carriers. This will bring savings in design costs, without slowing the tempo of the project and offers the potential of savings on shared procurements. France will make a financial contribution in recognition of the investment UK has already made in the design (comprising £30 million now and £25 million in July with a further £45 million at the end of the demonstration phase if France decides to commit to manufacture) and will contribute one third of the demonstration phase costs of the common baseline design. France's role has been mutually agreed as one of influence rather than control, and as such they will not be able to direct changes to the design or programme.

Having taken these significant decisions, we are on course to provide the UK armed forces with the largest and most powerful warships ever constructed in the UK, and an expeditionary capability unparalleled outside of the US.

Gulf War Veterans

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Gulf war veterans diagnosed with multiple sclerosis have since developed symptoms of Parkinson's disease. [48862]

Mr. Touhig: Medical records of individuals who have left the services, including veterans of the 1990–91 Gulf conflict, are held by each service at individual central locations; however the Ministry of Defence does not hold records of illnesses arising since an individual has left the service. Medical records for those still serving are not normally held at a central location but at their unit medical centre. The information requested cannot therefore be provided.

Harmony Guidelines

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether it is possible to ascertain whether the Harmony Guidelines related to separated service have been breached on an individual basis for each service. [47422]

Mr. Ingram: All three services have procedures in place that monitor individual harmony and are able to report when the guidelines have been breached.

HELEN Laser

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the HELEN laser at Aldermaston; what its future purpose is; and if he will make a statement; [47819]

(2) what the (a) role and (b) functions are of the proposed new laser at AWE Aldermaston. [47821]

John Reid: In 2001 a review of the capability provided by the HELEN laser identified a requirement to replace it in order to attain, under laboratory conditions, previously inaccessible temperature and pressure regimes akin to those actually obtained in a nuclear weapon. This was deemed essential to underwrite the continued safety and reliability of the Trident nuclear warhead stockpile in the nuclear test ban era.

Accordingly, we shall be replacing HELEN—which has given 25 years of useful service—with the ORION laser, whose primary role will be to enable the safety and reliability of the Trident stockpile to be underwritten through the remainder of its service life. Until its planned decommissioning in 2008, HELEN will continue to be used for worthwhile experiments both in support of Trident and as a test bed for some of the technologies and equipment to be used on the ORION laser.

Helicopters

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average number of operational flying hours undertaken by an RAF (a) Chinook, (b) Merlin, (c) Sea King and (d) Puma helicopter was in each month in (i) 2004 and (ii) 2005. [45148]

Mr. Ingram: In answering the question I have assumed that the hon. Gentleman is referring to hours flown on operations. The total number of operational hours flown by aircraft type has been recorded by month since the beginning of financial year (FY) 2005–06. The monthly average[1] for a RAF Chinook, Merlin and Puma, for the period April to December 2005, is shown in the following table:

Average operational hours per individual aircraft type FY 2005–06

	Aircraft type
	RAF Chinook	RAF Merlin	RAF Puma
April 2005	0:00	58:41	28:42
May 2005	0:00	62:11	29:23
June 2005	0:00	72:51	31:06
July 2005	3:58	59:38	27:09
August 2005	27:42	54:30	31:24
September 2005	76:20	67:16	27:38
October 2005	20:49	115:12	25:36
November 2005	93:06	68:51	28:40
December 2005	33:10	38:25	23:50

Prior to April 2005, the hours flown on operations were recorded as an annual total per aircraft type. An average monthly total has been calculated[2] and is shown in the following table:

Aircraft type	Financial year 2004–05
RAF Chinook	56
RAF Merlin	10
RAF Puma	22

The Sea Kings operated by the RAF are dedicated to the UK Search and Rescue capability and have, therefore, not been included in the figures provided.

[1] This has been calculated by dividing the monthly operational flying hours by the number of aircraft deployed on operations.

[2] The calculation used is: total annual operational flying hours divided by 12 giving an average monthly figure which is then divided by the monthly average number of aircraft type deployed on operations.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 11 January 2006, Official Report, column 664W, on helicopters, what the current operational status is of each of the Merlin helicopters operated by each of the services. [45296]

Mr. Ingram: On 23 January 2006, of the 24 Merlin helicopters in the RN operational Fleet, 16 were serviceable. Of the 15 aircraft in the RAF's operational Fleet, five were serviceable.

The number of available RAF Merlin helicopters is lower than usual and reflects post-Operation TELIC recovery, pre-Operation TELIC preparation and an industry programme to bring the RAF Merlin helicopters up to the baseline specification.

It is not Ministry of Defence policy to have all its aircraft available at the front line during peacetime. Rather the Department's maintenance and support policies are designed to ensure that the maximum number of aircraft can be made available at the highest readiness state, should the operational need arise.

HMS Sussex

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements he has entered into with the US company Odyssey regarding the salvage of HMS Sussex; and if he will make a statement. [48094]

Mr. Touhig: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Caplin), on 2 February 2005, Official Report, column 898W.

Iraq

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the net additional cost of operations in Iraq expressed as a percentage of (a) the total defence budget and (b) total government spending was in each year since 2002–03. [48024]

John Reid: The costs of specific conflict prevention activities (including security and peace-building tasks) are voted for separately by Parliament, through either the HM Treasury Reserve or the Conflict Prevention Pools. As such, these funds do not form part of the Defence budget and cannot be expressed as a percentage of it.

The following table sets out the MOD budget, cost of operations in Iraq, and Government's Total Managed Expenditure for the three years 2002–03 to 2004–05.

Financial year	MOD budget (£ billion)	Cost of operations in Iraq (£ billion)	Government total managed expenditure (£ billion)	Cost of operations in Iraq as percentage of Government TME
2002–03	29.3	0.847	417.970	0.20
2003–04	30.9	1.311	455.233	0.29
2004–05	29.7	0.910	487.300	0.19

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what mental health services are available to troops serving in Iraq. [48767]

Mr. Ingram: UK troops in Iraq are supported by a mental health team based at Shaibah Logistics base which is currently staffed by two community psychiatric nurses.

In addition, there is a programme of visits to theatre by a consultant psychiatrist. These are undertaken primarily for clinical governance purposes, but the visiting consultant will also provide advice on particular patients as required.

If further advice or treatment is required that cannot be provided in theatre, the patient will be aero medically evacuated out of Iraq for treatment in the UK or at UK defence community mental health centres in Cyprus, Germany and Gibraltar.

Iraq/Afghanistan

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 19 December 2005, Official Report, column 2342W, on Iraq/Afghanistan, what recent discussions he has had with the central criminal court of Iraq on the incident at Al Majarr Al Kabir on 24 June 2003. [46681]

Mr. Ingram: We are continuing to offer all possible support to help bring the perpetrators to justice. A British liaison officer, stationed in Baghdad, provides assistance to the Central Criminal Court of Iraq as required. Progress is being made, but as this is an ongoing criminal investigation and outside British jurisdiction, it would not be appropriate to comment further.

Nimrod Project

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the progress of the bid made in July 2005 by BAE Systems for the next phase of the Nimrod project; and when a decision on the bid is likely to be made. [46902]

Mr. Ingram: The bid is under review by the MOD approving authorities. A production decision will be taken as soon as possible once we are in a position to take it.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the effect on the work force employed at Woodford of the delay in a decision on the bid for the next phase of the Nimrod project. [46903]

Mr. Ingram: While the long term future of the Woodford site is a matter for BAE Systems, the MOD has funded further low risk production work on the Nimrod programme until the middle of this year. This will preserve the viability of the MRA4 project and the expertise of the work force until a decision is taken on full production.

Nuclear Deterrent

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the basis was for the decision to choose the Atomic Weapons Establishment to provide the warheads for the UK's nuclear deterrent; and if he will make a statement. [47944]

John Reid: The Atomic Weapons Establishment is the sole repository for the UK's nuclear deterrent capability. The Government-owned facilities at Aldermaston and Burghfield were built for that purpose and remain a unique and essential national asset.

Pension Contributions

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost was of pension contributions incurred by (a) his Department, (b) each (i) non-departmental public body, (ii) executive agency and (iii) other public body for which he is responsible in (A) Scotland, (B) Wales, (C) each of the English regions and (D) Northern Ireland in each of the last three financial years; and what the planned expenditure is for 2005–06. [39972]

Mr. Touhig: Pension contributions are disclosed at Note 2 within the published Departmental Resource Accounts. Copies of the Annual Report and Accounts for 2002–03 to 2004–05 have been placed in the Library of the House. The table details the total pension contributions incurred by the Department, for all personnel (military and civilian) for the years requested.

	Pension costs (£ million)
2002–03	1,357.7
2004–05	1,486.8

The self accounting non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) fall outside the Departmental Boundary of the Departmental Resource Accounts. Pension contributions for employees of these organisations are disclosed as a Note to their published accounts. Copies of the published accounts have been placed in the Library.

The following table details the pension contribution incurred by NDPBs for the years requested.

The Defence Executive Agencies established as Trading Funds fall outside the Departmental Boundary of the Departmental Resource Accounts. Pension contributions for employees of these organisations are disclosed as a Note to their published accounts. Copies of the published accounts have been placed in the Library.

2004–05	3.2	7.9	13.9	10.5	6.0

The Oil and Pipeline Agency is a Public Corporation sponsored by the Department, which falls outside the Departmental Boundary of the Departmental Resource Accounts. Pension contributions for employees of this organisation are disclosed as a Note to the published accounts. Copies of the published accounts have been placed in the Library.

The following table details the pension contribution incurred by the Oil & Pipeline Agency for the years requested.

	Pension contribution (£)
2002–03	118

For 2005–06, employers' contributions for the majority of civilians are payable to the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (PCSPS) at one of four rates in the ranges 16.2 to 24.6 per cent. of pensionable pay, based on salary bands. The Scheme Actuary reviews employer contributions every four years following a full scheme valuation; last carried out as at 31 March 2003. The contribution rates reflect the cost of benefits as they accrue (net of employee contributions), not the costs as they are actually incurred, and reflect past experience of the scheme. Contributions are also payable to Teachers' Superannuation Scheme, NHS Superannuation Scheme and Defined Benefit Schemes for the Royal Navy Museum (9 per cent.) and the Royal Navy Submarine Museum (12.5 per cent.).

For Service personnel, employers' contributions are made to the Armed Forces Pension Scheme (AFPS) based on rates determined by the Government Actuary. The applicable rates for 2005–06 are 33.8 per cent. of pensionable pay for officers and 18.2 per cent. for other ranks.

The Department does not collect information on a regional basis and any analysis could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

QinetiQ

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the extra costs of extending the offer of some QinetiQ shares to the public. [43825]

John Reid: Members of the public may already apply for shares, as is the case in any institutional offer. They can do so through a private client stockbroker. Members of the public will also be able to buy shares in QinetiQ once trading has commenced.

The extra costs of a retail offer based on previous Government flotations, were estimated to be between £5 million (administrative costs only) and £23 million (including associated marketing and retail incentives). Based on advice from our financial advisers, it is the Government's view that a retail offer for QinetiQ would not offer value for money for the taxpayer.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to place restrictions on QinetiQ's acceptance of contracts from foreign governments following its flotation. [44156]

John Reid: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Rutland and Melton (Mr. Duncan) on 24 January 2006, Official Report, column 1982W.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will allow private investors to participate in the flotation of QinetiQ. [46897]

John Reid: Yes. As is the case in any institutional offer, members of the public may apply for shares through a private client stockbroker, although there will be no allocation of shares reserved for that purpose. Members of the public will also be able to buy shares in QinetiQ once trading has commenced.

RAF C130 Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) highest and (b) lowest monitored serviceability readiness rates for RAF C130 aircraft of each type have been in the last three years. [45144]

Mr. Ingram: The term 'Serviceability readiness rate' is not a term used by the RAF. The following table shows, in each calendar year[1], the highest and lowest monthly numbers of RAF C130 aircraft fit for purpose together with total fleet numbers[2]. Aircraft are deemed fit for purpose if they are available for tasking within a 24 hour period. Aircraft are not available for tasking if they are undergoing scheduled maintenance, modification programmes or any other unforeseen rectification work that can arise on a day to day basis. The figures do not reflect the fact that an aircraft assessed as not fit for purpose may be returned to the front line at very short notice to meet the operational need.

[1] Figures are not available for January to June 2003.

[2] Total fleet numbers are those aircraft that are planned to be in service with the RAF at the end of FY 2003/04, 2004/05 and 2005/06 respectively.

Fit for purpose aircraft numbers

	2003		2004		2005
	Highest	Lowest	Highest	Lowest	Highest	Lowest
Hercules C-130K	12	8	13	8	11	8
Total Fleet	26	26	25
Hercules C130J	14	11	15	11	16	11

Regulatory Reform Orders

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many regulatory reform orders his Department has laid before Parliament in each of the last five calendar years. [46804]

Mr. Touhig: None.

Rest and Relaxation

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will consider changing the start and finish dates of the rest and relaxation periods of troops from the date on which they leave and arrive in theatre to the date that they arrive in and leave the United Kingdom. [49120]

Mr. Ingram: Rest and Recuperation (R and R) provides service personnel, on mentally and challenging deployments, a respite from a stressful operational environment in order to sustain their operational effectiveness. R and R should not, therefore, be considered as compensation for separation from family and friends. Post Operational Leave (POL) exists to meet this requirement (the entitlement to POL does begin on the day that service personnel leave their permanent duty station). Depending on the exigencies of service, the operational chain of command will authorise the time, location and duration of any period of R and R, basing their decisions on published guidelines. We have recently carried out a review of all leave and absence types in the light of the advent of the new tri-service joint personnel administration (JPA) system, which will roll out on a single-service basis throughout 2006. It was not considered appropriate for the qualifying period of deployment for R and R to begin before personnel arrive in theatre.

Royal Air Force

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) pilots, (b) fighter aircraft, (c) transport aircraft and (d) helicopters are (i) available to and (ii) deployable by the Royal Air Force; and what the equivalent numbers were in 2000. [42629]

Mr. Ingram: Table A gives the fast jet, transport and rotary aircraft operating Fleets available to the RAF for the purposes of deployment, training and exercises in 2005 and 2000. The figures include aircraft piloted by Royal Navy personnel as part of Joint Force Harrier, which for resource purposes falls within the RAF. The figures exclude rotary aircraft piloted by RAF personnel, but which are part of Joint Helicopter Command, which for resource purposes fall outside the RAF.

The figures do not include aircraft in the sustainment Fleet, which comprises aircraft necessary to sustain the operating fleet to the out-of-service date of the aircraft type and aircraft in deep maintenance.

Table A: In-service

Aircraft type	2000	2005
Fast Jet	328	283
Transport	85	85
Rotary	19	23

Although all of the aircraft in the operating fleet are potentially 'deployable', Table B gives the maximum number of 'force elements' which would have been deployed to meet the most demanding scenarios (short of full scale war) against which we planned in 2000 and 2005. A force element represents a fully capable aircraft available for immediate operational tasking. The actual number of aircraft that would be deployed at any one time would, however, be greater than the figures in Table B in order to provide a margin to take into account reliability and serviceability requirements and operational factors.

Table B: Deployable force elements

Aircraft type	2000	2005
Fast Jet	107	80
Transport	85	83
Rotary	19	17

The reduction in the number of fast jet force elements in Table B is due to the reassessment of potential scenarios and tasking which was set out in The Command Paper "Delivering Security in a Changing World: Future Capabilities", published in July 2004. This paper set out the changes necessary to both structure and capabilities to ensure that our armed forces are best placed to meet the principal security challenges of the future: international terrorism, the proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction, and weak and failing states.

On 1 December 2005 there were 2,130 trained pilots in the RAF. On 1 December 2000 there were 2,180 trained pilots. Subject to their achieving the required medical standards all RAF personnel are potentially deployable.

Royal Ordnance Chorley

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department revalidated outsourced components previously provided by Royal Ordnance Chorley. [43616]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 18 January 2006]: Yes.

Service Widows/Widowers

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what pension the (a) widow and (b) widower of a former member of HM armed service personnel is entitled to if they did not (i) work or (ii) pay national insurance contributions. [47983]

Mr. Touhig: I assume that the hon. Member is referring to pension entitlements of the widow or widower in their own right, rather than in relation to the spouse's service in the armed forces. The widow or widower of a former member of the armed forces who has not worked or paid national insurance contributions is entitled to exactly the same pension benefits as a widow or widower with no armed forces connection. The benefits are based on the late spouse's national insurance contribution record.

Sonic Boom Technology

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether any naval vessels equipped with underwater sonic boom radar technology were operating in the vicinity of the Thames (a) estuary or (b) mouth on (i) 19 and (ii) 20 January; and what assessment he has made of the effect of sonic boom technology on marine wildlife. [46249]

Mr. Ingram: No Royal Navy vessels were using military sonar in the vicinity of the Thames estuary or the mouth of the Thames on either 19 or 20 of January.

The Ministry of Defence (MOD) takes its responsibilities for the environment very seriously. However, there continues to be a vital requirement for the United Kingdom to maintain a maritime capability to protect crucial lines of communication, to participate in operational activities and to be able to address potential mine and submarine threats, now and in the future. To ensure that our military capabilities in these areas are fully maintained, it is imperative that we continue to use active sonar, both now and in the foreseeable future.

Furthermore, sonar is essential to protect UK waters and ensure safe navigation. That said, this certainly does not imply that our sonar activities are undertaken without the fullest possible respect for the environment.

Environmental impact assessments (EIAs) are undertaken for a wide range of our activities in the marine environment, including sonar. Such EIAs cover the marine habitat of the operating area concerned and the species likely to be encountered. The EIAs are used to better tailor the activity and ensure that potentially damaging effects are identified during the planning stage of the exercise and reduced their impact to an absolute minimum. With the same aim in view, we have also issued instructions to all our ships' Commanding Officers for the operational use of sonar in the marine environment. This guidance employs the precautionary principle of 'Plan, Look, Listen and Act'.

While we believe that our operating procedures reflect the best scientific advice and provide a sustainable balance between the need for effective military training and the need to protect our marine environment, we are certainly not complacent. The MOD continues to be closely involved in research, in the UK, with the US and NATO authorities, and in other international forums into the possible effects of sonar noise on marine life. Should any new research provide evidence of a link between our method of using sonar and a detrimental effect on marine life, we would, of course, consider what further mitigation measures might be possible. In the meantime, the current measures reflect the best scientific advice available.

Statutory Instruments

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the statutory instruments introduced by his Department since 6 May 2005. [46197]

Mr. Touhig: The Ministry of Defence has introduced the following statutory instruments since 6 May 2005.

2005 1388 Unfitness to Stand Trial and Insanity (Royal Air Force) Regulations

2005 1389 Unfitness to Stand Trial and Insanity (Royal Navy) Regulations

Territorial Army

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the strength is of the territorial army in (a) England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales, (d) Lancashire and (e) Chorley; and how many posts are vacant. [38266]

Mr. Touhig: The information is not held centrally in the format requested. Official strength figures for the Territorial Army (TA) are collated for the United Kingdom and not its constituent nations, counties or towns. As at 1 December 2005, the total strength of the TA was 37,430 against an establishment of 41,610.

Notes:
This figure includes 1,180 mobilized personnel and 5,750 members of the Officer Training Corps but excludes 1,070 Non Regular Permanent Staff. Full Time Reserve Service personnel are also excluded
The figures have been rounded to the nearest 10

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in which units of the Territorial Army the 12,000 fit and deployable personnel are deployed. [43689]

Mr. Touhig: The 13,450 personnel available to be deployed as at 1 January 2006, are from across all units of the Territorial Army.

This figure excludes those who have not completed their mandatory training, those who are in the process of being discharged; all currently mobilized and deployed personnel, those who have exceeded the Ministry of Defence limits[1] on mobilized service of a total of 12 months in every 60; and all members of the University Officer Training Corps.

[1] statutory limits on mobilized service (Section 54 of the Reserve Forces Act 1996) limits mobilization to a total of 12 months in every 36

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many (a) drivers and (b) clergy in the Territorial Army have been mobilised more than once in the last five years; [46449]

(2) how many (a) administrative, (b) ammunition, (c) construction, (d) catering, (e) petroleum, (f) policing, (g) medical, (h) logistical, (i) legal, (j) linguistic and (k) electrical engineering specialists in the Territorial Army have been mobilised more than once in the last five years. [46471]

Mr. Touhig: The information requested is contained in the table below. Figures include individuals who may have reported for mobilization but subsequently did not mobilize for medical or other reasons. Information on individuals in this category is not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Specialist area	Number of personnel
Drivers	145
Clergy	2
Administrative	18
Construction	1
Catering	0
Petroleum	1
Policing	5
Medical	788
Logistical	276
Legal	0
Linguistic	0
Electrical Engineering	3

Unexploded Ordnance

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much unexploded ordnance discovered was (a) exploded and (b) defused in each of the last 20 years. [48243]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 2 February 2006]: This information is not held.

Warrior Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for the use of Warrior Armoured Fighting Vehicles stationed with 4 Armoured Brigade after redeployment of that unit from Germany to Catterick in 2008–09. [47971]

Mr. Ingram: 4th Armoured Brigade becomes 4th Mechanised Brigade during 2006 and will redeploy to Catterick in 2008–09, retaining a single Warrior Battalion. As the hon. Member will be aware, a Mechanised Brigade contains one Armoured Infantry Battalion equipped with Warrior.

In preparation for its re-roling to a Mechanised Brigade, 4th Armoured Brigade has already re-roled its second Armoured Infantry Battalion. The surplus equipment from this re-role will be reinvested back into other elements of the Army to increase capability across the force structure.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Broadcast/Print Media Analysis

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on her Department's policy on the use of broadcast and print media analysis. [45996]

James Purnell: We are undertaking our first evaluation of the effectiveness of our media relations at present. It is a useful tool, which allows us to monitor how effectively we are communicating departmental policies with the objective of ensuring value for money.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether her Department has (a) undertaken and (b) commissioned research into the presence and reporting in the (i) broadcast and (ii) print media of hon. Members other than Ministers of her Department since 5 May 2005. [46066]

James Purnell: The Department has not undertaken or commissioned any research of this nature.

Casinos

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many local authorities have indicated to the Casino Advisory Panel that they are interested in a (a) regional casino, (b) large casino, (c) small casino and (d) a combination of these types of casino. [47949]

Mr. Caborn: The Casino Advisory Panel wrote to all local authorities in England, Scotland and Wales in November 2005, inviting them to give a provisional indication of their likely interest in securing the right to issue one of the 17 new casinos premises licences permitted by the Gambling Act 2005. The information requested is set out in the following table, and includes all responses received by the panel up to 11 January 2006.

Type of casino	Number of expressions of interest
Regional[1]	46
Large	7
Small	8
Mixture of large and small	5
One of the above (not specified)	9
Total	75

[1] Where a local authority has not indicated clearly which type of casino it is interested in, or has indicated that it is interested in a mixture of casinos including a regional casino, the panel has included the authority in the regional casino premises licence total.

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the local authorities which have informed the Casino Advisory Panel that they wish to be considered for a regional casino. [47951]

Mr. Caborn: The following local authorities have expressed an interest in securing the right to issue the one regional casino premises permitted under the Gambling Act 2005: Birmingham; Blackpool; Brent; Canterbury; Cardiff; Chesterfield; Coventry; Glasgow; Great Yarmouth; Greenwich; Havering; Hull; Ipswich; Leeds; Luton; Maidstone; Manchester; Middlesbrough; Newcastle; Renfrewshire; Sheffield; Solihull; Southampton; Southend-on-Sea; Sunderland; Wakefield; West Dunbartonshire.

The following local authorities have either not indicated clearly which type of casino they are interested in, or have indicated that they are interested in a mixture of new casinos including a regional casino. For the purposes of its scoping exercise, the Casino Advisory Panel has included these authorities in the regional casino premises licence total: Bedford; Bolsover; Bury; Cannock Chase; Dumfries and Galloway; East Lindsey; Havant; Hertsmere; Leicester; Mansfield; North Lanarkshire; North Somerset; Restormel; Salford; Scarborough; Sevenoaks; South Lanarkshire; Stevenage; Tewkesbury.

Chamber Music

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what grants of public money have been made available to chamber music groups in each of the last three years; and how much was granted for the purpose of establishing (a) trios, (b) quartets and (c) quintets. [47734]

Mr. Lammy: Government funding for chamber music is primarily channelled through Arts Council England. Over the last three years, this funding has been in excess of £1.75 million per year and has supported the development, touring and promotion of chamber music throughout England. It is not possible to provide a breakdown of this figure for trios, quartets and quintets.

Cultural Goods (Security)

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will seek to legislate to guarantee the security of national cultural goods on loan from other countries; and if she will make a statement. [48920]

Mr. Lammy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 1 February 2006, Official Report, column 543W.

Database Rights

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what progress has been made in the implementation of the European Court of Justice ruling on database rights in relation to horse racing; [48535]

(2) what assessment she has made of the likely effects on football of the European Court of Justice ruling on database rights. [48536]

Mr. Caborn: Following the EJC ruling on database rights the British Horseracing Board asked Lord Donoughue to report on alternative funding mechanisms for horseracing. Lord Donoughue reported in December 2005 and we are now consulting the industry on his findings.

The professional football leagues report that the ECJ ruling will cost them in excess of £6 million from lost income. The Government are working with the leagues to help them identify sources of replacement funding.

Departmental Assets

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the items of departmental property worth over £100 that have been reported as (a) lost and (b) broken in the last 12 months. [47687]

Mr. Lammy: In the last 12 months the departmental property items reported lost or broken, valued at over £100 were:

(a) Lost items—one PC and one mobile phone

(b) Broken items—two Blackberry devices

Digital Television

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the Government have spent on promoting the take-up of digital television. [44047]

James Purnell [holding answer 20 January 2006]: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport have spent £170,000 in 2004–05 on the promotion of digital switchover. In 2005–06 the total budget will be £320,000.

Disabled Swimmers (London)

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what facilities are being developed to encourage disabled swimmers in London. [48503]

Mr. Caborn: British Swimming (ASA in England) is one of the leading national governing bodies in terms of inclusion and it is encouraging and supporting participation by disabled people at all levels of the sport. They have a disability section with dedicated staff.

ASA is working with pool operators to encourage more people with a disability to swim through the Everyday Swim campaign, funded by Sport England.

ASA is re-launching its "Swim 21" club accreditation scheme in April 2006 with the aim of encouraging its mainstream and disability sections to work together for the benefit of all swimmers. They are also about to enter into a 'service level agreement' with the English Federation of Disability Sport (EFDS) regarding the promotion and development of opportunities for disabled swimmers.

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the 50 metre public swimming pools within London which have facilities for the disabled. [48506]

Mr. Caborn: There are currently two 50 metre swimming pools in London, one at Crystal Palace and one in the London borough of Ealing. A further three 50 metre pools are proposed for London, including one in the London borough of Hillingdon and two at the new Aquatic Centre in Stratford.

The Disability Discrimination Act 1995 (DDA) requires that all service providers must take reasonable measures to remove, alter or provide a reasonable means of avoiding physical barriers to accessing and using their premises. In August 2005 I wrote to all local authorities reminding them of their responsibilities under the DDA in the context of leisure and tourism facilities.

Early Retirement

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many departmental employees have took retirement due to ill health in each of the past five years for which figures are available. [46750]

Mr. Lammy: During the past five years there have been less than five ill health retirements in any one year in the Department for Culture Media and Sport, and therefore figures cannot be released on the grounds of confidentiality.

Engagements

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on how many occasions since 2001 the Sports Minister has been a guest at a horse race meeting in the UK; who hosted the Minister on each occasion; and what hospitality he received. [47818]

Mr. Caborn [holding answer 2 February 2006]: As the Minister for Sport I have been a guest at horserace meetings on 11 occasions since 2001 (as detailed in the table). Hospitality has been in the form of access to the racecourse, the use of private box facilities, lunch and refreshments.

Date of meeting	Racecourse	Hospitality provided by
15 September 2001	Doncaster	Ladbrokes
14 March 2002	Cheltenham	The Horserace Totalisator Board
5 April 2003	Aintree	The racecourse management
10 July 2003	Newmarket	The racecourse management
26 July 2003	Ascot	The racecourse management
20 August 2003	York	The Horserace Totalisator Board
16 March 2004	Cheltenham	Ladbrokes
3 April 2004	Aintree	The racecourse management
18 August 2004	York	The Horserace Totalisator Board (Tote)
17 March 2005	Cheltenham	Ladbrokes
30 November 2005	Plumpton	British Horseracing Board

English National Opera

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she expects English National Opera's accounts for 2005–06 to be published. [47835]

Mr. Lammy: I understand that English National Opera must register its audited accounts for the year-end March 2006 with Companies House by 31 January 2007.

Folk Dance and Song

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will promote English folk dance and song; and if she will make a statement. [48859]

Mr. Lammy: Government support for English folk dance and song is primarily channelled through Arts Council England, which funds a number of organisations who promote and develop these art forms.

Furthermore Sport England sponsors the English Folk Dance and Song Society to promote and educate young people in schools about the English folk tradition.

Free Television Licence (Coventry South)

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many pensioners over 75 years in Coventry, South are in receipt of a free television licence. [47621]

James Purnell: TV Licensing, who administer free television licences for people aged 75 or over as agents for the BBC, are not able to provide geographical breakdowns of the number of free licences issued. However, the number of households with at least one person aged 75 or over claiming the winter fuel payment in the Coventry, South constituency in 2004-05 was 5,740, according to Department for Work and Pensions records.

Gambling

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what regulations apply to fixed odds betting terminals (FOBTs) in betting shops; and what plans the Government have for (FOBTs); [48865]

(2) what guidance she has issued on permitted locations for fixed odds betting terminals under the (a) Gambling Act 2005 and (b) Horserace Betting and Olympic Lottery Act 2004. [48866]

Mr. Caborn: Fixed odds betting terminals (FOBTs) are regulated by a code of practice agreed by the Association of British Bookmakers, DCMS and the then Gaming Board of Great Britain (now the Gambling Commission).

Under the provisions of the Gambling Act 2005 (expected to come into force in late 2007), FOBTs will be categorised as B2 gaming machines and regulated accordingly.

There are no provisions in the Horserace Betting and Olympic Lottery Act 2004 relating to FOBTs.

Licensed Opening Hours

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what guidance she has issued to local authorities on whether the extension of a licensed premises' opening hours, without any increase in the licensed premises area or capacity, would count as a material variation for the purposes of a cumulative impact special policy. [47219]

James Purnell: An extension of the hours during which alcohol can be sold might or might not be a material variation, depending upon its effect on the cumulative impact on the licensing objectives being experienced in the area of the special policy.

It is for the local licensing authority, in the first instance, to judge if an application to vary is "material", and, if a decision is subject to legal challenge, for the courts to then rule definitively.

Licensing Act

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will grant an exception from the requirements of the Licensing Act 2003 in relation to an application for a temporary events licence by small musical or dramatic groups performing for charity; and if she will make a statement. [46860]

James Purnell: The definition of regulated entertainment, and exemptions to it, are set out in schedule 1 of the Licensing Act 2003.

We currently have no plans to introduce any further exemptions. The fact that an event is being held for charity does not make it inherently less of a risk to the licensing objectives. Exemptions for charitable events were debated at length during the passage of the Licensing Bill. The temporary event notice regime is very light touch in order to reflect the reduced risk at such small, time limited events and requires no more than a temporary event notice to be submitted to the licensing authority and the police at least 10 working days before the event is due to take place. The fee for giving a notice is set at £21, a level which is sufficient to recover the costs of the regime to licensing authorities.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 18 October 2005, Official Report, column 1008W, on the Licensing Act 2003, to the right hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May), what definition her Department uses of the term material variation. [47043]

James Purnell: Paragraph 3.19 of the guidance issued under section 182 of the Licensing Act 2003 refers to, but does not further define, the words "material variations". In that context, a material variation is one which is material to the cumulative impact on the licensing objectives being experienced in the area of the special policy. It is for the licensing authority, in the first instance, to judge if an application to vary is "material", and, if a decision is subject to legal challenge, for the courts to rule definitively.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many establishments have applied for extended opening hours under provisions of the Licensing Act 2003 in (a) England, (b) West Yorkshire and (c) Huddersfield. [48606]

James Purnell: This information is not held centrally.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many premises licensed to serve alcohol have been granted 24 hour licences; and in what local authority areas they are located. [48607]

James Purnell: Based on a DCMS telephone survey of licensing authorities, we estimate that around 1,000 licences have been granted permitting the sale of alcohol for 24 hours. Of these, approximately 330 have been for pubs and nightclubs, approximately 360 for supermarkets, and approximately 130 for off-licences and convenience stores. Information on the number of 24 hour licences held in each licensing authority area is not currently held centrally.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment her Department has made of the change in the levels of (a) antisocial and (b) violent behaviour following the implementation of the Licensing Act 2003. [48608]

James Purnell: It is too early to draw firm conclusions about the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 on the level of antisocial and violent behaviour.

The Government will continue to monitor the impact of the new legislation closely, including a programme of evaluation being conducted by the Home Office into the impact of the licensing reforms on crime and disorder.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the effects of the Licensing Act 2003 on levels of crime and disorder in Tamworth. [48659]

James Purnell: It is too early to draw firm conclusions about the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 on the level of crime and disorder, either across the country or in any one area.

The Government will continue to monitor the impact of the new legislation closely, including a programme of evaluation being conducted by the Home Office into the impact of the licensing reforms on crime and disorder

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what research the Government have (a) conducted and (b) commissioned on the effect on noise of the Licensing Act 2003. [47886]

James Purnell: A report entitled 'Implications for noise disturbance arising from liberalisation of Licensing Laws' was produced for the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs by MCM Research Ltd. and published in October 2003.

The principal aim of the study was to assess the potential impacts of the reform of the licensing laws on noise disturbance related, directly or indirectly, to the operation of licensed premises. The Report is accessible on: www.defra.gov.uk/environment/noise/research/mcm/index.htm

It is too early to assess the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 on noise, and so the Government have not conducted or commissioned any formal research. However, any issues around noise are likely to emerge from the Scrutiny Council process. We are working closely with a sample of local authorities to monitor delivery of the 2003 Act and assess the extent to which strategic aims are being achieved. This in turn is part of a wider monitoring and evaluation exercise to assess the practical implementation of the Act.

London Olympics

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what assessment she made of the likely effects of the European Court of Justice ruling on database rights on the governance of betting at the London 2012 Olympics; [48537]

(2) how the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games plans to implement the commitments given to the International Olympic Committee on betting in the Host City Contract for the 2012 Olympics. [48538]

Mr. Caborn: The European Court of Justice (ECJ) ruling on database rights will not affect the Government's plans for the governance of betting on the London 2012 Olympics.

The London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games is aware of its commitments under the Host City Contract and has discussed this with Government. We have stated that we do not intend to legislate on this issue. The onus must remain on governing bodies and the organisers of sporting events to protect the integrity of their own events. From September 2007, all betting operators in Great Britain will be regulated by the Gambling Commission, a powerful new regulator with robust powers of investigation and prosecution. The Commission will work closely with sporting and Olympic authorities to minimise potential threats to the integrity of Olympic events.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will place in the Library a copy of the Olympic Tourism Charter announced by the Prime Minister on 15 November 2005; and if she will make a statement. [48586]

James Purnell: I am arranging for copies of the Tourism 2012 Charter to be placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The Charter outlines the challenges and opportunities of hosting the 2012 Olympic Games and Paralympic Games for the tourism sector across Britain, and sets out some of the key areas in which the Government and its partners bodies will work to prepare for the Games and ensure that they leave a lasting legacy for the visitor economy. My Department will, in partnership with VisitBritain and Visit London, shortly begin a wide consultation of the tourism sector, which will inform the Tourism 2012 Strategy before the end of 2006.

Lyons Inquiry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether her Department has sent a written submission to the Lyons Inquiry on local government finance. [47890]

Mr. Lammy: The Lyons Inquiry is independent of the Government. Sir Michael Lyons will decide what to publish when he makes available his final report.

National Lottery

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which (a) village halls and (b) community centres in the Uxbridge constituency have received lottery funding since 1997. [48515]

Mr. Caborn: There is no definition on the lottery awards database of village halls or community centres. Buildings with shared community use have benefited thanks to lottery money awarded to the following recipients:

Fountains Mill Youth Centre;

The Uxbridge Community Centre;

Ickenham Village Hall Association Ltd.;

London Borough of Hillingdon (which went to Bishop Ramsey Secondary School; Douay Martyrs School) and St. Mary's, Northolt.

Punch and Judy Shows

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations she has received from professors of Punch and Judy shows on the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 on such shows. [47822]

James Purnell [holding answer 2 February 2006]: We have recently received a number of representations about the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 on Punch and Judy shows, including those from the hon. Member, and we have previously considered representations from Equity on this issue.

School Sport (Funding)

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much of the £750 million pledged for school sport at the 2000 Labour Party Conference has been (a) committed, (b) spent and (c) allocated to the Football Foundation. [48534]

Mr. Caborn: The New Opportunities for PE and Sport (NOPES) funding is now fully committed to over 2000 projects.

The Football Foundation's NOPES allocation totalled £30 million.

£250.7 million has been drawn down by local education authorities to date.

Smoking (Public Places)

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what contribution her Department has made to the development of policy on smoking in public places to represent the interests of the (a) licensed trade and (b) tourism industry; [49372]

(2) what representations she has received from the tourism and hospitality industries regarding policy on smoking in public places. [49373]

James Purnell: My Department has remained in close touch with the tourism and hospitality industries on this issue, before and following the publication of the Department of Health's White Paper, "Choosing Health", in November 2004. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State met representatives of the hospitality industry twice in 2004 to discuss the industry's response to the Government's proposals for restricting smoking in public places. I have, since May 2005, discussed the issue on a number of occasions with representatives of the tourism and hospitality industries. These included the British Hospitality Association, the Association of Licensed Multiple Retailers, and the Tourism Alliance.

Officials in my Department have worked closely with the Department of Health throughout to inform the Government's proposals, and to ensure that the interests of the tourism and hospitality industries have been fully considered. This has included the provision of factual information on these industries, and of advice on definitional issues arising from the Licensing Act 2003.

Swimming Pools

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many public swimming pools there were in each London borough in (a) 1997 and (b) 2005; and if she will list those that have facilities for the disabled. [48502]

Mr. Caborn: The total number of swimming pools in each of the London boroughs, in 1997 and 2005 together with the numbers with disabled access is as follows.

The Disability Discrimination Act 1995 (DDA) requires that all service providers must take reasonable measures to remove, alter or provide a reasonable means of avoiding physical barriers to accessing and using their premises. In August 2005 I wrote to all local authorities reminding them of their responsibilities under the DDA in the context of leisure and tourism facilities.

Television Licence

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will offer a television licence discount for those people unable to receive digital television through their terrestrial aerial. [47512]

James Purnell [holding answer 31 January 2006]: No. The great majority of households who cannot currently receive digital terrestrial television services can, with the appropriate receiving equipment, receive digital services, including all the BBC's licence fee funded services, via satellite, with or without a subscription.

The Government is committed to ensuring that at digital switchover everyone in the UK who can currently get the main public service broadcasting channels in analogue form can receive them on digital without needing to pay a subscription.

Television Reception (Wales)

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many people in Wales are unable to receive analogue television reception; [47648]

(2) if she will make a statement on the liability for the television licence fee of those who cannot receive analogue services. [47649]

James Purnell: Approximately 2.6 per cent. of households in Wales cannot receive analogue television services. Those who receive digital services are subject to the normal television licensing requirements, since a licence is required to install or use a television receiver to receive any television programme service, whether analogue or digital. The level of the television licence fee does not vary according to the type or range of services that can be received.

Tourism

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what plans she has to restructure the delivery mechanism for tourism policy in England; [49361]

(2) whether regional tourist boards have a role under her Department's plans for marketing tourism in England. [49362]

James Purnell: My Department established a coherent structure for tourism in England in 2003. VisitBritain is responsible for marketing Britain overseas, and England to the British. The regional development agencies have strategic responsibility for promoting and developing tourism in their regions, and may nominate tourist boards or other bodies as regional delivery partners.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has no plans to alter the general shape of that structure. I have, however, recently had discussions with VisitBritain, the England Marketing Advisory Board, and representatives of the regional development agencies, with a view to improving the co-ordination of tourism policy and funding at national, regional, and local levels in England. Those discussions will continue, and any proposals which result from them will be subject to full and wide consultation across the tourism sector.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what was the date of each meeting she has had with the Chairman of VisitBritain in 2005; what was the agenda of each meeting; and if she will make a statement. [48587]

James Purnell: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State met Lord Marshall on 17 October and 15 November 2005. Discussion at the first meeting covered the role of VisitBritain in promoting domestic and inbound tourism, and the better co-ordination of tourism funding activities across England. The second meeting was held at Downing Street, where Lord Marshall acted as industry chairman during a tourism breakfast meeting hosted by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister. A wide range of tourism issues were discussed on that occasion.

I have held regular meetings with Lord Marshall, and the chief executive of VisitBritain, since May 2005 to discuss VisitBritain's marketing and other activities.

Vehicles (Pollution Targets)

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what reduction her Department has made in (a) road transport vehicle carbon dioxide emissions and (b) single occupancy car commuting against baseline years of (i) 2003–04 and (ii) 2004–05. [46889]

Mr. Lammy: As the Department for Culture, Media and Sport is situated in central London on a site with very limited facilities for car parking, the great majority of staff travel by public transport. We have no plans to increase the very limited number of parking spaces, which are primarily for staff with disabilities. We also encourage those staff who wish to travel by bicycle to do so, and provide showers and changing facilities. Ministerial cars are provided by the Government Car and Dispatch Service. Currently four out of the five cars we use are dual fuelled and thus low in carbon emissions.

Youth Activities

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps she is taking to create diversionary activities for younger people to prevent antisocial behaviour. [47745]

Mr. Lammy: Diversionary activities have an important role to play in tackling antisocial behaviour. The Respect Action Plan commits us to > Working with regional sports, arts and culture bodies to ensure that within target areas current funding is more effectively channelled into community sport and cultural activities that support Respect principles and provide a hook for engaging those young people most at risk of antisocial behaviour.

> Providing a new £1 million investment over the next three years to develop and expand the Sports Champions mentoring programme into arts, culture and creative industry sectors.

Our sectors will be working with local providers and Children's Trusts to support outcomes of the kind currently delivered through the Positive Activities for Young People programme. We are also working with the Department for Education and Skills on implementation of Youth Matters, particularly on the Youth Offer.

CABINET OFFICE

Cabinet Procedures

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of whether the principles set out in (a) the Code of Corporate Governance 2003 and (b) the Companies Act 1985 are relevant to the conduct of (i) cabinet and (ii) cabinet committees; and what account was taken of such principles in drafting cabinet procedures. [48029]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I have made no such assessment. The work of Cabinet and Cabinet Committees is governed by the Ministerial Code (available at http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/propriety_and ethics/publications/pdf/ministerial_code.pdf).

Guidance on working with Cabinet and Cabinet Committees is produced by the Cabinet Office (available at http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/secretariats/cabinet_committee_business/index.asp).

Both documents contain well established rules for the conduct of Cabinet government.

Government Communications

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will publish figures for the total spend by his Department on (a) public relations and press offices and (b) advertising in each year since 1996–97; and what the estimated spend for 2005–06 is. [47197]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Details of the Cabinet Office's press office staff costs and expenditure on advertising since 1997–98 and estimated spend for 2005–06 are shown in the table.

	Press office staff costs	Advertising[1]
1997–98	454	206
1998–99	512	166
1999–2000	753	327
2000–01	782	514
2001–02	798	2,776
2002–03	529	423
2003–04	416	345
2004–05	439	443
2005–06[2]	407	480

[1] This includes the National School of Government.

[2] Estimated spend shown for 2005–06 is based on actual expenditure incurred up to and including December plus an estimate of expenditure from January to March 2006.

Financial information prior to 1997–98 is not held on the Department's accounting system and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The increase in advertising expenditure from 1998–99 to 2000–01 is due to expenditure on recruitment advertising for posts within the Department. These posts ranged from administration and junior management level through to the senior civil service. Also included are expenditure on recruitment advertising for specialist placements within the Government Information and Development Centre.

The advertising figure for 2001–02 includes expenditure of £2,491,000 incurred by the Office of the E-Envoy (now known as the e-Government Unit) for the UK Online advertising campaign, offering help to people wanting to use the internet.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what changes have been made to the structure of (a) the Government Communications Group, (b) the Government Communications Network, (c) the Government News Network and (d) the Central Office of Information since May 1997. [47198]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government Communication Group (GCG) and the Government Communication Network (GCN) were set up in 2005 as part of implementing the recommendations of the independent Phillis Review of government communications.

The GCG is a small strategic team within the Cabinet Office, headed by the Permanent Secretary Government Communication. It focuses on cross-government co-ordination, strategic communication, standards and professional development. It absorbed the former Government Information and Communication Service (GICS) centre, which focused more on recruitment and promotion of government communicators. Both GCG and GICS include the Media Monitoring Unit.

The GCN is a professional network which differs from its predecessor, the GICS (established in 1997) in that it includes all those working in communication across government. GCN provides them with personal, practical and professional support to enable them to do their jobs better.

The structure of COI was unchanged between 1997 and 2002, when the GNN was transferred to the GICS (from 1 April 2002). In April 2005 the GNN was transferred back to COI to enable the delivery of a more strategic and coordinated communications function in the regions.

Apart from these GNN moves, COI created a Client Account Team on 1 April 2004 to provide a more focused approach to overall client needs and policy themes and to facilitate cross-departmental communication activity.

Some specialist publishing activities were transferred to COI from the Home Office (September 2004), the Department of Health (October 2004) and NHS Estates (September 2005) in order to reduce duplication across government, in line with the Gershon agenda.

Press Complaints

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on how many occasions since 1 April 2003 he has complained to the Press Complaints Commission about the coverage in the press of (a) Ministers or officials and (b) his Department; and how many of these complaints were upheld. [47082]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I am not aware of any complaints from the Cabinet Office to the Press Complaints Commission during this period.

Regulatory Reform Act

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many regulations have been (a) amended and (b) removed under the Regulatory Reform Act 2001 in each year since the Act was passed. [49148]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Changes to regulations are usually made via the statutory instrument powers used to create them.

The main provision of the Regulatory Reform Act 2001 is to allow for the reform of burdensome primary legislation by Regulatory Reform Orders (RRO). Detailed records are not kept of any ancillary changes to regulations.

Twenty-seven Regulatory Reform Orders ("RROs") have been made since the Regulatory Reform Act 2001 was passed. These have delivered benefits to a range of sectors, including businesses, charities and local authorities. Details of the changes made by these orders are available in the supporting documentation accompanying these orders on the Cabinet Office Better Regulation Executive's website at: http://www.cabinet office.gov.uk/regulation/regulatory_reform/act/reform_orders.asp.

PRIME MINISTER

Congressional Medal

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister when he will collect his Congressional Medal. [48032]

The Prime Minister: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Louth and Horncastle (Sir Peter Tapsell) at Prime Minister's questions on 14 December 2005, Official Report, columns 1301–02.

Departmental Assets

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the items of his Office's property worth over £100 that have been reported as (a) lost and (b) broken in the last 12 months. [47677]

The Prime Minister: For these purposes my office forms part of the Cabinet Office. I have therefore asked my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Murphy) to reply. A copy of the reply will be placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Heald: To ask the Prime Minister how much was spent on his (a) Private Office, (b) Political Office, (c) Press Office, (d) Strategic Communications Unit, (e) Policy Unit, (f) Delivery Unit, (g) Office of Public Services Reform, (h) Forward Strategy Unit and (i) other associated units, in each year since 1996–97; and what the estimated spend for 2005–06 is. [47201]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Southend, West (Mr. Amess) on 21 July 2005, Official Report, column 1935W.

The Delivery Unit, the Strategy Unit and the Office of Public Service Reform do not form part of my Office.

The staffing and associated costs for my Political Office are met by the Labour Party. As has been the case under successive Administrations, marginal costs associated with the Political Office are met from within the overall budget for 10 Downing Street.

Honours

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the honours that have been awarded to players, and former players, of rugby union football since 1997. [47623]

The Prime Minister: This is a matter of public record. The Honours Lists are published in The London Gazette on the occasion of the Queen's birthday in June and at new year.

Iraq

Harry Cohen: To ask the Prime Minister whether he discussed with President Bush, prior to the onset of hostilities against Iraq in 2003, a proposal that the UK should not take part in war-fighting, but would undertake a subsequent peacekeeping mission. [46125]

The Prime Minister: The decision to resort to military action to ensure that Iraq fulfilled its obligations imposed by successive UN Security Council Resolutions was taken only after other routes to disarm Iraq had failed. I decided to commit UK forces after securing the approval of the House in the vote on 18 March 2003.

Torture

David Howarth: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 30 January 2006, Official Report, column 64W, on torture, and his oral answer of 7 December 2005, Official Report, column 862, whether his statement that the US does not condone torture was intended to exclude other acts of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment set out in Article 16 of the UN Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment. [48437]

The Prime Minister: The US Secretary of State made clear in her public statement of 5 December 2005 on the treatment of detainees that "it is US policy that authorised interrogation will be consistent with US obligations under the Convention Against Torture, which prohibit cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment".

The US Detainee Treatment Act, enacted on 30 December 2005, provides that no individual in the custody or under the physical control of the US Government, regardless of nationality or physical location, shall be subject to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. This legislation makes a matter of statute what President Bush has made clear was already US Government policy.

Vandalism

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the acts of vandalism which have been perpetrated (a) inside and (b) on the outside of his Office's buildings in the last 12 months. [49500]

The Prime Minister: For these purposes my office forms part of the Cabinet Office. I have therefore asked my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Murphy) to reply. A copy of the reply will be placed in the Library of the House.

Wilson Doctrine

Lynne Jones: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to his written statement of 15 December 2005, Official Report, column 173WS, on the Wilson Doctrine, when he expects the Government to have finished considering the advice from the Interception of Communications Commissioner on the possible implications for the Wilson Doctrine of the regulatory framework for the interception of communications. [49256]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to my written ministerial statement of 15 December 2006, Official Report, column 173WS, and my answers at Prime Minister's questions on 18 and 25 January.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Financial Inclusion

11. Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent measures he has taken to promote financial inclusion. [48329]

Margaret Hodge: The Government is committed to improved access to banking and the supply of affordable credit. We have made great progress since 1997 by implementing many of the recommendations of the Policy Action Team Report. However, we recognise that there is more to be done.

We continue to promote financial inclusion through improved access to banking and the supply of affordable credit. Two specific initiatives in our Department are the £36 million allocated to the Growth Fund which will result in more affordable credit becoming available to tens of thousands of people and the improvements to simplify and expand the interest free Social Fund Budgeting Loans scheme.

Incapacity Benefit

15. Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which organisations he plans to consult on his proposals to reduce the number of people claiming incapacity benefit; and if he will make a statement. [48334]

Margaret Hodge: We have been consulting with key stakeholders about the detail of incapacity benefits reform since 2002, when we published our Pathways to Work proposals.

We have now published our new proposals in our Green Paper and formal consultation will run until 21 April 2006.

During this period I will engage with all our stakeholders, including claimants, employers, health professionals, local authorities, providers, disability organisations, welfare rights organisations and hon. Members.

19. Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many incapacity benefit claimants there are in Newcastle-under-Lyme. [48338]

Mrs. McGuire: As at August 2005, there were 4,800 people in Newcastle-under-Lyme claiming incapacity benefit or severe disablement allowance.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost is of an incapacity case cleared by scrutiny. [35713]

Mrs. McGuire: This information is confidential and cannot be disclosed as to do so may prejudice the commercial interests of the Department and/or its suppliers.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people claimed incapacity benefit in Beverley and Holderness in each year since 1997. [44316]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is in the table.

Incapacity benefit (IB) and severe disablement allowance (SDA) claimants, in the Beverley and Holderness parliamentary constituency: May 2005

	Number of claimants
May 1997	4,300
May 1998	3,900
May 1999	3,600
May 2000	3,200
May 2001	3,300
May 2002	3,300
May 2003	3,300
May 2004	3,300
May 2005	3,300

Notes:

1. The parliamentary constituency figures for the years 1997 to 1999 have been produced using the 5 per cent. data and have been rated up proportionally using the Great Britain WPLS 100 per cent. IB/SDA totals.
2. Figures are rounded to the nearest hundred.
3. 'Claimant' figures include all IB and SDA, including IB credits only cases.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of how many people are affected by incapacity benefit reductions relating to the receipt of an occupational pension. [44510]

Mrs. McGuire: As at May 2005 there were 30,600 incapacity benefit recipients whose benefit had been reduced by the receipt of an occupational pension. This does not include those whose benefit is reduced to nil; information on such claims is not collected centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people received incapacity benefit in Elmet constituency in (a) 1997 and (b) the most recent year for which figures are available. [46271]

Mrs. McGuire: In August 1997, there were 3,500 people, and in August 2005, there were 3,000 people in the Elmet parliamentary constituency claiming incapacity benefit or severe disablement allowance.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time was between the start of a claim for incapacity benefit and the first personal capability assessment in the last year for which figures are available. [46320]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 22 June 2005, Official Report, column 1073W.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many incapacity benefit claimants have failed a personal capability assessment in each of the last four years in (a) Pathways to Work areas and (b) non Pathways to Work areas; and for what reasons in each case. [46322]

Mrs. McGuire: The personal capability assessment uses a scoring process to assess an individual's incapacity. Where an individual's score is below the threshold for incapacity benefit or disability living allowance, the benefit will be withdrawn. It is not possible to give a further breakdown of reasons.

Incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance terminations due to a personal capability assessment score being below the benefit threshold

As at August each year	Pathways areas	Non-Pathways areas
2002	1,800	20,900
2003	1,800	22,700
2004	3,100	21,300
2005	2,600	25,900

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest hundred.

2. Figures for the latest quarter do not include any late notifications and are subject to major changes in future quarters. For illustration purposes, total terminations for May 2004 increased by 33 per cent. in the year following their initial release.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of incapacity benefits claimants have undergone a medical examination in each year since 1990. [46329]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is not available.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people claimed incapacity benefit in 2004–05, broken down by medical condition. [46372]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Bristol, East (Kerry McCarthy), on 23 January 2006, Official Report, column 1824W.

New Deal

20. Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the new deal in Leicester. [48339]

Margaret Hodge: The new deal has been successful in helping 2,620 people into work in my hon. Friend's constituency. This includes more than 1,350 young people through New Deal for Young People, 84 per cent. of whom have gone into sustained employment.

Pensions Regulator

22. Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the work of the new Pensions Regulator. [48341]

Mr. Timms: The Pensions Regulator opened for business in April 2005 with a new regulatory approach placing greater emphasis on identifying and tackling real risks to members' benefits and a proactive, risked-based style of regulation.

It is clear that this approach is already making itself felt. The regulator is collecting and analysing a wide range of scheme data, enabling it to build a clearer picture of the current pensions landscape.

The Pensions Regulator is required to assess and monitor the extent to which it is meeting its statutory objectives and targets, submitting an annual report to the Secretary of State. This report is then laid before Parliament. In addition, I meet with the chair of the Pensions Regulator on a quarterly basis and officials in my Department regularly monitor to ensure that the regulator is meeting its statutory objectives and pursuing its business activities effectively.

Welfare-to-Work Green Paper

23. Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the contribution that the proposals set out in the welfare to work Green Paper will make to the Government's goal of 80 per cent. employment. [48342]

Margaret Hodge: The proposals in the Green Paper will be a key role in achieving an employment rate of 80 per cent. of the working age population. To achieve our aim we will reduce the number of people on incapacity benefits by a million, help 300,000 more lone parents into work and increase by a million the number of older workers.

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on his Department's strategy to tackle benefit fraud. [47107]

Mr. Plaskitt: Our strategy for tackling benefit fraud was published in "Reducing Fraud in the Benefit System: Achievements and Ambitions" on 13 October 2005. Copies are available in the Library.

Since 1997, we have reduced fraud in income support and jobseeker's allowance by nearly two thirds. We now estimate that we lose around £0.9 billion to fraud each year—under 1 per cent. of total benefit expenditure, and the lowest estimated levels ever recorded. However, we realise that there is more to do and will continue to drive this down further.

Benefit Payments/Provision

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of telephone calls for benefit claims to Jobcentre Plus offices in Wales (a) received the engaged tone, (b) disconnected during the IVR process and (c) were abandoned by the caller in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [39559]

Margaret Hodge: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 6 February 2006:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question concerning how many and what proportion of telephone calls for benefit claims to Jobcentre Plus offices in Wales (a) received the engaged tone, (b) disconnected during the IVR process and (c) were abandoned by the caller in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

When a customer calls a Jobcentre Plus contact centre to make a claim for benefit, their call is either answered immediately or is placed in a queue until either their call is answered or they choose to abandon the call. They are not connected to an Interactive Voice Response (IVR) and customers do not get an engaged tone. We do know however that customers make the choice to abandon their call and that Jobcentre Plus does not terminate calls. I suspect that customers may abandon calls because of domestic interruptions or simply that they do not wait for even a short time to speak to an adviser.

We have three contact centres in Wales: Pembroke Dock, Bridgend and Cwmbran that take calls from customers wishing to claim benefit. I have set out below the available information on calls offered and abandoned for those sites based in Wales.

	Calls offered	Calls abandoned	Percentage
2004 (June to December)	249,028	44,217	17.8
2005 (January to w/e 16 December)	692,317	139,601	20.2

Note:

Prior to June 2004 information was not collected centrally.

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people received (a) housing benefit, (b) council tax benefit, (c) income support and (d) incapacity benefit in the constituency of South Swindon, in each year since 1997. [47015]

Mr. Plaskitt: Housing benefit and council tax benefit figures are not available broken down by parliamentary constituency. The available information is in the table.

Housing benefit (HB), council tax benefit (CTB), income support (IS), incapacity benefit (IB) and severe disablement allowance (SDA) claimants in the areas shown

	Swindon borough council		South Swindon constituency
	HB	CTB	IS	IB/SDA
August 1997	10,400	12,700	3,500	3,300
August 1998	10,200	12,000	3,500	3,700
August 1999	10,000	11,800	3,100	3,300
August 2000	8,600	10,600	2,900	3,300
August 2001	8,100	9,300	2,900	3,300
August 2002	8,300	9,700	2,900	3,400
August 2003	9,200	11,000	3,000	3,400
August 2004	9,700	11,900	3,000	3,600
August 2005	10,300	12,500	2,900	3,500

Notes:

1. The data refers to benefit units, which may be a single person or a couple.
2. Figures have been rounded to the nearest hundred.
3. CTB figures exclude any Second Adult Rebate cases.
4. HB figures exclude any Extended Payment cases.
5. For consistency, income support figures exclude minimum income guarantee (MIG) claimants. Pension credit replaced MIG on the 6 October 2003; pension credit cases are not included in the table.
6. IB/SDA figures include IB credits only cases.
7. IS and IB/SDA figures prior to May 2000 have been derived by applying 5 per cent. proportions to 100 per cent. totals.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what action he is taking to improve (a) the efficiency of delivery and (b) comparability of control systems of benefits paid to British citizens resident overseas. [45194]

Mr. Timms: The Pension Service International Pension Centre applies the normal departmental security rules and law to prevent both external and internal fraud and abuse. It has recently upgraded its telephony systems to improve the level of service to customers overseas. Work in the centre has now been organised by country. This is to ensure there are specialist areas covering the European Union, countries with which the Department has Reciprocal Agreements and countries where non-uprated pensions are paid.

In addition The Pension Service has a team of specialists who determine if marriages and divorces that take place under foreign legislation meet the requirements of UK Social Security legislation and we carry out a programme of certification to ensure that benefit payments continue to be appropriate. There is also technology in place that allows us to authenticate foreign documents.

The Pension Service has achieved direct payment into bank accounts for over 97 per cent. of residents where it is possible to pay benefits via the BACS system.

Following a comparison with the Dutch System The Pension Service is implementing a new approach to programme protection work based on the amount of expenditure, the number of residents and age of residents by country.

Other benefits administered by the Department for Work and Pensions, for non United Kingdom residents are entirely dependant on the entitlement conditions for each individual benefit. These conditions may be modified for EU nationals moving within the EU by the EU Regulations on Social Security for Migrant Workers and in other cases by reciprocal social security agreements between the United Kingdom and other countries.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was owed to the Department in overpaid benefits in each quarter of the past three years; how much was received in each quarter; and if he will make a statement on progress in recovery of the outstanding balance. [30081]

Mr. Plaskitt: Benefit overpayment balances outstanding and recoveries for the last three years are as follows:

£ million

	Q1	Q2	Q3	Q4
2002-03
Balance owed at quarter end	1,087	1,101	1,116	1,145
Recoveries	49.3	48.9	45.7	44.8
Total recovered 188.8
2003-04[1]
Balance owed at quarter end	1,124	1,122	1,121	1,157
Recoveries	54.7	46.6	50.9	29.1
Total recovered 181.4
2004-05
Balance owed at quarter end	1,161	1,174	1,187	1,230
Recoveries	46.1	50.4	55.6	35.5

Total recovered 186.6

[1] The reductions in both the debt stock (Q1) and recoveries in 2003-04 were due to the transfer of child benefit from DWP to Inland Revenue.

[2] Recoveries figure reduced in quarter to reflect accounting adjustments required to balance out incorrectly posted transactions in previous three quarters.

Within the Department, Debt Management was established in April 2001 to provide greater focus and expertise to the management and recovery of benefit overpayments within the Department. Since then, the bulk of benefit overpayment recovery work has been centralised from over 100 sites to 10 dedicated debt centres, and £750 million of overpaid benefits has been recovered up to March 2005.

Since April 2004, where DWP has been unsuccessful in seeking recovery from those no longer in receipt of benefit, the debt has been referred to our private sector partners under the Enforcement Initiative.

From August 2005, a new computer system was introduced to the debt centres to assist with the recovery and accounting processes.

These improvements will see enhanced management and recovery in future years. However, due to the circumstances of many of our customers, recovery of a debt can take several years.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many recorded job entries there have been in the United Kingdom excluding pathways to work pilots for incapacity benefit claimants who have been claiming benefit for (a) nought to three months, (b) three to six months, (c) six to 12 months, (d) 12 to 24 months and (e) 24 months and over since 1997. Bowback House, Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) compulsory and (b) voluntary redundancies are expected as a result of the development of Bowback House in Milton Keynes. [48798]

Margaret Hodge: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 6 February 2006:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many (a) compulsory and (b) voluntary redundancies are anticipated as a result of the development of Bowback House in Milton Keynes. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

We are not anticipating any compulsory or voluntary redundancies as a result of the development of Bowback House in Milton Keynes. Currently we are recruiting staff at this location.

I hope this is helpful.

Child Support

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many non-resident parents are paying child support under (a) the old system and (b) the new system; and if he will make a statement. [45017]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many non-resident parents are paying child support under (a) the old system and (b) the new system; and if he will make a statement.

In the quarter to December 2005, the latest period for which figures are available, just over 400,000 cases were in receipt of maintenance via the Agency's collection service or had a Maintenance Direct arrangement in place. This equates to over half a million children.

The table attached breaks down this figure with respect to cases under the old and new schemes across both the old and new child support IT systems according to whether or not a case is on the collection service, or has a maintenance direct arrangement in place.

I hope you find this helpful.

Number of cases where maintenance was collected via the Agency's collection service or a Maintenance Direct arrangement was in place by Child Support Scheme and IT system—Quarter ending December 2005

Thousand

	New Scheme (New IT system)	Old Scheme (New IT system)	Old Scheme (Old IT system)	Total
Number of cases receiving maintenance via the collection service	111,000	33,000	158,000	302,000
Number of cases with a maintenance direct arrangement in place	36,000	8,000	62,000	106,000
Total	147,000	41,000	220,000	408,000

Notes:

1. Numbers above exclude old scheme cases with a punitive interim maintenance assessment in place, as well as new scheme cases being progressed clerically.

2. Old scheme child supports cases a largely processed on the old IT system, but are also processed on the new IT system where they have been migrated due to links with new scheme applications.

3. Maintenance Direct cases are those in which the Agency has carried out a maintenance calculation or assessment, and the non resident parent has subsequently agreed to pay the parent with care directly. There will then be no further involvement from the Agency unless requested by either party (for example in the event of a change of circumstances requiring recalculation or non compliance by the non resident parent). The existence of such an arrangement does not guarantee that payment of maintenance occurs, as it could cease upon mutual agreement of both parties without the Agency being informed.

4. A case is counted as having been compliant on the Agency collection service if it is open at the end of December, and any money has been both requested and received via the Agency's collection service in the preceding three months.
5. Volumes are rounded to the nearest thousand.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the strategic review of the Child Support Agency will be published. [48337]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Secretary of State will make an announcement shortly.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many times the Child Support Agency has used its powers to withdraw the driving licences of non-compliant non-resident parents in each year from 2000–01; and if he will make a statement. [41345]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive, Mr. Stephen Geraghty. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many times the Child Support Agency has used its powers to withdraw the driving licences of non-compliant non-resident parents in each year from 2000–01 to 2005–06; and if he will make a statement.

The legislation to disqualify non-resident parents from holding or obtaining a driving licence came into effect in April 2001.

The Child Support Agency does not have the power to withdraw the driving licences of non-compliant non-resident parents, this is a decision which may be made by the courts.

Once all possible means of civil recovery of the debt have been exhausted the Secretary of State will make application to the courts for non-resident parents to be committed to prison or disqualified from holding or obtaining a driving licence. If the non-resident parent is found guilty of wilful refusal or culpable neglect, it is the court who will decide which of the sanctions available is the most appropriate. The table below therefore details the number of non-resident parents who have had their driving licences withdrawn by the courts and the number of non-resident parents who have received a suspended withdrawal sentence and additionally those who have received suspended and actual committal sentences.

	Number of cases referred to court for committal or disqualification orders	Driving licence—withdrawn	Driving licence—suspended sentence	Committal to prison—suspended sentences	Committal to prison—sentences served
2003–04	240	1	9	95	8
2004–05	662	5	31	224	8
April 2005 to November 2005	554	4	13	212	8
Total	—	11	63	587	28

Notes:
1. The fact that the number of suspensions and actual penalties is less than half the number of referrals is explained by the number of debtors who enter into agreements to pay rather than attend court. Similarly, only a very small number of debtors actually go to prison or lose their driving licences, in our experience, because the courts normally seek to suspend a sentence on condition that the defendant commits to pay.
2. We do not have accurate data for the number of cases referred to court for the periods 2001–02 and 2002–03.

I hope this is helpful.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on progress in (a) securing improved management information and (b) resolving information technology problems at the Child Support Agency. [41405]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive, Mr. Stephen Geraghty. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 6 February 2006:

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on progress in (a) securing improved management information and (b) resolving information technology problems at the Child Support Agency.

(a) As a result of an Agency instigated independent review of its Data Warehouse and the subsequent Select Committee recommendations, an independent review of the Agency's management information service was commissioned and a project set up.

The project has made significant progress in recent months, providing audit assured information going back to March 2003 in respect of:

new scheme applications intake volume and age of clearances and volume and age of work in progress.

Further management information improvements covering change of circumstances and non-compliant non-resident parents are currently being developed.

(b) There have been a number of IT releases over the last year and as a result of this work the new computer system stability, availability and performance are much improved, in most cases now achieving and maintaining agreed technical service-level standards.

Improvements included the correction of a number of internal system defects and various system infrastructure improvements. Call Manager improved the telephony system by routing customer calls more quickly and effectively. Freetext provided the ability for staff to note down more detailed and specific information about individual cases directly onto the system that resulted in more efficient casework handling. The national roll out of Voice Recording provided the ability to record telephone conversations between Agency staff and new scheme clients and is now used for quality monitoring/learning and development purposes.

Work to improve the new computer system is continuing with additional IT releases planned for 2006 to deliver further improvements.

I hope you find this response helpful.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions under what powers the Child Support Agency pays compensation for errors it makes; and who decides (a) when and (b) of what quantums such payments should be. [44229]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive and he will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 6 February 2006:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, under what powers the Child Support Agency pays compensation for errors it makes; and who decides (a) when and (b) of what quantums such payments should be.

The Department for Work and Pensions operates a discretionary, non-statutory scheme providing financial redress for maladministration under delegated authority from HM Treasury. Agency officials have authority to make payments up to £15,000. Payments exceeding that limit are referred to the Department for Work and Pensions' central team for authorisation.

Each case is treated individually. The Agency aims to deal with such cases within 30 working days of referral.

I hope this is helpful.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received on financial hardship caused by Child Support Agency maintenance assessments; and if he will make a statement. [44603]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not available.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to his answer of 19 January 2006, Official Report, column 1560, on the Child Support Agency, whether there have been reductions in (a) back office and (b) support staffing at the Child Support Agency since January 2005; and if he will make a statement. [45754]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Stephen Geraghty. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 6 February 2006:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to his Answer of 19th January 2006 Official Report column 1560 on the Child Support Agency whether there have been reductions in (a) back office and (b) support staffing at the Child Support Agency since January 2005; and if he will make a statement.

There have been reductions in both (a) back office and (b) support staffing at the Child Support Agency since January 2005. Over this same period there has been an increase in the numbers of staff employed in Frontline Services.

I hope you find this helpful.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much the Child Support Agency (CSA) has raised under the Attachment of Earnings Act 1971 and the Child Support Act 1991 as a result of empowering employers to collect an additional fee of £1 to help defray the costs of administering each CSA order; and if he will make a statement. [48717]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not available.

Child support legislation allows employers to collect up to £1 towards administrative costs, whether they do so is up to them. The employer does not notify the agency when they do this, as it is a matter for them.

Crisis Loan Applications

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many crisis loan applications have been received (a) in each of the last five years and (b) in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available. [46821]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is in the tables.

Child Support Agency

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much the Child Support Agency has received but not yet passed on to the parent with care. [25235]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 6 February 2006:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much the Child Support Agency has received but not yet passed on to the parent with care.

The Agency collection service deals with significant sums passing through its bank account (in excess of £600 million in each of the last two years). As a consequence the Agency bank balance is continually turning over with receipts from Non Resident Parents and employers which need to be assigned and be paid out to Parents with Care or the Secretary of State (where the Parent with Care is in receipt of benefit). At 30 November 2005 an amount of £4.2 million had been received, cleared, and was in the process of being passed on to the Parent with Care via their preferred Method of Payment, which is in the main directly into their bank account. At this date there was also an amount of £9.5 million in the bank account awaiting fund clearance and assignment between the Parent with Care and the Secretary of State.

I hope this reply is helpful.

Departmental Expenditure

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost was of pension contributions incurred by (a) his Department and (b) each (i) non-departmental public body, (ii) executive agency and (iii) other public body for which he is responsible in (A) Scotland, (B) Wales, (C) each of the English regions and (D) Northern Ireland in each of the last three financial years; and what the planned expenditure is for 2005–06. [39990]

Mr. Timms: Such information that is available is in the table. Planned expenditure for 2005–06 is based on actual costs to November 2005, extrapolated for the full year. Contribution rates were consistent between 2002–03 and 2004–05 but have increased substantially with effect from 1 April 2005, accounting for the acute rise in costs.

£ million

	2002–03	2003–04	2004–05	2005–06
Department for Work and Pensions	291.6	303.7	312.2	427.9
Executive Agencies:
Child Support Agency	20.5	21.6	22.1	32.8
Jobcentre Plus	175.3	171.6	178.3	245.5
Disability and Carers Service (established 1/11/04)	n/a	n/a	6.0	20.0

The Appeals Service	1.8	3.5	3.6	4.2
The Rent Service	1.8	2.2	2.5	2.9
Health & Safety Executive	17.0	17.0	17.1	24.0
Non-departmental public bodies:
Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority (The Pensions Regulator from 6/04/05)	0.7	0.7	0.9	1.3
Disability Rights Commission	0.5	0.6	0.7	0.9

For 2005–06, employers' contributions are payable to the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (PCSPS) at one of four rates in the ranges 16.2 to 24.6 per cent. of pensionable pay, based on salary bands. The Scheme Actuary reviews employer contributions every four years following a full scheme valuation; last carried out as at 31 March 2003. The contribution rates reflect the cost of benefits as they accrue (net of employee contributions), not the costs as they are actually incurred, and reflect past experience of the scheme.

Departmental Jobs

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many of his Department's jobs are located in Tamworth constituency. [35675]

Mrs. McGuire: As at 31 October 2005, a total of 40 (full-time equivalent) staff were employed by the Department in the Tamworth constituency.

Departmental Leaflets

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what response his Department is making to the recent National Audit Office Report on its leaflets. [46668]

Mrs. McGuire: In the "Using Information to communicate with the public about services and entitlements" report the NAO acknowledges the recent work the Department has already undertaken in this area. The Department has already made progress against a number of the NAO's recommendations and will carefully monitor implementation of the remainder.

Departmental Staff

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what strategy he proposes to adopt to address the conclusion of the departmental working paper number 21, Review of Existing Research on the Extra Costs of Disability, that disability living allowance and attendance allowance are not sufficient to meet costs associated with disability; and if he will make a statement. [38246]

Mrs. McGuire: Working paper no. 21 reviewed the existing research evidence about the extra costs of disabled people. It concluded that although most studies estimate that disability living allowance and attendance allowance are not sufficient to meet all the extra costs of disability, they have produced no clear and robust evidence on the actual size of those costs in relation to benefit levels. All of the different approaches so far adopted by researchers are methodologically and conceptually difficult and have produced widely differing results. Some have also tended not to take account of the full range of statutory services and benefits available to help meet the needs and costs associated with disability, amongst which disability living allowance and attendance allowance make a non-income-related and tax-free contribution of around £12.5 billion a year towards the disability related extra costs of over 4 million disabled people.

Disabled People

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many disabled people are seeking employment, as measured by the number of people consulting a disability employment adviser; and how many of these have been seeking employment for (a) six months or more, (b) one year or more and (c) 18 months or more. [30944]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is not available in the format requested.

Industrial Injuries Scheme

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what assessment he has made of the costs and benefits of replacing the industrial injuries scheme with a no-fault compensation scheme fully funded by employers; [40472]

(2) what assessment he has made of the (a) cost and (b) other effects of abolishing the Industrial Injuries Disablement Pension and transferring responsibility to employers; and if he will make a statement. [44761]

Margaret Hodge: I have asked officials to carry out a review of our Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit Scheme. As the scheme was introduced in 1948, we need to ensure that it continues to meet the needs of our modern society. While I expect officials to look at all aspects of the scheme, we have not yet looked in any detail at any particular component and have not made any assessment of the costs and benefits of transferring responsibility for industrial injury compensation to employers. We will, however, be looking at all options for the future.

We intend to publish a discussion document later this year when we will engage fully with stakeholders and other interested parties.

Internal Fraud

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost of internal fraud has been to (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in each year from 2000–01. [41330]

Mr. Plaskitt: Details of estimated cost of internal fraud to the Department are presented in table 1.

Source:
This information has been compiled from annual returns detailing fraud losses.

The Department has a robust approach to the detection, prevention and deterrence of internal and contractor fraud. This approach is consistent with Treasury guidance.

The Department has a Fraud Response Plan and an Anti-Fraud Policy in place. Investigations into suspected internal or contractor-related frauds are conducted by a professional and dedicated team.

In addition to investigations staff, there is a network of security advisers in place across the Department. Their role includes promoting internal security throughout businesses, reporting and initial investigation potential security incidents, and providing security awareness training to staff.

The Department has a Whistleblowers Hotline to enable staff to report suspicions of internal fraud outside of management structures.

The Department also has in place a comprehensive set of management checks and procedures to ensure that financial transactions are protected from the risk of internal fraud and abuse.

Jobcentre Plus

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions in which parts of the Jobcentre Plus (a) network and (b) contact centres the Customer Management System has been implemented; and what the implementation dates are for the rest of the (i) network and (ii) contact centres. [44594]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 24 January 2006]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to reply to your question asking in which parts of the Jobcentre Plus (a) network and (b) contact centres the Customer Management System has been implemented; and what the implementation dates are for the rest of the (i) network and (ii) contact centres. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

We are implementing the Customer Management System (CMS) in all Jobcentre Plus customer facing offices, benefit processing offices and contact centres.

Currently CMS has been deployed evenly throughout Jobcentre Plus in over 75 per cent. of the total network. We expect the introduction of CMS across the network to be completed by July 2006.

Annex 1 indicates those districts where CMS deployment is fully complete and those sites where CMS is still to be deployed. Annex 2 lists all 22 Contact Centres where CMS has been deployed.

I hope this is helpful.

Jobseekers

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps are taken by the staff of Jobcentre Plus to support working age claimants with special needs, with particular reference to people with (a) English language difficulties, (b) learning disabilities and (c) chronic physical and mental health problems. [45237]

Margaret Hodge: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 6 February 2006:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to reply to your questions asking what steps are taken by the staff of Jobcentre Plus to support working age claimants with special needs, with particular reference to people with (a) English language difficulties, (b) learning disabilities and (c) chronic physical and mental health problems. This as something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus provides additional help for those people who face particular disadvantage in the labour market. This is provided primarily through personal advisers who provide information, advice and guidance to help people identify and overcome barriers to employment. Alongside this, there is a range of employment and training related opportunities to help overcome specific issues such language and learning difficulties, and physical and mental health problems.

By way of context it is worth mentioning that the Government published a Green Paper on Welfare Reform—"A New Deal for Welfare : Empowering people to work" on 24 January 2006. In that Green Paper the Government re-emphasised its commitment to provide opportunity for all saying

"Ensuring that all our citizens have both the right and the opportunity to join the world of work is a fundamental responsibility of any modern government. The Government will help people achieve success for themselves and their families."

The Green Paper sets our proposals for reforms which build on recent successes which Jobcentre Plus have been a part of and we are continue to take a leading in role in delivering better services to the people we serve.

On the specific issue of language difficulties, our policy is to ensure interpreters are provided when conducting business with customers who do not speak English or Welsh, or who are deaf or hard-of-hearing. Interpreters can be provided in a number of ways, e.g. through:

multi-lingual members of staff;

local interpreters providing services voluntarily or under contract;

the Department of Work and Pensions telephone-interpreter service, which is currently provided by Language Line.

In some instances customers may also use their own interpreters, e.g. a family member or friend, though for formal interviews, e.g. benefit appeals and tribunals, only independent and qualified interpreters may be used.

People for whom English is a second language (ESOL) also have access to work focused provision through our Work Based Learning for Adults programme and the New Deal. These ESOL programmes provide full-time help for up to 26 weeks, 780 learning hours (26 weeks at 30 hours a week). Participants follow a varied and innovative approach to learning and are encouraged to take part in project work and work placements to consolidate their learning, which is designed to improve skills by at least one level.

Jobcentre Plus also has a range of support and labour market advice for those customers receiving Incapacity benefits. This is available to a range of customers with health conditions and disabilities including those with learning difficulties and chronic physical and mental health conditions.

A key, new, element of our service are the Pathways to Work Pilots, which are currently operating in 11 Jobcentre Plus Districts. Specialist advisers are given enhanced interviewing skills to enable them to deal specifically with this customer group. Pathways to Work have also introduced a more intensive mandatory regime of work-focused interviews for all new Incapacity benefit customers, with access to a wider range of support. IB customers with the most severe conditions are not expected to take part in the full Pathways regime but can volunteer to participate. The support includes a Choices Package, which includes the Condition Management Programme (CMP) delivered through a partnership between Jobcentre Plus and the NHS. The CMP is delivered by health professionals and has been designed to help people better understand and cope with their health condition. Through these pilots we are engaging significantly greater numbers of customers and substantially improving their prospects for work.

Incapacity Benefit Personal Advisers (IBPAs) have been introduced into all Jobcentre Plus offices. The aim of the IBPA is to provide support to customers in receipt of Incapacity Benefit move closer to the labour market and into sustainable employment.

Additionally, more specialist support is available via the Disability Employment Adviser (DEA) who works closely with employers, employees and customers with a health condition or disability, offering advice and practical support to enable the person find and sustain employment. DEAs are also a route for obtaining support through the specialist programmes provided by Jobcentre Plus.

There are a number of programmes that are specifically designed to help people with a disability or health condition return to work:

Access to Work is a specialist disability programme, which provides practical advice and support to help disabled people enter or stay in paid employment;

Work Preparation is an individually tailored, work-focused programme that enables disabled people to address barriers associated with their disability and prepare for working with the confidence necessary to achieve and sustain their job goal;

WORKSTEP provides support in jobs for disabled people who have more complex barriers to finding and keeping work but who, with the right support, can work effectively and develop in their job. Longer-term support continues to be available for those who need it and is a major element of the programme; people with a disability or health condition may also receive help through the New Deal for Disabled People programme. NDDP is a voluntary programme which gives customers on qualifying disability or health-related benefits in England, Scotland and Wales access to a network of Job Brokers. Job Brokers work with customers to help them compete in the labour market and support them in finding and keeping a job;

the Job Introduction Scheme (JIS) aims to increase employment opportunities for people with disabilities by offering a weekly grant to employers during the first six weeks of their employment;

Residential Training provides a unique service to unemployed disabled adults whose needs are not met through any other government funded programmes. Although other programmes can fund training aimed at helping disabled people into work, the Residential Training courses are unique in that they deliver specific training and programmes for disabled people with complex needs who cannot enter into employment or a work-based environment without the appropriate preparation; and other New Deal programmes such as New Deal for Young People, New Deal 25 plus, New Deal 50 plus and New Deal for Lone Parents are also available to this customer group.

I do apologise for the length of this response, but I hope it has helped in detailing the wide range of services available.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average (a) time taken, (b) cost of and (c) number of public officials involved was in handling a fresh claim for jobseeker's allowance in the last period for which figures are available. [45234]

Margaret Hodge: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what the average (a) time taken, (b) cost of and (c) number of public officials involved was in handling a fresh claim for Jobseeker's Allowance in the last period for which figures are available. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus measures how long it takes to clear a claim to benefit to the date of decision. This is expressed as the Actual Average Clearance Time (AACT).

In the operational year 2004/2005, the AACT for Jobseeker's Allowance was 12.1 days and, for the same period, an estimate of the average direct cost (excluding overheads) of processing a new claim for Jobseeker's Allowance was £21.97.

We do not keep information on the number of officials involved in handling individual new claims for Jobseeker's Allowance.

Learning Disability

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he takes to ensure that people with a learning disability are given the right support to find jobs they (a) wish to do and (b) are capable of doing; and if he will make a statement. [47248]

Mrs. McGuire: Jobcentre Plus provides additional help for those people who face particular disadvantage in the labour market and who wish to move into a job. This is provided primarily through personal advisers who provide information, advice and guidance to help people identify and overcome barriers to employment. Alongside this, there is a range of employment and training related opportunities to help overcome specific issues such as language difficulties, and physical and mental health problems, including help for people with a learning disability.

Maintenance Arrears

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects payment for maintenance arrears for (a) 2004–05 and (b) 2005–06 to be made to Miss Jones of Birkenhead. [48441]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive, Mr. Stephen Geraghty. He will write to the right hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 6 February 2006:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, when he expects payment for maintenance arrears for (a) 2004–05 and (b) 2005–06 to be made to Miss Jones of Birkenhead.

As details about individual cases are confidential I have written to you separately about this case.

National Insurance Number Hotline

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will increase the number of staff answering calls on the national insurance number hotline. [45684]

Margaret Hodge: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Leslie Strathie, dated 6 February 2006:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking if he will increase the number of staff answering calls on the national insurance number hotline. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

It may be helpful if I outline the way in which customers apply for a National Insurance number. We do not currently operate a National Insurance number hotline. We are, however, presently introducing a new centralised computerised appointments booking process in order to reduce the time it takes for customers to receive a National Insurance number. We are implementing this new process on a phased timetable. This means that at the moment two systems are in operation.

The new process introduces the use of a national contact centre with a single 0845 number for customers wishing to book an interview to apply for a National Insurance number. Appointments for interviews are made and confirmation of the appointment is sent to the customer immediately. Evaluation in those regions where this new process has been implemented has shown that 97% of all calls are answered, of which 92% of calls are answered within 20 seconds. The average speed of answer is 8 seconds.

This new system will be introduced shortly in your constituency. In the meantime, customers in Shropshire needing a National Insurance number should contact the Jobcentre Plus office at Telford, using the dedicated telephone number.

I hope this is helpful.

Pathways to Work

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average cost per participant is in Pathway to Work pilots. [49302]

Margaret Hodge: The latest estimate for the average cost of the funding per person on the Pathways to Work programme is around £400, excluding the return to work credit.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been paid to voluntary sector providers under the Pathways to Work pilots schemes since their establishment. [43283]

Margaret Hodge: The information requested is not available.

Both voluntary and private sector organisations deliver a number of different programmes which support Pathways to Work. Some of these programmes are specific to Pathways to Work (in-work support and condition management programmes), while others are delivered nationally across Jobcentre Plus, for example WORKSTEP and new deal for disabled people.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will list his Department's contracts with (a) private sector and (b) voluntary sector providers of services outsourced by Jobcentre Plus in (i) Pathways to Work areas for each of the last two years and (ii) non-Pathways to Work areas for each of the last five years; and what the value was of each contract. [44427]

Margaret Hodge: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking if he will list his Department's contracts with (a) private sector and (b) voluntary sector providers of services outsourced by Jobcentre Plus in (i) Pathways to Work areas for each of the last two years and (ii) non-Pathways to Work areas for each of the last five years, and what the value was of each. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

We do not currently have available the requested breakdown of these providers between private and voluntary organisations. This information could only be obtained at disproportionate cost. However, Jobcentre Plus is currently implementing a new system which will enable information on programmes and providers to be obtained and collated more readily for contracts in the future.

Pension Protection Fund Levy

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the pension protection fund levy on small businesses. [48803]

Mr. Timms: The regulatory impact assessment (RIA) that accompanied the Pensions Bill 2004 addressed the effect of the pension protection levy on businesses, and was agreed by Parliament when the Bill was passed.

The RIA specifically considered the impact on businesses with fewer than 50 employees. It identified that impact on small businesses (i.e. those with fewer than 50 employees) will be limited overall by the fact that few such businesses run defined benefit pension schemes, and so are unlikely to be affected by the pension protection levy. The RIA estimates that less than 2.2 per cent. of the total cost of the Pension Protection Fund would be met by small businesses.

Responsibility for consulting on and setting the level of the pension protection levy rests with the board of the Pension Protection Fund. Following 17 weeks of consultation two consultation documents were produced plus one update. The aim was to strike a balance between affordability and security. Representatives from small business were consulted as part of the process. This all resulted in a report on 16 December 2005, including an estimate of the pension protection levy amount. This is available on the Pension Protection Fund's website.

Pensions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many occupational pension schemes have fully wound up since 1997; and how many are in the process of winding up. [44507]

Mr. Timms: Information in the following table was provided by the Pensions Regulator and shows the number of schemes that are currently in the process of winding up and the number of schemes that have wound up, for each year since 2 April 1997.

	Scheme status winding up		Scheme status wound up
Effective date scheme status was changed on register	Number of schemes	Total membership	Number of schemes	Total membership
2 April 1997 to 31 March 1998	57	2,648	8,248	54,439
1 April 1998 to 31 March 1999	128	4,118	7,708	71,351
1 April 1999 to 31 March 2000	2,909	52,051	8,462	64,608
1 April 2000 to 31 March 2001	1,035	29,760	6,720	65,510
1 April 2001 to 31 March 2002	1,443	43,015	5,822	128,060
1 April 2002 to 31 March 2003	1,129	54,528	6,250	145,039
1 April 2003 to 31 March 2004	1,171	51,549	6,316	127,839
1 April 2004 to 31 March 2005	564	59,767	4,328	78,878
Total	8,436	297,436	53,854	735,724

Notes:

1. A winding up scheme is one which has notified the Pensions Regulator (or its predecessor the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority) that it has commenced winding up procedures.
2. A wound up scheme is one which has notified the Pensions Regulator (or its predecessor the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority) that it has completed winding up procedures.
3. Schemes are required to notify the Pensions Regulator of changes in scheme status as soon as is reasonably practical. This means that the data for the year ended 31 March 2005 is provisional.
4. The figures are based on information held on the register as at 11 January 2006. The effective date for the scheme status is based on the last scheme status change date.
5. Figures for 1997–98 commence on 2 April 1997 because, where a scheme commenced or completed winding up procedures prior to 1 April 1997 but the exact date cannot be ascertained, a default value of 1 April 1997 is used as the date on which the scheme commenced or completed winding up procedures. As a result a very large number of schemes are recorded as having commenced or completed winding up procedures with a scheme status change date of 1 April 1997, even if they had commenced or completed winding up procedures at some earlier date. Including schemes with this default date in the table would significantly overstate the number of schemes that commenced or completed winding up procedures during 1997, so a start date of 2 April has been used for 1997–98.
6. Total membership includes active, deferred and pensioner members. It is not possible to provide a breakdown of these numbers.
7. During 2005–06 the Pensions Regulator will continue with its plans to issue all occupational pension schemes that are registered in the UK a scheme return form. This will provide the Pension Regulator with access to enhanced data in future years.

Work-focused Interviews

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate his Department has made of the cost of providing work-focused interviews for incapacity benefit recipients who do not receive them at the moment. [44953]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 23 January 2006]: Almost all incapacity benefit recipients already receive a work-focused interview at some time during their claim if they remain on the benefit for a significant period. All new claimants are interviewed and existing claimants are interviewed at least once every three years.

However, in the newly published Green Paper A new deal for welfare: Empowering people to work, we have said that, as resources allow, we will consider increasing the frequency of work-focused interviews for existing claimants. If every current incapacity benefit recipient were to be interviewed at least once a year, we estimate the cost would be of the order of £80 million annually. The actual costs would be dependent on the numbers joining and leaving the benefit during any one year.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Animal Welfare

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the transportation of live animals intended for use in food products; and what changes have been made to the regulations relating to the transport of horses since 2004. [47203]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government would prefer a trade in meat to the long distance transport of live animals to slaughter.

New welfare in transport rules take effect in January 2007 under EC Regulation 1/2005. The UK supported the new Regulation as it does much to help improve animal welfare in transport, such as better enforcement of the rules, and new training and authorisation procedures. We regret that it did not lower the maximum journey times to slaughter. But there will be an opportunity for a review of journey times in 2011.

The new rules also contain welfare measures designed to further protect horse welfare. Unbroken horses (not trained to halter) may only be transported up to eight hours and in groups of no more than four. Horses travelling more than eight hours must be in single stalls, as must horses travelling by sea. The hon. Member may also wish to note that there is no evidence of a slaughter trade from this country or any demand for one.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will take steps to seek common standards for animal welfare within the EU. [47846]

Mr. Bradshaw: Common standards for many areas of animal welfare already exist within the European Union (EU). These include standards of welfare on-farm, during transport and at slaughter.

The Commission's proposals for the next five years are set out in the EU Animal Welfare Action Plan, published on 23 January. We look forward to continued engagement with the Commission and fellow member states on this.

Avian Influenza

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 5 December 2005, Official Report, column 922W, on avian influenza, what documentary evidence her Department holds to support the statement that the silver eared mesias suspected of dying from avian influenza in quarantine in Essex were bred in captivity in Taiwan. [46484]

Mr. Bradshaw: The export health certificates issued by the Taiwanese authorities, which accompanied the birds, identify the holding of origin in Taiwan. Representatives of the Taiwanese authorities advised us in a meeting that mesias are bred in captivity on the holding in question.

Beef

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects the European Council of Ministers to consider the proposal to lift the EU export ban on British beef. [46674]

Mr. Bradshaw: The proposal is currently being considered by the Commission's Standing Committee on the Food Chain and Animal Health (SCoFCAH). If there is no significant opposition, the Commission have stated that they will put the proposal to a vote at SCoFCAH on 8 March. The proposal would be referred to the Council only if it is not adopted by SCoFCAH. However, the earliest the lifting of the ban could take effect is mid-April.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps her Department has taken to facilitate the lifting of the EU export ban on British beef. [46699]

Mr. Bradshaw: The UK Government believe that the lifting of the ban is already overdue and have been working work the Commission to ensure that it is lifted as soon as possible. The Secretary of State has had a number of discussions with Commissioner Kyprianou and has written to member states. The Chief Veterinary Officer has also written to all member states outlining the technical arguments supporting a lifting of the ban. Officials in Defra and in British embassies are in contact with member states and, where necessary, have visited key Government Departments to provide more detailed technical information.

Bovine TB

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will estimate what percentage of skin-tested reacting cattle were subsequently found to have bovine TB when slaughtered. [46349]

Mr. Bradshaw: When used as a routine screening test, the single intradermal comparative cervical test (SICCT) is designed to maximise specificity (identification of uninfected animals), while retaining good sensitivity (identification of infected animals). The sensitivity of the SICCT is between 77 per cent. and 95 per cent. Its specificity is above 99 per cent. It is designed to detect an immune response at a relatively early stage in the infection process. Therefore, in most cases, cattle that react to the skin test are considered to have bovine TB.

Failure to confirm bovine tuberculosis by post-mortem examination at the slaughterhouse, or by culturing Mycobacterium bovis in the laboratory, does not mean that the disease was not present in the animal.

In the early stages of the disease, it is not always possible to see lesions with the naked eye, and, due to the fastidious nature of the organism, it is not possible to culture from samples in every case.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the cost to farmers of the move to table valuations for compensation. [46733]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government's aim is to ensure a fair compensation scheme to cattle owners having animals removed under bovine TB control measures, without it being detrimental to the taxpayer.

From 1 February 2006, compensation for farmers whose cattle are affected by bovine TB, brucellosis and Enzootic Bovine Leukosis will be determined through a new table valuation system. Each month an average sales price (based on one month's data for non-pedigree cattle and six months' data for pedigree animals) will be calculated for the 47 specified cattle categories—and these averages will constitute the compensation payment for animals in the same category.

The effect of the new compensation system on businesses has been considered in the context of a regulatory impact assessment (RIA), available in the House Library. The RIA shows that the new system will reduce the risk of over compensation for bovine TB, and a reduction in total compensation expenditure.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will introduce an appeals system as part of the move to using table valuations for awarding cattle compensation. [46734]

Mr. Bradshaw: Under the new table valuation based compensation system, cattle owners will receive compensation equivalent to the average price achieved, in reported sales across Great Britain, for animals in the same category. As the criteria for determining an animal's category will be clear and objective, we do not believe that an appeals system is necessary.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to increase the level of compensation for reacting cattle; and what assessment she has made of the effect of the existing level of compensation on owners of high value pedigree cattle. [47840]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government want compensation arrangements that are fair to cattle owners and the taxpayer.

On 1 February 2006, we introduced a new table valuation based compensation system for farmers whose cattle are affected by bovine TB, brucellosis or Enzootic Bovine Leukosis. The same system will be introduced for cattle affected by BSE, on 1 March 2006. 47 pre-determined cattle categories are being used; these are based on the animal's age, gender, and type (ie pedigree or non-pedigree).

The effect of the new compensation system on businesses has been considered in the context of a regulatory impact assessment (RIA), available in the Library of the House.

British Farm Produce

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much of the (a) bread-making wheat, (b) butter, (c) cheese and (d) beef consumed in the United Kingdom between 2000 and 2004 was produced by British farmers. [46187]

Mr. Bradshaw: The amount of produce available for consumption in the United Kingdom is measured by its total new supply. The following tables show production in the United Kingdom as a proportion of total new supply.

UK production as a proportion of total new supply

Percentage

	Butter	Cheese	Beef
2000	64	63	79
2001	63	66	72
2002	64	65	71
2003	64	62	70
2004	61	61	70
2005[1]	65	63	74

[1] Provisional

Information specifically on the amount of bread-making wheat consumed in the United Kingdom that was produced by British farmers is not available. However, available data show that the following proportion of home grown wheat was used by United Kingdom millers:

UK proportion of home grown wheat used by millers in the UK

Wheat	Percentage
2000	82
2001	85
2002	83
2004	86

The data include wheat milled to produce bread, biscuits, other food ingredients and starch, where production of flour for bread making was typically around 60 per cent. of the total flour produced over this time period. No data are yet available for 2005.

Buncefield Oil Depot

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans her Department has to track and evaluate the ongoing environmental effects of the recent oil refinery explosion in Hertfordshire. [39522]

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what environmental studies have been undertaken by her Department in Hemel Hempstead to assess the consequences of the Buncefield oil depot fire and subsequent explosion. [47823]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 2 February 2006]: The main environmental consequences of concern relate to possible contamination of surface and ground waters, safety of drinking water supplies and gaseous and particulate emissions to the atmosphere.

Efforts to contain contaminated water and fuel were largely successful; firewater on the site has now been removed and is stored in secure off-site storage tanks. The site is still under the control of the Health and Safety Executive and Police and a detailed site investigation is under way. Drinking water sources in the surrounding area continue to be monitored and to date have shown no impacts attributable to the Buncefield incident.

Recent investigations have revealed that a road drain immediately to the north of the site contains a borehole extending into the underlying strata that contains a black liquid, which is currently being analysed. The Environment Agency will continue to monitor the situation and work with the Drinking Water Inspectorate, local water companies, the Health Protection Agency, the site operators and other relevant bodies to carry out these investigations and develop any remedial action necessary. Three Valleys Water have been informed of these findings, but the company is not currently abstracting from the nearby boreholes. More information, results from analysis and further sampling will be needed before the EA can clarify the extent of any groundwater pollution.

Regarding emissions to air, the main air pollutants of concern from hydrocarbon fuel fires are emitted as particulate matter especially those particles of respirable size (referred to as PM10), and polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons, measured as benzo*(a)* pyrene. In the very high temperatures of the fire (3000°C) however all organic chemicals will be completely destroyed. There is the possibility that in the cooler margins of the fire and during the relatively short period at the end of the fire, some of the products of incomplete combustion at the lower temperatures may be hazardous.

Monitoring undertaken close to the fire when the fire brigade began to attack the blaze did pick up elevated areas of particulates and of hydrocarbon solvents for a short period but this was foreseen and, provided that the warnings given beforehand were complied with, no public health effects are envisaged. None of the data from later air monitoring indicated any values that were outside the normal range of ambient air levels.

There is no ongoing risk to air quality from the Buncefield fire as the pollutants have been widely dispersed through the atmosphere and, in general, have had no discernable impact on background levels of pollution. The following exceptions were consistent with the footprint of the plume and may have been associated with its descent to ground level. On the evening of Sunday 11 and early in the morning of Monday 12 December, monitoring sites in parts of east Surrey and Sussex detected PM_{10} particulate concentrations reaching 'moderate' levels in Horsham and Lewes. Monitoring sites in north London and St. Albans also showed slightly elevated concentrations, but remained in the 'low' air pollution band.

On the evening of Tuesday 13, PM_{10} particulate was detected at the Barnet 2 background sites and on the morning of Wednesday 14, PM_{10} particulate was detected at the Watford 1 site. In both cases concentrations remained 'low'.

Throughout the period of the fire 'moderate' PM_{10} particulate was measured at several roadside sites in London. This was due to road transport sources and was not directly related to the smoke from the oil depot fire. 'Moderate' PM_{10} concentrations at the Chichester 1 site were due to nearby road resurfacing.

Levels of pollution in the UK during the course of the fire were therefore within the normal range of ambient air levels at each location, and are not considered exceptional.

A report of the supplementary air quality monitoring carried out by Defra at the time of the fire is currently in preparation and is planned for publication in March 2006. The Health Protection Agency is currently carrying out an assessment of the impacts on human health of the Buncefield fire. There have been no substantive immediate health effects reported from the areas affected by the fire and plume. A multi-agency surveillance steering group, chaired by the Health Protection Agency, is working on projects to assess whether any long-term effects (physical, psychological and toxic) might occur and work-streams are proceeding.

Regarding emissions of carbon dioxide to the atmosphere, I refer the hon. Member to the Minister of State for Environment's reply to a Question from the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker), published in on 9 January 2006, Official Report, column 10W.

Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) fixed penalty notices have been issued and (b) successful prosecutions have been brought in Tamworth constituency under each section of the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005 that has been brought into force to date. [48652]

Mr. Bradshaw: The fixed penalty provisions contained in the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005 will not be commenced until April this year. Figures for this coming fiscal year will be available in June 2007.

Climate Change

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what projections she has made regarding UK carbon dioxide figures for each year until 2010; [48019]

(2) what projections she made regarding UK carbon dioxide figures for 2005. [48141]

Mr. Morley: Final UK greenhouse gas emissions for 1990 to 2004 were published by Defra on 23 January 2006. Net carbon dioxide (CO_2) emissions (ie emissions from sources minus removals by sinks) were 152.5 million tonnes of carbon equivalent (MtC) for 2004. Provisional estimates of UK CO_2 emissions for 2005 are due to be published by Defra and DTI on 30 March 2006.

The headline figures from the most recent CO_2 emissions projections for 2010 were published in the Government's Energy Review consultation paper, "Our Energy Challenge: securing clean, affordable energy for the long term", on 23 January 2006. These show that, based on current measures only, CO_2 emissions are projected to be 144.2 MtC in 2010. The revised Climate Change Programme, which we will publish shortly, will contain additional measures to reduce further our CO_2 emissions.

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects to reach agreement with the heat treatment sector on eligibility for climate change levy exemption; and if she will make a statement. [47516]

Mr. Morley: Regulations to enact the new eligibility criteria under which the heat treatment sector is able to enter into the Climate Change Agreements came into force on Saturday 21 January 2006. The heat treatment sector's Climate Change Umbrella Agreement was signed on Monday 23 January 2006. On the same day, most of the individual facilities' underlying Climate Change Agreements were also signed and their details notified to HM Revenue and Customs for entry on to their website. This gives access to the 80 per cent. discount from the Climate Change Levy to which these facilities are now entitled. Applications for five heat treatment companies were incomplete. We expect to be able to sign these agreements this week.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the progress of the Climate Change Programme Review. [48002]

Mr. Morley: We are aiming to publish the revised UK Climate Change Programme as soon as possible this year.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations she has made to other Government Departments regarding the Climate Change Programme review; and what response has been received. [48006]

Mr. Morley: We have been working closely with other Government Departments throughout the Climate Change Programme review. We are aiming to publish the outcomes of this work in the revised UK Climate Change Programme as soon as possible this year.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what assessment she has made of the steps which need to be taken on an annual basis in order to meet long-term carbon reduction targets up to 2050; [48003]

(2) what measures have been taken to ensure that Government long-term targets on climate change meet emission reduction pathways. [48004]

Mr. Morley: The Government recognise that atmospheric concentrations of greenhouse gases depend on the amounts emitted, so emissions reduction pathways are as important as the targets themselves.

The Energy White Paper said we would put ourselves on a path to cut the UK's carbon dioxide emissions by some 60 per cent. by about 2050, with real progress by 2020. To achieve the 2050 target we would need to reduce emissions by, on average, about 2 MtC a year. However, some annual fluctuation in emissions is inevitable due to uncontrollable factors such as the weather. The first commitment period of the Kyoto Protocol, for example, is for five years rather than a single target year to smooth out annual fluctuations in emissions.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations she has received regarding climate change targets based on 550 parts per million; and if she will make a statement. [48005]

Mr. Morley: Various representations on the issues of future action on climate change and stabilisation levels have been received by the Department. The EU, including the UK, has set as an objective to keep global temperatures from rising by more than two degrees Celsius above pre-industrial levels. The EU Environment Council in March 2005 noted that in order to have a reasonable chance to limit global warming to no more than two degrees Celsius, stabilisation of concentrations well below 550 parts per million CO_2 equivalent may be needed.

Correspondence

Sir Patrick Cormack: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State will reply to the hon. Member for South Staffordshire's letter of 5 September 2005 on training grants for fisheries officers. [46670]

Mr. Bradshaw: A reply was sent to the hon. Member on 27 January 2006. I will arrange for a further copy to be sent.

Departmental Research

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to review current arrangements for ensuring that departmental research and findings are totally impartial. [45732]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has a varied and wide ranging programme of auditing and peer reviewing the outputs of its research. This relies on using external experts to advise the Department on the robustness and reliability of the research. This programme, on which we receive regular feedback, is continuous and ongoing, examining either individual pieces of research or entire research programmes.

The Department's science quality assurance and peer review processes were reviewed last year by the Department's independent Science Advisory Council. Their report is published on the Department's website.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the research budget of her Department was in each year since its inception. [48455]

Mr. Bradshaw: The research budget for Defra for 2001–05 is as follows:

2001–02	144
2002–03	144
2003–04	146
2004–05	152

Energy Policy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on progress towards meeting Government combined heat and power targets. [48018]

Mr. Morley: The Government target for CHP is to achieve at least 10 gigawatts of Good Quality CHP capacity by 2010. We are not at present on course to achieve the target. Installed capacity at the end of 2004 was 5.6 gigawatts and figures for 2005 will be contained in the annual Digest of UK Energy Statistics, due to be published in the summer. We are analysing potential new support measures as part of the Climate Change Programme Review process.

Fallen Stock

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent guidance she has given to farmers concerning the disposal of fallen stock. [47093]

Mr. Bradshaw: The current rules on disposal of fallen stock have applied from May 2003 and the National Fallen Stock Scheme started in November 2004. Guidance on these can be found on the Defra website at http://www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/by-prods/fallen/fallen.htm and the National Fallen Stock Scheme website at http://www.nationalfallenstock.co.uk. The National Fallen Stock Company also communicates regularly with its members.

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the level of additional carbon emissions generated between 1 January 2005 and 1 January 2006 through, and ancillary to, the incineration of fallen stock necessitated as a result of the ban on on-farm burial. [47204]

Mr. Bradshaw: None. The ban on burying on-farm fallen stock was introduced by the EU Animal By-Products Regulation 1774/2002. It is there to protect public and animal health from any potential risks associated with the burial of fallen stock.

Fisheries

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the maximum permitted length is of a bottom set gillnet or entangling net used by UK fishing vessels of 12 metres or more in length, operating in ICES areas VII e, f, g, h and j; and what the (a) average and (b) maximum length is of nets being used by these vessels. [38831]

Mr. Bradshaw: There are no restrictions on the maximum length of bottom set gillnets or tangle nets in ICES areas VII e, f, g, h and j. The length of netting used varies greatly but we do not have data on the average or maximum length s used.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations she has made to the (a) Government of Ireland and (b) EU Commission regarding the use of Irish salmon drift nets in relation to the Habitats Directive; and if she will make a statement. [42966]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 19 January 2006]: The UK Government regularly impresses upon the Irish Government the need to take steps to reduce and eventually eliminate the impact of the Irish salmon drift net fishery on UK salmon stocks and I have raised the issue directly with my Irish counterparts on several occasions. The issue has also been raised regularly at informal meetings between UK and Irish officials and in discussions with the European Commission and with other EU member states in the context of the EU's commitments to the North Atlantic Salmon Conservation Organisation (NASCO). The Commission is understood to be considering what proposals it might make to the Fisheries Council on the regulation of salmon fishing in EU waters. To that end it commissioned a report (to which scientists from the UK and Ireland contributed) on the impact of coastal salmon fisheries on the conservation of in-river stocks.

We understand that the European Commission has issued a letter of formal complaint to the Irish Government about the effects of drift netting on the conservation status of salmon. This is the first step towards a possible Action in the European Court of Justice against Ireland in respect of its failure to meet obligations towards salmon under the EC Habitats Directive. Unless and until such time as the Commission formally institutes such action, its case against the Irish Government is not a matter of public record, nor is the UK Government given the opportunity to comment.

Operating and Financial Review

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions her Department had with the Treasury before the decision not to proceed with Operating and Financial Review; and if she will make a statement. [46956]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 31 January 2006]: Discussions were held at various levels, including between the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, before the decision was taken to remove the obligation on businesses to publish operating and financial reviews.

Poultry Farmers

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the UK has met the EU directive requirement that all commercial poultry keepers are registered; and what definition of commercial is used for this purpose. [41515]

Mr. Bradshaw: In order to meet the requirements of Directive 2005/94/EC, the Great Britain Poultry Register was launched on 9 December 2005. Commercial premises of 50 birds or more have until 28 February 2006 to register with the Department.

The definitions for poultry and commercial poultry premises are those used in the Avian Influenza (Preventive Measures)(No. 2) Regulations 2005. For the purpose of the Register, "poultry" means all birds that are reared or kept in captivity for the production of meat or eggs for consumption, the production of other commercial products, for restocking supplies of game or for the purposes of any breeding programme for the production of these categories of birds. "Commercial poultry premises" means premises where poultry are kept for commercial purposes and does not include premises where all poultry (and their eggs) are kept by their owners for their own consumption or as pets.

No formal legal definition exists of the term "commercial". Ultimately it would be for the courts to define, but in principle, the word should be given its ordinary meaning. Having said that, commercial activities typically involve the exchange of money, goods or services. Using an example from the game world, we think that premises rearing and/or releasing gamebirds are likely to be commercial poultry premises, as activities on these premises would involve some level of commercial transaction. The supply of birds/carcases to third parties for services rendered would count as "commercial". It is possible, however, that small private syndicates communally owning, shooting and consuming all their birds would classify as non-commercial premises.

If there is any uncertainty about premises with more than 50 poultry being commercial, we recommend that the premises are registered. Information on the GB Poultry Register can be found at http://www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/diseases/vetsurveillance/poultry/index.htm.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many poultry farmers there are in the United Kingdom who have (a) over 50 birds and (b) 50 or under birds; and how many have signed up to the National Poultry Register. [43550]

Mr. Bradshaw: Government and various individual poultry organisations hold information separately but currently no central register exists of how many poultry farmers there are in the UK with (a) over 50 or (b) 50 and under birds.

Defra, the Scottish Executive and the Welsh Assembly Government have developed the Great Britain Poultry Register, which opened on 9 December 2005, to gather essential information about the numbers and location of poultry held on commercial premises. The Department of Agriculture and Rural Development for Northern Ireland is also capturing data about poultry premises but on a separate database. We are liaising closely so information can be effectively collated on a UK level.

The total number of poultry premises registered by 18 January on the GB Poultry Register was 3201. Reports containing a breakdown of the numbers in terms of flock size are currently being developed and will be available shortly.

Further information on the GB Poultry Register can be accessed at http://www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/diseases/vetsurveillance/poultry/index.htm

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what form of registration system there is in place for poultry farmers who keep under 50 birds. [43551]

Mr. Bradshaw: There is no legal requirement for keepers of fewer than 50 poultry to be registered on the Great Britain Poultry Register.

However they can register on a voluntary basis if they wish using the same registration system that is available to poultry keepers with more than 50 birds; either the telephone (to register by freephone using a trained adviser), by post or by e-mail (by downloading a form from the Great Britain Poultry Register web page).

Further information on the GB Poultry Register can be accessed at http://www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/diseases/vetsurveillance/poultry/index.htm

Poultry Imports

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs from which countries (a) untreated feathers, (b) raw poultry meat, (c) uncooked eggs and egg products and (d) live poultry and game have been imported in each of the last five years; and what quantity of each product was imported in each year. [45984]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 26 January 2006]: Details of the imports requested as recorded in the Overseas Trade Statistics are provided in the tables made available in the Library of the House.

Note that China, Vietnam, Hong Kong, Pakistan and South Africa have been banned from exporting unprocessed feathers and parts of unprocessed feathers since January 2004. This is in line with the usual bans in effect on any country affected by, or suspected to have, highly pathogenic avian influenza—HPAI. Only processed feathers have been allowed to be imported from these countries since January 2004.

Sewage

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many tonnes of human sewage sludge was disposed of on (a) agricultural land and (b) by other means in each of the last five years. [47942]

Mr. Morley: The total number of dry solid tonnes of sewage sludge recycled to agricultural land and disposed of by other means in England and Wales in the years 2000–04 was as follows:

	Agriculture	Other routes
2000	556,798	384,326
2001	664,685	365,036
2002	701,249	490,015
2003	802,555	476,781
2004	796,927	424,117

Note:
Under The Sludge (Use in Agriculture) Regulations 1989, "agriculture" means the growing of all types of commercial food crops, including for stock-rearing purposes. Before being applied to agricultural land, sludge from wastewater treatment plants is treated in accordance with the Safe Sludge Matrix.

Sustainable Building

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on Government procurement in relation to sustainable building practices. [48015]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The Government is committed to supporting sustainable building practices through best practice procurement by the public sector. The mandated 'Common Minimum Standards for the procurement of built environments in the Public Sector' (CMS), published by the Office of Government Commerce (OGC), includes a sustainability standard that states:

"Project and programme procurement strategies will take full account of the Government's commitment to sustainable development and of the economic, environmental and social impacts of its decisions."

The CMS and other relevant construction procurement guidance are available on the OGC website www.ogc.gov.uk

UK Food Security

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on UK food security. [46624]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government naturally takes the issue of food security very seriously. Food security is about ensuring that consumers have access to a stable and adequate supply of food, whether domestically produced or imported. The UK has long been a net importer of food and national and international food security is best facilitated through improved trading relationships based on more open international markets and reductions in trade distorting subsidies.

Food supply is robust and resilient because of the high degree of demand and supply-side substitutability of foodstuffs. DEFRA works closely with all parts of the industry to ensure that appropriate support is provided to maintain supply throughout the chain in the event of significant disruption.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment her Department has made of the percentage of (a) indigenous food and (b) all food consumed in the UK produced in the UK; and if she will make a statement on her Department's policy on amounts of food imported. [46625]

Mr. Bradshaw: The latest published figures for 2004 show the UK was (a) 74.2 per cent. self-sufficient in indigenous food and (b) 63.4 per cent. self-sufficient in all food. This compares with figures for 2000 of 80.3 per cent. and 66.8 per cent. respectively.

The Government naturally takes the issue of food security very seriously. Food security is about ensuring that consumers have access to a stable and adequate supply of food, whether domestically produced or imported. The UK has long been a net importer of food and national and international food security is best facilitated through improved trading relationships based on more open international markets and reductions in trade distorting subsidies.

Food supply is robust and resilient because of the high degree of demand and supply-side substitutability of foodstuffs. DEFRA works closely with all parts of the industry to ensure that appropriate support is provided to maintain supply throughout the chain in the event of significant disruption.

Waste Management

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which local authorities provide a kerbside collection service for recyclable materials; and which separate materials are collected in each of these local authorities. [45641]

Mr. Bradshaw: All local authorities in England with responsibility for waste collection (except for the Council of the Isles of Scilly) operate some form of kerbside collection service for recyclable materials.

Local authorities have provided information in the Defra Municipal Waste Management Survey. The data for 2003–04 on the materials that are collected separately for recycling is shown in the table—a copy has been placed in the Library of the House. These have been coded as:

A—paper and card, B—glass, C—compost, D—scrap metal and white goods, E—textiles, F—cans, G—plastics.

Where information from the 2003–04 survey is not available, the most recent available information prior to 2003–04 has been used. Data from the 2004–05 survey will be available in spring 2006.

Some authorities have been listed with no separate materials recycled. These authorities will normally provide a form of kerbside waste collection service which will include at least some of the materials listed, but collected in a co-mingled format.

It should be noted that many local authorities are quite active regarding their kerbside recycling services. Authorities sometimes change and update current schemes as well as introduce new schemes. In this respect, listed activity may not reflect recent changes in kerbside collection services.

Water

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the level of debt owed to water companies for non-payment of water rates; what discussions she has had with the water companies on this issue, with particular reference to the policy of non-disconnection except in extreme circumstances; and if she will make a statement. [47845]

Mr. Morley: Customer debt is primarily the responsibility of water companies to manage. Companies still have a range of means to recover payments, including through the courts. The previous power of water companies to disconnect household customers for non-payment of water bills was ended, by the Water Industry Act 1999, without any qualification concerning extreme circumstances. Water companies, in their discussions with Ministers and officials, are not pressing for the power to disconnect to be restored. I am prepared to consider any suggestions for how Government should help companies to tackle customer debt. The industry itself needs to identify and apply best practice in debt management, and I welcome companies' efforts to do so.

The responsibility for the economic regulation of the water industry rests with the Director-General of Water Services (Ofwat). Ofwat monitors companies' debt situation on an annual basis.

The following table presents figures provided by Ofwat on the revenue outstanding to water companies by household customers. This table sets out key indicators for 1998–99, 2003–04 and 2004–05. It also shows the percentage changes between these years.

2004–05 prices	1998–99	2003–04	2004–05	Percentage change between 1998–99 and 2004–05	Percentage change between 2003–04 and 2004–05[2]
Household revenue outstanding < 48 months[1]	705	804	828	17	3
Household revenue outstanding < 12 months[1]	381	377	400	5	6

Household revenue written off	69	96	114	65	19
Household revenue written off as a percentage of household revenue billed in that year	1.3	1.9	2.2	n/a	n/a

[1] Includes revenue written off.

Notes:

1. All numbers are rounded for ease of reference.
2. Percentage changes are derived from unrounded numbers.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the current level of the water table in the area supplying Peterborough constituency. [48144]

Mr. Morley: Peterborough's water requirements are supplied by Rutland Water whose level is currently 80 per cent. of capacity. The nearest groundwater is to the north of Peterborough where the level is 11.89 metres Above Ordnance Datum (mAOD), which is slightly above the long term average for this time of year of 11.73mAOD.

Wheat Stores

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many days' supply of bread making wheat have been in store in England over the last four years. [48268]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 30 January 2006]: We do not have information specifically on supply levels of bread making wheat in store in England.

However data on the stock level for all milling wheat are collected under the Defra monthly survey of wheat milled in the UK. This includes wheat milled to produce bread, biscuits, other food ingredients and starch, where production of flour for bread making was typically around 60 per cent. of the total flour produced. Assuming typical utilisation and production levels, it is estimated that UK millers have held approximately 15–25 days supply and on average 20 days supply of all types of wheat for milling in the last four years. The wheat stocks include both UK and imported wheat grain.

Further significant stocks of UK produced and/or imported wheat which may be used for bread making will be held at other points in the supply chain such as on farm, by merchants, at ports or by co-ops. We do not have information on the volume or proportion of these wheat stocks that are of bread making quality.

WALES

Christmas Cards

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will estimate the cost to his Department of sending Christmas cards in 2005. [45921]

Nick Ainger: The Wales Office spent £760 on Christmas cards in 2005.

The postage charges of the Christmas cards were not separately identified from the rest of the Department's mail. This figure can be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Council Tax

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales pursuant to the answer of 30 November 2005, Official Report, column 531W, on council tax, how many of the 1,765 appeals resulted in being moved (a) up and (b) down council tax bands. [46998]

Nick Ainger: Where, on re-assessment, no reduction in banding is found to be appropriate, the taxpayer is invited to withdraw their appeal.

It follows that the 1,765 appeals referred to by my right hon. Friend all resulted in movement to a lower band.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether (a) the Valuation Office Agency and (b) its contractors took photographs of any domestic properties for valuation purposes during the council tax revaluation in Wales. [47029]

Nick Ainger: The Valuation Office Agency did not use contractors during the council tax revaluation in Wales.

The Valuation Office Agency took external photographs of domestic properties, where required, for banding purposes and to assist the listing officers to arrive at fair and accurate valuations.

Departmental Assets

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the items of departmental property worth over £100 that have been reported as (a) lost and (b) broken in the last 12 months. [47672]

Mr. Hain: None.

Early Retirement

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many departmental employees have taken early retirement due to ill-health in each of the past five years for which figures are available. [46771]

Nick Ainger: None

Jewish Festivals

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what his Office did to (a) celebrate Hanukkah and (b) mark Yom Kippur in 2005. [46768]

Nick Ainger: The Wales Office is a small Department, and did not host any specific events to mark Hannukah or Yom Kippur. However, Wales Office staff come under the umbrella of the Department for Constitutional Affairs, and in line with their diversity policies, sympathetic consideration is given by managers to any requests for time off to mark religious festivals. Our staff are encouraged to participate in DCA's diversity networks, and we are currently represented on their Faith Forum. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State recently attended the Holocaust Memorial Day Commemorative Event, which was held in Cardiff.

Lyons Inquiry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will place in the Library a copy of the written submissions from his Department to the Lyons Inquiry into local government. [47901]

Mr. Hain: The Lyons Inquiry is independent of the Government. Sir Michael Lyons will decide what to publish when he makes available his final report.

Probation and Prison Services

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what matters relating to (a) the Probation Service and (b) the Prison Service in Wales are devolved. [48979]

Mr. Hain: These services are not devolved. However the National Offender Management Service works closely with the Welsh Assembly Government in respect of any activity that touches on devolved matters. Furthermore, under the Children Act 2004 the Assembly will be able, with the consent of my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary, to issue guidance to local probation boards and youth offending teams on co-operating with other public bodies in their area with a view to improving the well-being of children.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what role the Valuation Office Agency is playing in collating (a) value significant code and (b) dwellinghouse code data in Wales for council tax valuation purposes. [47884]

Mr. Hain: The Valuation Office Agency has collected and recorded data on dwellings in paper form for a considerable time, initially for domestic rating and now for council tax. This data is currently being digitised to increase the overall cost efficiency of the Agency's operations and deliver further improvements in customer service for the taxpayer in Wales.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans the Valuation Office Agency has to introduce (a) computer-assisted mass appraisal and (b) the automated valuation model in Wales for council tax valuation purposes. [47902]

Mr. Hain: The Valuation Office Agency is currently exploring the potential for the use of the automated valuation model to support work in connection with the maintenance of the current (2005) council tax lists in Wales. The objective would be to increase the overall cost efficiency of the Agency's operations and to deliver further improvements in customer service for the taxpayer in Wales. However, it would be for the Welsh Assembly Government to agree its implementation, scope and application.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what estimate the Valuation Office Agency has made of the number of homes in Wales which will move up a further council tax band in April as the first stage of transitional relief is phased out, broken down by local authority. [47905]

Mr. Hain: The Valuation Office Agency has made no such estimate as calculation of council tax liability and the operation of the transitional relief scheme are not matters for them.

The transitional relief scheme announced by the Welsh Assembly Government remains in place and will ensure that no household will move up by more than one band in year one, two bands in year two, or three bands in year three of the scheme.

The total number of properties showing an increase of two or more bands as at 31 December 2005 is 60,073. The breakdown by Billing Authority is in the table as follows:

Council tax—Wales as at 31 December 2005

Billing authority	Moved by more than 1 band
Isle of Anglesey	1,552
Gwynedd	3,477
Cardiff	18,582

NORTHERN IRELAND

Accident and Emergency Departments

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many NHS hospitals have (a) closed and (b) downgraded their accident and emergency departments in each of the last seven years. [48276]

Mr. Woodward: My Department has made significant investment in A&E services in recent years, increasing the number of A&E consultants in post by some 68 per cent. from 19 in 2000 to 32 in 2005. In financial terms total annual investment in A&E services has increased by almost 65 per cent. from just under £34 million in 1999–2000 to over £56 million in 2003–04 (the latest year for which figures are available).

In 2000, following concerns about the safety and sustainability of services, A&E and other acute services were transferred from South Tyrone Hospital in Dungannon to Craigavon Area Hospital. South Tyrone Hospital continues to provide a doctor-led minor injuries service, together with a wide range of other hospital services, including day surgery, outpatients and diagnostics.

More recently, in response to similar safety and sustainability concerns, I announced in December 2005 that full A&E services for the Sperrin Lakeland area would be consolidated on the Erne Hospital site in Enniskillen, with the Tyrone County Hospital in Omagh providing a 24-hour, doctor-led urgent care and treatment centre.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what training has been provided to local councils on the use of antisocial behaviour orders in Northern Ireland in each of the last two years; and what the cost of the training was in each year. [48718]

Mr. Hanson: The Northern Ireland Office Community Safety Unit, in conjunction with the Police Service of Northern Ireland, the Northern Ireland Housing Executive and the Society of Local Authority Chief Executives, provided five training sessions during January and February 2005 for practitioners from the police, Housing Executive and local councils throughout Northern Ireland on using antisocial behaviour orders. These training sessions cost the NIO £6,009.42.

The Community Safety Unit also assisted councils in running two further training sessions on antisocial behaviour orders in June 2005 specifically for council officers. The total cost of these sessions for the councils was £1,522.70.

Bed Occupancy

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average bed occupancy rate was for each of Northern Ireland's acute hospitals during 2005. [48533]

Mr. Woodward: Percentage bed occupancy rates during 2004–05, for all hospitals that carry out specialties from the acute programme of care, are shown in the following table.

Percentage bed occupancy by hospital for 2004–05

Hospital	Percentage
Altnagelvin Area	81.0
Antrim	81.3
Ards	84.9

Birthing Centres

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many midwife-led birthing centres are planned for Northern Ireland over the next five years; and where they will be. [48274]

Mr. Woodward: The Government are committed to providing the women of Northern Ireland with a range of choices in their maternity care. High quality, consultant-led maternity services are already available to all of the population of Northern Ireland.

To broaden choice for women we are working towards increasing the number of midwife-led units that are located on the same site as consultant obstetric units. There is currently one such unit in Northern Ireland, at Craigavon Area Hospital. We have plans to develop similar units at other hospitals including Altnagelvin Hospital, the Ulster Hospital and the new Belfast Maternity Hospital.

In addition, boards and trusts, in conjunction with their local communities, are able to consider the development of stand-alone midwife-led units in locations where there is the support of local professionals, where safe and effective emergency transfer arrangements are in place and where the introduction of such a unit would not impact on the viability of any neighbouring consultant-led unit.

The Eastern Health and Social Services Board, working with Down Lisburn Trust plans to locate a stand-alone midwife-led unit in Downpatrick in 2007, subject to approval of the business case. At this time, no other board has indicated an intention to develop a stand-alone unit.

CCTV (Londonderry)

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made in relation to the request from community representatives to provide CCTV coverage at the Irish Street/Top of the Hill interface in Londonderry. [46793]

Mr. Hanson: The Government continues to support the development of CCTV for town and city centres throughout Northern Ireland 19 city, town and large village centres currently benefit from surveillance by CCTV cameras and a further £2 million has been allocated to build on these systems and provide new systems where necessary. Detailed proposals must be submitted by 31 March and it is hoped that the first new systems will be up and running by late summer 2006.

Londonderry DCU are compiling a proposal to address the concerns of community representatives in the Irish St/Top of the Hill interface in Londonderry. Officials will consider the proposal in consultation with the PSNI when it is received.

Delayed Discharges

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many delayed discharges of elderly patients there are in NHS hospitals because of lack of finance to allocate them beds in nursing or residential homes. [48275]

Mr. Woodward: At 31 December 2005, there were 59 elderly patients who have had their discharge delayed in NHS hospitals because no package of care or placement in institutional care was available. This figure could include those who require funding for domiciliary care as well as funding to allocate patients beds in nursing or residential homes.

Notes:
This figure is provisional and is subject to change.
Patients who were 65 years of age or older at 31 December 2005 are categorised as elderly.

Farm Fed Chickens

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps are being taken by Invest Northern Ireland to offer assistance and retraining to the employees at Farm Fed Chickens following the announcement by the company on Friday 27 January. [48529]

Angela E. Smith: Invest NI has no remit to provide assistance to companies making staff redundant, nor to the employees concerned. This role is undertaken by staff of the Department for Employment and Learning.

The Department for Employment and Learning will provide advice and support for all employees who lose their jobs as a result of redundancy. Staff from the local Jobs and Benefits Office will provide advice on alternative job opportunities and access to training courses and will also ensure that those who have lost their jobs are able to access advice on a range of other issues such as benefits and taxation. The Department will also support employers who are expanding their workforce or creating new jobs by providing job brokering services and suitable training programmes where appropriate. Initial contact was made with Farm Fed Chickens on 27 January to offer the Department's services and a further meeting is arranged for Thursday 2 February 2006.

Hare Coursing

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to introduce a ban on hare coursing in Northern Ireland. [44561]

Angela E. Smith: It is acknowledged that the issue of hare coursing in Northern Ireland concerns many people, however, there are no immediate plans to propose specific legislation to ban hare coursing.

Home Start

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the future funding of the Home Start Project. [47643]

Mr. Woodward: DHSSPS allocates approximately £45,000 core funding per annum for Home Start in Northern Ireland to assist its administration. In addition, funding for Home Start services totalled £1.1 million in 2004-05, as detailed in the following table:

£000

	Amount
HSS trusts/boards	503
Sure Start	287
The Children's Fund	175
Childhood Fund	43
Peace II European Funding	31
Executive Fund for Children	20
Total	1,059

The figures for 2005-06 are not yet available.

The future funding for Home Start will be determined within the priorities and resources of HSS boards and trusts and in liaison with Sure Start projects.

Hospice Care

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total cost was to public funds of supporting each institution set up to offer hospice care in Northern Ireland in 2005. [49151]

Mr. Woodward: Four voluntary institutions provide hospice care in Northern Ireland. They each receive funding from the HPSS for the provision of agreed in-patient and community hospice services. The funding provided in 2005–06 is approximately as follows:

	£ million
The Northern Ireland Hospice	1.90
The Marie Curie Cancer Centre	1.60
The Foyle Hospice	0.25
The Southern Area Hospice	0.60
Total	4.35

In addition to the aforementioned funding for services, the NI hospice also receives a core grant from the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety towards its administration costs. In 2004–05 a grant was made of £117,000.

Hospital Stays (Duration)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average length of stay in hospital in the Province was in each of the last 10 years. [49383]

Mr. Woodward: Figures for average length of stay in Northern Ireland hospitals from 1994–95 to 2004–05 are provided in the following table.

Days

	Average length of stay in hospital
1994–95	9.9
1995–96	9.4
1996–97	9.1
1997–98	8.7
1998–99	7.9
1999–2000	7.8
2002–03	7.8
2003–04	7.8
2004–05	7.6

Note
Day cases are excluded from the calculation of average length of stay.

Inward Investment

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answers of 30 November 2005, Official Report, column 632W, and 9 January 2006, Official Report, column 328W, on inward investment, what assessment he has made of what further steps should be taken to increase the level of foreign direct investment into Northern Ireland. [46468]

Angela E. Smith: I would refer the hon. Gentleman to the answers given on 30 November 2005, Official Report, column 632W, and on 9 January 2006, Official Report, column 329W, on this and closely-related subjects.

Each year Invest NI assesses the foreign direct investment market and outlines the strategy and targets for the year ahead in an International Sales and Marketing Plan that is presented to the Invest NI Board for discussion and approval. This plan analyses performance across all geographical locations and sectors in which Invest NI actively promotes Northern Ireland as an attractive location where new investors can profitably and successfully do business.

M2 (Daily Usage)

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what the average daily number of vehicles using the M2 Motorway outbound between Belfast and (a) Sandyknowes junction, (b) Sandyknowes junction and the A26 junction and (c) the A26 junction and the Toome bypass was in the latest period for which figures are available; [48531]

(2) what the average number of vehicles using the Londonderry/Limavady main road through Ballykelly village was in each of the last five years. [48532]

Mr. Woodward: The chief executive of Roads Service (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to these questions.

Letter from Dr. Malcolm McKibbin, dated 6 February 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland two Parliamentary Questions:

(i) The average daily number of vehicles using the M2 Motorway outbound between Belfast and (a) Sandyknowes junction, (b) Sandyknowes junction and the A26 junction and (c) the A26 junction and the Toome bypass was on the latest date for which figures are available; and

(ii) What the average number of vehicles using the Londonderry/Limavady main road through Ballykelly village was in each of the last five years.

I have been asked to reply as the issues raised fall within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service.

By way of background I should explain that Roads Service collects traffic volume data by means of 270 automatic census points strategically located throughout the Northern Ireland road network. The information is recorded for one week in each quarter during the year and an annual average calculated. The results are published in Roads Service's annual Traffic and Travel Information Report, which presents the traffic volumes in a variety of formats for each site.

The latest data on the average daily number of vehicles using the M2 Motorway outbound from Belfast is shown in the table below.

Location	Average daily flow
M2 Between Belfast and Sandyknowes	32,230
M2 Between Sandyknowes and A26	15,520
M2 Between A26 and Toome Bypass	9,130

The available data on the average volume of vehicles per day recorded in each of the last five years on the A2 through Ballykelly, is shown in the table below.

	A2 Limavady-Londonderry at Greysteel
2001	13,870
2002	14,130
2003	14,290
2004	14,270
2005	14,534

I hope this information is helpful.

Mobile Phone Tracking

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether technology is available to the Police Service for Northern Ireland to allow it to use mobile phone tracking to pursue investigations into (a) missing persons and (b) missing persons believed to be underwater. [46817]

Mr. Woodward: The Police Service of Northern Ireland utilises the same technology as is available to law enforcement agencies in the rest of the United Kingdom and deploys that technology in accordance with the provisions of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 in investigations, including missing persons investigations, where appropriate. Mobile phones under water are highly likely to be inoperable; and even if operable the signal would not transmit effectively.

Ophthalmology

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average waiting time is for a routine initial ophthalmology (a) outpatient and (b) inpatient assessment at each health trust in the Province that offers the service. [49385] latest available waiting list statistics show the position at 30 September 2005. It is not possible to identify routine ophthalmology cases. However, the median waiting time for all initial ophthalmology (a) outpatient appointments and (b) inpatient admissions at each health trust in Northern Ireland for applicable trusts, at 30 September 2005 is shown in the table.

Mr. Woodward: Waiting list information is collected by time band. It is therefore not possible to calculate the arithmetic mean (average) length of time waiting. It is however possible to identify the median or mid-point waiting time band.

Median waiting time for ophthalmology assessment at 30 September 2005

Health trust	(a) Outpatient	(b) Inpatient
Royal Group of Hospitals HSS Trust	3–5 months	3–5 months
Belfast City Hospital HSS Trust	0–2 months	[1]
Ulster Community and Hospitals HSS Trust	9–11 months	[1]

Organised Crime

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on levels of organised crime in Northern Ireland. [49365]

Mr. Woodward: The 2005 Organised Crime Task Force Annual Report has made clear that the overall levels of organised criminal activity remain high. The fact remains that all organised criminality, from whatever source, is unacceptable and it must come to an end. Good progress is being made—last year 28 top level organised crime gangs in Northern Ireland were disrupted or dismantled and assets totalling £12 million were restrained or confiscated by the partner agencies of the Organised Crime Task Force.

Paramilitary-style Attacks

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many paramilitary-style attacks have taken place by (a) Republican and (b) Loyalist sources in each of the past 18 months. [48281]

Mr. Woodward: The information is as follows.

Note:
The total number of assaults for the last 18 months is 129.

The total number of attacks for the last 18 months is 260. Loyalists were attributed to 201 attacks (115 shootings and 86 assaults). Republicans were attributed to 59 attacks (16 shootings and 43 assaults).

Police

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many applications to join the Police Service of Northern Ireland have been received from (a) the Irish Republic, (b) Great Britain and (c) Northern Ireland in each year since the implementation of the Patten Report; and how many have been successful in each case. [44747]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised that the breakdown of applications to PSNI trainee constable competitions, which are held on a central database, is as follows:

	Year
	One	Two	Three	Four	Five (C9 only)[1]
NI	11,116	8,271	10,223	9,115	5,079
ROI	856	636	902	700	379
GB	377	160	269	631	368

[1] C9 refers to campaign 9 launched in March 2005.

As at 31 January 2006, a total of 2,123 appointments have been made from these competitions. I am advised that it is not possible to provide information relating to the number of successful applicants from NI, ROI and GB. This information is not held on a central database, and would therefore require a manual trawl which would incur a disproportionate cost.

Public Sector Dwellings

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many public sector dwellings are planned to be built in each district council area over the next three years. [48277]

Mr. Hanson: The social housing development programme operates on a five-year time frame and is continually updated to take account of changing circumstances, needs and priorities.

The following table shows the gross programme proposed in each of the next three years. This will be netted down by slippage to the target of 1,500 as each year progresses.

Research Projects

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what research projects commissioned by his Department are being undertaken; and what the publication arrangements are in each case. [32999]

Mr. Hain: The following table shows what research projects commissioned by his Department are being undertaken; and what the publication arrangements are in each case.

Research project	Publication arrangements
Evaluation of Bail	Final report will be published as part of the NIO Research and Statistical Series and released on the NIO website in spring 2006.
Evaluation of Offending Behaviour Programmes	Final report will be published as part of the NIO Research and Statistical Series and released on the NIO website in winter 2006.
Evaluation of Youth Conferencing	Final report will be published as part of the NIO Research and Statistical Series and released on the NIO website in spring 2006.
Evaluation of Bail Supervision and Support Scheme	Final report will be published as part of the NIO Research and Statistical Series and released on the NIO website in summer 2006.
Evaluation of PSNI Youth Diversion Scheme	Final report will be published as part of the NIO Research and Statistical Series and released on the NIO website in summer 2006.
Evaluation of Community Service and Reparation Orders	Final report will be published as part of the NIO Research and Statistical Series and released on the NIO website in spring 2006.
Self Reported Offending Behaviour Study	Final report will be published as part of the NIO Research and Statistical Series and released on the NIO website in summer 2006.
Feasibility Study for Establishment of a Domestic Violence One Stop Shop	Final report will be published as part of the NIO Research and Statistical Series and released on the NIO website in summer 2006.
Self-Classified Equity Monitoring Pilot	Arrangements concerning publication will be considered by the Criminal Justice Board once the pilot is completed.

Research project	Publication arrangements
Report on the conduct of the Northern Ireland local elections held in May 2005. Carried out by the Electoral Commission.	Published on 15 December 2005.
Pathways from care to justice—research around the reasons why children in the care system are disproportionately represented in the criminal justice system.	Yet to be finalised. Report will be published jointly by DHSSPS and NIO early in 2006.
Research on the remanding of children into custody	Yet to be finalised. Report will be published in the NIO Research and Statistical series in the second quarter of 2006.

Note:
The NIO and DHSSPS have jointly commissioned research into children from a Care background who enter the criminal justice system. This is known as the Pathways research. Decisions on the publication arrangements for this report will be taken jointly by NIO and DHSSPS. Final decisions on publication remain within the NIO, but there is a presumption that research commissioned from the Research and Statistics Programme will be published. All statistics and research publications are available on the NIO website. Usually a small number of printed copies of each publication are made available for those without internet access.

Restorative Justice

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what his policy is on the involvement of individuals associated with paramilitary organisations in community based restorative justice projects. [49303]

Mr. Hanson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Beverley and Holderness (Mr. Stuart) on 18 January 2006, Official Report, column 1421W.

Sex Offenders

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many convicted sex offenders have been working in (a) schools and (b) hospitals in Northern Ireland in each of the past five years. [44562]

Angela E. Smith: I asked the employing authorities (that is, the Education and Library Boards, the Council for Catholic Maintained Schools, and voluntary grammar, Irish medium, grant-maintained integrated and independent schools which employ their staff directly) to check their records and inform me whether there is any person currently in employment in any capacity in a grant-aided school who is required to notify their details to the Police Service as a sex offender, or who has a history of sex offending. They have confirmed that there are three persons, none of them teaching staff, with a conviction for a sexual offence who are currently working in schools; none of these persons is on a sex offenders register as all the offences were committed over 15 years ago. In one case the offence was against a minor and involved a girl who was just under age; in the other two cases the offence was against an adult female. In each case the employing authority knew of the conviction through the pre-employment check and took professional advice. The advice was, in each case, that the person was not a risk to children, and so employment was offered. The employing authorities remain satisfied that these persons do not pose a risk to children.

In Northern Ireland vetting against all sources is done by a single agency, the PSNI Criminal Records Office (CRO). The CRO checks individuals who apply to work with children, either as employees or those engaged as volunteers, against both List 99 and the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety's list of people who are disqualified from working with children, as well as carrying out a foil criminal background check. Employers are informed of all convictions, including cautions and bind-over orders, no matter when the offence was committed, and non-conviction information which CRO considers to be reliable. The CRO has also confirmed that their pre-employment checks on persons applying to work in schools have not identified any individual on a sex offenders register since the introduction of registration in 1997.

I have been advised by my hon. Friend the Member for St. Helens, South, that not all posts in hospitals are vetted or would involve working with children or access to children. It is impossible to say definitively whether or not sex offenders have ever been employed in one of our hospitals over the past five years.

However, since September 2001, when a person is convicted of a sexual offence, he/she is subject to assessment of their individual level of risk under the Multi Agency Risk Assessment Process.

When that individual is employed in a range of specified occupations e.g. medical, health etc. the agencies (including PSNI) will consider carefully the relevance of the offence in relation to the occupation/employment and decide whether to bring this to the attention of the relevant employer as part of the risk assessment.

My hon. Friend would not tolerate any decision by a HSS Trust or other employer within the statutory sector to ignore this multi-agency advice and DHSSPS cannot identify any instance where this has happened.

Smoke Alarms

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he plans to take to ensure that as many households as possible in Northern Ireland have working smoke alarms. [49154]

Mr. Woodward: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I provided to him on this matter on 24 June 2005. In addition, the Northern Ireland Fire & Rescue Service is planning to introduce a Home Fire Safety Check Programme whereby every householder in the Province will be offered the opportunity to have their home assessed in terms of risk of fire and protection against such an occurrence. This will include a check on the suitability, operation and provision of smoke alarms.

It should be noted that the 2005 Northern Ireland Omnibus Survey reported a 98 per cent. ownership of smoke alarms, an increase of 2 per cent. on the previous year. Of these, 73 per cent. reported that they check their smoke alarms regularly.

Social Exclusion

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he (a) is taking and (b) plans to take to address social exclusion in Northern Ireland; what assistance has been given to address pockets of socio-economic deprivation in deprived areas in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [44918]

Angela E. Smith: New Targeting Social Need (TSN) is Government's current high level policy aimed at tackling poverty and social exclusion in Northern Ireland by targeting effort and available resources at people, groups and areas in greatest objective need.

Promoting Social Inclusion (PSI) is a key component of New TSN policy, and involves Departments working together and with partners outside Government to develop strategies aimed at tackling a range of issues impacting on vulnerable groups such as older people and people with disabilities. Future policy and priorities will continue to focus on preventing social exclusion, and it is hoped to make an announcement on these shortly.

As well as initiatives targeting groups at risk of social exclusion, many government programmes are focused on the issues impacting on areas and communities. Currently the Rural Development Programme is aimed at tackling rural disadvantage throughout the region, and the Neighbourhood Renewal Strategy, targets the worst areas of urban disadvantage in Northern Ireland.

Government's programme of equality legislation also contains provisions which contribute to reducing social exclusion of vulnerable groups and plays an important role in supporting policies. In October 2006 legislation will be introduced to prohibit unjustified age discrimination in employment and vocational training. This will give individuals new rights not to be discriminated because of their age and will place new responsibilities on all employers of vocational training.

Threats to Safety

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) members of the Police Service of Northern Ireland, (b) members of the Royal Irish Regiment, (c) prison officers and (d) members of the general public in Northern Ireland have been advised of a threat to their safety from Republican sources in each of the last 12 months, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [48278]

Mr. Woodward: The PSNI does not have a central record containing the information requested. Much of the information relating to threats is held at DCU level and to obtain it would require a manual trawl at disproportionate cost.

PSNI has provided figures for threats recorded by location relating to police officers only for 2005.

Treatment-related Complaints

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many treatment-related complaints have been made to the Northern Ireland Ombudsman by people suffering from (a) mental health-related illnesses and (b) general medical health-related illnesses in each Health and Social Services trust area in Northern Ireland in the last five years; and what percentage of those complaints have been upheld by the ombudsman, broken down by health trust area. [47003]

Angela E. Smith: The Northern Ireland Ombudsman has written to the hon. Gentleman. A copy of the letter has been placed in the Library.

Youth Tennis (Funding)

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what publicly-funded assistance is available for young tennis players based in Northern Ireland. [49150]

Mr. Hanson: The Sports Council for Northern Ireland (SCNI) is responsible for the development of sport in Northern Ireland, including the distribution of public funding to sport. SCNI offers a range of publicly funded assistance programmes through which young tennis players based in Northern Ireland can receive support. These include an Athlete Support Programme, an Investing in Sport Programme and a Regional Squads Programme.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Barker Review (Hammersmith and Fulham)

Mr. Hands: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many new residential dwellings will be built in each of the next 20 years in the borough of Hammersmith and Fulham following the Government's response to Kate Barker's review of housing supply. [45258]

Yvette Cooper: The London plan sets a minimum target for housing provision in Hammersmith and Fulham of 400 additional homes per year for the 20-year period 1997 to 2016. A draft alteration to the London plan proposes to increase this minimum target to 450 additional homes per year, for the 10-year period 2007–08 to 2016–17, following the results of a London-wide study of housing capacity. Adoption of the revised target will depend on the outcome of public consultation, now closed, and public examination of the alteration in June this year. Housing targets beyond 2016 will be set through the process of regional and local plan review. The London plan targets will be reviewed by 2011.

Cash Incentive Scheme Grants

Emily Thornberry: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many cash incentive scheme grants to enable tenants to buy the home of their choice were made by each local authority in London in 2004–05; and what the total value of these grants was in each local authority. [47180]

Yvette Cooper: The figures requested for 2004–05 are:

	Total number of grants	Total expenditure (£ thousand)
Barnet	30	750
Brent	11	275
Camden	19	695
Croydon	27	562
Ealing	13	385
Enfield	21	600
Haringey	24	487
Harrow	23	53
Hillingdon	9	174
Kingston upon Thames	8	150
Lewisham	24	542
Merton	7	159
Newham	1	45
Tower Hamlets	62	1,119
Waltham Forest	8	223
Wandsworth	42	908
Westminster	16	432

Those London boroughs not listed did not make any payments under the Cash Incentive Scheme in 2004–05.

Certified Home Inspectors

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether the new home inspectors will be required to have Criminal Records Bureau checks. [46981]

Yvette Cooper: The Housing Act 2004 requires the Secretary of State, my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister to be satisfied, before approving a certification scheme, that the scheme contains appropriate provision to ensure that home inspectors are "fit and proper persons". The intention is that the procedure for deciding whether a person is fit and proper for this purpose will involve a check of the Criminal Records Bureau.

Civil Servants (Overseas Visits)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what costs were incurred by his Department as a result of sending civil servants on overseas visits in each of the last 10 years. [46286]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM) was created following the machinery of Government changes on 29 May 2002. The ODPM's financial system records the combined costs on overseas visits for both Ministers and civil servants. A breakdown of costs for civil servants alone could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

All travel by civil servants and Ministers is conducted in accordance with requirements of the Civil Service Management Code and the Ministerial Code and Travel.

Council Tax

Grant Shapps: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 16 January 2006, Official Report, column 967W, to question 41876, how many dwellings are occupied only by students in exemption class N as shown on the 21 October 2005 CTBI (supplementary) form for England and Wales. [43733]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not yet available. CTBI (supplementary) forms for 21 October 2005 for some authorities have not yet been received by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister. Information from returned forms will be made available on the ODPM website in due course.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much the Valuation Tribunal Service has spent on the council tax revaluation including related appeals to date in England. [47142]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member on 30 November 2005, Official Report, column 585W.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 23 November 2005, Official Report, column 2063W, on council tax, if he will break down the number of properties with (a) dwelling house codes and (b) value significant codes, by billing authority. [47474]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested has been made available in the Library of the House.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many Class N exemptions were recorded in total on the CTB1 form returned on 21 October 2005 by local authorities in England and Wales. [47619]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested is not yet available. A breakdown of Class exemptions is collected on the CTB1 (Supplementary) form, some of which have still to be received by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister. Information from returned forms will be made available on the ODPM website in due course.

Coventry City Council

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what (a) revenue and (b) capital funding his Department has allocated to Coventry City Council in each of the last 10 years. [45658]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 30 January 2006]: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM) was established following the Machinery of Government changes on 29 May 2002. The table sets out payments made by ODPM to Coventry City Council since 2002-03. For earlier year, the table shows the amount paid by ODPM's predecessor Departments from the programmes which are now administered by ODPM. Information prior to 1999-2000 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Funding (£ million)

	(a) Revenue	(b) Capital
1999-2000	214.900	3.541
2000-01	221.331	4.512

2002-03	231.435	5.299
2003-04	276.185	7.387
2004-05	292.262	9.309
Total	1,465.482	32.525

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Weir: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much was spent on external consultants and advisers by (a) his Department and previous Departments with his Department's responsibilities, (b) each (i) non-departmental public body and (ii) executive agency for which his Department is responsible and (c) independent statutory bodies, organisations and bodies financially sponsored by his Department in each year since May 1997. [39109]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister was formed in May 2002. The cost of external consultancies is as follows and relates to ODPM C and its Agencies. A breakdown for non-departmental public bodies, independent statutory bodies, organisations and bodies financially sponsored by his Department could be obtained only at disproportionate cost:

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06[1]
ODPM Central	76,000,000	47,000,000	79,831,087	38,248,314

Falling Trees

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what information he collects from local authorities on the number of people (a) killed and (b) injured as a result of falling trees and branches. [48986]

Yvette Cooper: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister does not collect information from local authorities on the number of people killed or injured as a result of falling trees and branches, and such information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Fire Services

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the likely effect on the performance of combined emergency services control rooms of proposed mergers of fire services. [47800]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister does not expect there to be any negative impact on the performance of the two pilot tri-service control centres as a result of the merger of fire and rescue service control rooms into regional controls. There are no plans to regionalise the fire and rescue service.

The tri-service pilots are not combined emergency service control rooms, but three separate controls located in the same building. This is because the different business needs of the three services are a key implementation barrier to delivering fully integrated tri-service centres. In terms of performance, the fire and rescue service accounts for fewer than 10 per cent. of calls in the tri-service centres, so combined centres will still be able to function much as they do now as bi-service controls without fire. The valuable lessons that have been learnt from the pilots, especially in terms of closer working between emergency services, can still be built on after the introduction of regional fire control centres.

First-time Buyers

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the number of first-time buyers entering the housing market in (a) England and (b) the UK in each year since 1996. [42806]

Yvette Cooper: The Council of Mortgage Lenders produce estimates of the number of mortgages for house purchase made by first-time buyers in the UK. Estimates are not available for England or for the number of first-time buyers purchasing without a mortgage.

Figures available from 1991 tabled as follows:

Number of mortgages for house purchase to first-time buyers: UK 1991–2004

	Number (thousand)
1991	332
1992	306
1993	524
1994	528
1995	424
1996	465
1997	503
1998	527
1999	593
2000	499
2001	568
2002	532
2003	367
2004	358

Hillingdon Council

John McDonnell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the additional costs falling upon Hillingdon council from Heathrow airport. [47070]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister does not routinely assess the costs falling on Hillingdon council from Heathrow airport. To make such an assessment on a one-off basis would require extensive research which would incur disproportionate cost. The economic effects arising from Heathrow were considered as part of the Inquiry into the Terminal 5 proposal, and findings are set out in Topic Report 2, which supplements the main Inspector's Report, but the findings are not reported in a way that is specific to Hillingdon.

Home Information Packs

Mr. Drew: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether those who put together home information packs will be required to obtain negligence or indemnity insurance; and what arrangements have been put in place to deal with the production of packs for more complicated properties in rural areas. [41468]

Yvette Cooper: Home information packs will bring together at the start of the home buying and selling process documents and information that are already an established part of the existing system but which currently become available later in the sale. There will be no legal requirement for persons performing the role of collecting documents together to compile packs to have negligence or indemnity insurance. This will be a matter for consideration by estate agents and others who may commission packs on behalf of sellers. The only new component in home information packs will be the home condition report. Only home inspectors who are members of an approved certification scheme will be able to provide home condition reports. Before approving a certification scheme the Secretary of State, my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister must be satisfied that the scheme contains appropriate provision for ensuring that its members have suitable indemnity insurance.

Homebuy Schemes

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 9 January 2006, Official Report, column 256W, on Homebuy schemes, whether the Government are providing subsidy for Open Market Homebuy. [47017]

Yvette Cooper: Yes. The Government are providing subsidy via the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme in 2006–08 for equity loans provided by registered social landlords under Open Market HomeBuy. A decision on the overall programme is expected in March 2006 when the amount of subsidy for Open Market HomeBuy will be confirmed.

From October 2006 Government funding will be enhanced by the private financing of equity loans from three lenders. This will enable us to help an additional 20,000 households into home ownership by 2010, bringing the total assisted to over 100,000.

Housing

Michael Gove: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many families in each London local authority area were living in overcrowded conditions in (a) 1997, (b) 2000 and (c) 2005. [43164]

Yvette Cooper: There are two measures of overcrowding—the statutory definition and the bedroom standard. Information on compliance with the statutory standard is not collected systematically and estimates at local authority level are not available.

Estimates based on the bedroom standard are available—but generally not at local authority level. However, some local authority estimates were made for 2002 and may be referenced in the following report:

"Overcrowding in England, the Sub-Regional picture: Statistics"

This can be accessed at:

http://www.odpm.gov.uk/index. asp?id = 1152920

Then scroll down and click on:

'Table 1: Overcrowding by sub-regional area'.

Results at a sub-regional level are not available for any other period.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate the Government have made of the number of first-time buyers completing a house purchase in each year since 1997. [47343]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given earlier today.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many households will benefit from (a) Social Homebuy and (b) New Build Homebuy in each year of the proposed schemes, in (i) England and (ii) each government office region. [47346]

Yvette Cooper: Information on the number of households who will benefit from the Social and New Build HomeBuy schemes from April 2006 is not yet available.

Numbers will depend on the participation of social landlords and the successful bids funded through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme in 2006–08 products. The bids are currently being evaluated and decisions will be announced early this year.

Four registered social landlords are currently piloting Social HomeBuy ahead of the main two year pilot programme. The early pilots involve 400 potential sales at locations across the Government Office regions, except the West Midlands.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what criteria he applies in considering whether to approve a local authority's application to extend its mandatory licensing scheme to smaller houses in multiple occupation. [44541]

Yvette Cooper: In considering schemes made by local housing authorities in England to extend the scope of licensing of houses in multiple occupation (HMO) in their area, or part of their area, the Secretary of State, my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister must be satisfied that the local housing authority:

has identified the management problems arising from the types of HMOs in the area for which it intends to make the scheme; has considered whether there are other courses of action available to it that might provide an effective means of dealing with the issues which the scheme is intended to address and whether the scheme will significantly help them in dealing with those issues; is satisfied that the scheme would be consistent with its overall housing strategy and will be co-ordinated with its approach to dealing with homelessness, empty properties and anti social behaviour in the private rented sector; has consulted, having regard to the above criteria, on the proposed additional licensing scheme with those persons who are likely to be affected by it, including landlords, tenants and local resident associations, and that it has properly considered representations it has received.

These criteria are provided in sections 56 and 57 of the Housing Act 2004.

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) what steps he is taking to enable first-time home buyers in West Lancashire to buy a home locally; [45127]

(2) what steps he is taking to provide affordable housing in West Lancashire constituency. [45137]

Yvette Cooper: West Lancashire has recently carried out a housing needs survey, and their emerging new local plan should set out policies for the provision of affordable housing. The Housing Corporation is also considering bids from registered social landlords to fund affordable housing across the north west, which will include first-time buyers.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister when he expects to make an announcement on the number of affordable homes expected to be built or procured through the National Affordable Housing Programme in Oxford in 2006–08. [44560]

Yvette Cooper: The Housing Corporation is currently assessing bids for affordable housing schemes planned to start in 2006–08. A decision on the overall programme, and its regional components is expected to be announced in March 2006 and announcements on individual allocations will be made subsequent to that.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) what plans the Government have to introduce a national register of social housing; and if he will make a statement; [42916]

(2) whether the National Register of Social Housing will include properties which are (a) in shared ownership and (b) have been sold under the right-to-buy and are no longer owned by the public sector; [42955]

(3) if he will list the types of property attribute data and field definitions that are part of the National Register of Social Housing. [43029]

Yvette Cooper: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has been working with the Housing Corporation, and representatives of local authorities and housing associations to establish a national record of each unit of social housing in England; the National Register of Social Housing (NROSH).

The working principle is that data will be uploaded direct from the landlord's administrative systems and that updating will be automated. The register will eventually, possibly by April 2007, replace a substantial amount of the form filling currently required by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister and the Housing Corporation, and will thus reduce the burden of data provision on local authorities and housing associations. It will provide data which is more accurate and timely and which is very flexible in terms of the geographical areas which can be analysed.

Piloting which has been carried out in partnership with over 40 local authorities and housing associations during 2005 is drawing to a close and national roll out of the data collection software began in December 2005.

The register will include properties in shared ownership with social landlords. Once a property has been recorded in the register a record of it will be retained after it is sold into the private sector whether through right to buy or otherwise.

The register contains a range of fields the full descriptions of which can be found on the ODPM website along with other background information at: www.odpm.gov.uk/nationalregisterofsocialhousing. The fields cover the following types of information:

Reference or data management, such as property address or data provider identification.

Physical attributes of the dwelling such as size, type and age.

Housing management information such as rent, tenure and whether or not the property is occupied.

The Decent Homes Standard and its components.

Disabled access standards.

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many council houses in (a) England and (b) Leeds (i) have been brought up to decent homes standards and (ii) remain to be brought up to such standards. [46002]

Yvette Cooper: The information is as follows.

(a) The number of local authority owned non-decent homes in England has decreased from 1,869,000 in 1996 to 972,000 in 2003 (source: English House Condition Survey).

(b) Leeds has reported that their number of local authority non-decent homes has decreased from 33,728 in 2002 to 31,185 in 2005 (source: Business Plan Annual Monitoring returns).

Kettering General Hospital

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what discussions his Department's growth areas directorate has had with the Department of Health about the expansion of Kettering General Hospital to accompany local housebuilding growth up to 2021. [48362]

Yvette Cooper: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has been working closely with the Department of Health to ensure that health funding takes account of planned housing growth. The discussions have been at a strategic level and have not touched upon the specific plans for Kettering General Hospital.

Significant extra resources are being provided for health services in the growth areas. Already an extra £20 million of revenue funding per annum has been provided for primary care trusts in the growth areas (2004–05 and 2005–06) and an extra £20 million of capital resources allocated to strategic health authorities in the growth areas (2005–06).

Kettering General Hospital National Health Service (NHS) Trust has benefited from extra resources. In May 2005 the trust was granted some £7.4 million (£5 million from the primary care trust and £2.4 million in capital from the strategic health authority) to tackle the growth in demand for services. This has enabled the trust to employ 164 extra nurses and 32 extra doctors. The trust has invested £2 million in a 40-bed ward and five-bed Accident and Emergency observation ward. The trust is building a £16.5 million treatment centre and an ambulatory care centre is currently in development.

Future health funding will also take into account planned housing growth. The Department of Health's announcement on primary care trust revenue funding on 9 February 2005 included a growth area adjustment. Amongst other factors, this will lead to the primary care trusts in the growth areas receiving funding increases of £860 million in 2006–07 and £970 million in 2007–08 (increases over the two years of 20.8 per cent. compared to a national average of 19.5 per cent.). Government is also giving priority to growth areas for future LIFT (local improvement finance trust) schemes. This private finance initiative programme will create long-term public/private partnerships to secure continued investment in health care in local areas.

Living Spaces Grant

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what plans he has to reinstate the living spaces grant. [48699]

Yvette Cooper: Living Spaces was set up as an innovative approach to helping communities make tangible and lasting changes to their local environment. Living Spaces is a three-year programme with funding due to end in 2005–06. Due to the large demand from community groups for support from Living Spaces, funding for the programme has been exhausted and, therefore, there are currently no plans to re-open the scheme for fresh applications or extend the scheme.

The lessons learnt from the success of Living Spaces will help to inform future policies and programmes that seek to involve local people in improving the quality of their local communities. For example, a priority of the Big Lottery Fund's Changing Spaces programme will be to increase the capacity of communities to plan, develop and run projects that improve their local environments.

Local Government Reform

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister which Government Department is responsible for Government policy on the potential introduction of parish councils in London. [47873]

Mr. Woolas: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister would be responsible for the removal of the barrier in current legislation to the creation of parish councils in London.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate his Department has made of the (a) set-up costs and (b) running costs of parish councils in London. [47888]

Mr. Woolas: None. The costs of setting up and running parish councils in London will be a matter for the London boroughs and any new parish councils established.

Lyons Inquiry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 30 November 2005, Official Report, column 585W, on the Lyons Inquiry, from which public sector organisations the Lyons Inquiry has received submissions. [47866]

Mr. Woolas: Sir Michael Lyons published an interim report and consultation paper on 15 December. This report lists organisations who have responded to the inquiry. Links to representations are on the inquiry's website at: www.lyonsinquiry.org.

Migrants (Accommodation)

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what provision has been made in housing targets for homes for migrants from outside the United Kingdom over the next 20 years. [46075]

Yvette Cooper: There is no specific provision for international migrants. Assessments of future housing requirements are informed by demographic projections that take account of international migration as one of several factors influencing the growth in numbers of households.

Mobile Telephone Masts

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the planning applications which have been (a) refused and (b) granted on appeal for mobile phone masts in West Lancashire. [45135]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, during September and October every year the mobile network operators write to every local authority with details of their network rollout for the year ahead. When they write to the local authority they also provide details of their existing sites within the local authority area. You may want to contact the network operators for copies of their plans.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many new mobile telephone masts have been erected under permitted development rights in each year since 1997 in each London borough; and if he will make a statement. [47406]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested on the numbers of mobile phone masts erected under permitted development rights is not held centrally, and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

However, during September and October every year the mobile network operators write to every local authority with details of their network rollout for the year ahead. When they write to the local authority they also provide details of their existing sites within the local authority area. You may want to contact the network operators for copies of their plans.

New Deal for Communities

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what plans he has for future funding for the Kensington new deal for communities project. [47670]

Mr. Woolas: Kensington Regeneration is a 10-year new deal for communities (NDC) programme to deliver transformational change to residents. The Government remain committed to the long-term investment in the NDC programme and the Kensington NDC area will benefit from £61,908,490 between 2000–01 and 2010–11. The NDC has already made good progress across the key thematic areas and I am sure this work will be sustained in the future.

Pensions (Local Authority)

Keith Vaz: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what proportion of council tax was allocated to pay local authority employee pensions in each local authority in 2005–06. [47562]

Mr. Woolas: It is not possible to say how much of council tax income can be attributed to pay for local authority employee pensions. This is because it is not possible to say whether any item of revenue expenditure is funded from council tax or from the Government grants and business rates that also finance revenue expenditure.

Pension costs for local authorities in England in 2004–05 are estimated at £5.3 billion. This is 6.6 per cent. of total revenue expenditure by local authorities in England.[1,2]

These proportions are not available for every local authority individually as the SAR is a sample survey of authorities.

[1] Note: Both figures are presented on a non-Financial Reporting Standard 17 (FRS17) basis.
[2] Source: 2004–05 Revenue Out-turn (RO) forms, 2004–05 Subjective Analysis Returns (SAR) submitted by local authorities to the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister.

Planning (Helicopters)

Dr. Fox: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what restrictions can be placed under planning regulations on the use of helicopter landing pads within or adjacent to (a) residential areas and (b) defined bridleways. [44123]

Yvette Cooper: It is for local planning authorities to impose whatever planning conditions they consider appropriate to protect residential areas and defined bridleways when granting planning permission for helicopter landing pads.

Private Gardens (Hammersmith and Fulham)

Mr. Hands: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) total area of privately owned gardens in Hammersmith and Fulham that has been developed in each year since 1997. [45273]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Land use change statistics record the amounts of residential land developed but do not record whether it was privately owned or how much of the land was occupied by any garden.

Regional Reorganisation

Anne Main: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 24 January 2006, Official Report, column 2068W, on regional reorganisation, what guidance and support his Department provides to Government departments on inter-regional communication on policy matters. [47155]

Jim Fitzpatrick: All sponsor departments of Government Offices, and Government Offices themselves, work closely to ensure effective inter-regional communications on policy matters. The new Government Office websites also enable effective communications, within and across regions, on a range of policy issues.

Renewable Energy

Mr. Wills: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what national target he has set to encourage renewable energy projects to be included as part of all new (a) domestic, (b) public, (c) commercial and (d) industrial developments. [45404]

Yvette Cooper: There are no separate targets for particular types of new developments. The Government have an overall target of 10 per cent. of the UK's electricity supply should come from sources of renewable energy by 2010, with an aspiration to double that by 2020. Planning Policy Statement 22 encourages the appropriate development of renewable energy schemes in England. The prospective amendment to the energy efficiency provisions in the Building Regulations for England and Wales includes enhanced performance standards that will also encourage developers to consider the benefits of renewable systems.

Rents

Mr. Amess: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the average monthly rent for a (a) one-bed, (b) two-bed, (c) three-bed and (d) four-bed (i) social landlord and (ii) local authority property was in (A) each Essex borough, (B) London and (C) each London borough in (1) 1990, (2) 1992, (3) 1994, (4) 1998 and (5) each of the last five years. [42384]

Yvette Cooper: Average weekly rent by local authority district and region are published for the local authority sector for 1996 to 2005 and the registered social landlord sector for 1997 to 2005 on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website in tables 702 and 704 respectively for those properties for which such a breakdown is available. The links for these tables are given as follows:

Table 702: http://www.odpm.gov.uk/embedded_object.asp?id=1156266

Table 704: http://www.odpm.gov.uk/embedded_object.asp?id=1156268

Average weekly rent in Essex in 2005 was £71.94 for a registered social landlord property and £58.66 for a council property. The respective rents in London were £74.67 and £69.37 per week.

Repossessions

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many repossessions were made in (a) England, (b) the Tees Valley and (c) Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland in each year since 1997. [45108]

Yvette Cooper: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Tamworth on 20 January 2006, Official Report, column 1695W.

Right to Buy

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many council houses have been sold in Hartlepool under the Right To Buy scheme in each year since 1980. [47322]

Yvette Cooper: The requested information can be found on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website at: http://www.odpm.gov.uk/embedded_object.asp?id=1156373. There have been no Right to Buy sales in Hartlepool since 2004–05 following the large scale voluntary transfer of all local authority stock to a registered social landlord.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what proportion of council housing stock in each London borough has been sold under the right-to-buy scheme since 1980; and if he will make a statement. [47381]

Yvette Cooper: The proportion of council housing stock in each London borough that has been sold under the Right to Buy scheme since its introduction in 1980 can be found on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website at:

http://www.odpm.gov.uk/embedded_object.asp?id=1156373

Survey of English Housing

Mr. Khan: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what proportion of (a) African, (b) Afro-Caribbean, (c) Bangladeshi, (d) Chinese, (e) Indian, (f) Pakistani, (g) Somali, (h) white, (i) other black groups and (j) mixed and other ethnic groups households are estimated by the Survey of English Housing 2004–05 to be living in overcrowded housing conditions. [42919]

Yvette Cooper: There are two measures of overcrowding—the statutory definition and the bedroom standard. Information on compliance with the statutory standard is not collected systematically and reliable estimates for separate ethnic groups are not available.

Estimates of overcrowding by ethnic group and based on the bedroom standard can be derived from the Survey of English Housing. In order to ensure reliable estimates of overcrowding by ethnic group it has been necessary to combine data from the seven-year period of 1998 to 2005. Over this period it is estimated that (a) 15 per cent. of black African households were overcrowded; (b) 7 per cent. of black Caribbean households; (c) 29 per cent. of Bangladeshi households; (d) 8 per cent. of Indian households; (f) 21 per cent. of Pakistani households; (g) 2 per cent. white households; and (h) 10 per cent. of households from other ethnic minorities and mixed ethnic groups. Separate figures for Chinese and Somali households are not available.

Estimates for individual years cannot be provided because sample sizes for individual ethnic groups are too small.

Thames Gateway

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment has been made of the merits of designating Thames Gateway as a national park. [47193]

Yvette Cooper: National park designations apply to extensive areas of countryside and contains England's most beautiful, spectacular and dramatic landscapes. They include stronger planning restrictions and a series of special protection arrangements appropriate to areas of beautiful countryside. We do not believe those levels of planning restrictions would be appropriate in the Thames Gateway. However the Government have asked the Commission for Architecture and the Build Environment (CABE) to look at ideas for creating a world class landscape including urban development and green spaces along the Thames Gateway.

Warehouses (Planning Regulations)

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on what plans the Government have to amend planning regulations for warehouses near transport hubs. [47342]

Yvette Cooper: Planning Policy Guidance note (PPG) 13 "Transport" advises that, in preparing plans and determining planning applications, local planning authorities should, where possible, locate developments generating substantial freight movements such as distribution and warehousing away from congested central areas and residential areas and ensure adequate access to trunk roads. It goes on to say planning authorities should promote opportunities for freight generating development to be served by rail or waterways. The Government have no plans to amend this policy guidance nor to make any regulations.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what occasions he has referred matters to the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs. [47804]

Paul Goggins: Since becoming Home Secretary in December 2004, I have referred three matters to the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD).

1. In March 2005, I asked the Council to review the classification of cannabis products that are controlled under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971. The Council's report was published on 19 January 2006.

2. In March 2005 the then Ministes responsible for drugs, Caroline Flint asked the ACMD on my behalf to consider evidence relating to khat, including two pieces of research commissioned by the Home Office and carried out by Turning Point and NACRO respectively. The Council's report was also published on 19 January.

3. In January 2006 I asked the ACMD to review the classification of the so called 'date rape drugs', including GHB and Rohypnol. A time frame for reporting on these drugs is in the process of being agreed with the ACMD.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders were issued in each London borough in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [46738]

Hazel Blears: A table giving a breakdown by the criminal justice system area and local government authority area in which prohibitions are imposed within antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) is available on the crime reduction website at www.crimereduction.gov.uk. This table gives data by year since ASBOs were introduced up to 30 June 2005 (latest available).

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what methodology his Department uses to measure the effectiveness of antisocial behaviour orders. [48577]

Hazel Blears: In 2002 we published a research paper entitled "A review of antisocial behaviour orders" (commonly referred to as the Campbell review) which followed a commitment made during the passage through Parliament of the Crime and Disorder Act 1998. ASBOs have now reached sufficient numbers to necessitate further research.

The Home Office is conducting an evaluation of ASBOs, the findings of which will be available in spring 2006 and will provide information on the effectiveness of ASBOs in tackling antisocial behaviour within our neighbourhoods and communities. In addition, the Home Affairs Select Committee, in their report on antisocial behaviour published last year, recommended that research was necessary to establish the reasons for any inappropriate issuing of ASBOs or the issuing of ASBOs with inappropriate conditions. We are currently considering the best way to meet this recommendation. The Youth Justice Board has also commissioned research and we are awaiting the findings.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many appeals against antisocial behaviour orders there have been in the last 12 months; and what the outcome was in each case. [45720]

Hazel Blears: From 1 July 2004 to 30 June 2005 (latest available) the Home Office has been notified of 37 cases, in which an antisocial behaviour order had been issued, going to appeal. As a result, 32 orders were varied, four discharged and one appeal was dismissed.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what services are available for victims of antisocial behaviour where an order is subsequently made in (a) the community and (b) court. [47975]

Hazel Blears: The Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 introduced special measures for witnesses in proceedings for antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs). These measures were introduced to address concerns about the protection of vulnerable and intimidated witnesses. The measures include screening witnesses from the defendants, giving evidence through video link or in private, and the use of video recorded evidence. This makes it easier for witnesses to give evidence in the Crown and magistrates court during an ASBO hearing. Antisocial behaviour response courts have been established in magistrates courts sitting in their civil capacity to ensure that witness issues are addressed and the respect action plan announced plans to establish similar arrangements for county courts. There are also plans to introduce the same measures for ASBO victims in civil hearings as for victims in criminal cases. The Home Office has issued a good practice guide to practitioners on how best to support a witness.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the conditions attached to antisocial behaviour orders issued during 2004. [47976]

Hazel Blears: We are notified by the courts of the numbers of ASBOs issued and these data are published quarterly. However information is not collected centrally on the conditions attached to antisocial behaviour orders. The Home Office is conducting an evaluation of ASBOs, the findings of which will be available in spring 2006 and will provide information on the effectiveness of ASBOs in tackling antisocial behaviour within our neighbourhoods and communities.

Asylum Applicants

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, how many asylum applicants have been returned to the UK from other EU countries under the terms of the Dublin Regulations since their introduction. [47490]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 31 January 2006]: A total of approximately 300 asylum seekers have been returned to the UK from other EU countries under the provisions of the Dublin II Regulations since its introduction on the 1 September 2003.

Analyses of these totals are based on internal management information and as such are not of sufficient quality to be published as national statistics.

Cannabis

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his oral statement on the regulation of cannabis of 19 January 2006, Official Report, columns 982–4, what evidence he relied upon in his statement that cannabis use among 16 to 24-year-olds has fallen by four per cent. since 1998; and what sample (a) size and (b) range was used in making the calculation. [47238]

Paul Goggins: The figures used in the Home Secretary's statement come from the British Crime Survey (BCS) which, as stated, shows that use of cannabis in the past year was reported by 28 per cent. of 16 to 24-year-olds in 1998 and 24 per cent. of the same age group in 2004–05, a decrease of four percentage points.

The BCS is a large nationally representative survey of adults living in private households in England and Wales. It has included a comparable set of self completion questions on drug use since 1996. In 1998, 1,295 16 to 24-year-olds answered the drugs questions, while in 2004–05, 6,287 16 to 24-year-olds did so. More details of the survey methods and findings are available in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin No. 16/05 "Drug Misuse Declared: Findings from the 2004/05 British Crime Survey" which is available on the Home Office website and in the Library of the House.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs recommended that cannabis be reclassified to a Class C drug prior to 1999. [47805]

Paul Goggins: In the period prior to 1999, the Chair of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD) did not put any firm recommendations to the Secretary of State for the Home Department that cannabis be reclassified to a class C drug. However, in December 1978 the ACMD produced a report on a review of the classification of controlled drugs and of penalties under schedule two and four of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971. This covered a number of recommendations on classifications and penalties, including one that cannabis and cannabis resin should be transferred to class C.

However, in the then chair's covering letter to the Home Secretary he points out that there was a division of opinion within the council and no endorsement, or otherwise, of the recommendation was offered. In November 1981 the ACMD's Report of the Expert Group on the effects of Cannabis Use maintained that the recommendations of the 1978 Report, including that on cannabis classification, remained valid. But again, the chair's covering letter to the Secretary of State did not offer a clear recommendation on cannabis classification.

Cash-in-transit Crime

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 18 January 2006, Official Report, column 1422W, on cash-in-transit crime what criteria are used when assessing the (a) harm and (b) the impact that the Serious Organised Crime Agency can make by preventing them. [47288]

Paul Goggins: The Home Office assesses the overall harm caused by different types of crime as described in the White Paper "One Step Ahead—A 21st Century Strategy to Defeat Organised Crime". In assessing the impact of its own activity, SOCA will apply a range of qualitative and quantitative criteria, drawing on the Home Office work on harm and its own developing understanding of the threat from different forms of organised crime. It will consider the capacity, capability and intent of criminals and their enterprises and seek to contribute to harm reduction through disrupting their activities, reducing profit incentives, and increasing the risks they take.

Cautions and Convictions (Notification)

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) which (a) professional bodies and (b) Government Departments police are required to notify of the (i) convictions and (ii) cautions of members of their relevant professions; [47126]

(2) how many (a) cautions and (b) convictions were reported by the police to his Department, in accordance with Annex A, Schedule 2 of Home Office Circular 45/86, in each year since 1997. [47476]

Hazel Blears: In accordance with paragraphs 11 and 12 of Home Office Circular 45/86 the police are requested to notify details of convictions and cautions as set out in Schedule 2 of the annex to the circular. A copy of Schedule 2 has been placed in the Library.

These arrangements are currently under review.

With regard to the number of convictions and cautions reported by the police HOC45/86 does not require this information to be reported to the Home Office.

Child Abuse

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what powers the police have to place a person found guilty of a sexual offence against a child committed prior to the commencement of the Sexual Offences Act 1956 on the register of sexual offenders; and if he will make a statement. [42236]

Hazel Blears: The notification requirements of Part two of the Sexual Offences Act 2003 (which are known as the sex offenders register) automatically apply to all offenders who have received a conviction, caution or finding for a relevant sexual offence from 1 September 1997. The Act also includes a partially retrospective operation so that for convictions for relevant offences received before 1 September 1997 an offender will become subject to the notification requirements if he was awaiting sentence or serving his sentence on that date. The 2003 Act also introduced sexual offences prevention orders (SOPOs) which are made by a court in respect of any offender who poses a risk of serious sexual harm and who has received a conviction or caution for a sexual or violent offence (listed in Schedule three or five to the Act). SOPOs are used to impose prohibitions on an offender but also make him subject to the notification requirements for the duration of the order. SOPOs can be made regardless of when the conviction or caution for the qualifying offence was received. It is the case that Schedule three does not include those offences which pre-date the Sexual Offences Act 1956 and this means that if an individual's most recent sexual offence was committed 50 years ago and he has not since committed a violent offence, then it would not be possible to make him subject to a SOPO and therefore subject to the notification requirements. However, if such an individual posed a risk of harm to children, then it would still be possible for a court to make a risk of sexual harm order (RSHO) and if an offender breaches the prohibitions in a RSHO, then he automatically becomes subject to the notification requirements for the duration of the order.

Child Rescue Alert Scheme

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether his Department plans to extend across England the Child Rescue Alert text messaging scheme operated by Sussex Police. [42582]

Hazel Blears: Child Rescue Alert has currently been adopted by four police forces (Sussex, Surrey, Hampshire and Leicester) and it is hoped that a basic system will be in place for nationwide cover by the end of March this year. The scheme works by interrupting television and radio programmes with immediate news flashes that a youngster has been snatched and is at risk of serious harm or death. There are no plans to use text messaging as part of the alert.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of mobile location data tracking systems in enabling parents to locate their children; and if he will make a statement. [42583]

Hazel Blears: The Police Service is already actively using mobile location-based technologies in the investigation of some missing persons cases. Mobile data tracking can identify the geographical area in which a phone is located. This is used by the police under a regulation of Investigatory Powers Act authority in specified cases that are legally appropriate. I am not aware of how many times, if at all, the private sector scheme has been used by parents.

Citizens' Arrests

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many citizens' arrests were made in each of the last five years. [47547]

Hazel Blears: The information requested is not available centrally.

Circuses (Alcohol-related Incidents)

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many alcohol-related incidents connected to circuses have been recorded in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [49135]

Paul Goggins: This information is not available centrally from the recorded crime database. The British Crime Survey routinely provides information on whether the victims of violent incidents thought that one or more of the offenders were "under the influence of drink".

The BCS also routinely provides information on the location of crime-related incidents. Information on the location of violent incidents, by whether the offender was thought to be under the influence of alcohol has also been provided for 2004–05 BCS data.

The number or proportion of other crime related incidents where the offender was thought be under the influence of alcohol has not been estimated. The BCS does not collect information on incidents that have occurred in or are connected to circuses.

The available information since 1999 is included in the tables.

Proportion and numbers of violent incidents where offender was thought to be under the influence of alcohol, BCS

Correspondence

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Immigration and Nationality Directorate will reply to the letter of 4 October 2005 from the right. hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, on behalf of Nazmul Islam Chowdhury (Home Office reference C450910). [46729]

Mr. McNulty: The Immigration and Nationality Directorate replied to the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood on 30 January 2006.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when his Department will respond to correspondence from the hon. Member for Hornsey and Wood Green dated 12 October 2005, regarding a constituent, Ms Dorothy Kyomuhendo (Home Office reference T1059542). [47054]

Mr. McNulty: I wrote to the hon. Member on 27 January.

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, will receive a reply to her letter of 8 December 2005 on behalf of Edlira Meta (Home Office reference M1027953/2), acknowledgement reference M30428/5), sister of Blerina Berisha. [47380]

Mr. McNulty: I wrote to the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood on 3 February 2006.

Corruption

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much money has been repatriated as a result of corruption investigations in the UK in each of the last two years; and to which countries. [46375]

Paul Goggins: No money has been repatriated. It would not be appropriate to comment on any current investigations in view of the risk of prejudicing the outcome.

Counter-terrorism Funding

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the written statement of 25 January 2006, Official Report, column 57WS, on counter terrorism funding, (1) what proportion of the Consolidated Grant for Counter-Terrorism would previously have been included in the General Grant; [47289]

(2) pursuant to the written statement of 25 January 2006, Official Report, column 57WS, on counter terrorism funding, how much of the £446 million police counter-terrorism expenditure will come from (a) the General Police Grant, (b) other expenditure falling within his Department's departmental expenditure limits and (c) annually managed expenditure; [47290]

(3) how much was spent on counter-terrorism by (a) the Metropolitan Police Service and (b) local and regional police forces between 1997 and (i) when funding was drawn together into a consolidated grant for counter terrorism, (ii) 5 December 2005 and (iii) 25 January 2006. [47336]

Mr. Charles Clarke: We are consolidating existing and new funding streams into a new fund. The overall provision will be: The whole provision is made from within the Department's Delegated Expenditure Limit (DEL). Information on the level of counter terrorism spending by the Metropolitan Police Service and local and regional policing is not held centrally.

Crack Cocaine

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many closure notices were placed on crack houses by each police force in England and Wales in 2005. [47710]

Paul Goggins: The data is not available in the form requested.

Crime Statistics

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) arrests, (b) convictions and (c) cautions there were in the Avon and Somerset police authority area in each year since 1997. [45252]

Hazel Blears: The available information is given in the table.

Custody Plus

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his timetable is for the introduction of Custody Plus sentences. [47573]

Fiona Mactaggart: We intend to introduce Custody Plus in the autumn of 2006.

Dangerous Dogs Act

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been prosecuted under the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 in each year since it was passed. [45654]

Hazel Blears: Data from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform on the number of how many people have been prosecuted under the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 for England and Wales, from 1992 to 2004, is shown in the following table. Court statistics for 2005 will be available in autumn 2006.

Death Statistics

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were killed by police personnel in (a) 2004 and (b) 2005. [48069]

Hazel Blears: Police forces are required to report deaths which occur in police custody or during police contact to the Independent Police Complains Commission (IPCC). The IPCC is responsible for publication of statistics relating to deaths in those circumstances. Any inquiries should be made to the Chair of the Commission.

Departmental Publications

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the cost of the publication Compact on the Department's relationship with the voluntary sector; and if he will make a statement. [47212]

Paul Goggins: The Compact on Relations between Government and the Voluntary and Community Sector sets out the rules for engagement between government bodies and the sector. The costs of publishing the Compact in October 1998 with subsequent reprints were £28,200. We have published Codes of Good Practice that underpin the Compact. The costs for these and subsequent reprints were £95,300. Summaries of the Compact and Codes have also been published and the costs for these and reprints were £18,700.

Departmental Targets

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the time scales are for each aspect of performance against 2004 public service agreement target No. 4. [29935]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Details of the target levels and time scales are set out in the public service agreements (PSA) technical notes. For the element on offenders entering treatment, these details were added in a revision published in July 2005 and can be found at www.homeoffice.gov.uk/documents/psa-technical-note-SR04-jul-05. Performance against PSA No. 4 was published in the Home Office autumn performance report in December. This is a Command Paper and available on the Home Office website.

DNA

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, what guidance he has issued to chief constables on the retention of the DNA records of (a) children and (b) adults who have not been convicted of any offence. [47518]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 31 January 2006]: Home Office Circular 25/2001 issued to chief constables in June 2001 states that when an individual is cleared of an offence, samples taken during an investigation may be retained, but that they may only be used for the purposes of prevention and detection of crime, the investigation of an offence or the conduct of a prosecution. Since April 2005, they may also be used for the purposes of identifying a deceased person. There is no distinction between the retention of DNA profiles of an adult or a juvenile.

Guidance has also been issued in The Codes of Practice (Code D) made under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 which give advice on the taking, use and retention of samples. The Codes of Practice (Code C) also give advice on interviewing juveniles.

The decision whether or not to retain a DNA sample is an operational one for the chief constable of the force which took the sample, and the Association of Chief Police Officers has for some time been developing guidelines to assist them in the exercise of their discretion. It is expected that a decision not to retain a DNA sample will be made in exceptional circumstances only. These guidelines will be issued shortly.

Dog Fighting Act

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were prosecuted under the Dog Fighting Act 1835 in each year since 1997; and what sentences they received. [45219]

Fiona Mactaggart: The question relates to the Cruelty to Animals Act 1835 which has been repealed. There is no record on the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice of any prosecutions under this Act.

Drugs

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the results of the Drug Intervention Programme. [44094]

Paul Goggins: Since its introduction in April 2003, over 33,000 drug misusing offenders have entered treatment through the Drug Interventions Programme (DIP). Waiting times for treatment in the 'intensive' DIP areas have fallen to their lowest levels ever. Acquisitive crime—to which drug related crime makes a substantial contribution—fell by 12 per cent. in the year to April 2005.

Its success has been achieved through a combination of additional resources, new legislation, revised working practices and a stronger focus on partnership working.

We are on track to achieve the overall target of 1,000 offenders a week into treatment by 2008 and we exceeded the interim (March 2005) target by 54 per cent. Over 2,000 offenders entered treatment in November 2005.

The programme continues to be developed and strengthened. For example, from 1 December 2005 new provisions contained in the Drugs Act 2005 have been implemented in three police force areas: Greater Manchester, South Yorkshire and Nottingham. These give police powers to test for specified Class A drugs on arrest and to require persons who have tested positive for a specified Class A drug to attend an assessment of their drug use (an initial assessment). These powers are improving access to offenders including those who have previously not been in treatment. They will be extended to other intensive areas by 31 March 2006 on which date restriction on bail provisions will also be available across the whole of England.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been remanded in police custody for a further 192 hours under the Drugs Act 2005 for drug trafficking offences. [47711]

Paul Goggins: The power for a magistrate to remand into police custody a person charged with a drug trafficking offence for a period of up to 192 hours was contained in the Drugs Act 2005. This provision commenced on 1 January 2006, and no figures are available for its use to date.

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of problem drug misusers he estimates are addicted to heroin. [44642]

Paul Goggins: Current estimates of the number of problematic drug users do not provide a breakdown by type of drug used.

However, the National Treatment Agency for Substance Misuse (NTA) has published provisional figures showing that in 2003–04 about two thirds (67.3 per cent.) of drug treatment clients in England used heroin as their main drug. This may not provide an entirely accurate reflection of the percentage of problematic drug users who are addicted to heroin as the numbers will be influenced by the types of services that are available (reflecting historical patterns of drug use), the availability of effective treatments, and the type of clients who present to drug treatment services.

Electronic Monitoring

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) age group and (b) sex was of each asylum claimant carrying an electronic tag on 31 December 2005. [47481]

Mr. McNulty: Section 36 of the Immigration and Asylum (treatment of claimants etc.) Act 2004 allows for the electronic monitoring of those of at least 18 years of age. On 31 December 2005 there were a total of 71 asylum claimants wearing an electronic tag. Their ages ranged from 20–53 years. 65 were male and 6 were female.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his estimate is of the number of asylum claimants who will be carrying an electronic tag on (a) 30 June 2006 and (b) 31 December 2006. [47483]

Mr. McNulty: For the financial year 2005–06, a maximum of 200 new inductions have been funded, increasing to 800 new inductions for 2006–07. These projections are based on funding allocations.

Emigration

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have emigrated from the UK in each year since 1990. [47742]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 6 February 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question regarding the number of people emigrating from the United Kingdom in each year since 1990.I am replying in her absence. (47742)

Estimates of emigration from the UK are shown in the attached table. The figures are based on the most comprehensive estimate of migration produced by the Office for National Statistics (ONS), Total International Migration (TIM), which is based on a number of sources. TIM estimates using the current methodology are only available from 1991 onwards. The latest estimates, for 2004, were published in the First Release on 20 October 2005, and can be found on the National Statistics website: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/STATBASE/Product.asp?vlnk = 507.

[1] Data for 1991 to 2004 are based mainly on data from the International Passenger Survey. Includes adjustments for (1) those whose intended length of stay changes so that their migrant status changes; (2) asylum seekers and their dependants not identified by the IPS; and (3) flows between the UK and the Republic of Ireland.

Note:

A small weighting adjustment has been applied to IPS data for 1991 to 1998. This reflects the estimated effect of applying the weighting improvements made to IPS data from 1999 onwards.

Enrolment Centres

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the commitment given by the noble Lord Bassam of Brighton in the House of Lords on 23 January 2006, Official Report, column 979, that the Government envisage that a person will have to travel no more than one hour to get to an enrolment centre, how the Government plans (a) to implement and (b) to monitor this commitment; and if he will make a statement. [47858]

Andy Burnham: While no final decisions have been taken with regard to the eventual locations of enrolment centres for the Identity Card Scheme, current analysis envisages that no person will have to travel more than an hour to get to an enrolment centre. Provision for mobile enrolment facilities is planned for those who would have to travel more than an hour from the location of a fixed enrolment centre.

With regard to the implementation of the enrolment centre network, this analysis has been built on existing and new research, operational experience and consultations with representatives of sparsely populated communities. In particular, the analysis will draw on extensive work carried out for the implementation of the expansion of the UK Passport Service's office network. Modelling is continuing using census, travel time and socio-economic data.

Planning for the provision of enrolment facilities for sparsely populated communities has been informed by the experience of other organisations such as the Driving Standards Agency, the Department of Work and Pensions, the Scottish Executive Environmental and Rural Affairs Department as well as services provided by the banking industry. Consultations are continuing with DEFRA through their Rural Services Divisions in England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. Additionally, the results from consultations conducted for the UK Passport Service have also been integrated into this work. These included discussions with local authorities in Cornwall, Devon, North Yorkshire, Cumbria and Northumberland as well as the National Assembly for Wales, the Northern Ireland Equality Commission, Scottish Borders Enterprise, Dumfries & Galloway Enterprise and Highlands & Island Enterprise. It is anticipated that once more detailed plans for enrolment in remote communities are ready, further consultation with relevant local bodies will take place.

With regard to continual monitoring of travel times, final plans on how this will be monitored on an ongoing basis are yet to be decided. However, it is anticipated that this will be monitored through customer feedback, consultations with local communities and further modelling in response to population changes.

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the commitment given by the noble Lord Bassam of Brighton in the House of Lords on 23 January 2006, Official Report, column 979, that the Government envisage that a person will have to travel no more than one hour to get to an enrolment centre, what the boundaries are of the area which the Passport Service's proposed Oban office will service for this purpose. [47859]

Andy Burnham: The network of offices that the UK Passport Service is currently in the process of establishing are for interviews of adult first time passport applicants. It is not possible at this stage to announce the locations of these offices because procurement negotiations are still in progress and the availability of premises is not confirmed.

The undertaking given by the noble Lord, Lord Bassam, related to identity card enrolment centres. The UK Passport Service will be working to similar standards and will make alternative arrangements for areas more than one hour's travel from the nearest office. The possibilities being considered are mobile offices, or premises staffed on an occasional basis by peripatetic staff, or interviews over a secure webcam link, facilitated by a local administrator.

EU Home Affairs Agenda

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he (a) is taking and (b) plans to take to advance the home affairs agenda in the EU. [45443]

Andy Burnham: During the UK's presidency of the EU we made substantial progress on delivery of practically focussed measures which will make a real difference to the lives of citizens in the UK and the rest of the EU. We agreed the directive on retention of telecommunications data, measures to increase the EU's effectiveness against organised crime, an external relations strategy in the justice and home affairs (JHA) field and initialled agreements with Russia on readmission and visa facilitation as well as adopting council conclusions on pilot regional protection programmes. We also delivered against existing commitments in the Hague programme and the counter-terrorism and drugs action plans.

We will be seeking to build upon the successes we achieved and take forward UK priorities in the JHA field, through continued close contact with succeeding presidencies; bilateral work with other member states; engagement through the G5 and G8 groups of countries; and by maintaining the close working relationship we have built with the Commission and the European Parliament.

During 2006, we will push for continued momentum on the action plan on trafficking in human beings, agreed during our presidency; we will continue to encourage close working with African partners on migration; will support the Austrian presidency in building on the progress we made in our presidency to get final agreement on the European evidence warrant; and we want to see progress made on the transfer of information from criminal records, in particular to improve cross-EU protection from sex offenders for children.

Fire Alarms

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 24 January 2006, Official Report, columns 2013–14W, on audible fire alarms, what plans he has to extend audible fire alarms coverage to all his Department's buildings where there is no operational reason for not having one. [47045]

Mr. Charles Clarke: All buildings occupied by the Home Office are subject to a fire risk assessment in line with the requirements of current legislation and the draft Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order. Part of this risk assessment is to ensure that the occupants are provided with sufficient means of early warning in the event of fire. Any requirement to extend audible fire alarm coverage will therefore be addressed on a building by building basis.

FRANK Campaign

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many hits on the FRANK website were recorded in 2005. [47704]

Paul Goggins: From January 2005 to the end of December there were a total of 5,241,355 visits to www.talktofrank.com.

Global Peace and Unity Conference

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria the Metropolitan Police used in deciding to sponsor the Global Peace and Unity Conference at London's Excel Centre on 4 December; and if he will make a statement. [41614]

Hazel Blears: The Commissioner for the police of the Metropolis informs me the criteria used in deciding to sponsor an event, organisation or activity is based on a business case approach to determine that the outcomes can provide clear benefits to the MPS and the communities it serves.

Following the bombings and attempted bombings in London in July the MPS has been conducting consultation with faith groups to learn about their concerns, particularly about the impact that the July events had on their communities. This conference was an opportunity to engage the Muslim community and in particular young people. 17 Police Officers and Police Staff attended and spoke to 2,000 people. They were also able to promote the MPS and provide recruitment advice to individuals interested in joining the MPS, to engage the Muslim community and provide reassurance, and to encourage individuals to sign up to the Police Message Broadcasting System and to receive the MRS community bulletin.

Identity Cards

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the public sector databases that the new Identity Card Agency will have access to as part of the implementation and administration of the identity card scheme. [43545]

Andy Burnham: The use of information on public sector databases for the implementation and administration of the Identity Cards Scheme will be primarily for the electronic verification of identity information provided by an applicant. This is known as the biographical footprint check.

This check relates to identity verification only and does not provide the Scheme with access to those databases. Instead, the Scheme will seek to verify identity information by either receiving confirmation of the information provided by the holder of the database or by that holder releasing the relevant information from those databases to the Scheme. Under Clause 11 of the Identity Cards Bill, such arrangements must be first laid out in secondary legislation and approved by Parliament by the affirmative procedure before they can occur.

At present, the final decision about which databases will be used in the biographical footprint check has not been made and is subject to ongoing planning and assessment. In particular, the check will build on the work conducted by the UK Passport Service to verify electronically some information provided on passport applications.

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to ensure the reliability of information held on a national database in connection with an identity card scheme. [47016]

Andy Burnham: There will be a number of steps taken to ensure the reliability of information to be held on the National Identity Register. During the enrolment stage, these steps will include:

1. The electronic verification of some information provided by the applicant against information held on other databases. Clause 30 of the Identity Cards Bill provides that a person is guilty of a criminal offence if they provide information which they know or believe to be false in order to place it on the register or are reckless as to whether this information is false;

2. Relevant supporting documentation may also be examined in advance or at the enrolment centre to ensure that it is valid and corresponds with information provided on the application form and the results from biographical footprint check;

3. Attendance in person to allow information to be clarified and checked with the applicant in person;

4. The design of enrolment procedures will be informed by the experience of the UK Passport Service's introduction of personal visits for all first time passport applicants;

5. Security policies and appropriate working procedures are being designed to prevent and detect fraud originating from either applicants or staff members;

6. The recording and matching of biometric information which will make a much stronger link between the information recorded on the register and the individual associated with it. This will make it much easier to detect people trying to enrol more than once to establish false, multiple identities.

There will be continuing actions to ensure that the information on the register remains reliable. Biometric verification or secure remote authentication technology will be used to link an individual to the correct record if he should wish to update it. The information provided may also be verified through electronic record checks. There will also be an online facility where, subject to secure remote authentication, an individual will be able to review their record and thus, ensure that it is accurate. In addition, a person will be entitled to request a full subject data access request under the provisions of the Data Protection Act 1998. To encourage individuals to keep their information up to date, the Identity Cards Bill provides for a civil penalty regime. Its operation will be subject to a Code of Practice under Clause 36 of the Identity Cards Bill and this code will ensure that sufficient prior notification of this requirement will be made.

Identity Databases

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions in the last 12 months the UK national fingerprint database was inaccessible to police forces. [42803]

Hazel Blears: The central UK national fingerprint database (NAFIS/IDENT1) has been unavailable to the police service on 96 unplanned occasions in the last 12 months. On only 36 occasions the central system was unavailable for more than two hours and for the remainder the system was unavailable for periods as short as 15 minutes. During these periods the police service were able to continue to carry out some of the identification business processes but this can also prevent users from carrying out all or part of the processes. There are currently no national figures available that reflect periods of local disruption directly connected to IDENT1 development and maintenance work. Presently Police Information Technology Organisation together with the supplier are migrating the fingerprint identification service from the National Automated Fingerprint System (NAFIS) to the new IDENT1 identification platform which will have additional capability. There has been disruption and problems to the IDENT1 service during the migration process in the last few months. These problems are being addressed by the Police Information and Technology Organisation (PITO) and should result in a robust and reliable service to the police forces being resumed as soon as possible. In order to ensure the Home Office investment in the IDENT1 service is developed and maintained to provide maximum benefit to the police fingerprint community I have asked my Home Office colleagues to review and report progress to me at regular intervals.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which international biometric databases are being used as exemplars for the development of the UK National Identity Card Register. [42804]

Andy Burnham: Since the final details of the design and implementation of the National Identity Register cannot be completed in advance of procurement stages for the Scheme, it is not possible to provide a direct comparison with another biometric database at present and as such there are no 'exemplars' for the Register. However, as well as looking at the outcomes of biometric research and testing and the advice of biometric experts, the development the National Identity Register will be informed by experience gained from the operation of other biometric databases including: IAFS—IND's biometric database, IDENT1—UK fingerprints database, Philippines Social Security Card System, Hong Kong Identity Card System, US Visit biometric border control system, US Department of Homeland Security border crossing database, US Department of State Mexican visa database, United Arab Emirates Iris Expellee Tracking and Border Control database.

Interception of Communications

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, how many requests have been received by his Department for the electronic interception of (a) telephones, (b) emails and (c) other electronic communications between July and December 2005; and how many requests his Department has received for details of the communications traffic data of hon. Members in this period. [47558]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The available information is published annually in the report of the Interception of Communications Commissioner. Figures for 2005 will be included in the Commissioner's next report.

Jewish Festivals

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his Department did to (a) celebrate Hanukkah and (b) mark Yom Kippur in 2005. [46760]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Staff are made aware of Hanukkah, Yom Kippur and other important Jewish festivals by means of the Department's Calendar of Religious and Cultural Festivals. Home Office staff have also attended talks, by a representative from the Chief Rabbi's office, to understand how Jewish people apply the principles of their faith to the modern world.

The Home Office aims to promote a workplace that values staff from different religions including providing prayer/private reflection rooms and guidance for managers about staff leave arrangements around religious festival periods.

Khat

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what evidence led to the decision by the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs not to classify Khat. [47806]

Paul Goggins: The evidence which the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD) considered in reaching a recommendation on Khat is described in its report which was published on 19 January. This includes research and studies on Khat drawn from both UK and international sources, and oral evidence provided by experts on the issues.

London Underground

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the security implications of internet websites which show disused stations and shafts on the London Underground. [34791]

Ms Buck: I have been asked to reply.

While some details are already available, both on websites and in written media, London Underground seeks to control access to security-sensitive information. When assessing the security of the network, and appropriate protective security measures, both operational areas and sites which are no longer in use are considered.

Motoring Offences

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will publish the data set for findings of guilt in England and Wales for each type of motoring offence in 2004, broken down by (a) age and (b) sex. [46472]

Paul Goggins: The annual Home Office Statistical publication 'Offences relating to motor vehicles, England and Wales, Supplementary tables', table 17, lists data on findings of guilt at all courts by offence group, sex and age of offender.

2004 data will be published end of March 2006.

National Bureaucracy Adviser

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the National Bureaucracy Adviser is provided with a car and driver; and if he will make a statement. [47410]

Hazel Blears: The National Bureaucracy Adviser is not provided with a car and a driver.

National Database

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, whether DNA profiles held on the National DNA database will be tagged with the individual's National Identity Register number; and if he will make a statement. [47565]

Andy Burnham: The Government have no plans to link DNA profiles held on the National DNA Database with the proposed National Identity Register number.

National Identity Register

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what circumstances the particulars of an occasion on which information from the National Identity Register is provided to another person would not be recorded on the register as information falling under paragraph 9 of schedule 1 of the Identity Cards Bill (a) in cases where the information is provided under powers granted in clause 14 of the Bill and (b) otherwise. [23002]

Andy Burnham: It has not yet been decided on which occasions—either under the powers of Clause 14 or otherwise—information from the National Identity Register is provided to another person will be recorded on the register under paragraph nine of schedule one. The Identity Cards Bill does not require such information to be recorded on every occasion.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what risk assessments his Department has undertaken of the security of the National Identity Register; whether the Communications Electronics Security Group has been involved in the assessments; and what reports have emerged. [46496]

Andy Burnham: A range of security risk assessments have been undertaken on issues such as the physical, logical, procedural, personnel and systems aspects of the Identity Card Scheme. Reports have been produced and this work will be updated as the scheme develops further.

The Communication Electronics Security Group (CESG) has been involved in the development of these assessments including elements such as card design, card manufacture and business risk modelling.

National Offender Management Service

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the indicative budget is for each of the regional offender managers to procure prison places for 2006–07. [44879]

Fiona Mactaggart: It is not currently intended to give regional offender managers budget delegation to procure prison places in 2006–07.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether service level agreements for prison places with regional offender managers will include the provision of increased funding for prison governors for prison populations above the certified normal accommodation at each establishment. [44946]

Fiona Mactaggart: The service level agreements between Regional Offender Managers and Prison Service Area Managers cover the provision of prison places up to operational capacity of the prison. Should the prison population change significantly there is provision for the renegotiation of the SLAs.

Offenders (Immigration Status)

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what records are kept of the immigration status of those convicted of crimes in the UK; and whether these records are available to the public. [47161]

Hazel Blears: It is not possible to identify the immigration status of offenders on the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform as the individual circumstances of offenders is not collected.

Offenders' Children

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of prisoners serving custodial sentences in prisons and young offenders' institutions in England and Wales have dependent children. [41595]

Fiona Mactaggart: There is no routinely collected data on the number of prisoners in custody who have children, but Home Office Research Study 208 found that 66 per cent. of female prisoners had dependent children under the age of 18. Of those with children, 34 per cent. had pre-school children aged under five and a further 40 per cent. had children aged from five to 10.

Parenting Orders

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many parenting orders have been issued since 1999 where (a) a child safety order has been made, (b) an antisocial behaviour order has been made, (c) a sex offender order has been made in respect of a child or young person and (d) a child or young person has been convicted of an offence. [42147]

Fiona Mactaggart: Parenting orders were piloted between 30 September 1998 and 31 March 2000 during which period 284 parenting orders were made. Information was collected on 279 of these parenting orders of which 174 were made during criminal proceedings for offences committed by the child or young person; 103 in relation to the non attendance of children at school and two in relation to child safety orders. There were 686 parenting orders made with other civil orders between April 2000 and 31 March 2004 but the information collected by the Youth Justice Board over that period did not show whether these other civil orders were child safety orders, antisocial behaviour orders or sex-offender orders. The Youth Justice Board recorded 64 parenting orders made with antisocial behaviour orders between April 2004 and 30 September 2005 but none with child safety or sex offender orders. Between April 2000 and 30 September 2005, the Youth Justice Board recorded 4,429 parenting orders where the child or young person had been convicted of an offence and a further 249 made in connection with a referral order.

Passport Service

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Passport Service's proposed Oban office will first open for interviews; and for how many hours each week it will open for interviews. [47793]

Andy Burnham: It is not yet possible to announce locations for the offices being established to carry out interviews of adult first time passport applicants because procurement negotiations are still in progress and the availability of premises has not been confirmed. The intention is for all offices to open in the last quarter of this year. The number of hours each will open will vary and will be determined by the number of interview appointments to be accommodated. All offices will be open on Saturdays.

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many passport photographs of under-5 year olds were rejected in December 2005. [46854]

Andy Burnham: For the five week period commencing 28 November 2005, 2,918 photographs for children aged five and under were rejected. This equates to around 7 per cent. of all applications from children aged under six.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will take steps to allow passport application and renewal forms to be issued through small post offices. [46952]

Andy Burnham: There is currently a network of 2,513 post office branches that offer the passport application Check and Send service and therefore hold passport application packs. Of these branches 1,082 are post office sub branches.

Police

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on his proposals to restructure the police force in North Yorkshire. [34646]

Hazel Blears: Further to my written ministerial statement of 11 November, I would like to state that based upon feedback given on 9 November to forces and authorities, they are further developing their options for change. For the Yorkshire and Humber region, two options of those submitted were assessed as meeting the criteria and these are, (1) a single regional strategic force option and (2) two strategic forces, North Yorkshire merging with West Yorkshire and South Yorkshire merging with Humberside. I made it clear that police authorities including North Yorkshire, are free to submit options other than ones we have commented on if they wish to, making a compelling case for these by 23 December. No decisions will be made until after the consultation process has run its course.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the Written Statement of 5 December 2005, Official Report, columns 68–79WS, on police authorities in England and Wales (grant allocations), what his Department's definition of a neighbourhood is. [36349]

Hazel Blears: The Government are committed to ensuring that every neighbourhood will have a dedicated neighbourhood policing team by 2008. The size of the neighbourhood which is served by this team will vary from area to area: a "neighbourhood" to an inner-city resident will be very different from what it means to someone living in a predominantly rural area. Typically though, it is likely that a neighbourhood will cover one or two council wards. What is really important is that residents will know the names of their local officers see them on the street and have their phone numbers and email addresses.

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Lancashire police force has a policy of attending every reported crime. [45152]

Hazel Blears: The chief constable is responsible for the day to day operational management of the force. You may therefore wish to redirect your query to him.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 24 January 2006, Official Report, columns 2032–2033W, on police, what the job description is of the National Bureaucracy Adviser; what annual budget has been allocated for her work; and if he will make a statement. [47292]

Hazel Blears: The job description of the National Bureaucracy Adviser includes:

visiting forces and, in particular, operational officers and police staff, to raise awareness of the reducing bureaucracy agenda; obtaining solutions which would reduce unnecessary bureaucracy and challenging, where necessary, existing practices and assumptions; identifying and disseminating 'quick wins' to forces which specifically impact on operational policing; identifying transferable good practice within forces and disseminating it quickly to others;

acting as a national advisor to all forces on effectively tackling bureaucratic burdens on operational police officers; creating a network of lead officers within forces on the reducing bureaucracy agenda and, through this, encouraging the exchange of ideas and good practice which impact on operational policing; and engaging in follow-up visits to forces to check progress and provide more assistance where appropriate.

The budget allocated for her work allows for her salary and travel expenses.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress the Police Service has made in achieving diversity targets on recruiting and retaining (a) female officers and (b) officers from ethnic minority backgrounds in the last three years for which figures are available. [44836]

Hazel Blears: The Police Service continues to make steady progress towards the 2009 Race Equality Employment Targets. In 2003, BME representation was 2.9 per cent. In 2004 it was 3.3 per cent. and in 2005 it was 3.5 per cent. Although the number of minority ethnic police officers narrowly missed the 2004 milestone of 4 per cent., further measures are being put in place to ensure that numbers continue to rise steadily and that the Police Service meets the 2009 target of 7 per cent. The retention rate for minority ethnic officers compared with white officers is very similar over comparable length of service periods after the first two years point. In the first six months of service however, minority ethnic officers are leaving at a greater rate than white officers (12.6 per cent. of BME officers compared to 7.6 per cent. of white officers) although the wastage rate is lower than in previous years. The wastage rate for officers with six months to two years' service has increased for both groups. No targets have been set for the recruitment and retention of women.

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when West Yorkshire constabulary will get its own anti-terrorist unit. [43413]

Hazel Blears: West Yorkshire police is in the process of establishing its own Counter Terrorism Support Unit (CTSU). The CTSU will be a dedicated team of specialist detectives and staff, who will investigate terrorists and terrorist offences. A number of West Yorkshire officers/staff have begun a training programme in conjunction with the Metropolitan Police Anti-Terrorist Branch to ensure complete interoperability of systems and processes to support joint investigations in West Yorkshire and other forces.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the total police funding allocated to each London borough is for the next three years, broken down by (a) staff and (b) non-staff funding; and if he will make a statement. [43593]

Hazel Blears: The Government allocates funding to police authorities as a whole. The distribution of resources for policing in each London borough is a matter for the Metropolitan Police Authority and the Commissioner of Police for the Metropolis.

The Metropolitan Police Authority has yet to set its budget for 2006–07 and beyond.

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of (a) the cost of each of the police force amalgamations and (b) the total cost of the police amalgamations proposed in his statement of 11 November 2005. [47318]

Hazel Blears: We are currently working to determine the viability of the options. This includes detailed analysis of the financial implications both for set-up costs and future benefits.

A Working Group led by my Department with participation from the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, the Welsh Assembly Government, Her Majesty's Treasury and police representative bodies has been established to examine the financial aspects of reorganisation, including the impact of restructuring on budgets, grant and council tax.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will rank each basic command unit in each English police force by sanctioned detection rate for the most recent reporting period; and if he will make a statement. [45592]

Hazel Blears: Sanction detections rates by basic command units (BCUs) for the financial year 2004–05; tables are available in the Library. These rates are shown in alphabetical order by police force. The home office does not rank BCUs by sanction detection rate performance.

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he has received representations from the European Commission in respect of the restructuring of police forces in England and Wales. [40968]

Hazel Blears: No. The Home Office has not received any representations from the European Commission regarding police force restructuring in England and Wales.

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will allow further time for consultation on the future of policing in Bedfordshire and the East of England. [41482]

Hazel Blears: Forces and authorities have had the opportunity to consult with relevant stakeholders since the process began in September 2005. In recognition of the challenging timescale for developing options for change, force and authorities have been given the opportunity to further refine their business cases during January 2006.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the likely effects of the police force restructuring proposals on the recorded levels of crime in the year after they are introduced for each constabulary in England and Wales. [35294]

Hazel Blears: The Government's Spending Review 2004 Public Service Agreements set a target to reduce crime by 15 per cent., and further in high crime areas, by 2007–08. We remain committed to delivering those reductions in crime and any objectives beyond this period will arise out of the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007. Force restructuring is intended to improve the capacity and capability of forces in England and Wales to provide an effective service, to ensure that every force is well equipped to deliver effective protective services, as well as effective policing at the neighbourhood level.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many helicopters owned, used or hired by the police were in use over East Yorkshire on (a) 21 and (b) 22 January; and what the reason was in each case. [46741]

Hazel Blears: The Humberside Police Air Support Unit made a number of flights over East Yorkshire on 21 and 22 January. The times and reasons for the flights are shown in the following table.

Additionally, West Yorkshire Police Air Support Unit made one flight over the East Yorkshire area, also shown in the table.

Humberside Police Air Support Unit

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, if he will list the private finance projects in place in each police force in England and Wales; and what is (a) the cost and (b) the duration of each. [47317]

Hazel Blears: The following list shows all grant supported police private finance initiative (PFI) projects which are operational or under construction. Information is not held on any PFI projects developed without grant support.

Police force	PFI project	PFI credits (£ million)	Length of service contract (years)
Cheshire	Centralised custody suites	41	29
Cheshire	Force HQ	45	30
Cleveland	Rationalised custody	38.3	26.5
Cleveland/Durham	Firearms facility	11	25
Cumbria	Workington Police Station	7.5	25
Derbyshire	Ilkeston Police Station	3.8	30
Derbyshire	Divisional HQ and City Police Station	23.9	30
Dorset	Divisional HQ and three new police stations	24.3	30
Dyfed Powys	Ammanford Police Station	5.3	30

Police force	PFI project	PFI credits (£ million)	Length of service contract (years)
Gloucestershire	Force HQ	26.2	30
GMP	Property Review—Divisional/Sub Divisional HQ and police stations	63	25
Gwent	Ystrad Mynach Police Station	8.7	30

TVP	Abingdon Area Divisional HQ	10.4	30
Wiltshire	Divisional HQ and satellite facilities	24	30
Wiltshire	Air support	3.1	10

Note
PFI credits are the assumed capital component of the project, on which annual revenue support grant is paid.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many police authorities did not respond to the consultation on restructuring before 23 December 2005 deadline; [44280]

(2) how many police authorities submitted (a) business plans and (b) implementation plans for restructuring forces on or before 23 December 2005 deadline. [44281]

Hazel Blears: 42 of 43 police forces and authorities responded to the consultation deadline of 23 December 2005 with the exception of the Metropolitan Police for whom a later deadline was agreed to take account of the separate reviews of British Transport Police by Department of Transport and of fraud by the Attorney General. The responses received did not necessarily constitute full business cases. Rather, they set out the force and authority's response to the recommendations in HMIC's report, "Closing the Gap".

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if the Government will fund the initial start-up costs of merging Bedfordshire Police with other forces. [46786]

Hazel Blears: We are currently working to determine the viability of the options for reorganisation. This includes detailed analysis of the financial implications for set up costs and for future costs and benefits.

We are also working with the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, the Welsh Assembly Government, HM Treasury and police representative bodies in examining the financial aspects of reorganisation, including the impact of restructuring on budgets, grant and council tax. I announced details of the provisional police funding settlement for 2006–07 and 2007–08 on 5 December and capital grant allocations on 13 January. I have set aside £50 million capital grant for 2006–07 and £75 million for 2007–08 to address prospective force amalgamations.

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the likely effect on the number of officers Bedfordshire police will have if the reorganisation costs of a merger are not borne by central Government and police precepts are capped at 5 per cent. [46787]

Hazel Blears: No decisions have been made about the future structure of policing in Bedfordshire.

We are currently working to determine the viability of the options. This includes detailed analysis of the financial implications both for set up costs and future benefits. Budget management for any reorganised police area will be a matter for the new police authority and the chief officer, who will be responsible for prioritising local needs.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the costs of new (a) names and (b) insignia for police forces following amalgamation; and if he will make a statement. [47211]

Hazel Blears: No decisions have been made about the future structure of police forces in England and Wales.

We are currently working to determine the viability of the options. This includes detailed analysis of the financial implications both for set up costs and future benefits. It would be premature to comment further until this analysis has been completed.

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the basis is of the estimate of potential savings in paragraph 6.30 of the report of Her Majesty's Inspector of Constabulary, Closing the Gap; and if he will publish the relevant calculations. [47310]

Hazel Blears: The relevant calculations can be found in Appendix I (Summary of potential costs and savings associated with Merging Police Forces; pg 108) of the Closing the Gap Report.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what funding his Department has paid to the Metropolitan police for the operations of (a) S012 and (b) S013 in each year since 1997; [44707]

(2) what the budget for Special Branch was in each police force in each year since 1997; [44710]

(3) what funding was provided by his Department for the Special Branch National Training Unit in each year since 1997; and what his Department's projected funding is for (a) 2006–07 and (b) 2007–08; [44712]

(4) what funding the Metropolitan Police Special Branch Surveillance Unit received in each year since 1997. [44714]

Hazel Blears: This information is not held centrally. There is no Special Branch National Training Unit. Training for Special Branch Officers is co-ordinated through the Metropolitan Police Service but with contributions from other police forces.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police stations in (a) Westmorland and Lonsdale and (b) Cumbria have been closed in each of the last five years. [45814]

Hazel Blears: No police stations have been closed in Westmorland and Lonsdale in the last five years. The change in the number of police stations in Cumbria in each of the last five years is set out in the following table.

Police stations opened and closed in Cumbria

	Cumbria police stations
	Opened	Closed	Total
March 2000	0	0	24
March 2001	0	0	24
March 2002	1	1	24
March 2003	0	0	24

Prisoners

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his policy is on the distribution of weekly supplementary nutritional packs to prisoners suffering from diabetes; and if he will make a statement. [45454]

Fiona Mactaggart: Supplementary nutritional packs are not used within the Prison Service.

Treatment of prisoners with diabetes is provided in line with the National Service Framework on diabetes which requires that diagnosed patients should receive appropriate dietary advice. This is provided to prisoners through the prison healthcare department. Any specific medical diets are prescribed by the prison doctor and notified to the catering department.

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures he has taken to ensure that non-smoking prison inmates are not required to share cells with prisoners who smoke. [45455]

Fiona Mactaggart: Each prison develops its own "no smoking" policy in line with current health and safety advice, taking into account the type of establishment it is, its population and the special needs of that population. Wherever possible prisoners should not be required to share accommodation with a smoker if they so request. A working group has been set up to look at the smoke free elements of the current Health Bill as they apply to prisons. It will consider this issue as part of that work.

Prisons

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what account is taken of prison officers' (a) experience and (b) opinions in the construction of offender resettlement initiatives; and if he will make a statement; [44363]

(2) what assessment he has made of the contribution to effective resettlement made by prison officers; and if he will make a statement. [44365]

Fiona Mactaggart: The Home Office has not undertaken a formal assessment of the contribution prison officers make to effective resettlement. However, prison officers are involved in the delivery of a number of programmes that have been accredited.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of correlation between prison overcrowding and deaths in custody; and if he will make a statement. [45208]

Fiona Mactaggart: Overcrowding alone does not explain why there are self-inflicted deaths in prisons. In 2005, despite rises in the prison population, the number of apparent self-inflicted deaths fell by 18 per cent. in comparison to 2004. Most importantly, a high proportion of prisoners arrive in prison having experienced negative life events that we know increase the risk of an individual harming themselves. We also know that cell-sharing is a protective factor against suicide.

That said, managing high numbers of prisoners can lead to an increase in transfers between prisons, itself a time of heightened risk. More people being received into custody may mean that some prisoners are located further from home, which, in turn, may mean that their access to familial or social support is affected. Sometimes overcrowding will reduce the time staff can spend with individual prisoners on care and risk assessment, and it sometimes leads to an increase in the length of time prisoners are locked in their cells, rather than engaged in regime activities, association and other purposeful activity. These factors together increase distress which we know from research by the University of Cambridge is related to suicide rates.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the capacity is of Woodhill Prison, Milton Keynes. [47423]

Fiona Mactaggart: The useable operational capacity of HMP Woodhill is 762 as at 31 January 2006.

Probation Service

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many unfilled posts there are in each region in the Probation Service; and if he will make a statement. [44387]

Fiona Mactaggart: Not all probation areas operate a set establishment against which vacancies can be measured. The Probation Service is however able to report on the number of active vacancies within each region. An active vacancy is one which a probation area is actively trying to fill through a recruitment process.

The figures shown represent active vacancies, expressed in full time equivalent value, in each probation region as at 30 September 2005. This is the most recent information available.

The number of active vacancies in the London region is significantly higher than elsewhere in the Probation Service. This is due to the fact that: the London probation area is currently undertaking a recruitment exercise to achieve a 10 per cent. increase in staff numbers this year, and this is in addition to recruitment required to fill vacancies occurring as a result of normal staff attrition.

Please note that the Greater Manchester probation area is not able to provide active vacancy figures at present, and does not contribute to the figures recorded for the North West region.

	FTE vacancies	Vacancy (percentage)
North West	89.70	4.43
North East	80.30	5.83
Yorkshire and Humberside	97.78	3.97
West Midlands	37.86	1.62
East Midlands	66.20	3.56
East of England	73.88	4.45
South West	162.41	9.63
South East	111.51	4.67
London	618.00	20.52
Wales	39.40	3.07

Project Cyclamen

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of Project Cyclamen; and if he will make a statement. [21966]

Hazel Blears: Programme Cyclamen is a key element of the UK's counter-terrorism strategy. The latest Office of Government Commerce Gateway review assessed Programme Cyclamen as green—the programme is on target to succeed. Equipment has been installed at a number of sea and airports, and has screened over 2 million arrivals. Strategic fixed and mobile equipment is being rolled out across the UK during 2006–07.

Public Authorities (Disclosure of Violent Incidents)

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many meetings (a) he and (b) his officials have had with the Association of Chief Police Officers about the creation of a specific statutory duty requiring public authorities to disclose incidents of violence coming to their attention which are committed by readily identifiable individuals; and when (i) he and (ii) his officials last met the Deputy Chief Constable of Surrey Police to discuss the creation of such an offence; [44282]

(2) whether he plans to introduce a statutory duty requiring public authorities to disclose incidents of violence coming to their attention which are committed by readily identifiable individuals; and if he will make a statement; [44287]

(3) whether he (a) saw and (b) commented upon a draft of the letter from the Deputy Chief Constable of Surrey Police, dated 13 January, on the creation of a specific statutory duty requiring public authorities to disclose incidents of violence coming to their attention which are committed by readily identifiable individuals. [44605]

Hazel Blears: There are currently no plans to introduce a statutory duty requiring public authorities to disclose personalised data related to incidents of violence in this way, and neither I nor my officials have met with the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) about this specific matter. My officials did meet with the Deputy Chief Constable of Surrey Police at his request in March last year, on the more general subject of information sharing on violent crime. I understand that officials are due to meet again with him this month, in response to his specific proposals on this issue as outlined in the question.

The Crime and Disorder Act 1998 gives those responsible authorities which make up Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships a power to share aggregate, depersonalised data between themselves in the interest of preventing crime, disorder, substance misuse or antisocial behaviour. In the context of work being done in the Home Office to improve partnership arrangements, the potential for strengthening these provisions has been included in a review of the Crime and Disorder Act, which was completed this month.

Race Equality Scheme

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made on the publication of a revised Race Equality Scheme for the Home Office Group; and if he will make a statement. [32797]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The revised Home Office Race Equality Scheme was published on 26 May 2005. The scheme is available on the Home Office website: http://communities.homeoffice.gov.uk/raceandfaith/race-ethnicity/race-equality-schemes/Publication ref: 268845/90

Rape

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the conviction rate for rape. [45742]

Paul Goggins: In 2004, the proportion of recorded rapes that resulted in a conviction was 5.29 per cent. The Rape Action Plan 2002 led to a number of changes to the legal system and to the way in which the police and Crown Prosecution Service operate. These were intended to increase the likelihood of cases getting to trial and securing convictions. We have recently undertaken a stock take of the Rape Action Plan which will be followed up by an inspection into the investigation and prosecution of allegations of rape, due to report in the summer.

Recommendation 61 Forms

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been stopped and issued with a Recommendation 61 form in the London borough of Croydon since its inception. [41136]

Hazel Blears: Information on these stops is collected for police force areas only. 2005–06 is the first year of collection, and, in line with other data for that year, it is planned to make this information available in the Section 95 publication 'Race and the Criminal Justice System', to be published in early 2007.

Re-offending

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the re-offending rate of offenders within the Cambridgeshire probation area was in each year between 1997–98 and 2003–04; and if he will make a statement. [48143]

Fiona Mactaggart: Re-offending rates are not available centrally on a sub-national basis.

National re-offending rates are published annually. The most recent data are published in 'Adult re-offending: results from the 2002 cohort—Home Office Statistical Bulletin 25/05'. This is available on the Home Office's website (http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/hosbpubs1.html). The report contains information on reconviction for the 1997 cohort and re-offending that results in conviction for the 2002 cohort.

Road Monitoring

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what controls and checks are in place to ensure that information gained from the new national monitoring of road journeys by CCTV is not misused; when this monitoring of road journeys was authorised; and by whom. [44182]

Hazel Blears: I refer to the reply I gave my hon. Friend the Member for South Swindon, on 24 January 2006, Official Report, column 2014.

Safeguards are in place to ensure that access to the data collected and retained by the Police using automatic number plate recognition (ANPR) technologies is strictly controlled, particularly for the purposes of investigating serious organised crime and terrorism.

Secure Establishments

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the staff turnover at (a) local authority secure accommodation, (b) Home Office youth establishments and (c) secure training centres was in each of the last three years. [33690]

Fiona Mactaggart: The information requested in respect of Prison Service young offender institutions and secure training centres is given in the following tables. No data is collected centrally on staff turnover in local authority secure children's homes.

Staff turnover in prison service young offender institutions[1]

Percentage

Establishment	2002	2003	2004
Brinsford	5.6	5.1	6.0
Bullwood Hall	8.8	10.7	6.3
Castington	8.0	5.2	6.5
Downview	9.1	10.1	9.4
Eastwood Park	14.9	13.4	12.2
Feltham	11.6	10.6	9.6
Hindley	6.1	12.7	9.9
Huntercombe	15.8	16.6	14.1
Lancaster Farms	4.7	4.1	5.6
New Hall	6.3	9.9	9.8
Stoke Heath	5.3	8.8	10.2
Thorn Cross	9.4	5.4	8.2
Warren Hill[2]	—	8.2	9.4
Werrington	9.4	12.4	7.7
Wetherby	7.7	7.2	8.8

[1] Turnover is measured as the total number of leavers during the year, excluding casual and administrative staff but including retirements, divided by staff in post at the start of the year. A number of healthcare staff transferred from the prison service to primary care trusts as part of the change of responsibility for healthcare commissioning: they are not included in the figures.
[2] Before February 2003, Warren Hill was part of HM Prison and YOI Hollesley Bay. It is not possible separately to identify staff at Warren Hill before that date.

Secure training centres[1]

Percentage

Centre	2002	2003	2004
Hassockfield	36	25	27
Rainsbrook	13	22	23
Medway[2]	26	37	28
Oakhill[3]	n/a	n/a	31

[1] Data from the centres include staff that were provisionally appointed but did not actually start work for various reasons, including failure to pass the initial training course or receive criminal records bureau clearance. (These staff did not have contact with children.)
[2] When Medway expanded in 2003 it recruited more staff than proved to be needed. The higher turnover in that year reflects adjustment to the appropriate staffing level through natural wastage.
[3] Oakhill opened in August 2004.

Serious Organised Crime Agency

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he estimates that the Serious Organised Crime Agency will be operational. [47507]

Paul Goggins: The Serious Organised Crime Agency will be operational on 1 April.

Sports Events (Security)

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with the Security Industry Authority about the effects on sports bodies of the implementation of the Private Security Industry Act 2001; and if he will make a statement. [46161]

Paul Goggins: Home Office Ministers and officials have regular contact with the Security Industry Authority.

Staff Discipline

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many employees have been dismissed by his Department in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [29129]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The table contains information on the total number of dismissals from the Home Office (including Prison Service, IND and core Departments) since April 2000.

Period	Total dismissals
2000–01	179
2001–02	272
2002–03	366
2003–04	562
2004–05	469
April-November 2006	301
Total	2,149

The information includes dismissal reasons for; inefficiency, conduct and performance.

Substance Abuse Offences

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) arrests, (b) convictions and (c) cautions there were in the Avon and Somerset police authority area for offences relating to (i) the possession and (ii) dealing in class (A) A, (B) B and (C) C drugs in each year since 1997. [45251]

Hazel Blears: The Home Office does not currently collate data on the number of arrests for separate classes of drug offences. We do however have data on the number of people found guilty and cautioned under the Misuse of Drugs Act.

The number of people who have been found guilty for possession and dealing offences in Avon and Somerset in each year since 1997 is shown in the following tables.

Table 1: The number of people found guilty for possession and dealing offences

	Class A		Class B		Class C
	Possession	Dealing	Possession	Dealing	Possession	Dealing
1997	321	111	124	27	328	80

Tasers

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether there is a standard policy in place for taser deployment and usage in England and Wales. [44426]

Hazel Blears: I have indicated to the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) that I am content for taser to be made available to Authorised Firearms Officers as a less lethal option for use in situations where a firearms authority has been granted.

The Association of Chief Police Officers has produced Policy and Operational Guidance documents on the use of taser. Both documents are available at www.westmercia.police.uk

Terrorism (UK Airports)

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received regarding funding for the provision of counter-terrorism initiatives at London Luton airport for 2006–07; and if he will make a statement. [42466]

Hazel Blears: A number of representations have been received in respect of extraordinary funding provided for Bedfordshire police in 2005–06 for policing at Luton airport but none in relation to 2006–07. These representations included the Chair of Bedfordshire Police Authority and a number of other MPs with constituencies in Bedfordshire.

UK Passport Service

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many original documents requested by the UK Passport Service were lost during the last four years. [48805]

Andy Burnham: For the period one January 2002 to 31 December 2005 the UK Passport Service have received 634 customer complaints relating to missing or lost documents sent in support of a passport application. Between one January 2002 and 31 December 2005 the UK Passport Service processed 23 million applications. The number of complaints about lost supporting documents therefore represents 0.0027 per cent. of the number of applications processed during this period.

Vehicle Recovery Times

Mr. Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times vehicle recovery companies were used by the (a) West Mercia and (b) Staffordshire police forces in the last 12 months for which figures are available; and how many companies were used by each force to deal with (i) breakdowns, (ii) accidents and (iii) emergencies in this period. [46831]

Hazel Blears: The figures requested are not collected centrally

Witness Protection

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he will take to protect complainants and witnesses in antisocial behaviour cases. [47744]

Hazel Blears: The Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 introduced special measures for witnesses in proceedings for antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs). These measures were introduced to address concerns about the protection of vulnerable and intimidated witnesses. The measures include screening witnesses from the defendants, giving evidence through video link or in private, and the use of video recorded evidence. This makes it easier for witnesses to give evidence in the Crown and magistrates court during an ASBO hearing. antisocial behaviour response courts have been established in magistrates courts sitting in their civil capacity to ensure that witness issues are addressed, and the Respect Action Plan announced plans to establish similar arrangements for county courts. There are also plans to introduce the same measures for ASBO victims in civil hearings as for victims in criminal cases. The Home Office has issued a good practice guide to practitioners on how best to support a witness.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the level of demand in each accident and emergency department was between midnight and 4 am, on 4 December (a) 2004 and (b) 2005. [45277]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not collect centrally. The data that the Department does collect on accident and emergency attendance is available on the Department's website at:

www.performance.doh.gov.uk/hospitalactivity/about_data/a_and_e_attendances.htm

Administrative Costs

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the statement of 15 November 2005, Official Report, column 849, if she will set out the figures for the proportion of the NHS budget spent in administrative costs since 1996. [37505]

Mr. Byrne: National health service administration costs as a percentage of total NHS expenditure have fallen since 1996–67. In 1996–97 NHS administration costs were 6.1 per cent. of the total NHS budget and in 2004–05 NHS administration costs were 4.9 per cent. of the total NHS Budget[1].

[1] These figures are not directly comparable.

7. These figures do not contain NHS Foundation Trust counts, NHS Foundation Trusts report management costs separately to Monitor, the independent regulator for NHS Foundation Trusts, using DH management costs guidance as best practice.

Agenda for Change

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many appeals in relation to pay under Agenda for Change have been received from (a) nurses, (b) physiotherapists, (c) occupational therapists and (d) speech and language therapists working in the NHS. [44402]

Mr. Byrne: This information is not held centrally, as requests for reviews of banding under Agenda for Change are dealt with locally. But reports of progress on assimilation received by the Department so far suggest that the number of reviews at most trusts are modest in relation to the size of the work force.

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which grades of (a) nurses, (b) physiotherapists, (c) occupational therapists and (d) speech and language therapists will receive (i) pay increases and (ii) frozen or reduced pay under Agenda for Change; and if she will make a statement. [44403]

Mr. Byrne: Under the Agenda for Change pay system staff are assigned to new pay bands based on job weight as determined by the national health service job evaluation scheme, rather than on the basis of the person's original job title or grade. As a result, outcomes may differ for people previously in the same grade, and it is not possible to answer the question in the form in which it has been put.

Bristol Health Services Plan

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether private finance initiative funds have been earmarked by her Department for the Bristol Health Services Plan; and if she will make a statement. [40904]

Caroline Flint: The two major capital investment projects for Bristol—the United Bristol Healthcare and North Bristol/South Gloucestershire Primary Care Trusts schemes—are currently finalising the funding and service options in their outline business cases (OBC) in light of the findings from the Bristol Health Services Plan. The OBCs will then need to be approved by Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire Strategic Health Authority and then the Department.

Cancelled Operations

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what status patients have who have been removed from hospital waiting lists due to operations being cancelled by the hospital at short notice but who have not yet been treated; and if she will make a statement. [44408]

Mr. Byrne: A patient whose operation is cancelled by the hospital is not removed from the hospital's waiting list until they have been treated.

The cancelled operations guarantee introduced in April 2002 states that when a patient's operation is cancelled by the hospital at the last minute for non-clinical reasons the hospital should offer another binding date within a maximum of the next 28 days or fund the patient's treatment at the time and hospital of the patient's choice.

The Department is seeking to reduce the number of cancellations. First, by increasing the use of day surgery and treatment centres to minimize the effect of emergencies that can cause cancellations. Second, by including cancellations in the ratings of hospitals in the patient choice information booklets. Third, through the 18 weeks maximum waiting time target which will require national health service trusts to treat promptly patients whose operations are cancelled.

Despite the increasing number of national health service operations cancellations at the last minute, they are 16 per cent. lower than three years ago.

Capio/Healthcare

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 17 January 2006, Official Report, column 1293W, to question ref. 38278, on Capio Healthcare UK, on what date Capio Healthcare UK submitted its bid for the contract in the programme for the provision of a national chain of treatment centres. [44884]

Mr. Byrne: Capio Healthcare UK submitted its bid for the contract for the provision of a national chain of treatment centres on 13 June 2003.

Cardiac Physiologists

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cardiac physiologists have worked in the NHS in each year since 1997; and how many full-time equivalent posts this represents. [44782]

Mr. Byrne: Information on the number of healthcare scientists working in the cardiology area of work as at September 2004 is shown in the table.

Cheshire and Merseyside Strategic Health Authority

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the oral answer of 25 October 2005, Official Report, column 156, to the hon. Member for Wimbledon (Stephen Hammond) on NHS finance, what the level of deficit was in each year for (a) each hospital within the Merseyside/Cheshire strategic health authority (SHA) area and (b) the SHA itself. [45028]

Mr. Byrne: Cheshire and Merseyside strategic health authority (SHA) was formed in 2002–03. The final financial position for each national health service trust covered by Cheshire and Merseyside SHA and for the Cheshire and Merseyside SHA for the years 2002–03 to 2004–05 are shown in the table.

The table also includes the 2005–06 month six forecast financial position for both the Cheshire and Merseyside SHA and for the NHS trusts covered by the SHA.

Strategic capital	37,805	41,940	50,589
Total	82,490	91,428	105,230

Notes:
1. Strategic capital is allocated for prioritisation by the SHA across the health economy. Strategic capital is allocated to NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) for larger capital projects facilitating strategic change.
2. Operational capital is allocated directly to NHS trusts and PCTs within the SHA health economy for minor capital developments and equipment replacement.
3. The access fund is allocated to the SHA to reward progress against access targets within the patch.

Cheshire and Merseyside SHA has received revenue allocations for its running costs of £4.7 million in 2003–04, £5.1 million in 2004–05 and £5.4 million in 2005–06. This funding is to cover the day-to-day operational management and running of the SHA to allow it to carry out its responsibilities and functions.

In addition, revenue allocations are made to PCTs to enable them to commission health care for their local populations. The funding covers hospital and community health services, prescribing and primary medical services. The revenue allocations for 2003–06 and 2006–08 for PCTs in the Cheshire and Merseyside SHA are shown in the tables.

Chief Executive Officers

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which chief executive officers left their position in (a) an NHS trust and (b) a strategic health authority in the last three years; whether the individual was subsequently employed within (i) the NHS and (ii) the Department in each case; and what job was taken up. [46264]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 30 January 2006]: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Child Abuse

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make it her policy to ensure that the number of doctors and nurses taking the professional lead in protecting children from abuse and neglect in their area does not fall following the merger of primary care trusts. [24525]

Mr. Byrne: Any merger of primary care trusts (PCTs) will not affect their duties in ensuring that staff, and staff in services contracted by PCTs, are trained to be alert to potential indicators of abuse and neglect in children, know how to act on their concerns and fulfil their responsibilities in line with their local safeguarding children board procedures. PCTs should ensure establishment levels of designated professionals are proportionate to the local resident population and the complexity of provider arrangements. This is a matter for local decision.

Child Protection

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether (a) general practitioners and (b) staff employed by general practitioners are permitted to work if they are included on the Protection of Children Act list. [44901]

Mr. Byrne: A general practitioner or any member of staff employed by a general practitioner, who was identified as being included on the Protection of Children Act list, would not be permitted to work in any child-care position within the meaning of the Protection of Children Act 1999.

Cross-border Health Provision

Mr. Paul Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements are in place for cross-border health provision between England and Wales. [44489]

Mr. Byrne: The Department, in collaboration with the Welsh Assembly Government, issued guidance establishing interim arrangements in February 2005.

The interim arrangements recognise that the legal responsibility for patients rests with the commissioner where the patient is resident but for named commissioners on both sides of the border, the operational responsibility rests with the commissioner responsible for the general practitioner with whom the patient is registered.

The Department and Welsh Assembly Government have established a steering group to oversee the development of policy and guidance for cross border issues and in addition have prepared a procedure for resolving disputes that may arise about the interpretation of the guidance. The interim arrangements will continue for 2006–07, targeting April 2007 for full implementation of the responsible commissioner policy.

Day Surgery

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her latest estimate is of the number of in-patient procedures which could be performed as day surgery; and what savings she estimates would have resulted from such a reconfiguration of services in the latest year for which figures are available. [44058]

Mr. Byrne: Data on elective general and acute admissions and day case rates are published in the "Chief Executive's Report to the NHS, Statistical Supplement — December 2005". The statistical supplement is available on the Department's website at: www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/12/43/03/04124303.pdf.

No specific mechanism has been set up to estimate the information requested. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, we know from studies commissioned by local national health service trusts and other interested organisations that the benefits of switching patients to day case surgery are likely to outweigh the costs of implementing such a change of services.

Dentistry

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is proposing to take to ensure that primary care trusts (PCTs) provide a minimum level of dental provision in three years' time when changes to PCTs' control over their budgets are introduced. [31790]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Primary care trusts (PCTs) will continue to have a duty under section 16CA(1) of the National Health Service Act 1977 to provide primary dental services to the extent considered necessary to meet all treasonable requirements in their area.

The Department has indicated that the ring-fencing arrangements for funding primary dental services that apply for the period 2006–07 to 2008–09 will be reviewed towards the end of that period.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the availability of free dental care for children (a) in England and (b) within Buckingham constituency. [35732]

Ms Rosie Winterton: All children aged under 18 are exempt from charges for national health service dental treatment. As at 30 September 2005, an estimated 59 per cent. of the child population for England and an estimated 52 per cent. of the child population in Vale of Aylesbury primary care trust were registered with an NHS dentist. The Department does not collect data centrally on the numbers of additional patients seeking NHS treatment.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the future of dental access centres operating under personal dental services pilots following the reforms to NHS dentistry to come into force from April 2006. [39451]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The reform of national health service dentistry will enable primary care trusts (PCTs) to develop more integrated commissioning strategies for primary dental care, including dental access centres (DACs).

The funding for DACs will now be included in the relevant PCTs' developed budgets for dentistry, which will enable PCTs to continue to commission these services on a substantive basis. It will be for PCTs to decide how local services, including DACs, should develop to meet local needs and service priorities.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department has taken to ensure patient access to NHS dentists. [37110]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Since 2003–04, the Department has invested an additional £250 million in national health service dentistry and has supported the NHS in recruiting the equivalent of an extra 1,459 dentists to improve patient access. The Government are also funding an additional 170 training places per year from 2005.

From April 2006, the NHS will be implementing major reforms to dentistry to build upon this success. New contracts for dentists will abolish the fee per item remuneration system and support new ways of working with a greater focus on preventative care. Evidence from personal dental services pilot schemes is that these new ways of working free up significant capacity that dentists can then use in part to see a greater range of patients.

From April 2006, primary care trusts (PCTs) will also have devolved responsibility and ring-fenced budgets for commissioning primary dental services. This means that, if a dentist leaves the NHS or reduces their NHS commitment, the resources stay with the PCT to be re-invested in local dental services.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS patients opted out of NHS dentistry treatment in (a) 2004–05 and (b) each year since 1997. [41866]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not held centrally.

Mr. Malik: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment her Department has made of the potential impact of its reforms to NHS dentistry for the most socially disadvantaged on improving access to NHS dental care. [43176]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No specific assessment has been made of the impact of the dentistry reforms on access for the most socially disadvantaged. The reforms are designed to support primary care trusts and dentists in improving access to national health service dentistry for all groups of patients.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in Hereford constituency have been removed from NHS dentists' registers since 2002; and what percentage of people in the constituency are registered with an NHS dentist. [44610]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not available in the format requested. However, information relating to patient registrations in Herefordshire is shown in the table.

Active patient registrations—Herefordshire

	Number/rate
Patients under 18 years
Patients under 18 years of age	25,683
Take up rate per 100 local population	67.84
Patients 18 years and over
Patients 18 years and over	53,415
Take-up rate per 100 local population	38.41

Dental Practice Board

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 10 January 2006, Official Report, columns 575–76W, on dentistry, how many of the 69 NHS dentists with general dental service or personal dental service contracts within Hereford constituency are accepting new patients on to their NHS lists. [44611]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The data regarding the number of dentists admitting new national health service patients is not available centrally. This can be obtained directly from the primary care trusts concerned.

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dental practices in Manchester, Withington have started carrying out NHS work since 1997. [44671]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Within the Manchester, Withington constituency, two dental surgeries have opened a new national health service general dental services or personal dental services contract between September 1997 and September 2005.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dentists are in practice in Leicestershire. [44832]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As at 30 September 2005, there were 579 national health service dentists with a general dental services or personal dental services contract within the Leicestershire, Northamptonshire and Rutland strategic health authority area.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists the NHS needs to recruit in order to meet Government targets. [44834]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department and the national health service last year exceeded the target of recruiting an extra 1,000 dentists. Between April 2004 and October 2005, the equivalent of an extra 1,459 whole time NHS dentists were recruited. There are no outstanding targets for NHS dental recruitment.

Departmental Finance

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much the Department expects to be rolled forward into the next financial year as a result of delayed payment of pay as you earn tax and national insurance contributions by each strategic health authority and primary care trust in the 2005–06 financial year; [41640]

(2) what advice the Department has issued to strategic health authorities on the use of delayed payment of pay as you earn tax and national insurance contributions as a form of cash management; and if she will make a statement; [41641]

(3) which (a) strategic health authorities and (b) primary care trusts have discussed the use of delayed payment of pay as you earn tax and national insurance contributions as a form of cash management for the current financial year with the Department. [41652]

Mr. Byrne: The Department's policy is that all national health service organisations should ensure that payments of pay as you earn tax and National Insurance contributions are made when they are due, unless there is a specific agreement not to do so with the Inland Revenue. The issue has been discussed with all strategic health authorities and they have been reminded of the Department's policy. Where it has come to our attention that organisations are making specific proposals to delay payment we have reminded them of the policy.

Drug Treatment

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on training of general practitioners in dealing with substance misuse in each of the last five years. [44640]

Mr. Byrne: It is not possible to identify the amount of mainstream funding or local pooled treatment budget money used specifically for the support and training of general practitioners in dealing with substance misuse. However, since 2001 the Department has funded a national primary care certificate course for substance misuse, which is delivered by the Royal College of General Practitioners. This funding has amounted to as follows:

	£ million
2001–02	1.8
2002–03	1.2
2003–05	0.7
2005–06	1.5

European Medicines Evaluation Agency

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects the consultation process on the mechanisms of the European Medicines Evaluation Agency to report. [19928]

Jane Kennedy: The European Medicines Evaluation Agency's consultation into the mechanisms for dealing with applications submitted under the accelerated assessment procedure (Ref. EMEA/419127/2005) ends on 10 February 2006.

Finnamore Consultants

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS trusts have employed Finnamore Consultants to advise them on measures to address potential financial deficits in 2005–06; what assessment she has made of the (a) practicality and (b) relevance of their recommendations; and what the cost was in each case. [44405]

Mr. Byrne: It is the responsibility of strategic health authorities (SHAs) to deliver overall financial balance for their local health communities, and to ensure each and every body achieves financial balance. SHAs determine the support needed for their organisations to achieve this objective.

We do not hold records of the number of national health service trusts that have employed Finnamore Consultants.

Folic Acid

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment her Department has made of the effects on women of child bearing age of folic acid supplementation in protecting against babies being born with neural tube defects. [37655]

Caroline Flint: The Scientific Advisory Committee on Nutrition is currently considering the scientific evidence of folate and disease prevention. A full report is expected to be published in the spring of 2006.

Government Shift Programme

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding she has allocated to the Government Shift programme for 2006–07; and how much money has been allocated to this programme since 2004. [46266]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 30 January 2006]: The service increment for teaching supports the cost to health care providers of providing a clinical setting for medical and dental undergraduate training. Budgets for 2006–07 have not been set yet. Funding for 2004–05 and 2005–06 is shown in the following table.

	Funding
2004–05	733,196,000
2005–06	803,654,000

Haemodynamic Optimisation

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospitals in England use haemodynamic optimisation. [47390]

Mr. Byrne: We do not collect this information centrally.

All hospitals will have a variety of haemodynamic monitoring equipment available, invasive or non-invasive, to monitor haemodynamic status of the patients. This will in turn provide the information clinicians require to optimize medical treatment for a variety of medical conditions.

Head Lice

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of the incidence of head lice in schools in each local authority area in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement; [45963]

(2) what resources she has made available to each local education authority area in 2005–06 to reduce the incidence of head lice; and if she will make a statement; [45965]

(3) what mechanisms exist to monitor the incidence of head lice in schools; and if she will make a statement. [45966]

Mr. Byrne: Information on the incidence of head lice infestation is not collected centrally. Head lice infestations depend upon head-to-head contact, which is relatively common among younger school-age children while working together, or playing at school. Our policy, which is shared by the Department for Education and Skills, is to encourage a "whole school approach". This entails encouraging parents to check their children and other family members for head lice as the need arises, and arranging treatment where necessary, with advice and support from the local primary health care team (general practitioner, health visitor, school nurse or local pharmacist).

If this exercise is undertaken at the same time by families with children attending a school, then the spread of head lice will be arrested. Primary health care teams are resourced to support this activity. The Department has provided a leaflet containing guidance on the prevention and treatment of head lice. This promotes the benefits of identifying and arranging treatment, where needed, on a day which schools may determine. The leaflet is available in hard copy and on the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/11/63/47/04116347.pdf.

Health Expenditure

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what level of expenditure will be committed to support (a) the improvements to alcohol treatment provision announced on 1 November and (b) the provision of health trainers announced on 11 August by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Public Health; how much expenditure there has been on each programme; and whether the expenditure is financed from the Centrally Funded Initiatives and Services and Special Allocations budget of her Department in each case. [39286]

Caroline Flint: We now have 78 partnerships in the early adopter phase of health trainers, prison sites in each region, the army and Initial cleaning company.

A breakdown of where the money has been spent and cost centres is shown in the table.

National health service health trainers provision and expenditure

	Year to date 2005–06	Provision 2005–06	Future provision 2006–07	2007–08
Securing health care for those who need it	4.905	5.00	—	—
PCT Allocations	—	—	36.00	77.00
Securing social care and child protection for those who need it and, at national level, protecting, promoting and improving the nation's health	0.346	2.20	2.0	2.0

Hearing Services

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact on (a) waiting lists and (b) waiting times for digital hearing aids of the introduction of programmes to expand their availability; and if she will make a statement. [39256]

Mr. Byrne: Several initiatives have been introduced to improve capacity to deliver audiology services. These are the national framework contract public private partnership to bring in additional independent sector capacity, the development of a new degree to help to address the shortage of audiologists and the introduction of "Hearing Direct" which is follow-up care and advice for hearing aid users who would benefit from this.

The figures on waiting times for digital hearing aids are not collected centrally. It is for primary care trusts to ensure their local population benefits from modernised hearing aid services.

Hospitals

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the number of patients required for a hospital to remain viable. [41928]

Mr. Byrne: The configuration of services, including the viability of individual hospitals is a matter for the national health service locally. No specific assessment has been made centrally.

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to prevent hospitals spending money on advertising for patients. [40662]

Mr. Byrne: With the introduction of patient choice and payment by results, it is important that patients are aware of the services and options available to them. Therefore, a small amount of advertising is in the interests of both patients and hospitals. The Department is developing guidelines, to ensure that any public communications are not only honest and accurate, but also appropriate. These guidelines, together with the payment tariff set by payment by results, should deter inappropriate expenditure on advertising.

Housing Development

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions she has had with the Deputy Prime Minister on the (a) demand for and (b) cost of the social care facilities arising from the planned expansion of housing in Aylesbury Vale. [45344]

Mr. Byrne: No formal discussions have taken place at ministerial level.

Now that the sub regional strategy is finalised, it is being taken forward by local partners. The local delivery vehicle for Aylesbury (Aylesbury Vale Advantage) will be looking at the infrastructure requirements associated with growth at a detailed level and will be working with relevant agencies as part of this process.

Illegal Drug Use

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps are being taken to reduce the number of deaths from illegal drug use. [44727]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 23 January 2006]: In November 2001, the Government set a target to reduce the number of drug-related deaths by 20 per cent. by 2004 in England and Wales as part of an action plan to reduce drug-related deaths. Progress against the target is calculated against a 1999 Office for National Statistics (ONS) baseline. The latest ONS data available are for 2003, which show that drug-related deaths have declined for three consecutive years.

Since the action plan was published, the Department has focused efforts on improving the surveillance and monitoring of drug use; improving access to and consistency of prescribing treatment; and guidance to commissioners and providers of treatment and to users on limiting the risk of overdose.

Accessible information and support is available to young people and their families on the risks associated with drug misuse through the innovative "Frank" campaign. We are also getting more people in to drug treatment than ever before and this will be boosted by the increase of funding for drug action teams, which will continue to take forward the positive progress we are already making.

Infection Control

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when the research commissioned by her Department on the number of single rooms needed for effective infection control will be published; and if she will place a copy in the Library; [45762]

(2) what estimate she has made of the number of single rooms needed in hospital settings for the effective control of (a) hospital acquired infections and (b) future outbreaks of an influenza pandemic; and if she will make a statement. [45763]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 26 January 2006]: Leeds General Infirmary and the University of Leeds are carrying out the following research project:

"What is the size and nature of the current need for single room isolation in hospital, and how does success or failure to isolate patients affect the control of meticillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA)?"

The project is due to finish shortly and we expect to publish a report in the summer. A copy will be placed in the Library.

The research project will help us assess requirements for controlling hospital acquired infections. During an influenza pandemic it is likely that patients would be cohorted rather than kept in isolation.

Intensive Care Costs

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average daily cost of an (a) intensive care and (b) high dependency bed is in West Lancashire. [45032]

Mr. Byrne: The average cost of an occupied bed day in a discrete critical care unit is available in the annual reference costs publication.

The national schedule of reference costs for 2004, the latest year available, shows that for activity undertaken at Southport and Ormskirk national health service trust in England, the costs of an occupied bed day in different types of discrete critical care units is shown in the following table.

Average cost per occupied bed day

Unit type	£
Intensive therapy unit/intensive care unit	1,081
Spinal injuries intensive care unit	672

A copy of the reference costs publication is available in the Library.

Mental Health Services

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she has set a target for reducing the referrals to specialist child and adolescent mental health services in children's fund areas. [45708]

Mr. Byrne: We are committed to ensuring access to mental health services for all children and young people who need them. The Department has a public service agreement target to ensure access to a comprehensive child and adolescent mental health service by the end of 2006.

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting times for patients in Easington constituency to see (a) a consultant psychiatrist and (b) a psychologist were in each year since 2002. [45016]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is shown in the table.

Waiting times for first out-patient appointment following general practitioner (GP) written referral, September 2002 to September 2005, provider based

711 Child and Adolescent Psychiatry

712 Forensic Psychiatry

713 Psychotherapy

715 Old Age Psychiatry

1. Due to small numbers, the calculation of the median wait is prone to fluctuation. Care should be taken when interpreting these figures.

2. Waiting times apply to consultant-led appointments only. Services in many areas are now run by multi disciplinary teams.

Mortality Rates

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her policy is on hospitals' publication of mortality rates. [25119]

Jane Kennedy: The Secretary of State supports the publication of information that helps to raise awareness, improve quality and informs patient choice. Where relevant and appropriate, mortality statistics may be published locally, while taking care to safeguard patient confidentiality. Such information should be independently verifiable.

Multiple Sclerosis

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people with multiple sclerosis are awaiting (a) assessment to determine eligibility for treatment with and (b) prescription for disease modifying therapies following a successful eligibility assessment in each primary care trust; [45941]

(2) what the average waiting time for people with multiple sclerosis between eligibility assessment for treatment using disease modifying therapies, and prescription of the drugs was in each primary care trust in 2004–05; [45942]

(3) how many people with multiple sclerosis are receiving disease modifying therapies in each primary care trust (PCT); and how much prescription of these treatments cost each PCT in the last period for which figures are available. [45943]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not held centrally.

Muscular Dystrophy

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what representations she has received about the provision of electric wheelchairs for people with muscular dystrophy; and if she will make a statement; [46665]

(2) how many people with muscular dystrophy live in (a) Guildford, (b) Waverley and (c) Surrey. [46666]

Mr. Byrne: The Department received a letter on 22 July 2004 regarding the provision of electric wheelchairs for people with muscular dystrophy. I have not received any further representations about this issue.

The information requested is not held centrally.

NHS Contracts (Ofcom Review)

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress the Department is making in meeting the Ofcom recommendation for a review of contracts in the NHS for Patientline and Premier. [45484]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the right hon. Member to the ministerial statement made on 19 January 2006, Official Report, column 33WS.

NHS Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health further to her statement of 15 November 22005, Official Report, column 849, on NHS finance, if she will publish the analysis from which her statement was derived, with the cost increase between 1999–2000 and 2004–05 broken down by (a) medical secretaries, (b) record keepers, (c) health educators, (d) IT technicians, (e) financial managers, (f) caterers, (g) launderers, (h) cleaners and (i) all other staff; and what proportion of the total NHS budget was spent on administrative staff, as defined in her statement, in (i) 1999–2000 and (ii) 2004–05. [31098]

Mr. Byrne: Information on cost increases for the specific staff categories requested is not collected centrally.

The analysis of administration as a proportion of the total national health service budget calculated to 2003–04 is shown in the table.

	1999–2000	2003–04
Administration spend	2,158,000	3,345,000
Total NHS spend	40,201,000	63,001,000
Administration as percentage of NHS spend	5.4	5.3

Administration spend includes administration costs in health authorities and primary care trusts and management costs in NHS trusts[1].

NHS Administration Cost figures for 2004–5 are not directly comparable due to a change in collection methods[2].

	2004–05 (£ million)
Administration spend	3,412

Administration as percentage of NHS spend	4.9

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her statement of 15 November 2005, Official Report, column 849, on NHS finance, if she will provide details on how she calculates administrative costs. [31099]

Mr. Byrne: National health service administration costs were collected centrally from annual accounts returns reported by the NHS. NHS administration cost expenditure was not collected prior to 1996–97 or post 2003–04 in this manner. From 2004–05, NHS administration costs are calculated using administrative and clerical figures from the administration and estates staff costs (cash terms). These figures are not directly comparable.

These figures do not contain NHS foundation trusts (NHSFTs), who report management costs separately to Monitor, the independent regulator for NHSFTs, using the Department's management costs guidance as best practice.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total (a) strategic health authority, (b) NHS trust and (c) primary care trust revenue expenditure was in each year since 1997; how much was accounted for by (i) salaries and wages, (ii) supplies and services-general, (iii) supplies and services-clinical, (iv) establishment expenses, (v) premises and fixed plant, (vi) cost of use of capital assets, (vii) purchase of health care from non-NHS bodies, (viii) external contract staff and (ix) all other major cost areas in each year; and what assessment she has made of how these expenditure streams may develop in the years until 2010. [36434]

Mr. Byrne: The requested information from 1997–98 to 2004–05 is shown in the table. Information is not available up to 2010.

Notes

1. Data from financial returns. Although data is not audited, it is reconciled to figures in the audited accounts.
2. 2004–05 NHS trust figures do not contain NHS foundation trusts.
3. 2004–05 data is still subject to amendment, although significant changes are unlikely.
4. 2004–05 financial returns data has been used to answer parliamentary questions.

Mr. Quentin Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of the incremental funding available to the NHS since 1997 has been spent on (a) higher wages, (b) shorter working hours, (c) administrative costs including contractors, consultants and external legal expenses and (d) incremental medical services provided to patients. [42187]

Mr. Byrne: The table gives details of the attribution of additional resources spent across the national health service since 1997.

	Cash accounting increase 1997–98 to 2000–01	Stage two resource accounting increase 2000–01 to 2004–05
Real increase in total NHS DEL[1] (£ billion)	7.6	20.0
Apportionment of Increase
Staff and pay[2,3] (Percentage)	47	53
Of which
Higher wages (Percentage)	33	29
Additional staff (Percentage)	13	23
Drugs (Percentage)	17	13
Others[4] (Percentage)	36	34

[2] From 2003-04 onwards, the Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL) for the Department was increased by a switch from the exchequers annually managed expenditure spending to cover the increased costs of pensions. An addition of £1.6 billion was made to the NHS DEL to cover these costs from 2003-04 onwards. While this change affected the overall level of NHS Expenditure, they did not increase or decrease the spending power of the NHS. It is cost neutral. For purpose of comparability, the extra expenditure has been stripped out of pay and included in others.
[3] Pay has been estimated by combining NHS Accounts information, accounts data for foundation trusts from Monitor, and general medical practice data based on latest information on the new general practitioner contract. Increases in staff are based on census returns, the proportion of extra funds to new staff and pay is based annual comparison of growth in pay bill with growth in NHS staff numbers (weighted by pay).
[4] Examples of other incremental expenditure include: buildings, equipment, training, research and development, supplies of services.
Note.
This analysis may not be directly comparable to previously published analyses due to revisions to forecasts, estimates and GDP deflators.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) surpluses and (b) deficits have been of each of the (i) trust and (ii) foundation hospitals in each of the last three years. [43055]

Mr. Byrne: The information on the financial positions of strategic health authorities, primary care trusts and national health service trusts for 1997-98 to 2004-05 is available in the Library.

The forecast outturn position for 2005-06, as submitted by NHS organisations at the mid-year point (month six), is also available in the Library and in addition, is available on the Department's website at: www.dh.gov.uk/PublicationsAndStatistics/FreedomOfInformation/ClassesOfInformation/fs/en.

With reference to NHS foundation trusts (NHS FTs), I am advised by the Chairman of Monitor that the Review and Consolidated Accounts of NHS FTs 2004-05 were laid before Parliament on 22 November 2005. These set out the financial performance of each of the 25 NHS FTs in operation during the 2004-05 financial year, the first year in which NHS FTs operated.

I am further advised, that Monitor published its half-yearly update on the performance of NHS FTs on 16 December 2005. Both the review for 2004-05 and the half-yearly update is available on Monitor's website at: www.monitor-nhsft.gov.uk.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 11 January 2006, Official Report, column 732W, on NHS finance, if she will list the 63 NHS organisations which are forecasting the most significant deficits; and what the (a) latest in-year deficit and (b) forecast year-end deficit is in each case. [44242]

Mr. Byrne: The national health service organisations that are forecasting significant deficits at month six of 2005-06 were subject to the first phase of the turnaround teams' baseline assessment. A report on the work of the turnaround teams, which lists these organisations, is available on the Department's website at: www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/12/71/88/04127188.pdf.

The forecast outturn position for 2005-06, as submitted by NHS organisations at the mid-year point (month six), is a net deficit of around £620 million. The 2005-06 month six forecast outturn position for individual NHS organisations (strategic health authorities, primary care trusts and NHS trusts) is also available on the Department's website, and can be accessed at: www.dh.gov.uk/PublicationsAndStatistics/FreedomOfInformation/ClassesOfInformation/fs/en

Copies of this information are available in the Library.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government are taking to deal with the NHS trusts that are unable to contain their financial deficits; and if she will make a statement. [44418]

Mr. Byrne: It is the responsibility of strategic health authorities (SHAs) to deliver overall financial balance for their local health communities, and to ensure each and every body achieves financial balance. SHAs determine the support needed for their organisations to achieve this objective.

To help restore financial balance in the national health service, in December 2005, turnaround teams were appointed. The turnaround teams will work with SHAs, individual primary care trusts and NHS trusts. Their focus will be on organisations that are forecasting the largest deficits for the current financial year.

Turnaround teams will help to ensure NHS organisations deliver efficiency and quality improvement needed to achieve financial balance and better care for patients.

NHS Managers

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of NHS managers were clinicians in each of the last 10 years. [43462]

Mr. Byrne: The table shows the percentage of national health service managers who also had a clinical qualification in each of the last 10 years.

Percentage of managers with a clinical qualification, England

	Percentage
1995	47.4
1996	47.8
1997	47.2
1998	47.1

2000	45.8
2001	46.0
2002	42.5
2003	46.0
2004	50.2

NHS Staff Costs

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of the increase in NHS funding has been spent on staff costs in each year since 1997. [19279]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is shown in the following table.

Total (England) increased expenditure on staff costs, shown as a percentage of the increase in total national health service expenditure

	Percentage
1997–98	31.1
1998–99	50.5
1999–2000	45.3
2000–01	48.9
2001–02	52.7
2002–03	53.0
2003–04	29.7
2004–05	21.6

Notes:
1. Returns for 2003–04 from NHS bodies excluded the increase in NHS employers' pension contributions from 7 per cent. to 14 per cent. of pensionable pay. This was paid directly to the NHS Pensions Agency by the Department of Health.
2. Expenditure in NHS foundation trusts is not included within returns provided to the Department of Health. The 2004–05 figures therefore exclude all NHS foundation trusts data and are not consistent with the previous figures in the table.

Obesity

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will launch the planned cross-Government campaign to raise awareness of the health risks of obesity and the steps people can take through diet and physical activity to prevent it; what discussions she has had with external stakeholders regarding the design of the campaign; when these discussions took place; and if she will make a statement. [43536]

Caroline Flint: The social marketing programme will be launched in the autumn of 2006. Its focus will be on providing the general public with the necessary information and support to lead healthier lifestyles in relation to diet and physical activity. In developing this activity, discussions have taken place with a broad range of stakeholders across Government, the non-governmental organisations sector and relevant industries over the past six months. These meetings have included bilateral discussions and a larger scale summit held in December. Development work has focused on understanding the behaviours and attitudes of people at highest risk of obesity and exploring how stakeholders can contribute to the development and implementation of the programme.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 20 December 2005, Official Report, column 2716W, on obesity, how rates of childhood obesity are calculated; whether this will change following publication of her Department's guidance on measuring childhood obesity on 11 January 2006; and if she will make a statement. [43634]

Caroline Flint: Calculation of the rate of childhood obesity for measuring obesity prevalence in the Department are based on United Kingdom national body mass index (BMI) percentile classification. This defines children as overweight and obese if their BMI falls above the 85th and 95th centile, respectively, of the reference curve for their age and gender. This methodology is used by both the Health Survey of England and is outlined in the guidance to primary care trusts (PCTs) on calculating local childhood obesity prevalence. There are no plans to change this following publication of the Department's guidance on measuring childhood obesity on 11 January 2006.

Recent guidance on measuring childhood obesity provides advice to PCTs on how to measure the height and weight of children in reception year (four to five years) and year 6 (10 to 11 years). This local data on childhood obesity will help inform local planning, targeting of local resources and interventions and enable tracking of local progress against the childhood obesity public service agreement target.

Ophthalmic Services

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether NHS organisations were invited to submit proposals for mobile clinics for cataract operations. [17373]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 17 October 2005]: Any organisation, including national health service organisations, could have expressed an interest in the advertisement published in the Official Journal of the European Union advertisement in 2003 and submitted a pre-qualification questionnaire. No NHS organisations responded to these stages of the procurement.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of ophthalmic services in Wolverhampton. [46822]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 30 January 2006]: It is the responsibility of the Wolverhampton city primary care trust to ensure that appropriate services are commissioned to meet the needs of its local population.

The Birmingham and the Black Country strategic health authority reports that the Royal Wolverhampton hospitals national health service trust intends to relocate ophthalmic services from the Wolverhampton eye infirmary to new facilities in the New Cross hospital. This follows a formal period of public consultation which concluded in December 2004.

Paediatric Continence Services

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what action she plans to take to promote the development of integrated paediatric continence services in every primary care trust; [43574]

(2) what assessment she has made of the effects of integrated continence services to children with persistent bladder and bowel problems. [43575]

Mr. Byrne: Primary care trusts will be assessed increasingly against the standards identified in the national service framework for children, young people and maternity services, and their progress toward meeting these standards, including standard six, which recommends integrated paediatric continence services. This is in line with our assessment that integrated community-based paediatric continence services, informed by our previous guidance, "Good Practice in Paediatric Continence Services", can help children with incontinence problems and their parents or carers to access care and treatment more easily. The guidance is available on the Department's website at: www.cgsupport.nhs.uk/PDFs/articles/good_practice_paediatric_continence_services.pdf.

Parkinson's Disease

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent discussions she has had with (a) ministerial colleagues and (b) others about the provision of funding for Parkinson's disease nurse specialists; and if she will make a statement; [47349]

(2) what assessment she has made of the levels of funding required for Parkinson's disease nurse specialists; and if she will make a statement. [47361]

Mr. Byrne: We have made no assessment on the levels of funding required for Parkinson's disease nurse specialists, nor have we had recent discussions on the provision of such nurses.

It is the responsibility of primary care trusts to provide services for those living with Parkinson's disease. This may include the provision of Parkinson's disease nurse specialists.

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government are taking to increase the quality of treatment available for those suffering from Parkinson's disease in Bedfordshire; and if she will make a statement. [47353]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The national service framework (NSF) for long-term conditions focuses on improving services for people with neurological conditions, such as Parkinson's disease. People with these conditions will get faster diagnosis, more rapid treatment and a comprehensive package of care under the NSF, both nationally and in Bedfordshire.

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many Parkinson's disease specialist nurses there have been in Bedfordshire in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [47355]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not held centrally.

Patientline Contract

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 4 July 2005, Official Report, column 226W, on the Patientline Contract, what monitoring her Department has carried out on the (a) pricing policies and (b) profits of Patientline. [46560]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 30 January 2006]: I refer the right hon. Member to the ministerial statement made on 19 January 2006, Official Report, column 33WS.

Patientline is contracted by national health service trusts to supply a service for patients. The detail of and the performance against the contact is a matter for the trusts.

Plagiocephaly

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice her Department has provided to parents on positional plagiocephaly. [37213]

Mr. Byrne: The Department's guidance to parents on the first five years of their child's life, 'Birth to five' advises parents to enable their babies to experience a range of positions during waking hours. This is good for their development. Positional plagiocephaly is caused by consistent pressure applied to one part of a baby's skull over a period of time, typically while sleeping in one position. This is commonly remedied by encouraging the baby to adopt different postures while awake.

Poultry Inspections

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Food Standards Agency put in place to monitor compliance with the requirement for poultry inspection assistants appointed after 1 January to meet the new training and qualification requirements of the EU Hygiene Package. [44985]

Caroline Flint: The Official Veterinarian (OV) in the plant is responsible for checking that slaughterhouse staff appointed as poultry inspection assistants have undergone formal training and external assessment and achieved the necessary qualification awarded by the Royal Society for the Promotion of Health.

The Food Standards Agency audits OVs' compliance with their instructions.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many poultry slaughterhouses have indicated to her Department that they wish the Meat Hygiene Services to replace poultry inspection assistants with official poultry meat hygiene inspectors after 1 January as a result of the EU Hygiene Package as it affects poultry inspection assistants' training and qualifications. [44986]

Caroline Flint: In early November 2005, the Meat Hygiene Service (MHS) surveyed all 109 licensed poultry slaughterhouses on their future intentions regarding the use of plant inspection assistants after 1 January 2006. 63 operators replied that they were using plant inspection assistants at the time.

11 operators indicated that they were considering changing their current inspection system. Of these, three confirmed that they intended to cease using plant inspection assistants and would require MHS staff to carry out post-mortem inspection, four were considering replacing plant inspection assistants with MHS staff and one was considering using MHS staff as emergency cover for plant inspection assistants. Three were proposing to introduce plant inspection assistants at their establishment.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what changes will be made to the training and qualifications arrangements for poultry inspection assistants after 1 January following the introduction of the EU Hygiene Package. [44987]

Caroline Flint: Slaughterhouse staff appointed as poultry inspection assistants after 1 January 2006 are required to undergo formal training and pass the same examination as official auxiliaries in relation to the official controls they will actually perform.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment the Food Standards Agency has made of the public health implications of allowing transitional arrangements in the new EU Hygiene Package. [44988]

Caroline Flint: Transitional arrangements for the new European hygiene regulations cover a range of issues, including poultry meat inspection.

In view of the more robust training requirements for plant inspection assistants (PIAs) contained in the regulations and reduced risks to food safety from British poultry meat, the Food Standards Agency's assessment of the transitional arrangements relating to PIAs is that there is no negative implication for public health.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether poultry inspection assistants in post prior to 1 January will be permitted to continue to inspect poultry meat without reference to the new training and qualifications framework in the new EU Hygiene Package under transitional arrangements. [44989]

Caroline Flint: Existing plant inspection assistants (PIAs), in post prior 1 January 2006, can continue to assist the Official Veterinarian unless their performance falls below the requirements of the Regulation, in which case their authorisation will be withdrawn.

Existing PIAs are required to pass the same examination as the official auxiliaries for the tasks they are authorised to perform by 31 December 2009, end of the transitional period.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what training poultry inspection assistants in post before 1 January were required to undergo before they were permitted to inspect poultry meat. [44990]

Caroline Flint: The training for plant inspection assistants was set out in Regulation 11 of the Poultry Meat, Farmed Game Bird Meat and Rabbit Meat (Hygiene and Inspection) Regulations 1995 (revoked on 31 December 2005). The training consisted of theoretical and practical experience of on-line post-mortem inspection under the supervision of the official veterinary surgeon.

The recommendation for theoretical training was 15 hours of instruction dependant upon the candidate's existing knowledge and the recommendation for on-line practical experience was 50 hours for the species they would be inspecting. This could vary depending on the number of species to be inspected and the previous experience of the candidate.

The contents of the training included gross pathology, leading to detention and control of unfit meat; animal welfare; anatomy; physiology and an understanding of relevant legislation and the Meat Hygiene Service's role in its enforcement.

Prescriptions

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people have been prosecuted under the Health Act 1999 for wrongful claims of free prescriptions in Gravesham in each year since 2000. [29822]

Jane Kennedy: Since August 2001, a penalty charge system has been in place in respect of those falsely claiming exemption to national health service pharmaceutical charges. This has resulted in a considerable increase in civil action being instigated for first time offenders with repeat offenders subsequently dealt with through criminal proceedings. Penalties are sanctioned through the civil courts as criminal prosecution of offenders would not be a cost effective way of dealing with such high volume but low-value frauds.

Up to 31 March 2005, 160,000 penalty notices had been issued, with a further surcharge applied if the penalty charge was not settled within the given time limit. The total amount recovered up to 31 March is £2,950,000. These figures are national and are not broken down into regions as requested.

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 December 2005, Official Report, column 2166W, on primary care trusts, if she will make it her policy not to require primary care trusts to (a) outsource and (b) market test services. [43571]

Mr. Byrne: There is no central requirement for primary care trusts to outsource or market test services. We want the new primary care trusts (PCTs), not the existing strategic health authorities, to decide how best to manage their new responsibilities after reconfiguration.

If a new PCT wishes to change the provision of community services in the future, this will of course be subject to consultation before any decisions are made.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether it is her intention to encourage primary care trusts to reduce direct provision of services to a minimum. [43562]

Mr. Byrne: It is not the intention to encourage primary care trusts to reduce direct provision of services to a minimum. The Secretary of State made this clear in her statement to Parliament on 25 October 2005, stating:

> "District nurses, health visitors and other staff delivering clinical services will continue to be employed by their PCT, unless and until the PCT decides otherwise" and

> "any such decisions would be driven locally following our White Paper deliberation".

We do not have a policy requirement or timetable for primary care trusts (PCTs) to divest themselves of provision. We will support PCTs whether or not they divest themselves of service provision, provided that what is being offered is genuinely best for local patient care.

Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list all hospitals with a private finance initiative contract, broken down by constituency; what the value is of each contract; and what the repayment costs are on each contract. [42668]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 12 July 2005, Official Report, columns 988–89W and on 23 January 2006, Official Report, column 1885W, which stated that detailed unitary payment (we have interpreted repayment costs to mean the unitary charges) for schemes which have reached financial close had been placed in the Library. This list has now been updated to reflect constituencies and the four private finance initiative hospital schemes which have reached financial close since then and which are over £20 million in capital value.

Purified Protein Derivative

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects Mantoux-strength purified protein derivative to receive a product licence from the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency. [39325]

Jane Kennedy: A marketing authorisation for any medicinal product, including Mantoux purified protein derivative, will be issued by the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency if the data submitted in support of that application are considered satisfactory against the standard criteria of safety, quality and efficacy for the intended use.

Respiratory Diseases

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 23 January 2006, Official Report, column 1864W, on respiratory diseases, what assessment she has made of the European Community respiratory health survey; and if she will make a statement. [47163]

Mr. Byrne: The European Community respiratory health survey is specifically designed to estimate variations in the prevalence of asthma; to estimate variations in exposures to known or suspected risk factors for asthma, and assess to what extent these variations explain the variations in the prevalence of disease; and to estimate differences in the use of medication for asthma.

The results of this survey will prove valuable for health professionals working to identify the causes, and most effective treatments, for asthma.

Rickets

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the incidence was of rickets in the UK in each of the last five years. [37133]

Caroline Flint: The incidence of rickets is shown in the table. The information provided is for England only.

All diagnosis count of finished consultant episodes for rickets[1] national service hospitals, England 2000–01 to 2004–05

	All diagnosis count of finished consultant episodes
2000–01	229
2001–02	297
2002–03	283
2003–04	329
2004–05	306

[1] Rickets defined as:
Rickets, active recorded as primary or secondary diagnosis.
Excludes—rickets: coeliac, crohn's, inactive, renal, vitamin D resistant.

School Sanitary Provision

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what penalties are imposed on schools failing to adhere to the Education (School Premises) Regulations 1999, with regard to the number of toilets and washbasins provided for pupils. [47233]

Jacqui Smith: I have been asked to reply.

Responsibility for applying the requirements of these regulations rests with local education authorities. There are no penalties for failure to meet these requirements, but the Secretary of State for Education and Skills has the power to direct schools and LEAs to meet the Regulations.

Special Advisers

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the special advisers in post in her Department, broken down by pay band; and what the total budgeted cost to her Department of special advisers is for 2005–06. [29409]

Jane Kennedy: Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and overall cost of special advisers and the number in each pay band. For the most recent information, I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister on 21 July 2005, Official Report, columns 158–62WS.

Information on the numbers of special advisers prior to 2003 was provided at regular intervals and this information will be available in the Library.

Information relating to costs for 2005–06 will be published after the end of the current financial year.

Strategic Health Authorities (Board Members)

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the board members of each strategic health authority who have left their position in each of the last three years. [46265]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 30 January 2006]: Information about board members who have left the boards of strategic health authorities is not available centrally.

The NHS Appointments Commission does hold information about the appointment of non-executive board members since 2001 when it was established.

The NHS Appointments Commission have been asked to write to the hon. Member regarding this matter.

Thyroid Function Testing

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will introduce routine testing for thyroid function. [47239]

Mr. Byrne: Routine testing for thyroid function is currently available at the clinical judgement of health care professionals.

Trainee Medical Staff (Financial Support)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what changes have been made to financial support available to trainee NHS (a) nurses, (b) doctors, (c) midwives and (d) managers since 1997. [45884]

Mr. Byrne: We developed the NHS bursary scheme for trainee nurses and midwives in its present form in 1998. Since 1999, there have been a number of additional allowances provided by the NHS bursary scheme that include re-imbursement for clinical placements, travel and accommodation costs, a childcare allowance and we have recently extended provision for maternity leave.

Since 2002, the national health service has paid the tuition fees for students on years five and six of their pre-registration medical education programmes and years two until four of the post-graduate programme. These students may also be eligible for a means-tested NHS bursary.

There has been no significant change to the financial support available to trainees on the national graduate management training scheme.

Velcade

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will issue guidelines to primary care trusts on the prescribing of Velcade to apply until such time as the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has issued its guidelines; and if she will make a statement. [48367]

Jane Kennedy: In 1999, the Department issued Health Service Circular 1999/176, which asks national health service bodies to continue with local arrangements for the managed introduction of new technologies where guidance from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has not yet been issued. These arrangements should include an assessment of the available evidence.

Worcestershire Acute Hospital Trust

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average length of stay is for patients in Worcestershire Acute Hospital Trust in the last year for which figures are available. [46894]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The average length of stay for patients in Worcestershire Acute Hospitals National Health Service Trust during 2004–05 was 4.9 days.

Notes:
Finished provider spell
A finished provider spell is defined as a period of in-patient care within one health care provider that commences with the patient's admission and ends on the date of discharge. It may comprise one or more finished consultant episodes (FCEs).
Length of stay (duration of spell)
Length of stay is calculated as the difference in days between the admission date and the discharge date, where both are given. Length of stay is based on hospital spells and only applies to ordinary admissions, that is, day cases are excluded, unless otherwise stated. Information relating to Length of stay figures, including discharge method/destination, diagnoses and any operative procedures, is based only on the final episode of the spell.
Ungrossed data
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data, that is, the data is ungrossed.

A-levels

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average A-level points score per pupil was for 11 to 18 years schools with sixth forms containing (a) 50 or fewer, (b) 51 to 100, (c) 101 to 150, (d) 151 to 200, (e) 201 to 250 and (f) more than 250 pupils in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [47826]

Jacqui Smith: The average GCE/VCE A/AS point score per candidate aged 16 to 18 in school sixth forms (excluding independent schools), split by size of sixth form for 2003 to 2005 is as follows:

Number of pupils aged 16 to 18	2002–03	2003–04	2004–05
50 or fewer	164.9	179.0	169.0
51 to 100	196.2	203.0	202.1
101 to 150	222.6	226.8	229.1
151 to 200	255.9	261.4	256.8
201 to 250	282.3	282.8	290.9
250 or more	291.9	298.5	301.6
Total	266.8	273.6	277.6

Note:

Average point score calculations are based on A-level candidates only. The size of the sixth form has been estimated by using the total number of students aged 16–18 at the school, whether they were entered for an A-level or not.

Asset Sales

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate she has made of the income derived from sales of assets resulting from the tier simplification of education structures in the North East; if she will list the items sold; and if she will make a statement. [48127]

Jacqui Smith: We have not made any estimates of the income to local authorities from the disposal of surplus school assets resulting from the reorganisation of education structures in the North East. It is for the local authorities to determine which assets are no longer needed by schools and the community which may use them.

The organisation of school provision is a local matter and local authorities have overall responsibility for ensuring that there are sufficient schools to meet local needs and final decisions on proposals to change the pattern of provision would normally be made by the local School Organisation Committee (SOC) or schools adjudicator.

In the North East there are three local authorities with middle schools (Newcastle upon Tyne, Northumberland and North Tyneside). Following approval from the schools adjudicator in April 2004 Newcastle upon Tyne LA has now completed its reorganisation of schools (3 to 2 tier) in the Outer West area. The Gosforth area will remain 3 tier. Northumberland LA has published proposals and obtained approval for a reorganisation scheme to remove some of its middle schools for implementation from 2005 onwards. We understand that North Tyneside LA has no current plans to reorganise its school structure.

Avian Influenza

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what contingency plans her Department has prepared for schools in case of a reported outbreak of avian influenza within the UK. [48679]

Jacqui Smith: I refer the hon. Member to the earlier replies given to the hon. Member for Sutton and Cheam (Mr. Burstow) on 7 December 2005, Official Report, column 1341W and my hon. Friend the Member for Bury North (Mr. Chaytor) on 30 January 2006, Official Report, column 96W.

Boarding Schools

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the terms of reference are of her Department's working group on boarding schools; and who are the members of the working group. [47124]

Jacqui Smith: The Department chairs an informal group of external partners who are assisting in exploring the potential for greater use by local authorities of boarding education provision for vulnerable children, where a careful assessment of the child's individual needs indicates that this would be beneficial. The group is focusing on designing a series of pathfinder projects with a sample of local authorities, boarding schools and representatives of educational trusts to develop and evaluate tools for identifying and assessing those children whose needs could be met by appropriate boarding provision.

In addition to the DfES officials, the group's current membership is:

Adrian Underwood—National Director, Boarding Schools' Association;

Melvyn Roffe—Chairman, State Boarding Schools' Association;

Gerri McAndrew—Director, The Frank Buttle Trust;

Colin Morrison—Chairman, Royal Wanstead Children's Foundation;

Julie Burns—Director, Joint Education Trust;

Maureen Phillips—Head of Service, Looked After Children, Hertfordshire County Council; and Jane Held—DfES contracted consultant and researcher.

Catch-up Classes

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills in what subjects she proposes to provide catch-up classes as referred to on page 21 of the White Paper Higher Standards, Better Schools for All. [47762]

Jacqui Smith: Schools are best placed to know the learning needs of their pupils and must use their own professional judgement to decide in which subjects they need to provide catch-up classes.

We will continue through our National Strategies programme to offer advice, guidance and support to primary and secondary schools on catch-up classes in English and mathematics. In addition, we will be investing £565 million by 2007–08 to support the personalisation of learning in schools, focusing particularly on helping children who have fallen behind in English and mathematics, and a further £60 million in each of the next two years to provide effective one-to-one and small group tuition for the lowest attaining pupils in targeted schools.

Citizenship Curriculum

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will take steps to ensure that the citizenship curriculum includes the teaching of (a) the words of the National Anthem and (b) knowledge of the flags and patron saints of the nations of the United Kingdom; and if she will make a statement. [48858]

Jacqui Smith: The flags, patron saints and the national anthem of the United Kingdom are not a separate element of the Citizenship National Curriculum. However, understanding the origins and implications of the diverse national, regional, religious and ethnic identities in the United Kingdom is an important part of Citizenship curriculum which became statutory for 11 to 16-year-olds in September 2002. In this context pupils have the opportunity to explore the unique qualities that are part of the shared identities of the countries of the United Kingdom. They may consider the political, religious, social and constitutional systems that affect their lives and communities and that may include learning about the flags, patron saints and the national anthem. These are presently not a separate element of the Citizenship National Curriculum and there are currently no plans to change this.

Civil Servants

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of each civil service grade in her Department is located in each region of England; what the average salary is for each grade; and if she will make a statement. [35897]

Maria Eagle: My hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Secretary at the Cabinet Office has written to the hon. Member with details for the civil service of the percentage of staff in post by region and grade responsibility and the median salary of staff in post by region and grade responsibility as at 1 April 2004. Copies of his letter will be placed in the Library.

Class Sizes

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many primary school classes for five to seven-year-olds contained more than 30 pupils in each of the last five years. [48258]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is shown in the table.

Maintained primary schools[1]: number and percentage of Key Stage 1 classes containing 31 or more pupils[2,3] 2001 to 2005—Position in January each year

	Key Stage 1
	Number of classes of 31 or more pupils	Percentage of classes of 31 or more pupils
2001	1,120	1.8
2002	330	0.5
2003	520	0.9
2004	650	1.2
2005	700	1.2

[1] Includes middles schools as deemed.

[2] One teacher classes.

[3] Classes as taught during a single selected period in each school on the day of the census in January.

Dental Training

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the written statement of 26 January 2006, Official Report, column 64WS, on dental training, whether the additional temporary dental training places awarded to the Newcastle Dental School in 2005–06 will be renewed in 2006–07; and what additional resources will be made available to Newcastle Dental School in (a) 2006–07 and (b) succeeding years to make provision for the additional students recruited in 2005–06. [48799]

Bill Rammell: In order to ensure that the total intake of dental students does not fall in 2006–07, the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) intends to extend the temporary 2005–06 allocation of dental student numbers for a further year. The University of Newcastle was awarded 20 temporary dental student numbers for academic year 2005–06 and has now been offered 12 temporary dental student numbers for academic year 2006–07.

The 2006–07 funding to be allocated to Newcastle for its additional dentistry places is subject to agreement by the HEFCE Board later this month, when overall decisions are taken about funding levels for the sector. Funding will be at the rate decided for all dental and medical students and will be announced to the university thereafter. HEFCE has undertaken to fund both the 2005–06 and 2006–07 intakes through to the completion of their studies.

HEFCE will also make available additional capital funding to underpin the 2005–06 allocation of permanent dental student numbers. Existing dental schools, including Newcastle, will be invited to submit a case for funding to support the development of innovative methods of dental education.

Departmental Advertising

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the public information advertising campaigns run by her Department in the past 12 months; and how much her Department spent on (a) newspapers and (b) television advertising for those campaigns. [42513]

Maria Eagle: The following table lists spend on newspapers and television for public information advertising campaigns in the last 12 months.

£000

Campaign	Newspaper spend	Television advertising
Fast Track recruitment	66	0
Student Finance	318	2,418
Adult Basic Skills	283	2,588
Foundation Degrees	18	0
Parents Centre Website	189	0
Sure Start	251	0
Parents Centre Website	161	0
Every Child Matters	2	0
Teenage Pregnancy	80	0
Childcare Recruitment	271	0
Total Spend	1,642	5,006

Early Interventions

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent on the New Approaches To Contact Early Interventions Project; and why the project was terminated. [48170]

Maria Eagle: The Government did not spend money on the NATC Early Interventions Project. The Government developed the Family Resolutions Pilot Project, which was a time-limited pilot project that ran for one year from September 2004 to September 2005. It was designed to test the value of group work and parent planning sessions in helping parents resolve their differences about contact arrangements for their children after parental separation, without recourse to the full court process.

The pilot project ended in September 2005 and an independent evaluation, to assess its impact, is currently being prepared, which is expected to be published in March 2006. This is intended to inform decisions about how to implement lessons learned from the pilot.

The Government invested an estimated total of £300,000 in Family Resolutions over two financial years (£170,000 in 2004-05 and £130,000 in 2005-06). Final expenditure figures will not be available until end year outturn is known, in April 2006.

Education (Restriction of Employment) Regulations

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many students were reported to her Department under the Education (Restriction of Employment) Regulations 2000 by (a) teacher training colleges and (b) further education institutions in each year since 2000. [47352]

(2) how many teachers were reported to her Department under the Education (Restriction of Employment) Regulations 2000 in each year since 2000; and how many (a) were dismissed from teaching on the grounds of misconduct and (b) resigned in circumstances which would have led to consideration of their dismissal had they not resigned. [47357]

Jacqui Smith: The Department does not collect the information requested in the format requested. However, figures representing the total number of referrals to the Department in each of the last five years are set out in the following table. These include both child abuse and non child abuse issues from all sources that report concerns to the Secretary of State.

	Number of referrals from all sources
2005	2,092
2004	1,362
2003	1,147
2002	1,004
2001	1,007
2000	1,092

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many people received education maintenance allowances in (a) Stroud constituency, (b) Gloucestershire and (c) England in each year since the inception of the scheme; and what estimate she has made of the impact of the scheme on the percentage stay-on rate for 16-year-olds; [41530]

(2) how many people (a) were eligible for and (b) took up education maintenance allowances in (i) Stroud constituency, (ii) Gloucestershire and (iii) England in the last year for which figures are available. [41531]

Maria Eagle: The first part of question 41530 and question 41531 are matters for the Learning and Skills Council. Mark Haysom, the Council's Chief Executive, will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Regarding the impact of EMA, I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I have given to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 16 January 2006, Official Report, column 1015W.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 30 January 2006:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Questions that asked "how many people received education maintenance allowances in each year since the inception of the scheme in (a) Stroud constituency, (b) Gloucestershire and (c) England?", and how many people (a) were eligible for and (b) took up education maintenance allowances in (i) Stroud constituency, (ii) Gloucestershire and (iii) England, in the last year for which figures are available?".

Information on the number of young people who have applied for, enrolled and received EMA is available at local education authority level, but not at constituency level. The information relates to the academic years.

EMA was piloted in 56 areas before launching the national scheme. Gloucestershire local education authority was not a pilot area. EMA was rolled-out nationally in the academic year 2004-05. In this year, EMA was available to all 16-years-olds nationally and to 17 and 18-years-olds in former pilot areas (young people who are 19 are entitled to receive EMA in certain circumstances).

The following table displays data for Gloucestershire local education authority area and England.

	Number of young people receiving at least one EMA payment
Area	2001/02 Pilot	2002/03 Pilot	2003/04 Pilot	2004/05 National
Gloucestershire	n.a	n.a	n.a	2,125
England	127,900	125,600	115,900	297,500

No data is available prior to 2001/02. For 2001/02–2003/04, no data is available for Sunderland, East Lancashire or Suffolk. Therefore, figures for England (pilot areas) are approximate only.

In preparation for the national roll-out, projections of the number of young people eligible for EMA were only made for 16-years-olds. The projections are formed by applying income distributions (derived from the Family Resources Survey) and expected numbers in full-time further education to the estimated population of 16-years-olds. When applied to individual localities the figures may be subject to some variation but they provide a useful estimate.

The following table displays the data for Gloucestershire local education authority area and England.

	Take-up of EMA by 16-years-olds in 2004/05
Area	Projected number eligible	Actual take-up	Percentage take-up
Gloucestershire	2,210	2,125	96.15
England	266,000	217,360	81.71

I hope this information is helpful and addresses your question. If you would like further details please contact Chris Bradley at the LSC National Office on 0114 207 4512 or Christopher.Bradley@lsc.gov.uk.

Education Statistics (Wandsworth)

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average class size is in (a) primary schools and (b) secondary schools in Wandsworth. [47754]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is shown in the table.

Maintained primary and secondary schools[1]: average class size[2,3] January 2005: Wandsworth local authority

Maintained primary	25.8
Maintained secondary	21.6

[1] Includes middle schools as deemed.
[2] One teacher classes.

Education White Paper

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions she has had with representatives from the North East region regarding the education White Paper "Higher Standards, Better Schools for All". [48392]

Jacqui Smith: The Secretary of State has been in the north east of England on a number of occasions in recent months. She met with local MPs and councillors and among other issues she discussed the White Paper "Higher Standards, Better Schools for All". She also addressed the delegates in the North of England Conference in Gateshead on 6 January.

Mr. Paul Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many representations she has received from Wales about the cross-border implications of the White Paper on Schools, "Higher Standards, Better Schools for All: More Choice for Parents and Pupils". [48446]

Jacqui Smith: The Department has received over 200 representations from a wide range of organisations, Members of Parliament and members of the public which directly refer to the White Paper. We have not received any representations from Wales which specifically refer to cross border implications of the White Paper on Schools, "Higher Standards, Better Schools for All: More Choice for Parents and Pupils".

Educational Attainment

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of candidates achieved five or more A* to C grades at GCSE, excluding BTEC First diplomas or equivalent, in each of the last six years. [45376]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 24 January 2006]: The figures requested are included in the following table. BTEC First diplomas were not included in GCSE and equivalent results prior to 2004.

Year[1]	Percentage of 15-year-olds[2] achieving 5+ A*-C grades at GCSE and equivalent excluding BTEC First diplomas	Percentage contribution of BTEC First diplomas to the percentage of 15-year-olds[2] achieving 5+ A*-C grades at GCSE and equivalent
2005[3]	56.2	0.1
2004	53.7	0.0
2003	52.9	0.0
2002	51.6	0.0
2001	50.0	0.0
2000	49.2	0.0

[1] BTEC First diplomas were only included in GCSE results from 2004. Results only included GCSEs and GNVQs between 2000 and 2003.
[2] The figures shown relate to pupils aged 15 at the start of the academic year (ie 31 August).
[3] 2005 figures are revised. 2004 figures are final.

English Folk Dance and Song

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will include teaching of English folk dance and song within the national curriculum; and if she will make a statement. [48857]

Jacqui Smith: Within the National Curriculum Programme of Study for Physical Education there is already provision for the teaching of dances which reflect different times and cultures. The National Curriculum Programme for Study for Music states that the breadth of study should be taught through a range of music from different times and cultures which may include music from the British Isles.

We have moved away from a prescriptive curriculum and no longer explicitly state exactly what must be taught in any subject. Indeed, we have given teachers this flexibility as they will know the best ways to address the needs of their pupils.

Excellence Centres

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) in which constituencies early excellence centres are located; [43935]

(2) how many (a) full-time and (b) part-time places have been available at early excellence centres in each year for which figures are available. [43937]

Beverley Hughes: There are 107 early excellence centres (EEC) across England, of these six deliver special projects across the country and the others are based around schools and early years settings. We do not hold information on the constituencies covered by the centres. The following table lists the number of centres within each local authority.

We do not collect information about the number of full or part-time places provided by individual centres. Centres provide a range of services including: one-stop shop activities like parent/carer drop-ins, access to adult education and training, home visiting, health visitor and therapist services, information and counselling.

Fire Safety

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what her Department's timetable is for bringing forward final proposals on design and managing against the risk of fire in schools. [45021]

Jacqui Smith: The draft of Building Bulletin 100, "Designing and Managing Against the Risk of Fire in Schools", has been out to public consultation and an analysis of the responses should be completed by the end of March. Work will then commence on a final version and we expect to be able to publish this during the summer.

Free Milk

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of school age children received free milk on the latest date for which figures are available. [48065]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is not collected centrally.

GCSE Performance

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps she is taking to improve the performance of pupils who attain fewer than five GCSEs or equivalent at grade A* to C. [47955]

Jacqui Smith: We have made good progress in the number of pupils getting five or more GCSEs or equivalent at grade A* to C. In 2005, 56.3 per cent. of 15- year-olds achieved five or more GCSEs or equivalent—a 2.6 percentage point increase on 2004 results and an increase of 11.2 percentage points compared with 1997. Over 67,000 more pupils are now achieving at this level than did so in 1997. We have also made good progress in the percentage of pupils achieving five or more GCSEs or equivalent at grade A* to C including English and mathematics, which rose from 42.6 per cent. in 2004 to 44.3 per cent. in 2005. This was the biggest annual percentage point increase since 1997.

The Department has a number of initiatives to ensure that schools receive the resources, advice and support that they need to raise attainment further at key stage 4. The key stage 3 national strategy has extended to become a full secondary national strategy for school improvement designed to raise standards, particularly in the core subjects, for all secondary school pupils. It aims to introduce excellent teaching and learning practices into every classroom through CPD, teaching materials and consultancy support. In addition, we are drawing on the expertise of successful schools and the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust to work in partnership with around 400 schools underperforming in value added terms.

The White Paper "Higher Standards, Better Schools for All" published in October 2005 sets out our plans to improve standards further, particularly by providing significant new incentives for schools to tailor education to the needs of every child and focus on the basics of English and mathematics.

Head Teachers

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps she is taking to encourage teachers to take the National Professional Qualification for Headship. [47372]

Jacqui Smith: The NPQH is mandatory for all aspirant head teachers wishing to take up their first headship posts in LEA maintained, and non-maintained special, schools. The success of the programme is evidenced by the increasing numbers coming forward to undertake it.

The National College for School Leadership works closely with its regional providers to target potential applicants, and advertises widely nationally and regionally during the application rounds.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate she has made of the number of headmasters who lead more than one school. [47367]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is not held centrally.

Home Tutors

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) to what regulations home tutors are subject; [44283]

(2) whether an individual who has been convicted of a sexual offence may work as a home tutor; and if she will make a statement. [44286]

Ruth Kelly [holding answer 20 January 2006]: Where an individual is barred from working with children under section 142 of the Education Act 2002 on the grounds that he or she is "unsuitable to work with children", it is a criminal offence to work or seek work in any position that includes training or being in sole charge of a child or children. A person guilty of this offence is liable, on summary conviction, to imprisonment for up to six months and/or a fine and, on indictment, to imprisonment for up to five years and/or a fine.

The Department would strongly advise parents to verify the credentials of any person employed to provide private tuition for a child, particularly if that person is likely to be alone with the child at any time. For example, parents could ask prospective tutors for references from a recent employer.

The Department is fully aware that parents currently have limited access to information. The new scheme to be implemented as part of the Bichard Inquiry Recommendations will allow parents to access relevant information on people they wish to employ as home tutors.

I made clear in my statement to the House on 12 January, we are committed to implementing Sir Michael Bichard's recommendations to tighten the system of vetting and barring people who wish to work with children and that will entail the ability for parents to check whether tutors, nannies, and other individuals whom they employ, are barred or disqualified.

Independent Schools

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the total annual financial saving is to independent schools as a result of their charitable status. [47763]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have been asked to reply.

Independent schools, along with other charities, benefit from a range of tax exemptions on trading profits, rental income, investment income and business rates, as well as certain reliefs from VAT. Those registered with HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) are also able to reclaim Gift Aid on qualifying donations. Using Gift Aid, the charity is able to reclaim 28 pence for every £1 donated.

It is not possible to ascertain the amount of these reliefs because HMRC records do not distinguish amounts repaid to or claimed by charities according to type of charity.

India

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps her Department has taken to help educational establishments in the UK and India establish lasting partnerships since the 2002 New Delhi Declaration. [48393]

Bill Rammell: Last September, on a visit to Delhi, the Prime Minister announced a major £10 million initiative spread over five years, aimed at re-vitalising educational links between institutions in the UK and India. The development of sustainable, long-term partnerships between institutions will be key to the success of this initiative. My Department, together with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the British Council, is leading on designing the shape of the new initiative which will begin this April. This design work is continuing and I expect to be in a position to announce more details of the scheme next month.

International Students

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what assessment her Department has made of the contribution of international students to the UK economy; [48599]

(2) what assessment she has made of how many international students engaged in part-time employment during their time in the United Kingdom; [48600]

(3) what steps her Department is taking to encourage international students to attend UK universities. [48602]

Bill Rammell: A study commissioned by the British Council in 2004 into the Global Value of UK Education and Training Exports estimated that international students contribute some £5 billion a year to the UK economy. Since 1999, my Department has taken steps to increase the number of international students in UK higher education through the Prime Minister's Initiative (PMI). A key element of the PMI is a worldwide marketing campaign to promote the credentials of UK education overseas. We expect to launch a second phase of the PMI in April. Information on the number of international students working part-time whilst in the UK is not available.

Media Coverage

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what analysis her Department has conducted of print and broadcast media coverage of her in the past 12 months. [47927]

Bill Rammell: The Department does not conduct analysis of media coverage of the Secretary of State.

New Secondary School (Ruislip)

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what assessment was made by her Department of the impact on other secondary schools in the London borough of Hillingdon of the decision to allow the creation of the planned new secondary school in Ruislip; [47065]

(2) what action she has taken to verify the planning predictions of pupil numbers used by the London borough of Hillingdon in its case for the construction of the planned new secondary school in Ruislip. [47068]

Jacqui Smith: The Department relies on local authorities to ensure, in their planning, that the provision of school places matches existing and forecast demand. This is because local authorities are in the best position to assess requirements. With respect to Hillingdon council, this should include the creation of the planned new secondary school in Ruislip.

Nursery Places

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) three and (b) four-year-olds whose parents had requested a nursery place did not have one allocated to them in each of the last five years. [48257]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not collected centrally.

All four-year-olds have been entitled to a free early education place since 1998 and from April 2004 this entitlement was extended to all three-year-olds. The free entitlement consists of a minimum of five two and a half hour sessions per week for 33 weeks of the year for six terms before statutory school age, which is the term following their fifth birthday.

Some local authorities may additionally offer subsidised child care places but this information is not collected centrally.

Figures for January 2005 show that all four-year-old children are benefiting from some free provision. The figure for three-years-olds is 96 per cent. This covers all maintained, private, voluntary and independent providers and represents 535,100 three-year-olds and 568,300 four-year-olds.

The available information on the number of three and four-year-old children taking up nursery education places in England is shown in the tables.

The latest figures on nursery education places for three and four-year-olds in England were published in Statistical First Release 43/2005 "Provision for children under five years of age in England—January 2005 (final)" in September, which is available on my Department's website www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/

Ofsted

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of schools inspected by Ofsted were rated (a) unsatisfactory, (b) satisfactory, (c) good and (d) outstanding in each year since 1997. [47229]

Jacqui Smith: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Maurice Smith, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Maurice Smith, dated 2 February 2006:

Your recent parliamentary question has been referred to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of schools, for reply.

You asked how many and what proportion of schools inspected by Ofsted were rated (a) unsatisfactory, (b) satisfactory, (c) good and (d) outstanding in each year since 1997.

From January 2000 Ofsted inspections of maintained schools have included a judgement about the overall effectiveness of the school. Until July 2005 these judgements were made on a seven point scale; excellent (1), very good (2), good (3), satisfactory (4), unsatisfactory (5), poor (6) and very poor (7). Since September 2005 a four point scale has been used; outstanding (1), good (2), satisfactory (3) and inadequate (4). Prior to January 2000 inspectors were not required to make a single overall judgement about a school.

The tables overleaf summarise data made available in HMCI's Annual Report for each of the years 1999/2000 to 2004/05. These are shown separately for primary, secondary and special schools.

The overall effectiveness of primary schools

Overseas Students

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of overseas students studying in further education institutes in England are from India. [45117]

Bill Rammell: Defining for this purpose home learners as those whose country of domicile is either England, Wales or Scotland then there were a total of 82,130 overseas students in further education institutions in England in 2004/05. Of these 2,930 were from India which represents 3.6 per cent. of the total.

Playing for Success (Hartlepool)

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of the Playing for Success initiative in Hartlepool. [48868]

Jacqui Smith: Hartlepool United FC is one of more than 150 sports clubs and venues currently signed up to the Department's "Playing for Success" (PfS) initiative, which is establishing study support centres in or near their grounds. Four consecutive national evaluation studies have shown that PfS is highly effective in meeting its objectives of improving the literacy, numeracy and ICT skills of pupils at key stages 2 and 3, as well as boosting their motivation and self esteem. Hartlepool's Centre was not open at the time of the last evaluation. However, the local authority's annual report of the Centre's work in 2004—05 echoes the national findings.

Pupil Performance

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate she has made of the number of school pupils who are performing below national expectation. [47436]

Jacqui Smith: Record achievements have been made by pupils in both primary and secondary schools since 1997, as measured by the results from national curriculum tests and public examinations. Last year there were improvements at every key stage, with GCSE and equivalent results showing the biggest annual increase for over a decade.

The following tables show the number and proportion of pupils who did not achieve the target level for their age in each of the national curriculum tests taken at the end of key stages 2 and 3 in 2005, compared to 1997. The tables also show the number and proportion of 15-year-olds who did not achieve the Government's national target of five or more A*-C grades at GCSE or equivalent qualifications in 2005, compared to 1997.

The figures for key stages 2 and 3 represent the number and proportion of children entered for each individual test who are performing below the target level. An individual pupil could be counted under one, two or three headings depending on whether the child is performing below in more than one subject.

[2] There are no national curriculum tests in ICT at the end of key stage 3. Results are published on the basis of teacher assessments.

The Government's White Paper—Higher Standards, Better Schools for All—sets out our commitment to an extra investment of £565 million by 2007/08 to support personalisation in primary and secondary schools, focusing particularly on helping children who have fallen behind in English and mathematics. A further £60 million will be available in each of the next two years to provide effective one-to-one and small group tuition for the lowest attaining pupils.

Qualifications (Gateshead)

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Gateshead, East and Washington, West (Mrs. Hodgson) of 16th January 2006, Official Report, column 1016W, on qualifications (Gateshead), if she will provide comparable information for each local authority in Tyne and Wear. [48891]

Phil Hope: The following table shows estimates of the level of highest qualification held by the working age population in the local authority districts of Gateshead, Newcastle Upon Tyne, North Tyneside, South Tyneside and Sunderland. Data comes from the Local Labour Force Survey and covers the period 1999/2000 to 2004/05.

Raising Standards

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) if she will make a statement on John Smeaton Community High School in Leeds and the measures the school is taking to raise its standards; [47379]

(2) what steps Agnes Stewart Church of England High School in Leeds is taking to raise its standards; and if she will make a statement. [47909]

Jacqui Smith: Both Agnes Stewart Church of England High School and John Smeaton Community High School have been part of a project with four other high schools in Leeds supported by my Department and Education Leeds since 2004. The project is currently seeking to raise standards through a range of initiatives, designed to improve the quality of teaching and learning and raise attainment.

For Agnes Stewart support has included a collaborative arrangement with Garforth High School and Braimwood High School in Leeds. Agnes Stewart had serious weaknesses and on re-inspection in November 2005 was judged to still require significant improvement. Agnes Stewart and Braimwood are to close this year and be replaced by a new Academy in September.

For John Smeaton School support measures have included the appointment of an additional part-time Vice Principal, seconded from the David Young Academy, to ensure the school's assessment procedures are improved; targeted support from Secondary National Strategy consultants, who are working with the school's numeracy assistants; extra assistance from school improvement advisers from Education Leeds; and continued support from other schools within the local Leadership Incentive Grant collaborative partnership.

School Performance

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many schools have been closed because they were deemed to be failing in each year since 1996. [47465]

Jacqui Smith: The number of failing schools that have been closed by local authorities since 1996 is set out in the following table:

Academic year	Number of schools closed
1995/96	9
1996/97	14
1997/98	30
1998/99	39
1999/2000	42
2000/01	17
2001/02	19
2002/03	19
2003/04	28
2004/05	21

These are schools judged by Ofsted to require special measures only. The figures do not include other schools closed by local authorities. For example, they do not include schools judged by Ofsted to have serious weaknesses; weak schools with falling rolls not in Ofsted categories; or, schools which were part of local authority school re-organisations to reduce surplus places.

Schools Admissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 23 January 2006, Official Report, column 1927W, on schools admissions, if she will list the schools where there have been objections to schools' proposals to interview parents and pupils as part of their admissions process; which objections were considered by (a) the Schools Adjudicator and (b) the Secretary of State; and what the outcome was in each case. [47535]

Jacqui Smith: The two schools that had objections to proposals to interview parents and pupils were The London Oratory School (in 2004 and 2005) and Gunnersbury Catholic School (in 2005).

In April 2004, the Schools Adjudicator determined part of the objection to the London Oratory School's admission arrangements for 2005 on the issue of the practice of interviewing prospective parents in a general sense. The Adjudicator upheld this part, but the determination was quashed at Judicial Review and permission to appeal was refused.

In 2004, the Secretary of State decided on the second part of the above objection to the lack of clarity, fairness and objectivity of the admission arrangements relating in part to a person's religion. The Secretary of State partially upheld this part and the school modified that section of its admission arrangements.

In 2005, two objections were made to the proposed admission arrangements to Gunnersbury Catholic School and The London Oratory School and were referred to the Secretary of State as both cases involved interviewing to determine religious affiliation.

The objection to interviewing at Gunnersbury School was upheld as the school proposed to interview only to verify that an applicant was a practising Catholic and this information could be verified by documentary evidence.

The objection to interviewing at the London Oratory was not upheld as the school was able to provide thorough and sufficient proof that its interviewing arrangements were the only appropriate way of assessing the degree of an applicant's religious commitment as set out in their admission arrangements.

Schools for the Hearing Impaired

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to her answer of 12 January 2006, Official Report, column 830W, on schools for the hearing impaired, how many of the special schools approved to make provision for pupils with hearing impairment are (a) primary and (b) secondary schools. [48246]

Jacqui Smith: Information on number of special schools is derived from Annual Schools' Census returns made by schools to the Department in January each year. Special schools form a distinct school type and they are not classified as being either primary or secondary schools.

Sex and Relationship Education

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if her Department will issue best practice guidelines to schools to ensure that every child receives a high standard of sex and relationship education. [48692]

Maria Eagle: The Department issued guidance to schools on sex and relationship education in July 2000. Additionally, in November 2005, the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority produced a package of guidance to schools including exemplar units of work on sex and relationship education.

To improve further the quality of teaching, all teachers of sex and relationship education are encouraged to undertake the Government funded teachers' certificate in Personal Social and Health Education (PSHE). The certificate supports standards in the delivery of PSHE teaching including sex and relationship education and is available to both primary and secondary school teachers.

Special Measures

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of schools were in special measures in each of the past 15 years. [48244]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 2 February 2006]: The information is set out in the following table. Special measures judgments were first given by Ofsted in the 1993/94 academic year.

Academic year	Number of schools in special measures at end of year	Percentage of schools in special measures at end of year
1993/94	[1]15	0.1
1994/95	[1]81	0.3
1995/96	[1]192	0.8
1996/97	[1]366	1.6
1997/98	[1]524	2.2
1998/1999	447	2.0
1999/2000	394	1.8
2000/01	320	1.4
2001/02	270	1.2
2002/03	282	1.2
2003/04	332	1.5
2004/05	242	1.0

[1] Ofsted have recently updated their figures for schools in Special Measures. The figures above therefore provide a revision to figures previously published for years 1993/94 to 1997/98.

Specialist Schools and Academies Trust

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what role (a) has been played by and (b) is envisaged for the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust in relation to specialist schools in England. [47844]

Jacqui Smith: The Specialist Schools and Academies Trust is a non profit-making educational charity. It is the lead advisory body on the specialist school initiative for the DfES, providing advice and support for schools in England seeking to achieve or maintain specialist school status. Its work includes the promotion, development and support of specialist schools, conference and seminar activities and a publications programme. The Specialist Schools and Academies Trust also plays an important role in raising sponsorship and introducing potential sponsors to suitable candidate schools. We expect that the trust will continue to perform these roles.

Stevenson Report

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the implementation of the Stevenson Commission Report; and if she will list the recommendations of the report which have yet to be implemented. [48272]

Phil Hope: The Stevenson Commission Report was issued in March 1997 and made five major recommendations. Since then the Government has sustained a programme of activity that has addressed all these major recommendations and has supported the development of ICT in schools resulting in:

The launch of a national strategy through the National Grid for Learning Programme.

An improved computer pupil ratio in schools between 1996 and 2005 with the breakdown between primary and secondary schools as follows:

	1996	2005
Primary	1:19	1:6.7
Secondary	1:9	1:4.1

Every school connected to the internet and now 85 per cent. connected at broadband levels to a National Education Network. Of this total 83 per cent. of primary schools are now connected at broadband levels and 99 per cent. of secondary schools.

The establishment of Curriculum Online and the additional investment of over £500 million in schools for the purchase of educationally relevant software.

Trained over 96 per cent. of all teachers so that between 1998 and 2004 the numbers who can confidently use ICT increased as follows:

Percentage

	1998	2004
Primary	65	85
Secondary	61	81

We continue to maintain activity in this area and last March launched a new system wide e-strategy. We have also recently announced an additional £50 million to help the most disadvantaged pupils gain access to ICT at home.

Teachers (Fraudulent Applications)

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many reports of serious (a) fraud and (b) deception in connection with an application for employment as a teacher were received by her Department in each year since 1997. [47359]

Jacqui Smith: The Department does not keep this information.

Underachieving/Deprived Pupils

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will rank local authorities by their proportion of (a) underachieving and (b) deprived school pupils; and if she will make a statement. [41299]

Jacqui Smith: Information on (a) the proportion of pupils at Key Stage 4 achieving 5 or more A* to C or equivalent grades at GCSE and (b) the proportion of pupils in secondary schools known to be eligible for free school meals in 2005 is shown in the tables.

University for Industry

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress has been made towards the establishment of the University for Industry included in the Government's 1997 manifesto; and if she will make a statement. [48132]

Bill Rammell: Ufi (initially called the "University for Industry"), the organisation responsible for learndirect, has successfully pushed the boundaries of learning methods, by making innovative use of technology to make learning more flexible. It is the largest Government supported e-learning initiative in the world, and provides high quality learning for the post-16 learning and skills sector. It particularly reaches those with few or no skills and qualifications who are unlikely to participate in more traditional forms of learning.

In eight years Ufi has grown from an idea to an organisation providing 500,000 learners a year with the opportunity to improve their skills at either a learndirect centre, or from work, or from their home computer. Through its national advice line it has dealt with over seven million calls. Almost 200,000 small and medium sized employers have also used learndirect services.

Year 11 Leavers

Ed Balls: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many year 11 leavers in (a) West Yorkshire, (b) Wakefield District and (c) Normanton constituency have stayed on in learning each year since 2001. [48391]

Jacqui Smith: The percentage of 16-year-olds in full-time education in England at the end of 2004 was estimated to be 74.2 per cent.—the highest ever rate. Percentage figures on participation in education by young people are not available for parliamentary constituencies, but are available for local authorities—including Wakefield LEA and for West Yorkshire. These were published in the Statistical First Release "Participation in education and training by 16 and 17 year olds in each local area in England"—SFR11/2005 on 31 March 2005.

The publication is accessible on the DfES website via the link, http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000568/index.shtml

TREASURY

Alcohol Sales

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of total sales of (a) beers and lagers, (b) wine and (c) spirits were sold in (i) licensed premises and (ii) off licences in the United Kingdom in the last year for which figures are available. [45928]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

Household final consumption expenditure figures for 2004 show that 70 per cent. of expenditure on alcoholic drinks was in licensed premises and 30 per cent. was in off licences in the United Kingdom. Figures for beer and lager, wine and spirits are shown in the following table.

Household final consumption expenditure on alcohol in the UK in 2004

	Licensed premises (£ million)	Off licences (£ million)	Total (£ million)	% sold in licensed premises	% sold through off licences
Beer and lager	16,222	3,054	19,276	84.2	15.8

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the estimated consumption per capita was of (a) beers and lagers, (b) wine and (c) spirits in the UK, in each of the last 10 years. [45983]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

The following table shows estimated average weekly purchases per person of beer, lager, wine and spirits by people aged 14 and over in UK households. Information on alcoholic drinks eaten out is not available until 2001–02 when the Expenditure and Food Survey replaced the National Food Survey. It should be noted that survey respondents may tend to underestimate the quantity of alcoholic drinks they purchase.

Benefit Payments (Debt Recovery)

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions his Department has had with the banking industry on the impact on customers of the right of set-off being used to recover debts from benefits paid into a basic bank account. [49191]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Treasury has had a number of discussions with the banking industry covering a range of topics including the basic bank account.

Chard Neighbourhood Nursery

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects HM Revenue and Customs to make its ex gratia payment of outstanding valued added tax to the Chard Neighbourhood Nursery; and if he will make a statement. [47849]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: HM Revenue and Customs officials are discussing this matter with the various parties concerned and are making an immediate substantial interim payment while the remaining matters are resolved.

Community Banking

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress the Financial Inclusion Taskforce has made in evaluating the community banking model. [49038]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Financial Inclusion Taskforce was launched in February 2005 following the publication of "Promoting financial inclusion". The taskforce has been asked to monitor progress towards tackling financial exclusion and report to the Government on what more needs to be done. The terms of reference of the taskforce can be found on the taskforce website at www.financialinclusion-taskforce.org.uk. The taskforce will report to Treasury in due course.

Construction Industry Scheme

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps HM Revenue and Customs has taken to communicate to the construction industry the operation of the new Construction Industry Scheme; and how much has been spent on this activity. [47257]

John Healey: HMRC is delivering a comprehensive publicity and education programme. This started with a mailing to accountants in March 2005 and a more detailed mailshot in August 2005.

Factsheets for the new scheme were published on the internet in August 2005, designed to inform contractors and sub-contractors about the different aspects of the new scheme. Later that month contractors were invited to attend seminars on the scheme run by HMRC's business advisers.

The change was publicised in national tabloid newspapers and in accountancy and the trade press in September and October 2005. The adverts directed readers to the HMRC website for further information.

Earlier mailings were followed up by direct mailings to contractors in December 2005 and January 2006. These were to promote the launch of two new services: a helpline and an Employment Status Indicator (ESI) tool. The helpline was opened to help deal with inquiries on new CIS and employment status. The ESI is a computer based interactive tool to help determine the status. The new ESI tool can be accessed direct over the internet from the HMRC website.

Further mailshots for contractors and sub-contractors are scheduled in the run-up to the launch of the new CIS in April 2007.

The cost of publicity and education programme to date is approximately £1 million.

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what process Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs applies to money that has been deducted under the Construction Industry Scheme but cannot be allocated to national insurance due to a worker not registering a national insurance number; and how much was dealt with under this process in 2004–05. [47264]

John Healey: The Construction Industry Scheme requires contractors to make deductions (currently at 18 per cent.) from payments made to sub-contractors and pay the deductions to HM Revenue and Customs. All sub-contractors registered under the scheme are also registered for self-assessment and are required to report their profits on a self assessment return, at the end of the tax year. The amounts deducted from sub-contractors are applied first against their liability to income tax on their profits and then against their liability to class 4 national insurance contributions on those profits. Any balance is repaid. Where sub-contractors are liable to class 2 national insurance contributions, they account for them separately to HM Revenue and Customs.

Corporation Tax Relief

Kate Hoey: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he intends the abolition of corporation tax relief for small businesses making less than £10,000 profit a year to include sports clubs. [48147]

John Healey: The proposed abolition of the corporation tax starting rate means that this benefit will no longer be available to small businesses, including most sports clubs. The change is due to take effect from April 2006. This is in line with our stated intention to improve fairness between organisations, whatever their legal structure.

Sports clubs that are registered as charities would however be exempt from corporation tax on rental income, most investment income and their primary purpose trading income. Sports clubs that are registered with HM Revenue & Customs as Community Amateur Sports Clubs (CASCS) benefit from a range of tax reliefs similar to those enjoyed by charities. This includes exemption from corporation tax on bank and building society interest, on any trading profits where turnover is no more than £30,000, and on income from property where total receipts are no more than £20,000. Only those clubs with significant taxable income are likely to be affected.

Departmental Assets

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the items of departmental property worth over £100 that have been reported as (a) lost and (b) broken in the last 12 months. [47673]

John Healey: Five Safedial cards, one desktop computer and one Blackberry have been reported as lost since January 2005.

Information relating to breakages of Treasury property is not available.

My reply to the hon. Member on 31 January 2006, Official Report, column 398W, should have stated that three Safedial cards, one Blackberry and one Palm Pilot had been reported as having been stolen during 2005, in addition to the three laptop computers mentioned in the answer. I apologise for this inadvertent omission.

Exchequer Costs

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total cost to the Exchequer is of (a) income tax, (b) national insurance contributions, (c) corporation tax and (d) capital gains tax foregone for (i) the Share Incentive Plan, (ii) the Enterprise Investment Scheme, (iii) enterprise management incentives, (iv) venture capital trusts, (v) professional subscriptions, (vi) approved employee share schemes, (vii) approved employee option schemes, (viii) approved company option schemes and (ix) enterprise zones in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [47331]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The costs requested are available on the HM Revenue and Customs website at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tax_expenditures/menu.htm. except for the breakdown of the cost of the Enterprise Investment Scheme, where the figure published for 2004–05 consists of £45million in income tax relief and £135million in capital gains tax relief.

Financial Education

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions his Department has had with non-governmental organisations and social enterprises about the role they can play in financial education. [49259]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Financial Services Authority (FSA) lead on promoting financial capability. Their National Strategy for Financial Capability involves a range of interested parties including non-governmental organisations and social enterprises. As part of our engagement with the National Strategy and more widely, Treasury Ministers and officials have discussions about various aspects of financial education with a range of stakeholders.

Financial Services Act

Mr. Steen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to ensure that the requirements on small businesses under the Financial Services Act 1986 are not duplicated at national and county levels; and if he will make a statement. [48716]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Financial Services Act 1986 was repealed in 2001 and there are no current requirements on small businesses imposed by that Act.

Iraq

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what arrangements have been made in agreement with the Paris Club for the cancelling of Iraqi debt; and what safeguards have been put in place to ensure that creditors of less than £250,000 are protected. [47651]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Paris Club of official creditors reached agreement with Iraq on 21 November 2004 on a fair and sustainable solution to Iraq's debt problems. All creditors agreed that Iraq's debt of over $120 billion was clearly unsustainable. The Paris Club deal cancels 80 per cent. of Iraq's debt in three tranches. The tranches are linked to Iraq's progress in implementing the economic reforms agreed in IMF programmes. All bilateral creditors of Iraq, whether official or commercial, must bear their proportionate share in relation to restoring Iraq's debt sustainability and are expected to negotiate debt treatments with terms comparable to those agreed by the Paris Club.

Lyons Inquiry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of the written submissions from his Department to the Lyons Inquiry into local government; [47906]

(2) pursuant to his answer of 30 November 2005, Official Report, column 542W, on the Lyons Inquiry, whether (a) his Department and (b) the Valuation Office Agency took the decision to make a formal submission to the Inquiry. [48151]

John Healey: The Lyons Inquiry is independent of the Government. Sir Michael Lyons will decide what to publish when he makes available his final report.

Money Outreach Pilots

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of models for the money advice outreach pilots funded through the Financial Inclusion Fund. [49415]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: As announced in June 2004, £6 million of the Financial Inclusion Fund has been allocated to the Legal Services Commission, through the Department for Constitutional Affairs, to pilot mechanisms of money advice outreach aimed at those who do not normally present themselves to debt advisers. The LSC have run a competition to fund outreach pilots and are currently in final contract negotiations with successful bidders. The Financial Inclusion Taskforce has been asked to monitor the progress of the pilots as they come into service from February 2006 and to consider the outcome of the project evaluation.

National Insurance Fraud

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many incidents of National Insurance fraud for the purpose of making tax credit claims have been recorded in each year since 1997. [47665]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: As a National Insurance number may only form part of an identity profile it is not possible to provide the information in the format requested. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Paymaster General on 10 January 2006, Official Report, column 558W.

Personal Debt Advice

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what personal debt advice services are funded by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [48737]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: HM Treasury does not directly fund personal debt advice services. However, as announced in June 2004, £45 million of the Treasury's Financial Inclusion Fund has been allocated to the Department of Trade and Industry to support an increase in the provision of free face-to-face debt advice in areas of high financial exclusion. A further £6 million of the Financial Inclusion Fund will be used by the Department of Constitutional Affairs, through the Legal Services Commission, to pilot mechanisms of money advice outreach aimed at those who do not normally present themselves to debt advisers.

Planning Gain Supplement

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate the Government have made of the total annual revenue to be collected from planning gain supplement. [47875]

John Healey: The amount of revenue from a Planning-gain Supplement (PGS) will depend on decisions on its rate and scope. As set out in paragraph 1.9 of the consultation document published alongside the 2005 pre-Budget report, if introduced a PGS will be set at a modest rate to help finance additional infrastructure while preserving incentives to bring land forward for development.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether planning gain supplement is planned to be levied on developments that received planning permission prior to its introduction but where the construction commenced after its introduction. [47883]

John Healey: As set out in Chapter 3 of the consultation document published alongside the 2005 pre-Budget report, if Planning-gain Supplement (PGS) is introduced the Government will consider how best to take account of the transition period before and after its introduction, to ensure that the levy is fair while protecting yield and minimising risks of avoidance.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which Minister holds lead responsibility for the introduction of planning gain supplement. [48047]

John Healey: The Chancellor of the Exchequer has overall responsibility for the work of the Treasury. I support the Chancellor for policy on the Planning-Gain Supplement.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the process for the introduction of planning gain supplement in the devolved parts of the United Kingdom. [48052]

John Healey: As set out in paragraph 1.20 of the consultation document published alongside the 2005 pre-Budget report, if introduced a Planning-Gain Supplement (PGS) would apply throughout the UK. The Government will continue to work closely with the devolved Administrations on the interaction of PGS with devolved policy areas.

Property Prices

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average purchase price was of properties bought by first-time buyers in (a) England and (b) the United Kingdom in each year since 1996. [42824]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Average mix-adjusted house prices for first time buyers buying with a mortgage are published on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website in table 507 at: http://www.odpm.gov.uk/pub/116/Table507Excel47Kb_id_1156116.xls.

Estimates are not available for first time buyers who purchase without a mortgage.

Self-invested Personal Pension (Property)

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether a regulatory impact assessment has been prepared on his decision to withdraw the right to hold residential property in a self-invested personal pension. [49162]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 31 January 2006 Official Report, column 405W.

Tax Credits

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many full-time tax credit staff were working in (a) debt management and banking, (b) disputed overpayments, (c) bank liaison, (d) child care provider checks, (e) complex cases, (f) employer liaison, (g) international claims, (h) issues relating to persons from abroad, (i) postroom, (j) the specialist trace unit, (k) claims processing, (l) appeals, (m) complaints, (n) valuables and (o) tax credit hotlines on the latest date for which figures are available. [48438]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

UK Contribution (EU)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the UK's cumulative net contribution to the EU between 2007 and 2013; and if he will make a statement. [49381]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) on 31 January 2006, Official Report, column 399W.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Valuation Office Agency owns a licence for an image management and archiving computer database. [47863]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Valuation Office Agency's information technology systems are provided by Capgemini under the "Aspire" contract with HM Revenue and Customs. All necessary licences for systems, including those for secure data storage, are obtained and held by Capgemini on the Agency's behalf.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what child protection policy the Valuation Office Agency has to regulate the activities of council tax valuation inspectors who may enter people's homes. [47903]

John Healey: The legislation governing the powers of Valuation Office Agency staff to inspect people's homes was passed in 1992, and the VOA's approach to operating it has remained largely unchanged since then. Permission to inspect is always sought from the occupier, owner or taxpayer (as appropriate), usually in advance in writing. All VOA inspectors carry photographic identity. Under no circumstances would a VOA inspector enter a property without the occupier, owner or taxpayer (as appropriate) permission, and the VOA's instructions make clear that under no circumstances should they inspect if only a minor is present—this is the child protection policy which is operated. On recruitment all Agency staff are required to declare, subject to the provisions of the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974, convictions or charge for any offence which is still pending, if they are subject to probation, on a conditional discharge or bound over after being charged with an offence. Following employment all staff are required to report any charge, apart from minor traffic offences, which is brought against them. In addition the Agency receives, via the Cabinet Office, reports of convictions and related offences from Chief Constables, in accordance with Home Office Circular No. 45/1986, in respect of its staff.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether agents of the Valuation Office Agency who conduct council tax valuation inspections inside someone's property are subject to a Criminal Records Bureau check. [47904]

John Healey: The legislation governing the powers of Valuation Office Agency staff to inspect people's homes was passed in 1992, and the VGA's approach to operating it has remained largely unchanged since then. Permission to inspect is always sought from the occupier, owner or taxpayer (as appropriate), usually in advance in writing. All VOA inspectors carry photographic identity. Under no circumstances would a VOA inspector enter a property without the permission of the occupier, owner or taxpayer (as appropriate), and the VGA's instructions make clear that under no circumstances should they inspect if only a minor is present. This is the child protection policy, which is operated. On recruitment all agency staff are required to declare, subject to the provisions of the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974, convictions or charge for any offence which is still pending, if they are subject to probation, on a conditional discharge or bound over after being charged with an offence. Following employment all staff are required to report any charge, apart from minor traffic offences, which is brought against them. In addition the agency receives, via the Cabinet Office, reports of convictions and related offences from chief constables, in accordance with Home Office Circular No. 45/1986, in respect of its staff. Staff are not therefore subject to a Criminal Records Bureau check. In addition, the majority of the Valuation Office Agency groups have received the independent Charter Mark award for customer service, and as part of their commitment to improve their service they have started to survey taxpayers about how the inspection is undertaken.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the functions of the District Valuer Services within the Valuation Office Agency. [48034]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: District Valuer Services provides a range of services which are set out in the booklet, District Valuer Services. This is available on their website www.voa.gov.uk.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) rights and (b) powers (i) Valuation Office Agency staff and (ii) its representatives have to conduct internal or external inspections of property for (A) capital gains tax, (B) inheritance tax and (C) business rates purposes. [48035]

John Healey: The legislation governing the powers of Valuation Office Agency (VOA) staff to inspect properties for the purposes specified is longstanding—it is for (a) capital gains tax, section 111 Taxes Management Act 1970, (b) inheritance tax, section 220 Inheritance Tax Act 1984 and (c) business rates, Schedule 9 paragraph 7 of the Local Government Finance Act 1988. The way the Valuation Office exercises these powers, and similar powers in earlier legislation, is well established. Permission to inspect is always sought from the occupier, owner or taxpayer (as appropriate) usually in advance in writing. All VOA inspectors carry photographic identity, but if the occupier, owner or taxpayer is in any doubt they are able to contact the local Valuation Office to establish the authenticity. Under no circumstances would a VOA inspector forcibly enter a property without the person's permission. Nor would an inspector enter the property if, despite having made a prior appointment, it was discovered that only a minor was present.

The Valuation Office Agency recognises the importance of not only carrying out its duties responsibly but also being clearly seen to do so. Thus the majority of its Groups already hold the independently awarded Charter Mark award for customer service, and applications from the remaining Groups are in train. As part of its commitment to improve its service, the agency now specifically surveys taxpayers about how inspections have been undertaken.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Valuation Office Agency has (a) sold and (b) transferred any of its data to non-public sector third-parties in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [48036]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In the last five years the Valuation Office Agency has regularly sold compilations of the published non-domestic rating lists and, since October 2004, of the supporting summary valuations. All of this material is readily accessible to the public at large in non-compiled form on its website www.voa.gov.uk free of charge.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) staff intranet announcement notice and (b) the data strategy update paper to which the Valuation Office Agency's Management Board Meeting minutes of 27 October 2005 refer. [48045]

John Healey: The (a) staff intranet announcement notice, referred to in the Valuation Office Agency's Management Board Meeting minutes of 27 October 2005, will be placed in the Library. The (b) data strategy update paper, also mentioned in the above minutes, includes material prepared as an input to the formulation of Government policy and cannot be made available.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what training (a) videos and (b) DVDs the Valuation Office Agency has produced for its staff and contractors in the last three years in relation to (i) council tax valuations, (ii) business rates, (iii) inheritance tax, (iv) capital gains tax, (v) revaluations, (vi) automated valuation model and (vii) computer assisted mass appraisal. [48046]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The VOA has produced no training videos or DVDs since 2002. E-learning has replaced the use of videos to supplement face to face training.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of advice to staff on Health and Safety in the Field, produced by the Valuation Office Agency. [48053]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A copy of what the Valuation Office Agency makes permanently available to its staff on Health and Safety in the field is being placed in the Library of the House.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidelines regulate access by (a) the public, (b) private sector organisations and (c) local authorities to the data used to assess the valuations of domestic properties by the Valuation Office Agency. [48054]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Disclosure of confidential information to third parties by the Valuation Office Agency is only permitted in the circumstances prescribed by section 18(2) and (3) of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005.

Section 28 of the Local Government Finance Act 1992 and regulations made thereunder governs publication of the Council Tax Valuation List.

Written Answers to Questions

PRIME MINISTER

Lisa Dorrian

Lady Hermon: To ask the Prime Minister (1) what role the Police Service of Northern Ireland underwater search unit is playing in the investigation of the disappearance of Lisa Dorrian; [49421]

(2) what recent discussions he has had with senior Police Service of Northern Ireland officers on the investigation into the disappearance of Lisa Dorrian. [49422]

The Prime Minister: I understand that the Police Service Northern Ireland (PSNI) have employed a number of resources, including the PSNI underwater search unit, over the past year in the investigation into Lisa Dorrian's disappearance. This remains an on-going police investigation and my hon. Friend the Policing and Security Minister for Northern Ireland (Mr. Woodward) receives regular updates. Given the hon. Lady's interest in this case, I have asked my hon. Friend to keep her updated, within the necessary constraints given that this is an ongoing police investigation.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

China

11. Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on human rights in China. [49010]

Ian Pearson: The Government has serious concerns about a wide range of human rights issues in China. These are set out in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Human Rights report. We raise our concerns with the Chinese Government regularly, including through the UK China Human Rights Dialogue, ministerial engagement and EU mechanisms. We acknowledge that the Chinese Government has recently done much to reduce poverty and promote economic development.

14. Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on human rights in China. [49014]

Ian Pearson: China has done much in recent years to reduce poverty and promote economic development. But serious human rights problems remain.

The Government raises these concerns with the Chinese Government regularly, including through the UK China Human Rights Dialogue, ministerial engagement and EU mechanisms.

Cuba

12. Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact of the work of Caleb McCarry, US-Cuba Transition Co-ordinator, on UK-Cuban relations. [49011]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK, with EU partners, adopted a Common Position on Cuba in 1996. This has not changed. It is a clear statement of the UK/EU policy of constructive engagement to achieve political and economic reform in Cuba, including human rights.

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to his answer of 20 January 2006, Official Report, column 1702W, to the hon. Member for Houghton and Washington East, on Cuba if he will name the main non-official Cuban human rights organisation referred to; where it is based; and from what sources it receives its funding. [48976]

Mr. Douglas Alexander [holding answer 6 February 2006]: The main non-official Cuban human rights organisation referred to of 20 January 2006, Official Report, column 1702W, on Cuba, is the Comision Cubana de Derechos Humanos y Reconciliacion Nacional (CCDHRN). This is a long-standing, independent organisation, which presents up-to-date information on human rights in Cuba, particularly on political prisoners and the death penalty. CCDHRN is based in Havana and run by Elizardo Sanchez Santacruz, Cuba's best known human rights monitor and a former political prisoner. It is not recognised by the Cuban state. CCDHRN has developed close links with the international media and human rights NGOs, including Amnesty International, and we understand it has a number of funding sources although its running costs are very small.

Middle East

15. Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what account he has taken of the Hamas charter in assessing Hamas's acceptability as a partner for peace in the middle east. [49015]

Dr. Howells: As my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister told the House on 1 February: We will not be able to take the process forward if one of the partners has in its constitution the desire to get rid of the other partner. Hamas faces a fundamental choice. If they choose democracy and peace, and work side by side with Israel, then we stand ready to take the process forward.

16. Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on democracy in the middle east. [49016]

Dr. Howells: We are working hard, bilaterally and multilaterally through the EU and G8, to support democratic political and economic reforms in the middle east and strengthen civil society's role in public life. Almost every Arab country now has some form of democratic legislative assembly, and more women in Government positions. It is in our interest to promote democracy and freedom as essential ingredients for economic success and the reduction of poverty.

19. Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with EU colleagues on the results of the elections in the Palestinian territories. [49019]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed the results of the Palestinian election with his EU counterparts on 30 January.

The EU expects the new Palestinian Government to be committed to a peaceful and negotiated solution of the conflict with Israel based on existing agreements and the Roadmap as well as to the rule of law, reform and sound fiscal management.

Afghanistan

17. Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Afghanistan. [49017]

Dr. Howells: Afghanistan has made remarkable political progress since 2001. Last year saw parliamentary and provincial elections and the inauguration of the National Assembly, building on the presidential election in 2004. This progress was recognised at last week's London Conference on Afghanistan. The Afghanistan Compact, launched at the Conference, commits the Afghan Government and international community to an ambitious progress of further reconstruction.

22. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Afghanistan. [49022]

Dr. Howells: Afghanistan has made remarkable political progress since 2001. This progress was recognised at last week's London Conference on Afghanistan. The Afghanistan Compact launched at the Conference, commits the Afghan Government and international community to an ambitious progress of further reconstruction.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the strength is of (a) the Afghan National Police and (b) the Afghan Border Police; what the expected rate is of annual increase in manpower for each; and what assessment his Department has made of what additional crime-fighting equipment will be required to meet the target of a fully functioning combined force of 62,000 personnel by 2010. [49280]

Dr. Howells: As of 31 December 2005, 49,300 national police, 1,500 highway police, 5,600 border police, and 500 Counter-Narcotics police (CNPA) had been trained and deployed. At 31 December 2005, 2,367 national police, 79 highway police, 597 border police and 25 CNPA were undergoing training. On current schedules, by 1 June 2006, 55,650 national police, 1,850 highway police, 9,600 border police, and 600 CNPA will have been trained, a combined force of 67,380.

Germany, which is responsible for co-ordinating international assistance to the Afghan Government's police reform programme, the Afghan Government and Qatar, are co-hosting an international conference on police reform in Afghanistan, in Doha on 27–28 February. The focus of the conference is regional police co-operation and the role of the Afghan Border Police in managing Afghanistan's borders. The conference also aims to reach agreement on priority activities to support the further development of the combined Afghan National Police, in terms of institutional capacity-building and the provision of equipment to meet current and future needs. The UK will participate in the conference and will subsequently consider how it can continue to support reform of the Afghan National Police.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of (a) the number and (b) the total strength of illegal armed groups in Afghanistan. [49281]

Dr. Howells: We have made no independent assessment of the numbers or strength of Illegal Armed Groups in Afghanistan. The Afghanistan New Beginnings Programme (ANBP), the mechanism through which the UN Assistance Mission in Afghanistan, the United Nations Development Programme and the international community support the Government of Afghanistan's efforts to disarm, demobilise and reintegrate former Afghan Military Force members, estimates that there are 2,000 groups with a total strength of up to 100,000 members. 579 of these groups are already engaged in the disarmament and demobilisation programme. The UK is represented on the ANBP international co-ordinating body and has contributed over £12 million to the ANBP and separate weapons destruction programmes since 2002. Further information is available on the ANBP website at http://www.undpan.bp.org.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what quantity of drugs was seized in Afghanistan during 2005, broken down by type of narcotic. [49282]

Dr. Howells: We estimate that the Counter Narcotics Police of Afghanistan and the Afghan Special Narcotics Force have seized around 165 tonnes of opiates since November 2004. However, seizure figures since 2001 have been unreliable, due to difficulties in collating data centrally within Afghanistan. Additionally, forensic facilities are not yet widely available in Afghanistan and so Afghan police are often unable to accurately identify substances or record the quantities. We are unable, therefore, to provide a breakdown of types of narcotics seized.

Caribbean Sugar Producers

18. Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking to obtain EU support for vulnerable Caribbean sugar producers. [49018]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: We welcomed December's agreement to €40 million transitional assistance for the first year (2006) for countries affected by reform of the EU sugar regime, in the Caribbean and elsewhere. Discussions are now starting on detailed allocations for 2007–13. We are pressing for significantly higher assistance for this period. We have also been working with the countries affected to help draw up country plans through which this assistance will be delivered.

Cyprus

20. Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on progress towards a settlement of the situation in Cyprus. [49020]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UN Secretary-General recently stated there had been "negligible" progress towards a settlement.

I welcomed his statement, on the eve of my recent visit to Cyprus, reiterating his commitment to a comprehensive settlement.

I urge the two communities to resume their dialogue and for progress to be made on all fronts.

Niger Delta

21. Michael Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the security situation in the Niger Delta. [49021]

Ian Pearson: The security situation in the Niger Delta remains tense following recent attacks on oil installations and the kidnapping, and subsequent release on 30 January, of four foreign oil workers. We are and will remain in close contact with the Nigerian authorities. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary spoke personally to President Obasanjo of Nigeria on 21 January about the situation.

G8 Summit (Gleneagles)

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking at EU level to ensure that the agreements reached at the G8 summit in Gleneagles are taken forward. [48540]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The December European Council agreed the EU-Africa Strategy to take forward many key Gleneagles commitments on Africa. The Strategy is a comprehensive overview of the EU's support to Africa in promoting peace and security and achieving the Millennium Development Goals, and will provide strategic direction to the EU on its partnership with Africa. It includes commitments on peace and security, governance, sustainable economic growth and trade, investing in people and development assistance.

The UK also used its presidency of the G8 and the EU to ensure that climate change was pushed up the EU agenda. We worked to ensure that, on energy efficiency for example, the EU and G8 approaches were mutually complimentary. We are working to ensure that the progress made during the 2005 EU Summits with India, China, Canada and Russia, and at the Gleneagles summit, continues. In December 2005, the UK was instrumental in producing a clear EU position and a successful overall outcome at the UN Climate Change meetings in Montreal.

HIV/AIDS (China)

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the incidence of HIV/AIDS in China; and if he will make a statement. [47540]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

The Chinese Ministry of Health, the World Health Organisation and the Joint United Nations Programme on HIV/AIDS (UNAIDS) jointly announced new HIV and AIDS estimates on 25 January. They estimate that 650,000 people are living with HIV and AIDS. There were 70,000 new infections, and 25,000 deaths from AIDS, in 2005. Although this figure is less than the previous estimate in 2003 of 840,000, it represents a better estimation rather than a decline in prevalence. Working with China to prevent the spread of HIV and AIDS is a priority for our DFID China programme.

Iran

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with other EU governments on a diplomatic solution to the situation regarding Iran's nuclear programme. [48544]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed Iran's nuclear programme with his EU counterparts at the meeting of the General Affairs and External Relations Council in Brussels on 30 January. On the same day, he and his French and German colleagues discussed Iran with their US, Russian and Chinese counterparts in London. He has also discussed Iran with Ministers attending a conference about Afghanistan on 31 January, and in routine bilateral meetings.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of Iran's support for terrorist groups; and if he will make a statement. [49013]

Dr. Howells: We remain deeply concerned by Iran's approach to terrorism and the nature of its relationship with Lebanese Hizballah and Palestinian Islamic Jihad. We are also deeply concerned by and continue to investigate Iran's links to extremist groups in Iraq. We have pressed Iran to renounce all support for groups using terror and violence. We have urged Iran to act against members of Al-Qaeda and affiliated groups using Iran as a transit route or refuge, and to co-operate actively with the international community against them.

Nursery Schemes

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the cost to the United Kingdom of nursery schemes for the children of EC staff. [46851]

Mr. Straw: None. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office runs nurseries in London and Hanslope Park for its own staff and contributes towards the cost of nursery attendance for children of its staff overseas. It has no knowledge of nursery schemes for EC staff.

Overseas Territories

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will change the eligibility criteria for EU and UK funding for each of the overseas territories (a) to exclude per capita income to take account of their small population size and (b) to include the vulnerability of their micro-economy to outside circumstances beyond their control; and if he will make a statement. [46905]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

DFID already recognises that a wide range of circumstances present significant development challenges to the overseas territories (OT) including small size, isolation and access, limited human resource capacity and vulnerability to external shocks. Funding decisions are not based only, or even primarily, on per capita income criteria, but with limited resources prioritisation is inevitable towards those territories which most need development assistance.

The main focus for DFID's support are Montserrat, St. Helena and Pitcairn. None are able to raise sufficient revenue to balance their recurrent budget so we provide budgetary aid to help them do so. We combine this with a development programme to help increase revenue and manage recurrent expenditure efficiently. We do however also provide assistance to other territories through our cross-cutting programme which provides support for a range of activities that are common to many or all of the OTs. These programmes include natural disaster management, environment protection, HIV/AIDS, law revision and child protection. All OTs benefit in some way from this assistance.

EU programmes have to a large extent focused on those overseas countries and territories whose economic development is least advanced, with wealth per capita criteria being the main deciding factors for allocations. However we are currently in discussion with the European Commission about the arrangements for continued funding for the OTs when the current allocations end after 2007. These discussions have included the commissioning of a study to look at a range of criteria, in addition to gross national income (GNI) per capita, to help determine the allocation of EU development funds to individual territories. We are also working to ensure that, overall, OTs receive an equitable allocation within the total available for EU development funding.

Regulatory Reform Orders

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many regulatory reform orders his Department has laid before Parliament in each of the last five calendar years. [46803]

Mr. Straw: None.

Russian Federation

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment the Government have made of whether the practice of the Russian Federation meets the standards of the Energy Charter Treaty. [49692]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The obligations of the Energy Charter Treaty (ECT) on a signatory depend on whether it has ratified the treaty, is applying it provisionally or has opted out of provisional application. The Russian Federation has not ratified the Treaty but has agreed to provisional application in accordance with Article 45 of the Treaty. This places some obligations on the Russia Federation, but only to the extent that such provisional application is not inconsistent with its constitution, laws or regulations. An assessment of whether a particular signatory of the ECT meets its provisions could be made by individual companies, the Energy Charter Secretariat or other signatories or Contracting Parties. It is a particular feature of the Treaty that companies can take direct action against signatories if they are in dispute on a matter covered by the Treaty.

The Government takes an active interest in the implementation of the Treaty's obligations by signatories, in particular through the work undertaken by the Energy Charter Treaty Secretariat, but has not undertaken assessment of any particular signatory.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether it is Government policy to encourage that the Russian Federation ratify the Energy Charter Treaty. [49693]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Government have consistently encouraged the Russian Federation to ratify the Energy Charter Treaty and we continue to hope that they will do so.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his Russian counterpart on the Russian Federation's ratification of the Energy Charter Treaty. [49694]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Energy security formed an important part of the discussions that took place on 3 October during the EU-Russia Permanent Partnership Council (PPC), co-chaired by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, and on 4 October during the EU-Russia summit, hosted by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister. The discussion at the PPC included Russian ratification of the Energy Charter Treaty. Energy Minister Viktor Krishtenko led the Russian delegation to the PPC. President Putin led the delegation to the EU-Russia summit, accompanied by Foreign Minister Lavrov.

Turkey

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in securing the language rights of Kurdish speakers in Turkey since the agreement to begin talks on Turkish accession to the EU. [48998]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Reforms in Turkey have strengthened Kurdish rights, but progress since 2004 has been limited. Last December Turkey's Radio and Television High Council re-iterated their commitment to allowing local broadcasting in non-Turkish languages. Progress in Turkey's negotiations for accession to the European Union will depend on measures taken in a range of areas including the need to protect the rights of all citizens. We will continue to press the Turkish Government to extend the rights of the Kurds in Turkey.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Poultry

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many poultry owners in Northamptonshire are registered with her Department; and what the flock size is of each registered poultry owner. [38097]

Mr. Bradshaw [pursuant to the reply, 19 December 2005, Official Report, c. 2386W]: This answer was incorrect. The answer that we originally provided drew on a combination of state veterinary service (SVS) data and local knowledge. It is clear that our answer should have been based on information from the Great Britain Poultry Register, which was launched on 9 December 2005. The revised answer provides information from this source.

As of midnight on 20 December 2005, four poultry owners in Northamptonshire have registered eligible poultry premises on the new GB poultry register. The total numbers of poultry on each registered premises in Northamptonshire are as follows:

(1) 84 Chickens, 1 Duck, 2 Geese

(2) 195 Chickens

(3) 7,000 Turkeys

(4) 83 Chickens

Eligible premises are required to register by 28 February 2006.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Church Legislation

Andrew Selous: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what assessment the Commissioners have made of the extent to which the recent use of ministerial orders to amend church legislation has modified the convention that Parliament does not legislate for the Church of England without its consent. [48861]

Sir Stuart Bell: The recent amendment of Church legislation by Orders made by ministers under the Civil Partnership Act 2005 was handled entirely consistently with the convention that Parliament does not legislate for the Church of England without its consent. Consent was given on behalf of the Church, by the House of Bishops and the Archbishops' Council, both to the inclusion in the Act of the powers enabling ministers to make consequential and other changes to Church legislation and then to the specific changes to be made in reliance on those powers.

Ecclesiastical Law (Human Rights)

Andrew Selous: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what procedures are followed for the drafting of laws in response to judgments of the European Court of Human Rights which affect matters traditionally within the sphere of ecclesiastical law. [48860]

Sir Stuart Bell: The European Court of Human Rights has not, to date, held any legislation specific to the Church of England to be incompatible with the European Convention on Human Rights. Were it to do so, or were any such legislation considered to be incompatible having regard to a finding of the European Court of Human Rights, an assessment would need to be made in consultation with ministers of the changes needed to ensure compatibility and the most appropriate form of legislation required to do so.

In the event of the European Court of Human Rights making a finding of incompatibility in relation to some aspect of the general law which bore significantly upon the life of the Church, the Church would expect to be consulted, in the usual way, before ministers exercised the power conferred by s.10 Human Rights Act 1998. The Church has been consulted in this way as part of ministers' consideration of the implications of the decision of the European Court of Human Rights in B and L v. United Kingdom, in which the Court held that the prohibitions under the Marriage Act 1949 on marriages between a person and the parent of their former spouse and between a person and the former spouse of their child were incompatible with Article 12 of the Convention.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how his Department is liaising with non-governmental organisations operating in Afghanistan on reconstruction. [48930]

Hilary Benn: DFID is currently providing over 70 per cent. of its total programme funding (£100 million) in 2005–06 through the Government of Afghanistan. The other 30 per cent. of our programme is channelled directly to service providers, including non-governmental organizations (NGO)s, consultants, and multilateral agencies. However, a large amount of the work we fund through the Government is implemented on their behalf by NGOs. DFID also funds NGO work in Afghanistan through its central Civil Society Challenge Fund, and through Programme Partnership Agreements with leading UK NGOs.

In order to reach more remote and insecure areas, DFID works alongside locally based organisations to promote conflict prevention and stabilisation. This kind of community outreach encourages local organisations to identify areas of need which can then be implemented through community managed projects. The Global Conflict Prevention Pool (a trilateral fund shared by DFID, the Ministry of Defence and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office), is also active in funding local initiatives aimed at enhancing the prospects of peace and security.

DFID maintains regular dialogue with NGOs on security problems and other challenges to operating in Afghanistan. We also discuss wider policy issues with them. Most recently we co-funded a Civil Society Conference in Kabul which engaged Afghan civil society (including NGOs) in consultation on the Interim-Afghanistan National Development Strategy and sent two civil society representatives to the London Conference on Afghanistan on 31 January-1 February.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's priorities are for the (a) rebuilding of infrastructure and (b) establishment of criminal justice agencies in Afghanistan. [48931]

Hilary Benn: The rebuilding of Afghanistan cannot be achieved without significant investments in infrastructure; but given the scale of resources required, and the importance of donors working to their respective comparative advantages, we believe other donors are better placed to make these investments. The USA, the Asian Development Bank (ADB) and Japan in particular are investing in Afghanistan's infrastructure sector. A component of DFID's livelihoods work does however include support for small scale rural infrastructure, and for road construction through emergency employment and rural access programmes.

The re-establishment of a functioning justice system is widely acknowledged to be essential to improving security and stability in Afghanistan. DFID has been engaged in the development of the Afghan Government's 'Justice for All Strategy' which outlines what needs to be done to re-establish a fully functioning justice system, including for criminal justice. DFID together with other UK Government Departments is specifically engaged in strengthening those aspects of the criminal justice system which relate directly to investigation, prosecution and detention of those engaged in the trade in illicit narcotics.

Departmental Assets

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list the items of departmental property worth over £100 that have been reported as (a) lost and (b) broken in the last 12 months. [47679]

Mr. Thomas: For the period 1 January to 31 December 2005, the following items with a value of £100 or more were either (a) lost or (b) broken in DFID.

Description	Value (£)
(a) Lost

Early Retirement

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many departmental employees have taken early retirement due to ill-health in each of the past five years for which figures are available. [46747]

Mr. Thomas: A total of 11 departmental employees have taken early retirement due to ill-health in the past five calendar years from the Department for International Development. On grounds of confidentiality, we are unable to disclose the individual yearly totals as there were less than five ill health retirements in each of the past five years.

Food Shortages

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department takes to assist states facing food shortages due to locusts. [49666]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has a group of humanitarian advisers at regional and country level that monitor the food situation and the potential for food crises across Africa.

Where abnormal locust infestations threaten food security, DFID can provide support for ad-hoc locust control operations. For example, in 2004 DFID committed £1.5 million channelled through the United Nations Food Agriculture Organisation towards the emergency locust control operations in the Sahel Region.

Where locusts or other natural disasters destroy crops which result in widespread food shortages, DFID also supports the United Nations and non-governmental organisations to deliver relief, for example, in Sahel in 2005, DFID allocated £4.9 million for emergency food and nutrition interventions.

HIV Prevention Goal

Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what actions the Government have taken to help countries achieve the global prevention goal to reduce HIV prevalence among young men and women aged 15 to 24 years, by 2005. [48787]

Mr. Thomas: The UK played a key role in securing support for the Joint United Nations Programme for HIV/AIDS (UNAIDS) prevention policy "Intensifying HIV prevention" at its June 2005 programme co-ordination board, which I attended. This policy clearly emphasises the importance of evidence-informed prevention, including linking sexual and reproductive health (SRH) and HIV programmes and access to SRH supplies including female condoms, and tackling harm reduction.

Building on this, as EU president, we steered and secured agreement on the first EU wide policy Statement on HIV Prevention launched on World AIDS day 2005. This important document affirms the commitment of all 25 European member states to comprehensive and evidence based HIV prevention programming including:

Universal access to sexual and reproductive health information and services;

Reliable access to essential sexual and reproductive health supplies including condoms;

Universal access to education and life skills and sexuality education;

Action to confront and address gender-based violence;

Provision of accessible and integrated health promotion and harm reduction services for drug users.

Also on World AIDS Day 2005, the UK Government published a paper on "Harm reduction—tackling drug use and HIV in the developing world". The paper builds on cross-Government consensus on harm reduction, ensuring a coordinated and collaborative UK approach.

Harm reduction refers to policies, strategies and programmes designed to reduce the harm associated with the use of psychoactive substances, including illicit drugs. Actions include:

Needle and syringe access to reduce opportunities for HIV transmission by removing the need to share injecting equipment;

Drug substitution therapy providing orally administered drugs to reduce the need for injections; and

Information and advice on sexual and reproductive health.

Harm reduction activities provide an important entry point for interventions such as condom distribution, voluntary counselling and testing, peer education on safer sex and reproductive health. In addition to strong policy and strategy directions, the UK has invested in a number of aid instruments which are helping to secure effective HIV prevention outcomes. This includes our substantial investments in the Global Fund to fight AIDS, TB and Malaria, (£100 million annually in 2006 and 2007) the World Bank and in new prevention technologies (International AIDS Vaccine Initiative, International Partnership on Microbicides and the Microbicides Development Programme).

Across Africa, DFID's 16 priority country programmes[1] are working with national partners to deliver comprehensive HIV prevention, treatment and care services. The main focus has been to strengthen national multi-sectoral responses in line with the "Three Ones[2]". Within this our programmes strengthen national HIV prevention efforts such as ensuring a stable supply of sexual and reproductive health services and commodities including male and female condoms. For example, DFID's £20 million HIV programme (STARZ) works with the Government of Zambia's national HIV and AIDS programme to provide reproductive health supplies, including condoms and education materials for HIV prevention, along with expansion of prevention of mother to child transmission programmes. In Uganda, we are funding civil society organisations such as TASO to provide prevention services such as youth clubs, radio talks, peer education workshops along with provision of care (counselling, clinical services, child support) to people living with AIDS .

Brazil's success in stabilising its AIDS epidemic within a decade is an acknowledged model for the developing world. Using the two principles of a rights based approach for people living with HIV and AIDS, and full dialogue and involvement of civil society, prevalence rates in Brazil are less than half the level estimated by the World Bank 10 years ago. The 15 to 24-years age group receive priority attention in AIDS education and health promotion initiatives, with a strong focus on mass media campaigns, backed up with small group education and condom distribution. DFID is now supporting the Brazil programme to provide technical assistance to AIDS programmes in other countries of Latin America and the Caribbean.

In the Caribbean, as in many places, stigma and discrimination is driving the epidemic. There are particular concerns that young women in the 15 to 24-years age group are now twice as likely as their male peers to be infected with HIV. DFID has been funding a "Champions for Change" programme, designed to encourage political, community and faith-based leaders to speak out against stigma and discrimination directed towards people living with HIV and AIDS, sex workers and men who have sex with men. Early signs, from the UNAIDS Epidemic Update (December 2005) show that overall prevalence may be starting to reach a plateau, though much remains to be done to continue and expand this improving trend.

DFID supports the response to AIDS in nine countries in Asia: India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Nepal, Vietnam, Cambodia, China, Indonesia and Burma (through the UN). HIV in these countries is less than 1 per cent. (with the exception of Cambodia where the incidence and prevalence rates of HIV are now falling, and Burma where measurement is particularly challenging). The relevant UN targets in these countries are therefore the prevalence rates in vulnerable groups rather than in the general population aged 15 to 24. Much of DFID's effort in these countries is directed towards prevention. This includes supporting evidence of modes of transmission and trends in spread of infection in emerging epidemics. We are also supporting the targeted delivery of services to vulnerable groups such as injecting drug users, sex workers and their clients and men who have sex with men.

[1] Democratic Republic of the Congo, Ethiopia, Ghana, Kenya, Lesotho, Malawi, Mozambique, Nigeria, Rwanda, Sierra Leone, South Africa, Sudan, Tanzania, Uganda, Zambia and Zimbabwe.

[2] One agreed AIDS Action Framework for each country that drives alignment of all partners; One national AIDS authority, with a broad-based multi-sectoral mandate; One agreed country-level monitoring and evaluation system.

Press Coverage

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on how many occasions since 1 April 2003 he has complained to the Press Complaints Commission about the coverage in the press of (a) Ministers or officials and (b) his Department; and how many of these complaints were upheld. [47079]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has not made any complaints to the Press Complaints Commission during this period.

TRANSPORT

A21

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what budget the Highways Agency has identified for compulsory purchase orders along the A21 in East Sussex in (a) 2005–06 and (b) each year from 2006–07 to 2010–11. [49076]

Dr. Ladyman: The budget for the Targeted Programme of Improvements does not include any schemes on the A21.

The Proposed Route for the A21 Flimwell to Robertsbridge Improvement was announced in February 2005 and this has triggered the option for property owners directly affected by the proposals to submit a Blight Notice to the Highways Agency, requesting them to buy their property.

Further development of the scheme is dependent upon the outcome of the Regional Prioritisation exercise and subsequent ministerial announcement.

The agency currently has a provision of £10 million for qualifying cases in the financial year 2005–06, with a further £5 million forecast for 2006–07.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans the Highways Agency has to rent out properties purchased under compulsory purchase orders along the A21 between Flimwell and Robertsbridge. [49462]

Dr. Ladyman: A compulsory purchase order has not yet been published for this scheme. The Proposed Route for the A21 Flimwell to Robertsbridge Improvement was announced in February 2005 and this has triggered the option for property owners directly affected by the proposals to submit a Blight Notice to the Highways Agency, requesting them to buy their property.

Properties that qualify and are acquired through this process are being rented out as soon as possible through the agency's managing agent.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received from the Chief Executive of the South East England Development Agency regarding the proposed A21 upgrade between Flimwell and Robertsbridge. [49460]

Dr. Ladyman: The Chief Executive of the South East England Development Agency wrote to the Highways Agency on 4 March 2003 in response to the public consultation on the A21 South of Pembury to Hastings, which included proposals for upgrading the route between Flimwell and Robertsbridge.

Air Traffic (Noise and Pollution)

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what alternatives to runway alteration he will propose to provide respite from air traffic noise and pollution; and if he will make a statement. [47213]

Ms Buck: Options for introducing mixed mode at Heathrow are still being developed. There will be public consultation on any proposals and this will address the implications for runway alternation, as currently operated, and any mitigation measures.

Consultancy Contracts

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what consultancy contracts worth more than £100,000 have been entered into by (a) his Department, (b) the Highways Agency, (c) the Strategic Rail Authority and (d) the Driver Vehicle and Licensing Authority in each of the past five years; and what work the contracts covered. [43595]

Ms Buck: The Department follows central guidance on awarding contracts set out by the Office of Government Commerce. Projects are only contracted out where they require specialist advice that cannot be provided in house. All contracts are awarded following a competitive tendering process in order to ensure value for money.

A table has been placed in the Libraries of the House listing the contracts in excess of £100,000 which have been entered into, since the Department was created in May 2002.

Fixed Penalties

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much has been raised through fixed penalties for (a) heavy goods vehicles and (b) public service vehicle operators since January 2004; [48223]

(2) how much money his Department expects to raise from fixed penalties for HGV and PSV operators in 2007–08. [48226]

Dr. Ladyman: At present the only fixed penalties that apply to HGVs and PSVs are those that apply to all motorists, for example for moving traffic offences such as speeding or using a mobile phone. The penalties are levied on the driver rather than the operator. There is no breakdown available that indicates how many of these fixed penalties are paid by drivers of HGVs and PSVs.

The Road Safety Bill contains enabling provisions for a system of graduated fixed penalties for offences specific to the operation of HGVs and PSVs, for example overloading and exceeding driver's hours limits. The amount of revenue from the fixed penalty scheme will depend on the levels for fixed penalties and the range of offences for which they will be used. These details will be settled after a public consultation.

Heathrow (Sustainable Development)

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress is being made on the Project for the Sustainable Development of Heathrow; and when he expects the project to report. [46317]

Ms Buck: The work continues, to programme the technical review of current air quality around Heathrow and the approach to future assessment is largely complete. We expect to publish a full report on this shortly, following peer review. This will put us in a stronger position to re-assess the likely position at Heathrow under different scenarios in future years. We are continuing to examine measures to address surface access and noise in the event of further development, including a short third runway and the possible introduction of mixed mode.

Details of the work programme are on the Department for Transport's website and further papers will be published on the website as work progresses, in accordance with the Department's publication scheme. We expect to be reaching some conclusions later this year.

Motorway Signs

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what advice his Department has issued regarding the use of overhead electronic gantry signs on motorways for messages other than those related to relevant traffic conditions; and if he will make a statement. [49050]

Dr. Ladyman: Variable Message Signs (VMS) are generally used to display real time traffic information to help drivers complete their journeys safely and efficiently. They give warning of slow moving traffic and queues as well as delays, and give motorists the opportunity to make decisions in-journey.

VMS are also used to display safety campaign messages such as DON'T DRINK AND DRIVE, KEEP LEFT UNLESS OVERTAKING and MAKE TIME FOR A BREAK.

VMS can also be used to provide accurate information for the motorist, to reduce the effects of congestion. They can give information about possible congestion from major events likely to have a significant effect on the motorway. This type of information is given near to the location Where congestion may occur, for the journey in question.

Multi-modal Studies

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much his Department contributed to the (a) West Midlands to East Midlands, (b) West Midlands and (c) East Midlands Multi-modal Studies; what the total cost was of carrying out each study; which of each study's recommendations have been approved by his Department; and in which recommended areas construction work has commenced; [44751]

(2) how much his Department contributed to the (a) A453, (b) A52, (c) A34 and (d) M60 Multi-modal Studies; what the total cost was of carrying out each study; which of each study's recommendations have been approved by his Department; and in which recommended areas construction work has commenced; [44752]

(3) how much his Department contributed to the (a) London to South Midlands, (b) London orbital and (c) Thames Valley Multi-modal Studies; what the total cost was of carrying out each study; which of each study's recommendations have been approved by his Department; and in which recommended areas construction work has commenced; [44753]

(4) how much his Department contributed to the (a) Cambridge to Huntingdon, (b) Norwich to Peterborough and (c) London to Ipswich Multi-modal Studies; what the total cost was of carrying out each study; which of each study's recommendations have been approved by his Department; and in which recommended areas construction work has commenced; [44754]

(5) how much his Department contributed to the (a) M1 North/South, (b) south coast and (c) access to Hastings Multi-modal Studies; what the total cost was of carrying out each study; which of each study's recommendations have been approved by his Department; and in which recommended areas construction work has commenced; [44755]

(6) how much his Department contributed to the (a) South-West area, (b) South-East Manchester and (c) West Midlands to North-West Multi-modal Studies; what the total cost was of carrying out each study; which of each study's recommendations have been approved by his Department; and in which recommended areas construction work has commenced; [44756]

(7) how much his Department contributed to the (a) Hull (East-West Corridor), (b) South and West Yorkshire and (c) Tyneside Multi-modal Studies; what the total cost was of carrying out each study; which of each study's recommendations have been approved by his Department; and in which recommended areas construction work has commenced; [44757]

(8) how much his Department contributed to the A1 Multi-modal Study; what the total cost was of carrying out the study; which of the study's recommendations have been approved by his Department; and in which recommended areas construction work has commenced. [44758]

Dr. Ladyman: The cost of each Multi-modal Study funded by the Department for Transport is set out in the following table

The Multi-modal Studies were strategic transport studies which developed recommendations for implementation over the short, medium and longer term up to 2031. Many of the schemes recommended required further detailed development and appraisal work before being ready for implementation. In our responses to the Multi-modal Studies we set out the way in which we wished to see the study recommendations taken forward by the relevant delivery agencies.

Our responses to the Studies were placed in the Library of the House at the time of the announcements. I would refer the hon. Member to my answer of 2 February 2006, Official Report, columns 658–62W, to the hon. Member for Carshalton and Wallington (Tom Brake) which shows the schemes recommended by the Multi-modal Studies that have reached the stage of Programme Entry or equivalent with agreed funding allocations.

Piracy

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to tackle piracy on the coast of Devon. [49082]

Dr. Ladyman: The UK Government has published on the Department's website a counter-piracy strategy which sets out the actions that it has committed to taking to tackle the menace of piracy. However, the Department has not been notified of any act of piracy on the coast of Devon.

Ports/Airports (Critical Infrastructure Protection)

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what actions he proposes to take in UK ports and airports in pursuance of the EU policy on critical infrastructure protection. [48801]

Ms Buck [holding answer 6 February 2006]: The European Commission's proposals in respect of Critical Infrastructure protection are currently in the form of a Green Paper. The UK Government has recently submitted its comments.

The Commission will be considering these, and other member states' comments, before developing its policy further.

UK ports and airports are already subject to EU and national standards on security and we will continue to ensure that such standards are maintained.

Public Service Agreement

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when his Department expects to publish the baseline figure for Public Service Agreement target 1 to make journeys more reliable on the strategic road network by 2007–08. [48222]

Dr. Ladyman: We expect to publish the baseline data this month.

Railways

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the total amount of (a) public sector subsidy is and (b) new loan guarantees are for the rail industry in 2005–06; and what his Department's planned financial support is for each category in each of the next two years. [43602]

Derek Twigg: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State's statement to the House of 10 February 2005 sets out how the Department intends to allocate money on railways up to April 2009.

There are no new loan guarantees for the rail industry in 2005–06. However, Network Rail's borrowing facilities are fully backed by credit support arrangements provided by the Secretary of State for Transport.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what projections he has made of the growth in rail capacity to 2025. [48224]

Derek Twigg: Rail capacity is a measure of the ability of the network to accommodate passenger and freight demand. The UK network is an intensive mixed traffic railway and its capacity depends on the mix of the type, speed, length, routeing and stopping patterns of passenger and freight trains. The Department is working with Network Rail and the Office of Rail Regulation to determine the forecast demand for passenger and freight.

The Government will specify the passenger capacity outputs it seeks from the rail network for Control Period 4 (which runs from April 2009 to March 2014) in the High Level Output Specification. Future High Level Output Specifications at five-yearly intervals will similarly specify the two successive Control Periods to 2025.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he will announce the decision on the direct train link between Bexhill-on-Sea and London Victoria. [49179]

Derek Twigg: The Brighton Main Line Route Utilisation Strategy was published on 2 February 2006. This strategy recommends truncation of the London Victoria-Hastings service to terminate at Eastbourne. Some through services from Bexhill to/from Victoria will be retained at peak times. The Department for Transport will now undertake further work in respect of the recommendations and will develop an implementation plan in due course.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans there are to cut train services between Bexhill-on-Sea and Pevensey and Westham during the next 18 months; and if he will make a statement. [49180]

Derek Twigg: The Brighton Main Line Route Utilisation Strategy was published on 2 February 2006. Train services on the route between Hastings and Eastbourne are being reviewed in light of the recommendations contained in the strategy.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the major (a) rail and (b) light rail infrastructure projects initiated by the Government and completed since 1997. [43184]

Derek Twigg: Major rail infrastructure projects initiated by the Government and completed since 1997 are as follows:

Southern Region New Trains Programme (SRNTP) including the Power Supply Upgrade

Cross Country Route Modernisation

Evergreen 1—Track doubling between Princes Risborough, Bicester and Aynho

The following schemes have been completed since 1997:

Channel Tunnel Rail Link (CTRL) Section 1—Channel Tunnel to Fawkham Junction

Jubilee Line Extension (Underground)

The following schemes have been initiated by the Government since 1997, still under way and to be completed:

West Coast Route Modernisation

Channel Tunnel Rail Link (CTRL) Section 2—Southfleet Junction to St. Pancras via Ebbsfleet and Stratford

CRTL Temple Mills Depot

CTRL Domestic Services

Thameslink 2000

East London Line (ELL) Extension

Kings Cross Network Rail Western Concourse

Kings Cross London Underground (LUL) Works

Access for All (Disability Discrimination Act)

Evergreen 2—Bicester North to Marylebone Station Improvements

Light rail schemes are initiated by local transport authorities. I refer the hon. Member to my answers of 30 June 2005, Official Report, column 1660W and 20 July 2005, Official Report, column 1795W, which list the light rail schemes completed and opened since 1997 and those where construction has commenced since 1997.

Road Pricing Schemes

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what assessment his Department has made of the effect on congestion of (a) a national road pricing scheme and (b) road pricing schemes in local authority areas; [48251]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the likely effect of (a) a national road pricing scheme and (b) road pricing schemes in local authority areas on car use; [48252]

(3) whether his Department has made an estimate of how much travel on (a) rural roads, (b) urban roads and (c) motorways would cost per mile under a national road pricing scheme. [48254]

Dr. Ladyman: "The Feasibility Study of Road Pricing in the UK", published by the Department for Transport in July 2004, showed that road pricing could potentially reduce congestion by some 40 per cent. with benefits of up to £12 billion a year in time savings and increased reliability. The study modelled a wide range of theoretical schemes and charges including variants of national road pricing and of charging in local authority areas. A copy of the study report was placed in the Library, and is also available on the Department's website.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the (a) availability, (b) cost and (c) viability of technology to support (i) a national road pricing scheme and (ii) road pricing schemes in local authority areas. [48253]

Dr. Ladyman: "The Feasibility Study of Road Pricing in the UK", published by the Department for Transport in July 2004, (a copy of which is in the House Library), concluded that the equipment necessary to deliver a full position-based charging scheme would probably not be available in a mass-market, low-cost form, until 2014. The Department is continuing to explore how the market might develop over the coming years and what synergies and opportunities this could offer in terms of road pricing.

Technologies which could support local or regional schemes, such as microwave tags and automatic number plate recognition, are well proven and are already used both in the UK and internationally. The costs of technology for local schemes will depend on the individual area and would need to be evaluated as part of the development of the business case for the scheme.

Speed Cameras

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many speed cameras are installed, broken down by police authority area. [43331]

Dr. Ladyman: Information held on the number of speed camera sites, broken down by partnership area, within the safety camera programme as at 31 December 2005 is shown in the table. This information is provided to the Department by the safety camera partnerships.

Traffic Management Act

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to make an assessment of the effects of the Traffic Management Act 2004 on traffic congestion on motorways following an accident; if he will publish each assessment; and if he will make a statement. [48864]

Dr. Ladyman: The Traffic Management Act (004) enabled the Highways Agency to establish a Traffic Officer Service on motorways and on a limited number of all purpose trunk roads in England. The congestion reduction benefits derived from the introduction of the traffic officer service are not due to be assessed until 2008 when the service will have been fully operational for 12 months. I would expect the assessment, which will cover the impacts of introducing the traffic officer service on reducing incident related congestion; improving safety; improving the accuracy of information on variable message signs and freeing up police resources for tackling criminality, to be published after this time when the data have been gathered and analysed.

Transport Innovation Fund

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what projections his Department has made of how much money will be raised through road user charging under the Transport Innovation Fund until 2015; and whether the proceeds will go to (a) HM Treasury, (b) the Department for Transport and (c) local authorities. [48249]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department has made no projections of how much money will be raised from local road user charging schemes. The Transport Act 2000 sets out the current arrangements for proceeds from local road user charging schemes.

Transport Staff (Alcohol/Drug Tests)

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) commercial and (b) recreational mariners have been tested for (i) drugs and (ii) alcohol since 2001; and what proportion have been found to be above the legal limit. [48269]

Dr. Ladyman: Responsibility for testing professional mariners under the Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003 for the effects of drugs and alcohol rests with the relevant local police force. These statistics are not collated nationally.

Under existing legislation recreational mariners are not required to take such tests. The Department carried out a public consultation in 2004 entitled 'Alcohol Limits for Non-Professional Mariners' on whether the Railways and Transport Safety legislation should be extended to include recreational mariners. The results of this exercise are currently being reviewed, together with other supporting evidence.

Urban Road Network

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of the urban road network is covered by the 10 largest urban areas. [48228]

Dr. Ladyman: The latest available figures relate to 2004 when the length of the urban road network in England was 121,455 km, of which 41.7 per cent. was covered by the 10 largest urban areas. Road lengths, by road class, for individual local highway authority areas are available on the Department for Transport website.

Wheelchairs/Mobility Scooters

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to improve the conspicuity of wheelchairs and mobility scooters; and what discussions he has had with the manufacturers of wheelchairs and mobility scooters on this subject. [48820]

Ms Buck: We have no plans to improve the conspicuity of wheelchairs and mobility scooters. Class 2 and Class 3 invalid carriages, when used on the carriageway, must already comply with the Road Vehicles Lighting Regulations 1989.

Workplace Parking

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) whether it is his policy to introduce (a) charges and (b) other forms of levy on the provision of workplace parking; [47374]

(2) whether he has had discussions with the Treasury about the introduction of (a) charging and (b) taxation of workplace parking places; [47428]

(3) what his policy is on the provision of workplace parking. [47461]

Dr. Ladyman: It is for employers to decide what parking provision they make available to employees. However, in our published guidance on workplace travel plans, we explain how effective travel plans can help employers manage the cost and demand for parking spaces.

Local highway authorities in England and Wales already have discretionary powers under the Transport Act 2000 to introduce Workplace Parking Levy schemes. For a scheme to come into force an order has to be approved by the appropriate national authority, which is the Secretary of State for Transport in England.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport discusses a wide range of matters with Ministers at HM Treasury.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Public Information

Mr. Gale: To ask the Leader of the House how much was spent on public relations and information services by his Office in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [49199]

Mr. Hoon: Information services to the Office of the Leader of the House of Commons are provided by the Communication Group of the Cabinet Office, which bears the cost.

No money has been spent on public relations by the Office in the last five years.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

2012 Business Summit

Peter Law: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which companies and representatives from (a) Wales and (b) Blaenau Gwent were invited to participate in the 2012 Business Summit on 24 January held in Canary Wharf. [46574]

Tessa Jowell: Both the Chairman and the Chief Executive of the Welsh Development Agency were invited to attend the 2012 Business Summit; unfortunately neither was able to attend, but they sent a representative of Trade and Invest Wales in their place. Plans are being developed for future similar events, including a conference to be held in Leeds in July, which will focus on how best to spread the benefits of the 2012 Games throughout the UK.

Licensing Act

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what (a) evidence she considered and (b) account she took of existing legislation when deciding to license (i) live music in bars and restaurants, (ii) Punch and Judy shows and (iii) circuses under the Licensing Act 2003. [44028]

James Purnell: With regard to (a), the Government considered the responses to a consultation on public entertainment licensing conducted in 1996 and the findings of a review of licensing law conducted with stakeholders between 1998 and 1999. The outcome of the Government's consideration of the evidence was reported in the White Paper "Time for Reform: the Modernisation of our Licensing Laws" (Cm 4696). The Government subsequently considered about 1200 responses to the White Paper and the views of relevant stakeholders, including the Arts Council for England, the Musicians' Union, Equity, the Independent Street Arts Network and the Circus Arts Forum. With regard to (b), the Government examined the operation of the Licensing Act 1964, particularly section 182, Schedule 12 of the London Government Act 1963, the Private Places of Entertainment Act 1967, the Theatres Act 1968 and Schedule 1 of the Local Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1982.

The evidence showed that live music in bars and restaurants was generally licensable under the 1963 and 1982 Acts, save for the narrow exemption under section 182 of the 1964 Act applying to live music performed by not more than two people throughout the day on premises licensed to sell alcohol for consumption on the premises. Punch and Judy shows were licensable under the Theatres Act 1968, but in practice this law was rarely, if ever, enforced. The position of circuses was unclear under the 1963, 1982 and 1968 Acts because of anachronistic exemptions in the 1982 Act which related to entertainments at pleasure fairs and the lack of any obvious exemptions under the 1963 and 1968 Acts. However, in practice circuses were not being licensed, though some were being controlled by local authorities through the unsatisfactory use of public health legislation.

Lottery Funding (Scotland)

Mr. Devine: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what Lottery funding has been provided (a) in Scotland and (b) in each Scottish constituency in each of the last five years. [49262]

Mr. Caborn: The information is as follows.

(a) Lottery funding awarded by all of the lottery distributing bodies across Scotland:

2001	144,560,712
2002	119,559,887

Opinion Research/Public Relations

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the value was of (a) public opinion research and (b) public relations contracts awarded by her Department in 2004–05 in (i) each (A) nation and (B) region of the UK and (ii) London. [35942]

Mr. Lammy: (a) The Department commissioned two pieces of research containing a component of public opinion research:

1. A survey of participation and attendance across DCMS sectors, 'Taking Part', was commissioned in 2005. In addition to asking about respondent's participation in areas of DCMS responsibility, there are a small number of questions on the survey which can be classified as relating to public opinion. On average, the survey takes 40 minutes to complete, and we estimate that one and a half minutes of this is taken up by public opinion questions.

The total cost of the survey is £2.5 million, but only a small proportion of this relates to public opinion research.

2. A survey of live music provision was commissioned in June 2004. Although primarily focussed on collecting information from venue operators about the extent of live music provision in their establishment, it contained a number of questions about changes to the licensing regime, their awareness of this and their perceptions of the impact it would have upon them.

The total cost of the survey was £127,252.

(b) The spend on public relations contracts in 2004–05 was £100,000.

The campaign proved to be excellent value for money as it enabled us to access over 236,000 (advertising value equivalent—AVE) of space in high profile consumer publications on a targeted national and regional scale for zero cost.

It is not possible to give the value by nation, region of UK and London as the contract was not specified in this way and we could provide this information only at disproportionate cost.

Regulatory Reform Orders

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many regulatory reform orders her Department has laid before Parliament in each of the last five calendar years. [46802]

Mr. Lammy: The Department has laid five Regulatory Reform Orders before Parliament in the last five calendar years. The details are listed as follows.

SI number	SI title
2001/3937	The Regulatory Reform (Special Occasions Licensing) Order 2001
2002/1602	The Regulatory Reform (Golden Jubilee Licensing) Order 2002

World Rowing Championships

Angela Browning: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will be attending the world rowing championships at Dorney Lake in August. [49450]

Mr. Caborn: To date I have not received an invitation to attend this event. Should I do so, my decision to be present will be determined by my diary commitments.

Angela Browning: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what support her Department is providing to the world rowing championships that are to take place in the UK in August; and if she will make a statement. [49451]

Mr. Caborn: These championships have received significant financial support from a number of sources. In May 2002, UK Sport made an award of up to £1.15 million of lottery funding towards the bidding and staging costs. In addition, funding has been provided to contribute to completion of the construction of the Dorney Lake Start and Finish Towers to bring it up to the required international and Olympic standard. At the beginning of 2005, Sport England granted £250,000 of lottery funding to the Amateur Rowing Association; UK Sport contributed £112,000 exchequer funding and the London Development Agency and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport provided combined exchequer funding of £88,000.

Worship Grant Scheme

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the Listed Places of Worship Grant scheme has cost in each year since 2001. [49233]

Mr. Lammy: The Listed Places of Worship Grant scheme returns to faith groups the equivalent of the VAT incurred in making repairs to listed places of worship. The cost per year of the scheme is represented in the table.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Accounts Modernisation Directive

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what he expects to be the financial implications for business of not proceeding with the operating financial review and introducing the business review under the accounts modernisation directive. [47376]

Alun Michael: Based on the Regulatory Impact Assessment which accompanied the Companies Act 1985 (Operating and Financial Review and Directors' Report etc), Regulations 2005 (S.I. 2005/1011), removing the statutory requirement for quoted companies to produce an operation financial review, thus removing duplication so that quoted companies are required only to produce a business review, should reduce the burden on business by an estimated £33 million per annum, primarily by reducing audit compliance costs.

Centre for Ecology and Hydrology

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received on the proposed restructuring of the Centre for Ecology and Hydrology and the potential loss of UK scientific research capacity; and if he will make a statement. [49093]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 6 February 2006]: The Department has received a number of letters from Members of Parliament, trade unions, environmental organisations, members of the public and others, about the Natural Environment Research Council's (NERC) proposal to restructure the Centre for Ecology and Hydrology. NERC is being made aware of the views expressed.

Clean Coal Technology

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent steps he has taken to promote (a) clean coal technology and (b) carbon sequestration. [49203]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 6 February 2006]: The Government announced £25 million for the demonstration of Carbon Abatement Technologies as part of the "Carbon Abatement Technology Strategy for Fossil Fuel Use", published in June 2005. CATs include Clean Coal Technology and Carbon Capture and Storage. The Chancellor announced a further £10 million for demonstration in his pre-Budget Statement in November 2005, bringing the total Government support for demonstration to £35 million. The money will be available from April 2006 for 4 years. We expect to receive proposals from industry for projects in late spring 2006.

In addition to this, CAT projects have been included as part of the November 2005 call for R&D proposals under the DTI's Technology Programme supporting collaborative R&D. Around £13 million is being made available for energy based technologies with some of this being allocated to the successful CAT projects.

Clear Skies Grants

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the Clear Skies grants made to projects in Dorset since the scheme was introduced. [45752]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 30 January 2006]: Since the start of the Clear Skies programme, grant support has been approved for 195 household projects in Dorset, 136 of which have completed and received grant funding. In terms of community projects, four have been approved for grant funding, of which one has completed and received funding, two are yet to complete and one has withdrawn. A list of community projects supported under Clear Skies can be accessed at http://www.clear-skies.org/communities/ApplicationGuidelines.aspx There is not a publicly available list for household projects.

Commission for Equality and Human Rights

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps the Government are taking to ensure that there will be (a) a race committee and (b) black and minority ethnic commissioners on the Commission for Equality and Human Rights. [47561]

Meg Munn: At Report Stage of the Equality Bill on 16 January we made a clear commitment to urgently progress work to identify how race equality work will be undertaken in the new Commission. This work will also seek to establish how the new Commission's work in these areas will fit within the Government's wider framework of activity on community cohesion, race equality and relations with faith communities, and will be undertaken jointly with the Home Office, to ensure coherent and effective delivery that meets the needs and of all our black and minority ethnic communities.

We also made clear our confidence that the provisions in the Bill, requiring appointments to the Commission to be made on the basis of knowledge or experience in the specific areas of discrimination, will ensure that the Commission is a diverse and reflects the full breadth of the communities and interests with whom it will work, including black and minority ethnic communities.

We welcome the opportunity to engage further with the BME communities on this important agenda and, further to these commitments, I have agreed to meet with 1990 Trust, Operation Black Vote, the CRE and the Greater London authority. This meeting will take place shortly.

Correspondence

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he will reply to the letter of 25 July 2005 from the hon. Member for North East Bedfordshire in relation to driving offences committed by foreign hauliers; and if he will make a statement. [47748]

Alan Johnson: This case was transferred to the Department of Transport, who I understand have replied to the hon. Member.

Kitty Ussher: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when the Minister for Employment Relations will reply to the letter of October 2005 from the hon. Member for Burnley regarding a constituent Mr. Morrison. [47956]

Alan Johnson: The matter raised by my hon. Friend's constituent is not a matter for this Department and has been transferred to the FCO. I apologise that there was a delay in doing so, due to an administrative error.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he will reply to the letter dated 3 November 2005 from Mr. John Waterman, a constituent of the hon. Member for Sittingbourne and Sheppey. [48400]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 6 February 2006]: I am awaiting technical information to enable me to provide a comprehensive answer to the concerns of my hon. Friend's constituent. I hope to have that information within the next week and apologise for the delay.

Energy from Waste Plants

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry why energy from waste plants accepting mixed waste will not be eligible for renewable obligation certificates. [47813]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government made clear in the statutory consultation document on the 2005–06 review of the renewables obligation that the majority of new energy from waste projects should not need the support of the obligation to be economic. For this reason the Government does not propose to introduce an amendment to eligibility, which would allow the majority of new projects using conventional technologies to claim renewable obligation certificates (ROCs) from mixed waste.

The statutory consultation document also made clear that whilst the majority of new energy from mixed waste plants, utilising conventional combustion technology, should be economic without the support of the obligation, energy from mixed waste plants, which utilise combined heat and power (CHP), would be likely to face additional capital costs in relation to the supply of heat. Given the carbon abatement benefits arising from the use, rather than the waste of heat from the combustion process, the Government proposes to extend ROC eligibility to electricity generated from the biomass fraction of mixed waste, which uses CHP. This change will take effect from 1 April 2006.

Energy from mixed waste, using advanced conversion technologies such as pyrolysis, gasification and anaerobic digestion, remains eligible for support under the renewables obligation.

A copy of the statutory consultation document on the 2005–06 review of the renewables obligation is available from the Libraries of the House.

Mobile Telephones (Charges)

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures are being taken by his Department to prosecute companies who charge people for a service they did not want on their mobile telephone. [48380]

Alun Michael: The Government's aim is have in place controls which give the consumer sufficient safeguards but which do not unduly hamper the development of the market. Unsolicited text (SMS) messages are illegal under new statutory controls, which were introduced as part of the new Privacy and Electronic Communications (EC Directive) Regulations 2003. The Independent Committee for the Supervision of Standards of Telephone Information Services (ICSTIS) is responsible for administering Premium Rate Services (PRS) and can fine companies and bar access to services.

As a result of various PRS scams during 2004, the Government asked the communications and media regulator, Ofcom to carry out a review of PRS regulation. In December 2004 Ofcom published a report, which contained a set of recommendations to reduce the scope for consumer harm. Most of Ofcom's recommendations have already been implemented to improve the PRS regulatory regime, including raising the maximum penalty for breaches of the ICSTIS Code of Practice from £100,000 to £250,000.

The recommendations focus on:

Enforcement—tightening up the regulatory regime to give the regulator, ICSTIS, more powers to act more quickly against those abusing the PRS payment mechanism.

Consumer redress—improving the likelihood of consumers being able to get their money back where they are the subject of a PRS fraud.

Consumer information—informing consumers better about how to avoid being the victim of PRS fraud.

One key recommendation that has already been implemented is to slow down the flow of funds from network operators to service providers, by making operators withhold payment for 30 days from when a PRS call is made. New rules on compensation for consumers who have been subject to a scam are also being implemented. Then, if there are complaints, it will be possible to hold back funds for a longer period, thus ensuring that fines and repayments can be paid. This will reduce the likelihood of a quick gain being made through the provision of unwanted or unacceptable practices. The new requirement will allow ICSTIS to have suspect services cut off at an earlier stage using its emergency procedure and prevent service providers from being paid for fraudulent services. The commencement date for this new requirement was 15 September 2005.

The Advertising Standards Agency (ASA) is an independent body set up by the advertising industry to police the rules laid down in the advertising codes. ASA receives and upholds many complaints from parents whose children have received large phone bills because they downloaded ringtones without realising the financial commitment involved.

The industry itself announced in January 2005 that consumers must be clearly informed by text about what they have subscribed to, the cost, and how to stop the service (a consumer "must" be able to switch off the service with the universal "stop" command). All the UK mobile operators have signed up to these new safeguards and agreed to require those content providers using their networks to comply with them. In other words all content providers have to comply with the new safeguards or will face the suspension of their services (and therefore the blocking and loss of revenue).

National Minimum Wage

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which companies have been found not to be paying their employees the national minimum wage in each year since 2001; and what penalties were imposed. [48398]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have been asked to reply.

HM Revenue and Customs do not routinely reveal the identity of the employers found not to be paying the minimum wage.

North Sea Gas

Peter Law: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry why natural gas from UK offshore North Sea sources has been depleted at a faster rate than was envisaged in the 2003 Energy White Paper; and if he will place his Department's calculations in the Library. [46566]

Malcolm Wicks: The 2003 Energy White Paper did not specifically forecast the rate of depletion of UK gas but it did say that "it is . . . likely that the UK will become a net importer of gas on an annual basis by around 2006" (paragraph 6.13). This was in line with the projections of outside analysts. For example, Wood Mackenzie, in its August 2001 multi-client report entitled "Running Short of Gas: The Outlook for UK and Irish Gas Markets", had said "It is probable that the UK will become a net importer of gas in either 2005 or 2006." The following table compares the Department's central view of both production and demand at the time of the Energy White Paper with its current central view. This shows that our own gas production from the North Sea declined faster than expected in 2004, with declining production from existing fields not being offset by production from new, smaller fields, and we moved to being a small net gas importer.

Nuclear Fuels

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many tonnes of nuclear fuel were imported into the UK in the latest year for which records are available, broken down by country of export. [48022]

Malcolm Wicks: Spent nuclear fuel is imported into the UK for reprocessing services. The precise details of deliveries from individual customers are commercially confidential. I can, however, confirm there have been no such imports in the financial year 2005–06.

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what nuclear fuels have been consumed in the UK in each of the last three years; and how many tonnes of each type of fuel were consumed in each of those years. [48023]

Malcolm Wicks: British Nuclear Fuel and British Energy have informed me that their generating reactors have used the following volumes of Uranium over the last three-year period for which figures are available:

Nuisance Text Messages

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many complaints Ofcom has received regarding nuisance text messages sent by companies in the last 12 months. [48381]

Alun Michael: Under Privacy and Electronic Communications (EC Directive) Regulations 2003, which came into force on 11 December 2003, the Information Commissioner's Office and not Ofcom has responsibility for the consideration of complaints relating to unsolicited marketing text messages. I am advised by his office that the following complaints were received in relation to Regulation 22, which covers unsolicited marketing text messages going back to the introduction of the present casework management system in 2004, although due to the nature of the casework management system previously used by his office figures are not available before this date:

	Number of complaints
2004	931
2005	479
2006	[1]16

Palm Oil

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will take steps to ensure that UK power stations will not earn renewable obligation certificates by using palm oil as part of its fuel mix. [48363]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 6 February 2006]: Under the Renewables Obligation (RO) palm oil, as a biomass fuel, is eligible for renewable obligation certificates (ROCs). All biomass fuels are eligible for ROCs and the Government have no plans to amend this position at the present time.

Petroleum Imports

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what was the total volume of oil and petroleum imports into the UK during the last year for which figures are available; and what were the countries of origin of the imports. [48614]

Malcolm Wicks: The table shows imports into the UK of primary oil and petroleum products by country of origin for 2004.

Total imports of primary oil into the UK in 2004 were 62 and a half million tonnes, with Norway accounting for about two thirds (64 per cent.) of primary oil imports. Total imports of petroleum products into the UK in 2004 were 19 and a half million tonnes, with two countries (Saudi Arabia and Russia) accounting for 22 per cent. of product imports.

Regulatory Reform

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many regulatory reform orders his Department has laid before Parliament in each of the last five calendar years. [46811]

Alan Johnson: My Department has laid five regulatory reform orders (which have subsequently been made) in the last five calendar years. These are listed as follows:

The Regulatory Reform (Removal of 20 Member Limit in Partnerships etc.) Order 2020

The Regulatory Reform (Sunday Trading) Order 2004

The Regulatory Reform (Patents) Order 2004

The Regulatory Reform (Unsolicited Goods and Services Act 1971) (Directory Entries and Demands for Payment) Order 2005

The Regulatory Reform (Trading Stamps) Order 2005

Renewable Energy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on his renewable heat strategy. [48017]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer the hon. Member to my previous answer to the right hon. Member for West Dorset (Mr. Letwin) on 7 November 2005, Official Report, column 36W.

The Government Biomass Group considering the recommendations of the Biomass Task Force will be reporting in April.

Social Enterprises

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to encourage the development of social enterprises. [47812]

Alun Michael: The Government published a strategy for social enterprise in 2002. Since then we have provided funding to help establish the Social Enterprise Coalition as a representative body for social enterprises, and carried out a major survey to determine the size of the sector. We have introduced the "Community Interest Company" to provide businesses operating primarily for a social purpose a tailor-made limited company model, and we are working with the regional development agencies to ensure that social enterprises are well-served by publicly funded business support available through Business Link.

We have produced a guide for banks entitled "Lending to the Social Enterprise sector" and sponsored the excellent "Matchwinners" publication which exemplifies commercial collaboration between social enterprises and the private sector.

We are currently refreshing the strategy for social enterprise, and will launch a new action plan in the spring. The action plan will focus on four key areas:

confirming the value of social enterprise embedding social enterprise as a recognised business model opening markets to social enterprise, and encouraging new entrants to the sector.

Actions will include ensuring social enterprises are well served by publicly funded business support, improving access to public procurement, new research into the impact of social enterprise, and promoting social enterprise to potential entrepreneurs.

Supermarkets

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether he plans to review the Supermarket Code of Practice; and whether he plans to give advice to the Office of Fair Trading in respect of establishing a regulator to monitor breaches of the Code of Conduct by supermarkets. [48142]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The prime responsibility for operating our competition regime rests with the independent competition authorities. In the specific case of supermarkets it is the Office of Fair Trading (OFT). The OFT is currently responsible for keeping under review the Code of Practice governing supermarket's relations with their suppliers and for dealing with any other competition issues in the sector.

Complaints regarding alleged breaches of the Code of Practice will be investigated by the OFT who will take appropriate action where necessary.

THORP

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to his answer of 26 January 2006, Official Report, column 2355W, on THORP, whether ministerial approval is required in the event that the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority and the British Nuclear Group agree the plant should restart. [48765]

Malcolm Wicks: The Thermal Oxide Reprocessing Plant (THORP) has been shut since a major leak in April 2005. Once the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate is satisfied that its safety requirements are met, the decision as to when to re-start the operation of THORP would be for the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority to take, in conjunction with plant operator BNG.

The NDA has been given a direction to operate THORP under the Energy Act 2004. A decision by the NDA to re-start the operation of THORP would therefore be in compliance with this direction. Further ministerial approval would not be required provided plans to re-start THORP are within the current operating plan for the plant.

DEFENCE

Administration Costs

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's administration costs limit was for financial year 2005–06; and if he will make a statement. [49783]

John Reid: The Ministry of Defence is not subject to an administration cost limit.

Afghanistan

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the strength of the Afghan National Army is; what the expected rate is of annual increase in manpower; and what assessment his Department has made of what additional armaments will be required in order to meet the target of a fully functioning Army with a strength of 70,000 personnel by 2010. [49279]

Mr. Ingram: Over 27,000 Afghan troops have been trained at the Kabul Military Training Centre, and the Afghan Minister for Defence recently estimated there were now 34,000 soldiers, NCOs and officers in the Afghan National Army. The future growth of the Afghan National Army, and the equipment it may require, are a matter for the Government of Afghanistan and the United States, as the G8 Lead Nation responsible for assisting the Afghans to rebuild their Army.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what powers of arrest and detention are available to British troops engaged in peacekeeping in Afghanistan. [42999]

John Reid: Troops deployed under international security assistance force (ISAF) are able to arrest and detain by virtue of the authorisations permitting use of all necessary measures to fulfil its mandate contained in, most recently, UNSCR 1623 (2005), and by agreement with the Government of Afghanistan. ISAF policy is that individuals should be transferred to the Afghan authorities at the first opportunity and within 96 hours or released.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many troop-carrying movements were made by air in Afghanistan in 2005 in aircraft which were not fitted with defensive aids systems; how many such movements are expected to be made in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007; and if he will make a statement. [49427]

Mr. Ingram: No UK military flights carrying troops in Afghanistan were flown without defensive aid suites in 2005 and we do not plan to move troops without such protection in the future.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence under which command a detachment of six Harrier GR7 aircraft is operating in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [45169]

John Reid: The United Kingdom's six Harrier GR7 aircraft are commanded by the UK Air Component Commander. The aircraft routinely support the NATO International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) and the US-led Coalition Forces Command (Afghanistan), according to operational priorities. The GR7s operate under UK Rules of Engagement at all times.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had with the (a) Foreign Secretary and (b) Secretary of State for International Development regarding the linking of the military deployment with (i) political engagement and (ii) development efforts in Helmand Province, Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [45146]

John Reid: I have regular discussions with the Foreign Secretary and the Secretary of State for International Development regarding the Government's plans to participate in the International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) Stage 3 expansion, and will continue to do so.

Any UK deployment to Helmand is predicated upon a fully integrated military and civilian plan designed to improve security, build local Afghan capacity, address the problem of narcotics and improve development opportunities working closely with the Governor and his team. Planning has been co-ordinated across Government including these three Departments. The UK's preliminary operations team, which comprises military, FCO, DFID and PCRU members, continues to refine plans for UK activity in the province.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what role UK forces will play in counter-narcotics activities in Helmand province, Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [45147]

John Reid: Counter-narcotics (CN) operations are the responsibility of the Government of Afghanistan. The UK is the lead G8 nation for counter narcotics assistance in Afghanistan. UK forces deployed under the International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) in Helmand will contribute to the broader CN effort by providing the secure environment in which the rule of law can be applied, reconstruction can take place and legal rural livelihoods can be developed.

Under NATO's operational plan for the ISAF mission in Afghanistan, UK forces under ISAF provide, within means and capabilities, training and operational support to Afghan CN forces. They do not have a direct role in targeted interdiction operations or in eradication of opium poppy in the fields.

Apache Helicopter

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many qualified pilots for the Apache AH Mk1 helicopter there were (a) on the last date for which figures are available and (b) in 1997. [48776]

Mr. Ingram: As at January 2006 there were 100 qualified pilots, with a further 15 due to be fully trained in April 2006 following their successful completion of a conversion to type training course. There were no trained pilots in 1997 as the Ministry of Defence did not take delivery of the Apache Mk 1 until 15 March 2000.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the full complement is of (a) pilots and (b) engineers for the Apache helicopter fleet; and how many are in post in each category. [43862]

Mr. Ingram: The establishment for Apache pilots is 217. As at January 2006, there are 100 trained Apache pilots, with a further 15 pilots due to be fully trained on Apache aircraft in April 2006, following their successful completion of the current conversion to type training course.

The establishment for engineers for the Apache fleet is 539. There are currently 318 engineers in post. There are 15 Apache engineering courses programmed for 2006.

The Army Air Corps is approximately halfway through the conversion programme to the Apache helicopter. The current establishment and ongoing training of pilots and engineers is in line with this conversion programme.

Armed Forces Deployment

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of each of the three services he expects to be (a) serving abroad and (b) deployed on front-line duties between 24 December 2005 and 2 January 2006; and what percentage of the trained strength of each service each of these figures represents. [38763]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 16 December 2005]: The following table gives the numbers of personnel deployed on operations and the numbers serving overseas (but not on operations) at 14 December 2005. The figure did not rise significantly over the Christmas period, however staff taking leave may have caused both numbers to fall.

The number of personnel categorised as "serving overseas, but not on operations" remaining away from the United Kingdom over the Christmas period was likely to be significantly smaller, as personnel in Germany and Cyprus for example, may have chosen to take their leave back in the UK. Some personnel deployed on operations will have taken rest and recuperation (R + R) during this time and the figures do not reflect these temporary fluctuations.

The percentage for trained strength is based on a total that includes regular forces and the regular and volunteer reserves. The figures do not include individuals liable for recall in a crisis, university or cadet forces.

Service	Number deployed on operations	Number serving overseas not on operations	Total	Percentage of trained strength
Naval Service	1,320	120	1,440	1.5
Army	8,213	22,786	30,999	9.2
Royal Air Force	2,768	2,506	5,292	5.3

Departmental Estimates

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will break down the (a) main estimate, (b) winter supplementary estimate and (c) spring supplementary estimate Request for Resources 1 provision for each of his Department's top level budget holders by (i) direct resource departmental expenditure limit (DEL) and (ii) indirect resource DEL for financial years 1999–2000 to 2004–05. [49769]

John Reid: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Departmental Expenditure Limit

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will break down the Request for Resources 1 outturn for each of his Department's top level budget holders by (a) direct resource departmental expenditure limit (DEL) and (b) indirect resource DEL for financial years 1999–2000 to 2004–05. [49770]

John Reid: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the distribution in each region and country of the UK of (a) regular service personnel, (b) direct civilian employees of his Department and (c) civilian personnel in the UK defence agencies and trading funds was at the latest date for which figures are available. [48658]

Mr. Touhig: For information on the distribution of service personnel, I refer my hon. Friend to Tri Service Publication 10, UK Regular Forces Distribution across the UK (TSP 10).

Copies of TSP 10 are held in the House of Commons Library and also available at www.dasa.mod.uk

The following tables shows the number of civilian personnel directly employed in the Department and UK Defence agencies and trading funds as at 1 January 2006 by Government office region.

[2] From the 1 January 2006 reporting, DASA has been able to identify a methodology to correctly identify all of the ABRO staff. Civilian Level 0 and overall figures by Government office region and country are unaffected by this change.

Notes:

1. All figures are rounded to the nearest 10, as a result totals may not always equal the sum of the parts.
2. Figures include values for part-time staff proportionate to those of full-time staff.

Extraordinary Rendition

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) prisoners of war, (b) civilian internees and (c) civilian detainees captured by United Kingdom forces in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan and transferred to the United States as the accepting power have been removed to territories outside Iraq. [45389]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 24 January 2006]: We are unaware of any individuals originally detained by United Kingdom armed forces in Iraq or Afghanistan and subsequently transferred by the United States to any country.

Gibraltar

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which army regiments have visited Gibraltar in the last 12 months. [44534]

Mr. Ingram: The following regiments have visited Gibraltar in the last 12 months:

104 Regiment (Royal Artillery)(Volunteers)

20 Field Squadron, 36 Royal Engineer Regiment

Royal Ghurkha Regiment

503 Specialist Team Royal Engineers Fuel Infra

East of England Regiment

30 Signal Regiment; 3rd Military Intelligence Battalion (Volunteers)

104 Logistic Support Regiment (Volunteers)

Scottish Transport Regiment (Volunteers)

35 Signal Regiment (Volunteers), Bowman Conversion Team

Royal School of Military Engineering

1st Battalion Welsh Guards

47th Regiment Royal Artillery

22 (Gibraltar) Battery, 32 Regiment Royal Artillery

HELEN Laser

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much (a) revenue and (b) capital expenditure has been allocated to the HELEN laser at AWE Aldermaston in each of the last five years. [47820]

John Reid: The expenditure allocated to the HELEN laser in each of the last five years is set out in the following table:

£ million

	Capital	Revenue
2000–01	0	4
2001–02	0	4
2002–03	1	4
2003–04	3	4

All figures are at out-turn prices.

Iraq

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many non-infantry personnel have served in an infantry role in Iraq. [43420]

Mr. Ingram: Since July 2003 , approximately 5,280 non-infantry personnel have served in Iraq in an infantry role. It is not unusual for non-infantry personnel to deploy in an infantry role; every soldier in the British Army is trained as infanteer first, and as a specialist second.

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what information he has received concerning the rocket attack on Basra Airport on the night of 6 January; and what arrests followed the attack. [49423]

Mr. Ingram: On the evening of 6 January 2006 two rockets were fired at Basra Air Station. Neither caused any significant damage. No casualties were sustained and no arrests have been made yet.

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether an Iraqi national, Al-Saokhi, was detained and then released by British forces in 2005. [49424]

Mr. Ingram: We have no record of an Iraqi national named Al-Saokhi being detained and then released by United Kingdom forces in 2005. However UK forces do not routinely keep records of individuals they detain temporarily.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many troops each country which has participated in the operation in Iraq has provided for active service in each year since the start of the war. [49448]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence does not keep records of coalition troop deployments. The current troop deployments of multinational partners in the UK's area of responsibility in Multi-national Division (South East) are as follows:

	Number
Australia	550
Czech Republic	100
Denmark	400
Italy	2800
Japan	550
Lithuania	50
Romania	600

More detailed information on coalition troop contributions is held by the individual countries that have deployed forces to Iraq.

The following table provides information relating to UK troop deployments.

Roulement	Dates	Number of troops deployed
Telic 1	February-June 2003	46,000
Telic 2	July-October 2003	10,000

NATO ISAF

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what assessment he has made of the effects of NATO ISAF operation being integrated more closely with Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement; [45165]

(2) what progress has been made in establishing a mechanism for increased alignment of the NATO ISAF mission and Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [45167]

John Reid: As NATO seeks to expand its International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) further across Afghanistan, there are clear benefits in seeking greater synergy with the US-led Operation Enduring Freedom (OEF) mission. These include less duplication of effort between the two missions, a more concerted approach to support for the reconstruction of Afghanistan, and simplified coordination with the Government of Afghanistan of the international community's military involvement in the country.

ISAFs mission is focused on reconstruction, though ISAF forces need also to be sufficiently robust to defend themselves against terrorists, insurgents and other illegally armed groups. The OEF mission also has a significant reconstruction element, though counter-terrorism is its core objective. ISAF does not, and will not, conduct counter-terrorism operations. NATO's revised operational plan for Afghanistan seeks to ensure greater synergy between the ISAF and OEF missions as ISAF expands, particularly in the field of support to reconstruction. The plan also incorporates clear command arrangements for coordination and, where necessary, deconfliction of operations under the respective missions.

Naval Deployment (Somalia)

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will deploy Royal Navy ships off the coast of Somalia to prevent piracy. [49854]

Mr. Ingram: The Royal Navy routinely deploys vessels and aircraft to the Horn of Africa, and many other regions as part of ongoing work to counter terrorism and crime on the high seas worldwide.

Rest and Relaxation

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the rest and relaxation flights for troops serving on (a) Op Telic and (b) other operations have been reduced. [49118]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 6 February 2006]: No. Flight schedules for operational theatres are maintained at a level sufficient to meet operational requirements, including rest and relaxation, and priority is given to aircraft serviceability to ensure that any interruptions or delays are kept to an absolute minimum.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he is taking to ensure that flights returning troops from theatre for periods of rest and relaxation are as short as possible. [49121]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 6 February 2006]: Usually, Rest and Relaxation (R and R) trooping flights will return to the Main Operating Base in the UK, RAF Brize Norton. Flights take the most direct route available, having due regard to political, weather and safety considerations, which may from time-to-time affect the route. Aircraft may also pick-up/drop-off in other airports such as Durham Tees Valley and Hannover, Germany, depending on the location of where the troops are normally stationed and the availability of aircraft and crews to undertake any additional flying required.

Rwanda

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) training and (b) support is being provided for the Rwandan military by UK forces. [49218]

Mr. Ingram: The UK provides a small amount of training annually for the Rwandan Defence Force (RDF). This is focused on increasing Rwanda's capacity to contribute to international Peace Support Operations (PSO).

Training activities this year have included sending Short Term Training Teams to Rwanda, as well as selected personnel to the British Peace Support Team (East Africa) in Karen, Kenya to attend United Nations sponsored and other relevant PSO courses. We have additionally provided training on courses in the UK. There are currently 140 Rwandan military engineers attending a course in humanitarian de-mining techniques at the British funded International Mine Action Training Centre in Nairobi.

Our Defence Adviser in Kampala, who is accredited to Kigali, provides advice to the RDF on related military matters.

Troop Deployment

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many troops are deployed in (a) Germany, (b) Iraq, (c) Afghanistan, (d) Bosnia and Kosovo, (e) Cyprus, (f) the Falklands, (g) Gibraltar, (h) Ascension Island, (i) Diego Garcia and (j) Northern Ireland. [49174]

Mr. Ingram: As of 2 February 2006, the United Kingdom had the following military contingents deployed overseas:

Overseas	Troops
Germany	20,885
Iraq	8,077
Afghanistan	871
Bosnia and Kosovo	829
Cyprus	3,458
The Falklands and Ascension Island (South Atlantic Islands)	1,212
Gibraltar	564
Diego Garcia	37

As of 31 December 2005, the United Kingdom had 9,943 troops deployed in Northern Ireland.

Type 23 Frigate

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 24 January 2006, Official Report, column 1983W, on the Type 23 frigate, which Type 23 frigates will not be converted to operate Merlin and Lynx helicopters; and what the reasons are for not converting them. [47966]

Mr. Ingram: All Type 23 frigates are capable of operating Lynx helicopters. HMS Norfolk, HMS Marlborough and HMS Grafton will all have left naval service by the end of March 2006 and will not therefore have been modified to operate Merlin helicopters. 12 of the remaining 13 Type 23 frigates are included in the modification programme and this will enable the military requirement to be met. There is currently no operational requirement to modify HMS Argyll, but this will be kept under review.

Warships

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) surface ships, (b) submarines and (c) auxiliary vessels are (i) available to and (ii) deployable by the Royal Navy; and what the equivalent numbers were in 1997. [48773]

Mr. Ingram: The information requested is as follows:

	Available		Deployable
	1997	31 January: 2006	1997	2006
Surface	92	76	70	62
Submarine	12	11	6	5
Auxiliary	23	18	21	16

Available vessels are taken to be those within the total force structure. Deployable vessels are those in Fleet time that have achieved their mandatory collective training.

CABINET OFFICE

Public Appointments (Vetting)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps he has taken to ensure that those appointed to public bodies have received (a) a Criminal Records Bureau check and (b) a higher level clearance where appropriate; and if he will ensure those who have not been positively vetted are not appointed. [46141]

Mr. Jim Murphy: It is for individual departments to consider whether national security vetting, or other checks, should be applied to those who are appointed to the boards of their public bodies. The Cabinet Office issues guidance on public appointments to departments in its publication 'Making and Managing Public Appointments', available on the Public Appointment Unit's website www.publicappointments.gov.uk/publications. This advises departments to consider during their recruitment of appointees to public bodies whether they need to obtain a Disclosure from the Criminal Records Bureau because of the nature of the appointment. This will be particularly relevant to appointments to public bodies which work closely with children and vulnerable adults.

Security vetting is carried out in accordance with HM Government policy, as set out in the (then) Prime Minister's statement to the House on 15 December 1994, Official Report, columns 764–66W. It is a fundamental principle that security vetting is applied proportionately according to the requirement for an individual to have access to sensitive Government information, or sites assessed to be at risk of terrorist attack.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many antisocial behaviour orders were (a) issued and (b) breached in each quarter of 2005; [47972]

(2) how many antisocial behaviour orders had been issued up to the latest date for which figures are available, in respect of people aged (a) 10–17 years, (b) 17–20 years and (c) 21 years and over; and how many of those orders have so far been breached; [47973]

(3) how many antisocial behaviour orders were issued during 2004, broken down by magistrates court area. [47974]

Hazel Blears: The number of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) issued, as reported to the Home Office, is currently available up to 30 June 2005. In the first and second quarters of 2005, the number of ASBOs issued at all courts were 910 and 918 respectively.

From one April 1999 up to 31 May 2000 ASBO data were collected on aggregate numbers only by police force area. From 1 June 2000 up to 30 June 2005 the number of ASBOs issued to persons aged 10–17 years is 2,801; persons aged 18–20 years is 952; and persons aged 21 and over is 2,552.

The information held centrally, on the Court Proceedings Database, as held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform, only covers breach proceedings where there has been a conviction. Antisocial behaviour order (ASBO) breach data are currently available from 1 June 2000 to 31 December 2003 for ASBOs issued since 1 June 2000. During this period 392 persons aged 10–17, 137 persons aged 18–20, and 264 persons aged 21 and over breached their ASBO on one or more occasions.

The number of ASBOs issued in 2004 at all courts, as reported to the Home Office, is 2,660. A table giving a breakdown by age and criminal justice system area is available on the Crime Reduction website at www.crimereduction.gov.uk. This table gives data by quarter and year since ASBOs were introduced, up to 30 June 2005 (latest available).

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, what systems are in place to communicate information to police forces on individuals who are subject to antisocial behaviour orders with conditions which apply to the whole of England and Wales. [47571]

Hazel Blears: Antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) as a disposal type are recorded on the conviction page of the police national computer (PNC) although around half of the ASBOs issued are not part of a conviction. All ASBOs are recorded on the PNC which is accessible by all forces. Prohibitions are also recorded there.

Asylum Seekers

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum-seekers under the age of 18 years are detained in Government detention centres in the UK. [47066]

Mr. McNulty: Information on the number of persons detained solely under Immigration Act powers is available from a snapshot taken on the last Saturday of the quarter and is published in the Quarterly Asylum Statistics publications. The last published data show that 75 persons recorded as being under 18-years-old, who had sought asylum at some stage, were being detained in the UK solely under Immigration Act powers as at 24 September 2005.

The next available data as at 31 December 2005 will be published on 28 February 2006.

This information is available on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate website at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Carbon Monoxide Poisoning

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what training is provided to the police on identifying injury caused by carbon monoxide poisoning. [28955]

Hazel Blears: As part of the Initial Police Learning Development Programme, police recruits undertake a two and half day module in First Aid Training. Training on the general nature of poisons forms a module of the First Aid Training. The module looks at the general nature of poisons and how to spot the signs and symptoms of poisoning as well as how such an injury should be treated. There is no specific training in relation to carbon monoxide poisoning.

Chief Constables

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will issue guidance to chief constables so that operational decisions taken by them across England and Wales are consistent. [48403]

Hazel Blears: I do not plan to issue such guidance because chief constables have operational responsibility for the direction and control of their force. In carrying out their functions chief constables and other police officers and police staff must have regard to any statutory codes of practice or guidance, for example, codes of practice issued under section 66 of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 or section 39A of the Police Act 1996. Plus, they must take into account any non-statutory guidance issued by the National Centre for Policing Excellence, the Association of Chief Police Officers and others.

Child Protection

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people in Essex were given a caution for having indecent pictures of children on their computers in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [48542]

Paul Goggins: Data from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform for the number of offenders cautioned for possession of an indecent photograph of a child in (i) England and Wales, (ii) Essex in each of the past five years is shown in the table. It is not possible to identify those cases involving photographs on computers as the data is not collected at this level of detail.

Citizenship

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will take steps to ensure that those seeking UK citizenship are required (a) to know the words of the National Anthem and (b) to have knowledge of the flags and patron saints of the nations of the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [48856]

Mr. McNulty: The questions for the Life in the UK Test are based on the information in chapters two, three and four of the handbook "Life in the United Kingdom: A journey to Citizenship." Details of National days and patron saints of the four nations are included in Chapter 3.

Both the playing and participation in the singing of the national anthem is encouraged at Citizenship Ceremonies, but is not compulsory.

Community Support Officers

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers are employed in each police force. [45973]

Hazel Blears: The information requested is as at 30 September 2005 and is contained in the following table.

Correspondence

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the letter from the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, of 21 December 2005 on behalf of Basma Rahman, wife of Mazen Abdul Kareem Kadoora (Home Office Reference K1149709, acknowledgement reference MS7216). [49853]

Mr. McNulty: I wrote to the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood on 3 February 2006.

Criminal Appeal Act

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the operation of the Criminal Appeal Act 1995. [47384]

Fiona Mactaggart: The Criminal Appeal Act 1995 amended provisions relating to appeals and references to the Court of Appeal and established the Criminal Cases Review Commission as a non-departmental public body . The Act sets out the structure of the Commission, the number of Commissioners and conditions of their appointment. It lays down circumstances where the Commissioners may refer a case; where they should conduct an investigation; their supplementary powers, their access to documents or materials, their power to appoint investigating officers; the conditions under which the Commission is able to disclose information; and makes detailed provision for the appointment of the Chairman and Commissioners and staff and the production of Annual Reports and Accounts. There are no current plans to amend the substantive provisions of the Act.

DNA Database

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, what estimate he has made of the number of additional profiles which are likely to be added to the National DNA database as a result of the extension of police powers of arrest under section 110 of the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005. [47564]

Andy Burnham: The provisions governing the taking of DNA samples in section 63 of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 (PACE), as amended, provide that the police may take a non-intimate sample without consent from all persons who have been arrested for, charged with, informed that they will be reported for or convicted of a recordable offence. Section 24 of PACE as amended by section 110 of the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 provides a single power of arrest for all offences but does not affect the above power which allows a DNA sample to be taken only from persons arrested, charged or convicted of a recordable offence. It is not expected to have any significant impact on the number of persons who may have a DNA sample taken and added to the national DNA database.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what response he (a) has made and (b) plans to make to the recommendations in the Select Committee on Science and Technology's Seventh Paper, Forensic Science on Trial, HC96 2004–05, that the Government commission a cost-benefit analysis of the possibility of moving the national DNA database from a 10 marker system to a 16 marker system. [47541]

Andy Burnham: The Home Secretary responded to the Committee's recommendations in oral evidence given by Andy Burnham, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, to the Select Committee on 23 November 2005. The Home Secretary remains open to commissioning a cost-benefit analysis of the possibility of moving the National DNA Database from a 10 marker to a 16 marker system but considers that a necessary preparation for this analysis is the development of a strategy which ensures that any move to a system using more markers in the UK is compatible with similar moves in other European countries, to avoid closing off options for international co-operation in use of DNA in crime fighting in the future.

This has been agreed with Professor Sir Alec Jeffreys, the inventor of DNA profiling.

The European Network of Forensic Science Institutes and the European DNA Profiling Group have been working on such a strategy and have produced a paper outlining how all current European DNA Databases could move to a 15 marker system by varying routes depending on the technologies they currently use, but substantial further work is needed to develop this in detail. The timescale for the development of a new system would be a commercial decision for the companies which make the profiling technology by was estimated in late 2005 to be 2–3 years.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether any police force in England and Wales requests DNA samples from its officers. [47307]

Hazel Blears: Regulation 19 of the Police Regulations 2003 requires that every newly appointed member of a police force shall in accordance with the directions of the chief officer have a DNA sample taken.

Criminal Cases Review Commission

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases have been examined by the Criminal Case Review Commission in each year since its inception; and in how many cases (a) convictions have been found unsafe and (b) sentences have been found unfair. [47796]

Fiona Mactaggart: Since its inception the Commission had reviewed 7,590 cases by 31 December 2005, including 308 cases which had been referred to the appeal courts. 252 of the 308 referred cases had been heard by the appeal courts which had quashed 156 convictions and reduced 22 sentences. The breakdown by year is set out in the following table.

	Number of complaints	Number of complaints upheld
1997–98	11	7
1998–99	15	2
1999–2000	34	9
2000–01	63	14
2001–02	69	10
2002–03	76	11
2003–04	67	8
2004–05	69	13
1 April–31 December 2005	44	[1]3

[1] Five are still under consideration

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the cases considered by the Criminal Cases Review Commission in each year since 1996, broken down by (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful applications. [47383]

Fiona Mactaggart: Since April 1997 when the Commission came into existence, it has completed its considerations in 7,590 cases, the outcomes of which are listed in the following table. Of the 308 cases that had been referred, 252 had been heard. Of these, 178 had been successful, 73 unsuccessful and judgment had not been given in the remaining appeal.

	Cases completed (not referred)	Cases completed (referred)
1997–98	299	11
1998–99	461	31
1999–2000	979	36

2001–02	1,164	38
2002–03	952	35
2003–04	871	30
2004–05	780	45
31 March–31 December 2005	711	37

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the complaints made by (a) members of the public, (b) hon. Members and (c) members of the House of Lords about the conduct of the Criminal Cases Review Commission in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and what the outcome of each complaint was. [47386]

Fiona Mactaggart: The total number of complaints and their outcomes since the Commission's inception in 1997 are set out in the following table. Most complaints are made by applicants or by family members or representatives on behalf of applicants. Where a Member of Parliament takes up a complaint on the request of an applicant the complaint is treated as if it had been made by the applicant. Complaints made by Members of Parliament are not recorded separately.

	Number of complaints	Number of complaints upheld
1997–98	11	7
1998–99	15	2
1999–2000	34	9
2000–01	63	14

[1] Five are still under consideration

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff were employed by the Criminal Cases Review Commission, broken down by (a) sex and (b) grade in each year since 1996. [47387]

Fiona Mactaggart: Figures prior to 2000 are not readily available. Since 2000 the breakdown is as in the following table.

	Executive		Case review managers		Administration
Date	Female	Male	Female	Male	Female	Male
31 March 2000	5	5	19	17	21	1
31 March 2001	4	5	22	25	28	4
31 March 2002	5	4	26	24	32	5
31 March 2003	6	4	23	21	33	4
31 March 2004	5	6	23	24	33	6
31 March 2005	5	6	23	22	33	6

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many members of the Criminal Cases Review Commission took (a) voluntary early severance and (b) early retirement in each year since 1997. [47388]

Fiona Mactaggart: No Commissioners have taken voluntary early severance or early retirement since 1997. In 2001 three Commissioners resigned their appointments before their period of appointment came to an end.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many disciplinary actions against officials employed by the Criminal Cases Review Commission were (a) commenced and (b) resulted in a sanction being applied in each of the last five years for which information is available. [47389]

Fiona Mactaggart: There have been two disciplinary actions against staff employed by the Commission. Both resulted in a sanction being applied. One was in 2001 and the other in 2003.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many investigating officers, and at what grade, were appointed by the Criminal Cases Review Commission during the period from 31 March 1997 to 31 March 2005. [47403]

Fiona Mactaggart: The Commission has required the appointment of 27 Investigating Officers to make inquiries to assist the Commission in 36 individual cases between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 2005. One was a deputy chief constable, four were detective chief superintendents, 12 were detective superintendents, six were detective chief inspectors and four were detective inspectors.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the circumstances in which the Criminal Cases Review Commission may refer cases to the Court of Appeal; and if he will make a statement. [47411]

Fiona Mactaggart: The powers and duties of the Commission are set out in detail in sections 9–13 of the Criminal Appeal Act 1995. The main test in considering whether to refer a case to the appeal court is whether the CCRC consider that there is a real possibility that the conviction, verdict, finding or sentence would not be upheld.

Forensic Science

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the professional forensic bodies' register of members who are suitably qualified to act as an expert witness. [49163]

Andy Burnham: There are a number of organisations (which could be described as "professional forensic bodies") that maintain lists of persons who act as expert witnesses or, in some manner, are recommended as expert witnesses. The Home Office has no responsibility for these lists and has not undertaken any assessment of them.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the work of the Home Office Policy Advisory Board for Forensic Pathology. [49165]

Andy Burnham: The Policy Advisory Board for Forensic Pathology was created in 1991 following the "Wasserman Report" on the provision of forensic pathology in England and Wales. The role of the board was to advise the Home Secretary on forensic pathology matters with particular reference to the national aspects of forensic pathology services in England and Wales, such as appointment and accreditation, quality assurance, training and research and development. In response to the "Leishman Review" of forensic pathology the role of the board has been transferred to other bodies. The board still exists and one of its sub-committees is still responsible for matters related to complaints but the transfer of functions is expected to be completed imminently. At that point the board shall be disbanded.

FRANK Campaign

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research he has commissioned on the effectiveness of the FRANK campaign. [47703]

Paul Goggins: The Home Office and Department of Health have jointly commissioned three pieces of ongoing research to study the effectiveness of the FRANK campaign: a campaign tracking survey; a stakeholder satisfaction survey; and research to inform the development of campaign messages. There has also been a single wave of research into caller satisfaction with the FRANK helpline.

Harmondsworth Detention Centre

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many detainees have been detained in Harmondsworth Detention Centre over the last three years for over (a) three months, (b) six months and (c) 12 months. [47072]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office does not hold information on the total number of persons who were detained over the last three years for specific periods of time. It would only be available by examination of individual case files at disproportionate cost.

Quarterly snapshots are published showing the number of persons detained solely under Immigration Act powers on the last Saturday of each quarter.

A table showing the numbers detained at Harmondsworth as at the last Saturday of the third quarter of the last three years is shown, as the published data does not show the length and place of detention in one table.

Further information about persons detained can be found on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate website at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

[2] Relates to current period of detention only.
[3] 2 months is defined as 61 days; 4 months is defined as 122 days; 6 months is defined as 182 days.
[4] There were no detainees in Harmondsworth on 25 September 2004, due to a major incident that occurred in July of this year, resulting in temporary closure.
[5] Due to a fire and subsequent refurbishment at Harmondsworth, no detainees were being held there as at 25 September 2004, so figures as at 26 June 2004 have been provided.

National Probation Directorate

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Director of Probation of the National Probation Directorate is entitled to performance-related bonuses; and if he will make a statement. [48112]

Fiona Mactaggart: The director of the National Probation Directorate is eligible for a performance related bonus each year, based on performance against objectives. This is in line with normal pay award arrangements for the senior civil service.

Neighbourhood Wardens

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether neighbourhood wardens will operate in rural areas outside villages and towns; and if he will make a statement. [44958]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have been asked to reply. Wardens can function anywhere. It is for local authorities to decide whether warden schemes are appropriate to their area and where they might operate.

Indecent Images (Cautions)

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cautions were issued for the offence of having indecent pictures of children in each of the last five years. [48501]

Paul Goggins: Data from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform for the number of offenders cautioned for possession of an indecent photograph of a child in (i) England and Wales, (ii) Essex in each of the past five years is shown in the table.

It is not possible to identify those cases involving photographs on computers as the data is not collected at this level of detail.

National Offender Management Service

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will publish his five year plan for the National Offender Management Service; and whether the National Probation Service will remain part of it. [46512]

Fiona Mactaggart: I plan to publish shortly a five year strategy for reducing re-offending and the work of the National Offender Management Service (NOMS). The strategy will provide a vision for the whole of NOMS and its constituent parts, including the National Probation Service.

Police

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what plans he has to create further police anti-terrorist units; [43412]

(2) when the regionalisation programme for special branches is expected to be completed. [43414]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The Special Branch regionalisation programme continues to develop in line with police counter-terrorism commitments. Special Branch Regional Intelligence Cells (RICs) have been in place since April 2003, further to recommendations made in the HMIC Thematic Inspection of Special Branch and Ports Policing. They are now operating in all ACPO regions enabling greater efficiency and cross regional co-ordination. They continue to develop.

A Counter-Terrorist Support Unit (CTSU) was established in the West Midlands RIC in 2004 to provide intelligence analysis support for the East and West Midlands regions. The police are currently giving further consideration to extending the CTSU concept to other force regions.

The Government remain committed to ensuring that the Police Service has the necessary resources to meet its CT commitments. The additional police counter-terrorism funding, which amounts to £173 million over the next two years, announced on the 25 January 2006, Official Report, column 57WS, will strengthen the Police Service's intelligence and investigative capability both in the capital and in local and regional policing.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will rank each (a) English police force and (b) English Basic Command Unit by the ratio of burglaries to households in their area in the latest reporting period for which information is available; and if he will make a statement. [45575]

Hazel Blears: The information requested is given in the following table.

[1] Changes in BCU boundaries mean that figures for 2003–04 and 2004–05 are not comparable.

Notes:

1. Metropolitan police figures will not agree with totals published in 'Crime in England and Wales 2004–05' since not all crimes are assigned to BCUs.
2. Offence rates are not applicable for airports as they have no resident population.
3. All crime rates are based on mid-2003 population estimates supplied by the Office for National Statistics.

4. Caution needs to be taken when considering crime rates of city centre areas due to the very small population and household levels in these areas. The very high reported crime rates in city centres are partly due to the use of small resident population and household figures as the denominator of the crime rate. The 'transient population' that migrates into these areas on a daily basis, either for work or leisure, will not be reflected in the resident population figures. Changes in population estimates between years must also be borne in mind when comparing changes in crime rates.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers there have been in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [47790]

Hazel Blears: Police officer numbers have increased by 15,588 (12 per cent.) between March 2001 and September 2005. The following table sets out the year by year numbers and the increase. In addition to police officers, at the end of September 2005 there were 6,324 community support officers and a record 71,967 police (support) staff involved in the delivery of policing.

Police officer strength March 2001 to September 2005

As at 31 March	Police officer strength	Increase/ decrease	Police staff strength	Increase	Community Support Officer strength
2001	125,682	1,512	54,588	1,361
2002	129,603	3,921	58,909	4,321
2003	133,366	3,763	62,172	3,263	1,176
2004	139,200	5,834	67,581	5,409	3,417
2005	141,278	2,087	70,687	3,106	6,261
2005 (30 September)	141,270	-8	71,967	1,280	6,324

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance is given to the police on procedures to follow when they need to verify the identity of a suspect whose face is covered for religious reasons. [45542]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Section 64A of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act (PACE) 1984 provides that photographs can be taken of persons detained at a police station and elsewhere than at a police station. Under the PACE Code of Practice for the Identification of Persons by Police Officers (Code D), the officer proposing to take a detainee's photograph may require the person to remove any item or substance worn on, or over, or any part of, their head or face. If the person does not comply with such a requirement, the officer may remove the item or substance. In order to obtain a suspect's consent and co-operation to remove an item of religious headwear or face covering to take a photograph, officer should consider whether in the removal of the situation the removal of the headwear or covering and the taking of the photograph should be by an officer of the same sex as the person. It would be appropriate for these actions to be conducted out of public view.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what date he received a business plan from the police authorities of Wales relating to the creation of a single strategic force in Wales. [44278]

Hazel Blears: A single joint submission from all four Welsh police forces and authorities was received by the 23 December 2005 deadline.

Prisoners

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) escapes and (b) unapproved absences there have been from each English prison in each year since 1996–97; and if he will make a statement. [45767]

Fiona Mactaggart: Data on the number of escapes and absconds broken down by prison establishment in England and Wales from 1996–97 to 27 January 2006 is shown in tables which have been placed in the Library. The total number of absconds and release on temporary licence failures is also detailed. However, a breakdown by establishment could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The number of temporary release failures compared to the actual number of releases on Release On Temporary Licence (ROTL) per year is very low. In 2002, 287,732 ROTL licences were granted and in 2003 there were 328,780. The corresponding temporary release failures were 316 and 405 respectively.

Prisoners released on ROTL are risk assessed before any release takes place. A Prison Governor will not release any prisoner who is considered to be a risk to the public or who is unlikely to be able to comply with the terms of the ROTL licence. Any failure of ROTL is taken seriously and will be taken into consideration with any further ROTL applications.

Prison staff are vigilant in their day-to-day activities in preventing escapes. This is supported by Prison Service Orders, professional expertise and regular internal reminders of the need to manage prisoners decently while preventing their escape. The level of escapes continues to be well below the Key Performance Indicator target. In the period April to 31 December 2005 there have been no escapes from prison establishments, three from prison escorts and two from court escorts bringing the overall total to five. This compares favourably to last year's total of 15 escapes for the same period.

Each abscond from an open or semi open prison is investigated locally and findings inform both local and national policy.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners held in Her Majesty's prisons (a) are non-British EU nationals, (b) are non-EU foreign nationals, (c) are seeking leave to remain in the United Kingdom and (d) have been UK residents for less than 10 years. [45898]

Fiona Mactaggart: Information on the number of (a) non-British Nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals as recorded in the Prison Service IT system is provided in the table. Full statistics on the nationality of prisoners within prisons in England and Wales are available in the Population in Custody Quarterly Brief, April to June 2005, on the Home Office website.

Regarding parts (c) and (d) of the question, the Immigration and Nationality Directorate does not keep central records of prisoners presently seeking leave to remain in the United Kingdom or of their length of residence in the United Kingdom.

Prison population showing non-British nationals, 30 June 2005

non-British EU nationals	1,439	173	1,612
non-EU Foreign nationals	7,336	701	8,037

Prisoners Visits

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Winchester of 14 December 2005, Official Report, column 2034W, on prisoners, whether (a) HMP Nottingham, (b) HMP Holme House, (c) HMP Usk, (d) HMP Prescoed, (e) HMP Durham and (f) HMP Doncaster comply with the minimum visit requirements for prisoners on the basic regime. [47575]

Fiona Mactaggart: Each of the establishments is compliant. The following table sets out the entitlement for convicted and unconvicted prisoners on the basic level of the incentives and earned privileges scheme.

Prison	Visits—convicted prisoners	Visits—unconvicted prisoners
Nottingham	2 x 1 hour per 28 days	3 x 30 minutes per week
Holme House	1 x 1 hour per week	3 x 1 hour per week
Usk	2 x 2 hours per week	No unconvicted prisoners
Prescoed	2 x 1 hour per 28 days	No unconvicted prisoners
Durham	2 x 1 hour per 28 days	3 x 1 hour per week
Doncaster	2 x 1 hour per 28 days	Daily x 30 minutes Monday to Friday

Prisons

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in what circumstances cases of visitors and staff found in possession of drugs across the prison estate are not routinely referred to the police for investigation; and if he will make a statement. [47134]

Fiona Mactaggart: Since 6 December 2005 the policy on action to be taken when visitors or staff are found to be in possession of classified drugs on entry into a public sector Prison Service establishment is that all cases will routinely be referred to the police for investigation.

If there are wholly exceptional circumstances which could justify divergence from this policy the case must be referred to a Prison Service director for consideration.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners have been assaulted by other prisoners in Coldingley prison in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [47399]

Fiona Mactaggart: The figures in the following table are those incidents where assaults have been reported on the Incident Reporting System.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many escapes have taken place from Coldingley prison in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and how many of these escapees were subsequently recaptured. [47400]

Fiona Mactaggart: One prisoner escaped from Coldingley prison in 1998 and was recaptured.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff were employed at Coldingley prison in each of the last six years for which figures are available, broken down by rank. [47401]

Fiona Mactaggart: The following table contains details of the number of staff employed at HMP Coldingley (on a headcount basis) in each year since 1999, broken down by grade. The figures represent a snapshot of staffing levels on 31 December each year.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the amount of Brazilian beef procured for (a) prisons and (b) young offender institutions during the last year for which figures are available. [47470]

Fiona Mactaggart: The Prison Service procured from contracted sources 7,836 kilos of Brazilian beef for prisons and 2,319 kilos for young offenders institutions from February 2005 to January 2006—all in the form of corned beef.

Corned beef is not manufactured in the UK.

Probation Service

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what advice he has received on the restructuring of the probation service from (a) former employees of the probation service, (b) the author of "Managing Offenders, Reducing Crime" and (c) advisers to the Government on crime. [46503]

Fiona Mactaggart: The Government's proposals for restructuring probation are based on Lord Carter's analysis of the correctional services as set out in the paper "Managing Offenders, Reducing Crime". These proposals were set out in the consultation paper "Restructuring Probation to reduce re-offending", published on 20 October 2005. We plan to publish a summary of responses to the consultation—which included responses from some former employees of the probation service—within three months of its conclusion on 20 December.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many responses there have been to the consultation paper on restructuring probation to reduce re-offending; and how many of these supported the introduction of contestability into the national probation service. [48191]

Fiona Mactaggart: We have received 748 responses to the consultation on restructuring probation to reduce re-offending. Work analysing the responses is not yet complete. We will publish a summary of responses and the key points raised within the three month timescale set out in the Cabinet Office guidelines on public consultations.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he intends to retain the 42 probation areas under National Offender Management Service arrangements. [48194]

Fiona Mactaggart: We will consider how best the probation service, as well as the wider criminal justice system, can take into account changes to police structures once final decisions on future police boundaries have been taken. Co-terminosity in the criminal justice system remains an important principle.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the role of the national probation service within the National Offender Management Service five year plan. [48195]

Fiona Mactaggart: A five year strategy for reducing reoffending and the work of the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) will be published shortly. The strategy will provide a vision for the whole of NOMS and its constituent parts, including the national probation service.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what legislation he is restructuring the Probation Service in England and Wales. [48980]

Fiona Mactaggart: We intend to bring forward legislation to restructure probation services as soon as the parliamentary timetable allows.

Prosecutions (Suicide)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions have been brought under section 2(1) of the Suicide Act 1961 in each year since 1976. [47509]

Fiona Mactaggart: Data from the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform shows the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts for aiding or abetting suicide under section 2 of the Suicide act 1961 in England and Wales from 1976 to 2004.

Rape

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of contested prosecutions for rape in the Avon and Somerset police force area have resulted in a conviction in the last five years. [44110]

Fiona Mactaggart: Data held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform on the number of defendants pleading not guilty of rape and the number and percentage of these found guilty of rape at the Crown court in Avon and Somerset police force area, is provided in the attached table. Figures are presented for the years 2000–04.

Note: Rape includes rape of a female and male.

Rehabilitation of Offenders

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans the Government have to implement the recommendation of his Department's publication "Breaking the Circle: A Report of the Review of the Rehabilitation of Offenders", published in July 2002; and what assessment has been made of the impact of the decision to date not to implement these recommendations on the rehabilitation of offenders. [47568]

Fiona Mactaggart: The Government have accepted the majority of the review's recommendations and will legislate when parliamentary time allows.

We are also considering what might be necessary for the disclosure regime in the light of the Bichard report which dealt with criminal records in the context of the protection of children and vulnerable adults.

No assessment has been made regarding the impact of non-implementation. However, the Criminal Records Bureau's Code of Practice requires that employers receiving disclosure information do not unfairly discriminate against applicants on the basis of previous convictions.

Scottish Intelligence Database

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what use is made by English police forces of the Scottish Intelligence Database. [48167]

Hazel Blears: The National Criminal Intelligence Service (NCIS) have full access to the Scottish Intelligence Database (SID) through their Scottish Regional Office. Protocols exist to disseminate intelligence through NCIS to forces in England and Wales. A memorandum of understanding is currently being developed that may be used to grant full access on a force-by-force basis in England and Wales.

Sexual Abuse

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps his Department is taking to support the recovery of children and adults who have suffered childhood sexual abuse. [47549]

Fiona Mactaggart: The Government are putting real investment into supporting victims of sexual violence, including childhood sexual abuse. Over the last two years £4 million from the Home Office Victims Fund has been used to strengthen specialist services. A further £1.25 million will be made available specifically for the development of voluntary sector sexual violence services in 2006–07.

A mapping exercise of service provision is currently being conducted. This will provide valuable information about the level and strength of specialist services available to victims of sexual violence in England and Wales.

Special Branch

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the staffing levels of Special Branch were in each police force in each year since 1997. [44709]

Hazel Blears: For security and operational reasons the Home Office does not comment on the distribution of police resources and staffing levels in relation to counter-terrorism.

Published information on police strength by police force area is available for rank, gender and ethnicity but not function. Figures on police strength are published in Home Office statistical bulletins, copies of which can be found in the library or on the internet site: www.homeoffice.gov.uk.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations he has received from chief constables on the size of Special Branch within police forces. [44711]

Mr. Charles Clarke: I have not received any representations. Each police force has its own special branch and the resource allocation, in terms of staffing and associated costs, to special branch is the responsibility of chief officers in each force.

The Government remains committed to ensuring that the police service has the necessary resources to meet its CT commitments. The additional police counter-terrorism funding announced on the 25 January will strengthen the police service's intelligence and investigative capability both in the capital and in local and regional policing.

Timber

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the use of Indonesian rainforest plywood in the new Home Office building. [45562]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The Department's 2 Marsham Street Headquarters has been procured via a 29-year PFI contract with Annes Gate Property plc which commenced on 26 March 2002. AGP has confirmed that it has complied with the Department's policy on the use of timber from sustainable sources as required by its contract with the Department. AGP has sourced any plywood that it has procured for the building from a sustainable supplier certified under the Forestry Stewardship Council scheme. The Department clarified its timber purchasing policy in mid-2003 to make clear that it also applied to any timber used in the construction process that would not be used in the completed building. Following this clarification AGP decided that any previous use of Indonesian plywood in the construction process should cease. Since the building opened AGP's facilities management sub-contractor has had its environmental management system certified under ISO 14001.

Violent Assaults

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many violent assaults where the perpetrators recorded the incidents with mobile phone cameras have been reported in each local authority area in each of the last two years; and if he will make a statement. [46299]

Hazel Blears: The information requested is not available from the recorded crime statistics.

Worker Registration Scheme

Mr. Davidson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many workers from EU accession countries have (a) applied and (b) been accepted under the worker registration scheme since 1 May 2004. [47659]

Mr. McNulty: The latest published Accession Monitoring Report covers the period May 2004 to September 2005 and sets out the number of citizens from the EU accession countries (A8 nationals) who have applied to register with the worker registration scheme (WRS) during this period. This report is available on the Home Office website at: http://www.ind.homeoffice.gov.uk/ind/en/home/about_us/reports/accession_monitoring.html.

The next report, which will cover the period May 2004 to December 2005, will be published on 28 February 2006.

Table one (page five) of the report shows that during May 2004 to September 2005, 293,215 A8 nationals applied for registration, of which 277,060 were accepted and issued with work cards and certificates.

The figures shown in the report are for initial applications only; they do not include multiple applications, where a worker is doing more than one job simultaneously, or re-registrations, where a worker has changed employers.

The data has been obtained from local management information using the WRS database. They have not been provided under national statistics protocols and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

TREASURY

Biodiesel Duty

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the definition is of (a) diesel quality liquid fuel, (b) biomass and (c) waste cooking oil for the purposes of assessing the eligibility of fuels for the reduced rate of duty for biodiesel; [48818]

(2) what the criteria are by which users of cooking oil and straight vegetable oil have been judged not to qualify for the reduced rate of fuel duty applicable to biodiesel. [48819]

John Healey: I refer the right hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Birmingham, Yardley (John Hemming) on 15 December 2005, Official Report, column 2265W.

Community Development Finance Institutions

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the outcome was of the consultation on extending the community investment tax relief scheme to investments in community development finance institutions' personal lending activities. [49260]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The outcome of the consultation on extending Community Investment Tax Relief to the personal lending activities of community development finance institutions was announced in the pre-Budget report 2005. The consultation indicated support for an extension and highlighted a range of practical issues that need addressing. The Government are continuing to consider the case for, and practicalities of, this extension.

Credit Unions

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department has made of the impact of raising the maximum rate of interest that credit unions can charge on loans on (a) the availability of credit and (b) the rate of take up of loans. [49258]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The pre-Budget report 2005 announced the intention to increase the maximum interest rate that credit unions can charge on loans from 1 per cent. a month to 2 per cent. a month, following consultation. This increase is designed to give all credit unions the flexibility to better serve low-income groups. The consultation provided strong evidence to suggest that this change will have a positive effect on the availability of credit union loans for those encountering exclusion from mainstream financial services, and will facilitate an expansion in credit union membership to those currently unable to access credit at affordable rates.

Energy Efficiency

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the (a) benefits and (b) costs to (i) businesses and (ii) the Department of having different rules for the eligibility for enhanced capital allowances for energy efficient (A) display light fittings and (B) general light fittings. [48583]

John Healey: No such assessment has been made. The rules for 100 per cent. first-year enhanced capital allowances for energy saving plant and machinery do not distinguish between display light fittings and general light fittings.

Film Tax Credit

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when details of the new film tax credit to replace the section 48 credit will be announced; and if he will make a statement. [48482]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Chancellor made a number of key announcements regarding the new film tax incentives at the pre-Budget report on 5 December 2005, including revised rates and levels of relief. The Government are aiming to publish draft legislation as soon as is possible, so as to provide the UK film industry with certainty on the further details of the new incentives. Full legislation will appear in Finance Bill 2006.

Freedom of Information Act

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what total sum has been received by his Department for the provision of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in its first year of operation. [48487]

John Healey: The Treasury has not received any monies for the provision of information under the FOI Act in its first year of operation.

Insurance Premium Tax

Gregory Barker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to reform the insurance premium tax. [49461]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my hon. Friend the Financial Secretary to the Treasury gave him on 22 November 2005, Official Report, column 1908W.

Intrastat

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what purpose HM Revenue and Customs collects statistics on behalf of Intrastat on the weight of goods imported from other EU member states; and what assessment he has made of the cost to businesses of collating this information. [48582]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: All member states have a legal requirement to collect Intrastat statistics on the weight of goods imported from other EU countries. These statistics are used by the European Union, the UK Government and private sector for economic monitoring and informing business decisions. This information is also used by HM Revenue and Customs to assure the Intrastat information provided. The cost to businesses of collating this information cannot be identified separately from the costs calculated for Intrastat information in totality. From 1 January 2006 member states may decide to remove the need for 'net mass' information where the 'supplementary unit' is required. A third of all commodity codes are included in this simplification which HM Revenue and Customs is implementing in the UK.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidance HM Revenue and Customs gives to businesses that are required to complete the Instrastat statistical returns. [48584]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: HM Revenue and Customs provides an Intrastat Education Pack for all businesses required to complete Intrastat returns. Included in this pack is a copy of Notice 60—The Intrastat General Guide. Additional information is also available from their dedicated website (www.uktradeinfo.com) as well as a telephone help-line (Tel: 01702 366493) and e-mail inquiry address (uktradeinfo@hmrc.gsi.gov.uk).

Iraq

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Government's most recent estimate is of the cost to the Exchequer of combat operations in Iraq in each month since the start of the conflict; and if he will make a statement. [48739]

Mr. Des Browne: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave him on 26 January 2006, Official Report, columns 2260–61W.

Job Statistics (Tamworth)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) private sector jobs in (i) manufacturing and (ii) the service sector and (b) public sector jobs there were in Tamworth constituency in each year since 1997. [48661]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 7 February 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about private and public sector employment in Tamworth. I am replying in her absence. (48661)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics for the United Kingdom of public sector employment from a quarterly survey of public sector organisations. However, estimates at local area level are not available.

Information at local area level is only available from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS)/Annual Population Survey (APS) of individual people in households. However, in this source, the categorisation of employment in the public or private sector depends upon the responses from the individuals interviewed. As reported by ONS in October 2005 in the publication "Public Sector Employment Trends" some individuals tend to misreport private sector employment as being in the public sector hence leading to overestimates of the share of public sector employment.

With this reservation about the data quality, the attached table shows the number of persons in private sector and public sector employment, for people resident in the Tamworth Parliamentary Constituency as shown by the annual local area LFS for the 12 month periods ending February 1999 to February 2004, and from the APS for the 12 months ending December 2004. Estimates are not available for 1997.

These estimates, as with any from sample surveys, are subject to a margin of uncertainty. Changes in the estimates from year to year should be treated with particular caution.

National Census

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints have been made about the last national census; how many of those complaints have been upheld; and what action has been taken to address them. [48883]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 7 February 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your question about how many complaints have been made about the 2001 Census, how many of those have been upheld and what action has been taken to address them. I am replying in her absence. (48883)

In responding to your question we haw interpreted complaints to mean all correspondence that has been received expressing concern either about the 2001 Census population estimates for England and Wales or the 2001 Mid Year Population Estimates (MYEs) for England and Wales which are based upon the 2001 Census. We have not included issues or complaints raised in the run up to the 2001 Census on questionnaire content and other logistical matters in carrying out a Census.

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) has received letters of concern regarding 48, out of the total of 376, Local Authorities in England and Wales.

Following the 2001 Census ONS undertook an extensive programme of work to establish the reasons for the difference between the 2001 Census and the MYEs at both a national and local level. This research included a series of Local Authority studies carried out in 2004 which were designed to improve the MYEs in the areas that proved hardest to count in the 2001 Census in England and Wales. The results of these studies showed that better estimates of the population could be made in 15 areas and an adjustment was made to the MYEs in these areas. For the great majority of areas the 2001 Census based population estimate remains the best estimate of the population. A full report on these Local Authority Studies can be found at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_population/LAStudy_FullReport.pdf

Of the 48 Local Authorities where concern was expressed about the 2001 Census, there were 10 cases where an adjustment was made to the 2001 based MYEs.

In addition to the 2004 Local Authority Studies, ONS is now investing substantially in a project to Improve Migration and Population Statistics (IMPS). Further information on this project can be found at: www.statistics.gov.uk/IMPS .

The key aim of this project is to reduce the size of the difference between population estimates and mid-year estimates for 2011 when the next Census is undertaken and to better understand any difference that does remain.

The IMPS project is allowing ONS to investigate possible ways to improve the accuracy of the population estimates and to establish where it is possible to introduce changes to data sources and methods that will improve the quality of the statistics. This work includes an evaluation of administrative data sources that might inform the population estimates process and further case studies with a small number of Local Authorities.

Public Sector Accounts

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, if he will list the changes made to the definitions of capital spending in the Public Sector Accounts since May 2001. [47521]

Mr. Des Browne: There have been none.

Royal Mint

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff the Royal Mint employs in (a) London, (b) each region of England, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland; how much the Royal Mint paid (i) in rates and (ii) in other accommodation costs in each location in 2004–05; what the total administration costs were in each location in 2004–05; and how much funding the Royal Mint received from the Government for 2005–06. [48835]

John Healey: In 2004–05, the Royal Mint employed, on average, 991 staff. Until August 2004, one employee was located in London. Since then, all members of staff have been employed in Wales.

The Royal Mint paid £452,000 in rates to the local Council. The total of accommodation costs and administrative costs in 2004–05 (excluding costs directly attributable to factory activities but including rates) is captured as Common Costs in the Annual Report which are equal to £7.145 million. Due to commercial sensitivity, the Royal Mint cannot provide a more detailed breakdown.

The Royal Mint has not received any funding from Government in this financial year (2005–06).

Small Business Relief Scheme

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many businesses have applied for the small business relief scheme in each of the last five years; how many were eligible in each year; and how many of those were successful in each year. [49697]

John Healey: The small business rate relief scheme came into effect from 1 April 2005. Applications for small business rate relief may be made up to six months after the end of the financial year to which the application relates, or six months from notification of an alteration to a rateable value that makes the hereditament eligible for relief. Information is not held centrally on the number of businesses that applied for and were granted relief in 2005–06.

Special Reserve

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when each payment (a) into and (b) out of the special reserve was made in each year since 2000; what each payment was for; and if he will make a statement. [48740]

Mr. Des Browne: Allocations to the special reserve are announced and recorded in Budgets and pre-Budget reports. The 2002 pre-Budget report made a special contingency allocation of £1 billion, increased to £3 billion in Budget 2003. In the 2003 pre-Budget report the Government announced that the remaining £2 billion of this special reserve would be carried forward to 2003–04. A further £500 million was set aside for the financial year 2003–04 and a further £820 million for 2004–05 as a prudent allowance for continuing spending on Iraq, Afghanistan and our other international commitments. In Budget 2005, a further £340 million was added to the special reserve for 2004–05 and £400 million for the special reserve in 2005–06. The 2005 pre-Budget report allocated a further £580 million to the special reserve in 2005–06. Costs and provision will continue to be reviewed at Budgets and pre-Budget reports.

The reserves, including the special reserve, are managed together as a mechanism for future budgetary planning, rather than to account for past expenditure. Past expenditure is accounted for through outturn information provided in Departmental accounts, which do not discriminate between spending provided for in Departmental spending review settlements and spending provided for from the reserves.

Spirits

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment the Government have made of the merits of introducing a sunset clause for the new spirit labelling scheme; [48595]

(2) what the estimated total costs are of implementing the Government's proposed spirit label stamp scheme; and for what reasons these costs have not been set out in the regulatory impact assessment. [48642]

John Healey: Spirits fraud continues to be a significant problem, and the Duty Stamps scheme is central to the Government's strategy for tackling it. Duty stamps remain a proportionate response to the problem. Since the original regulatory impact assessment was published in April 2004, industry compliance costs have been reduced from £23 million set-up costs and £54 million per annum ongoing costs to £6 million set-up costs and £4 million per annum ongoing costs. These revised costs were published in an update to the original regulatory impact assessment, which was laid before the House on 9 January 2006 alongside the Duty Stamps (Amendment of paragraph 1 (3) of Schedule 2A to the Alcoholic Liquor Duties Act 1979) Order 2006. The Government have allocated £36 million over a three-year period to HM Revenue and Customs to implement its enhanced alcohol strategy, which includes the duty stamps scheme. These costs were included in the explanatory memorandum which was also laid alongside the order.

With the cooperation of the UK spirits industry, the duty stamps scheme remains on course to be implemented in full during 2006–07. The scheme will, in due course, be the subject of a post-implementation review and a review of the regulatory impact assessment.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the spirit fraud seizures and detections during the last 12 months which involved revenue evasions in excess of £1 million. [48596]

John Healey: HMRC made no confirmed spirits fraud detections involving revenue in excess of £1 million during the past 12 months. Individual freight seizures of illicit spirits are unlikely ever to exceed £150,000 in revenue value, as a 40' container or trailer will normally hold a maximum of 14,000 litres (1,500 cases) of product.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what share of the UK spirit market will be exempt from the spirit label stamp scheme because it falls below the 30 per cent. alcohol by volume threshold. [48633]

John Healey: About 14 per cent. according to figures provided by the spirits industry, during consultations on the duty stamps scheme.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many entities outside the UK have registered for spirit label stamps; what estimate he has made of the number of stamps which HM Revenue and Customs will distribute to non-UK entities; what steps the Government are taking to ensure the credentials of those applying for stamps abroad; and whether HM Revenue and Customs will police the application and use of stamps overseas. [48634]

John Healey: HM Revenue and Customs have so far received 37 applications for registration for duty stamps from businesses outside the UK. All applications are closely scrutinised to ensure that applicants are eligible to be registered for the scheme. For businesses outside the UK, based in the European Union only approved excise warehousekeepers, whose details are confirmed by the other member states' authorities can apply for registration. For businesses outside the European Union, only those in very specific trade categories are eligible to register.

Registered businesses can make commercial choices as to whether to incorporate the duty stamp into bottle labels or to affix freestanding stamps distributed by HM Revenue and Customs' contractor. For imported spirits, the stamps can be applied outside the UK or in the UK once imported. The number of freestanding stamps distributed to non-UK entities is dependent on these commercial choices and is not possible to estimate at this stage.

For registered businesses based outside the European Union, HM Revenue and Customs will exercise control over goods as they enter and within the UK and can seek targeted assistance from the authorities of other countries under long-standing agreements between World Customs Organisation members. For businesses based in other member states of the EU, existing arrangements for mutual assistance between fiscal authorities will be used.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what recent assessment he has made of the scope for worldwide (a) theft and (b) counterfeiting of UK duty stamps once the spirit label stamp scheme is introduced; [48635]

(2) what steps he has taken to ensure that the spirit label stamp scheme will not be undermined by the use of stolen or fake stamps. [49271]

John Healey: HM Revenue and Customs assess that the risk from theft of duty stamps is low. Businesses using duty stamps are required to keep a record of stamps obtained and used and to report any theft of stamps to HM Revenue and Customs.

HM Revenue and Customs have utilised state of the art security print technology in the design of the freestanding duty stamp, which will make successful counterfeiting difficult and expensive.

So far as duty stamps incorporated within bottle labels are concerned, one of the factors that the Government took into account before deciding to permit label stamps was their potential effect on counterfeiting. As industry representatives pointed out when advocating label-stamps, they make counterfeiting a less viable proposition than would have been the case with traditional strip stamps, since fraudsters would need to obtain not only the label stamps but also bottles of spirits without labels. Alternatively, fraudsters would have to incur the cost of removing any existing labels before being able to use counterfeit label stamps.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the reasons for the level of spirit fraud (a) seizure, (b) detection and (c) prosecution rates. [48636]

John Healey: Details of illicit spirits seized and prosecutions for spirits offences are contained in the HMRC annual report for 2004–05 published in December 2005.

Individual output measures relating to selected elements of HMRC's activity to tackle spirits fraud cannot be taken as a proxy measure of impact.

More important than such activity indicators are the figures published alongside the pre-budget report in December 2005 which show that the Government have succeeded in reducing the UK illicit spirits market from 9 per cent. in 2001–02 to 7 per cent. in 2003–04.

The Government announced an enhanced strategic approach to tackling alcohol fraud in its 2004 pre-budget report, setting HMRC the tough target of reducing spirits fraud by half by 2008.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how his Department calculates spirit fraud VAT losses within total revenue loss estimates; and whether it is assumed that all illicit bottles pay no VAT as well as no excise duty. [48637]

John Healey: For the purposes of its revenue loss estimates, HMRC makes the cautious assumption that illicit bottles of spirits pay no UK VAT as well as no UK excise duty. An average rate of VAT loss in pounds per litre of spirits sold in the UK is derived from data provided by market research organisations. This rate is subsequently multiplied by the amount of the estimated illicit volume in order to obtain the total VAT loss.

The approaches used for measuring VAT losses are outlined in the HMCE report: "Measuring Indirect Tax Losses—November 2002". This can be accessed through the following link: http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/389/E5/admeas02_297kb.pdf.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what evidence the Government have collected to support their estimates of the scale of spirit fraud. [48638]

John Healey: The methodology used to estimate the scale of spirits fraud was subject to an independent review by the Office for National Statistics, the details of which were published in July 2005. HMRC has made a number of refinements to its approach in response to the findings of the ONS review and these are reflected in the estimates published alongside the 2005 pre-Budget report. HMRC's operational activity and intelligence supports our understanding that spirits fraud continues to be a major threat.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his most recent estimate is of the value of revenue losses caused by spirit fraud; and what the statistical lower bound estimate is for spirit fraud. [48639]

John Healey: The most recent estimates of the value of revenue losses caused by spirits fraud, and associated margins of error, are set out in "Measuring Indirect Tax Losses"—2005 published alongside the pre-Budget report in December 2005.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department has made of the Office of National Statistics' review of spirits fraud published on 21 July 2005; and whether he has accepted its conclusions in respect of previous Government estimates of revenue evasion. [48640]

John Healey: The Department welcomes the report. Following detailed assessment of the report, the Department has adopted a number of refinements to the method for estimating the level of revenue losses attributable to spirits fraud. These are set out in "Measuring Indirect Tax Losses"—2005, published alongside the 2005 pre-Budget report.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of the effect of introducing a spirit label stamp scheme on illegal spirit sales; [48641]

(2) what estimate he has made of the reduction in spirit fraud which will result from Government plans to introduce a label stamp scheme. [48643]

John Healey: Duty stamps for spirits were announced at Budget 2004 as part of a package of measures for tackling the revenue lost through spirits excise duty fraud. The scheme complements and supports the other strands of the strategy such as Memoranda of Understanding with the spirits industry and enhanced operational activity. These measures were introduced to halve the level of spirits fraud by 2007–08.

The projected revenue benefit of the alcohol strategy as a whole is £85 million. However, it is not possible to estimate the revenue benefit of each individual strand of the strategy, as it is the combination of the whole package that determines the total effect.

Suicides

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many suicides were committed by people aged 14 to 25 years in each region in the last three years, broken down by sex; and if he will make a statement. [48376]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 7 February 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many suicides were committed by people aged 14 to 25 years in each region in the last three years, broken down by sex. I am replying in her absence. (48376)

In routine statistics, ONS defines suicides as deaths from both intentional self-harm and 'injury of undetermined intent'. The most recent available figures are for the calendar year 2004. The figures in the table below show the number of deaths from intentional self harm and injury of undetermined intent by sex among those aged 14 to 25 for the calendar years 2002 to 2004.

Number of deaths among people aged 14 to 25 years from intentional self harm[1] and injury of undetermined intent[2], by sex for government office regions[3] in England and Wales, 2002 to 2004[4]

[1] The cause of death for intentional self harm was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes X60-X84.

[3] The cause of death for injury of undetermined intent was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) cades Y10-Y34 excluding Y33.9 where the Coroner's verdict was pending. It is assumed likely that most of these deaths are cases where the harm is self-inflicted but there was insufficient evidence to prove that the deceased deliberately intended to kill themselves.

Deaths were selected using final underlying cause of death.

[4] Usual residents of these areas.

Tax Credits

Mr. Randall: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many tax credit claimants there have been in Uxbridge constituency since the scheme began, broken down by those who were (a) underpaid, (b) overpaid and (c) paid the correct amount. [48514]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Mid-Bedfordshire (Mrs. Dorries) on 10 October 2005, Official Report, column 321W.

Anne Main: To ask Mr Chancellor of the Exchequer how many tax credit claimants there have been in St Albans constituency since the scheme began, broken down by those who were (a) underpaid, (b) overpaid and (c) paid the correct amount. [49330]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Mid-Bedfordshire (Mrs. Domes) on 10 October 2005, Official Report, column 321W.

Transport

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of total projected public expenditure on transport in each year from 2006 to 2015. [48100]

Mr. Des Browne: The Government are committed to providing significant resources to maintain and modernise the transport network. Spending Review 2004 set out estimates of UK public expenditure on transport of £20.1 billion for 2006–07 and £19.3 billion for 2007–08. These totals included £13.6 billion and £12.9 billion allocated to the Department for Transport for 2006–07 and 2007–08 respectively. The remainder in each year is estimated expenditure by local authorities and the devolved Administrations. Actual local and devolved transport expenditure will be made according to their own spending decisions.

Over the period 2008–09 to 2014–15, a Long Term Funding Guideline has been agreed with the Department for Transport to provide a stable financial framework within which to plan transport improvements. This guideline is set out in "The Future of Transport: A network for 2030," published by the Department for Transport in July 2004. This guideline does not include projections of future expenditure on transport by local authorities and the devolved Administrations, which they will determine according to their own spending priorities.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 29 November 2005, Official Report, column 354W, on the Valuation Office Agency, what plans the Government have to use (a) computer assisted mass appraisal and (b) the automated valuation model for the next scheduled business rates revaluation. [47939]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Valuation Office Agency is considering setting up a feasibility study into whether the automated valuation model might be used to support some elements of the next business rates revaluation in 2010.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 30 November 2005, Official Report, columns 529–30W, on the Valuation Office Agency, whether HM Revenue and Customs staff have access to the information and data collected for council tax valuation purposes for its general use in collecting taxes; and what guidelines apply to the use of that data. [49269]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The use of information by HMRC is governed by sections 17 to 21 of The Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005.

The use of information and data collected for council tax valuation purposes is covered under the general guidance on the use of information within HMRC, and all HMRC staff are bound by strict confidentiality safeguards which protect HMRC information from being misused.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Legal Aid (Tamworth)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what assessment she has made of the availability of civil legal aid to people living in Tamworth constituency. [48660]

Bridget Prentice: The Legal Services Commission contracts with service providers throughout England and Wales to provide a range of legal and advice services across different categories of law.

There are currently three service providers with a contract to undertake civil legal aid work in Tamworth. Service providers in Tamworth may help people who live outside the area, and people who live in Tamworth may visit a service provider in a different area.

Any person residing in England or Wales can access free quality legal advice and information through Community Legal Service Direct. This service is available direct to the public through a telephone line, website and information leaflets.

Public Defender Service

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what plans the Government have to extend the Public Defender Service. [49826]

Bridget Prentice: The operation of the Public Defender Service will be reviewed in light of the independent research into the pilot which is expected to be published shortly.

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what comparison the Government have made of the costs of the Public Defender Service and those of legal aid-funded solicitors. [49827]

Bridget Prentice: The independent research that has been commissioned to report on the Public Defender Service will compare and analyse the costs of the Public Defender Service with those of private practitioners specialising in criminal legal aid work. It is expected that the research will be published shortly.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Academies

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of pupils at each academy achieved (a) five A* to C GCSE grades or equivalent, (b) five A* to C GCSE grades and (c) five A* to C GCSE grades in English and Mathematics in 2005; and what the equivalent figures were for the predecessor school of each academy in its last year of operation. [43048]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 23 January 2006]: The information requested is shown in the tables.

Civil Servants (Overseas Visits)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what costs were incurred by her Department as a result of sending civil servants on overseas visits in each of the last 10 years. [46285]

Bill Rammell: The information requested is set out in the following table. The figures are taken from the Department's financial systems for the years in question. The figures include overseas visits by Ministers who are not classified as civil servants and could be separated only at disproportional cost. All travel by civil servants complied with the requirements of the Civil Service Management Code.

Expenditure on overseas visits

1996–97	883
1997–98	663

Expenditure on overseas visits

2001–02	506
2002–03	243
2003–04	218
2004–05	180

These figures reflect the Department as constituted at the time the accounts were produced and so are not adjusted for Machinery of Government changes. Figures before 1996–97 are not available.

Colleges (Suspended Accreditation)

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether students who are enrolled on and have paid fees for courses for which colleges have had their accreditation suspended (a) are still able to qualify through external assessment and (b) are entitled to have their fees refunded. [48123]

Phil Hope: In these circumstances, the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) and the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) would expect colleges to make alternative arrangements for the learners, either by offering alternative qualifications accredited with another awarding body or by arranging for an alternative college with the relevant accreditation to take over the provision to these learners.

Depending on the alternative educational arrangements, as set out above, for the learner to gain their qualification the college would be expected to consider whether a fee refund was appropriate for the learner. The LSC would expect colleges to consider, sympathetically, learner requests for fee refunds where they were not satisfied with the alternatives being offered. If the course fee included an element of examination fee then that should be refunded.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many further education colleges have had NVQ accreditation status removed or suspended by the City and Guilds in the last 12 months; and what the NVQ subject areas were. [48124]

Phil Hope: This is a matter for City and Guilds of London Institute. I understand that Chris Humphries, Director General at City and Guilds of London Institute, has corresponded on this matter with the hon. Member.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether further education colleges are allowed to (a) advertise and promote and (b) enrol students onto courses for which their NVQ accreditation has been suspended. [48125]

Phil Hope: The Government would not expect any college to enrol any new learners onto any programme for which their accreditation had been lost or suspended. We would also not expect advertising or promotion of such courses.

Consultants

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many consultants have been engaged by her Department since March 2005; and at what cost. [43684]

Bill Rammell [pursuant to the reply, 26 January 2006, Official Report, c. 228W]: I am providing an amended response. The Department for Education and Skills spent £2.2 million from administration costs and £7.4 million from programme expenditure on consultants since March 2005 to date (April – December 2005–06 accounting period).

Criminal Record Checks

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of the number of requests for enhanced disclosures that will be generated as a result of making Criminal Records Bureau checks mandatory for all new appointments of school staff. [45245]

Ruth Kelly: These new arrangements will generate demand for additional checks on top of the existing annual total of 2.9 million checks. However, making CRB checks mandatory which were previously strongly advised in guidance should not, in itself, lead to a significant increase in the number of requests for checks and on this basis the CRB is confident that it will be able to cope with the change without any reduction in its standards. We will work with them as they continue to monitor the situation.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will set out a timetable for (a) laying the regulations and (b) implementing the regulation to make it a mandatory requirement for Criminal Record Bureau checks on all new school staff. [45246]

Ruth Kelly: Work is currently in hand to make on-appointment CRB checks compulsory for all new appointments to the schools work force and to introduce a parallel requirement that all supply agencies have a CRB disclosure for all staff who work in schools. In the meantime, I have written to all schools setting out how the checking system will work so that heads are clear about their responsibilities.

Dedicated Choice Advisers

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which organisation will employ the dedicated choice advisers referred to on page eight of the White Paper, Higher Standards, Better Schools for All. [46452]

Jacqui Smith: Choice advisers may be employed by schools, local authorities or voluntary and community sector organisations.

Education Costs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what her latest estimate is of the average total cost to public funds of educating a pupil (a) from primary school to age 16 and (b) from primary school to and through university; and if she will make a statement. [41440]

Jacqui Smith: The information is as follows.

(a) The estimated average cost of educating a pupil from primary school to age 16 is £55,000.

(b) It is not possible to produce a reasonable estimate of the average total cost of educating a pupil from primary school to and through university because the length of further and higher education courses varies considerably. However annual unit cost figures can be estimated and are produced in this year's departmental annual report. These show that the average annual cost of funding a further education place is £5,410, while the cost of funding a higher education place is £4,630.

Notes:

1. The cost of educating a pupil to age 16 has been calculated as follows. Per pupil funding figure for 3 to 10-year-olds in England in 2005–06 have been multiplied by eight (for the eight years of funding a child would receive between the age of three and 10) and by five for age 11 to 15. These are then summed together to give the total cost of educating a pupil to 16.

2. All figures in 2005–06 prices. As a result, HE figures quoted differ from those quoted in the departmental annual report.

3. Total funding also includes all revenue grants in DfES departmental expenditure limits relevant to pupils aged three to 15 and exclude education maintenance allowances (EMAs) and grants not allocated at LEA level.

4. The pupil numbers used to convert £ million figures to £ per pupil are those underlying the EFS settlement calculations.

5. Figures are based on eight years of funding for pupils aged three to 10 and five years of funding for pupils aged 11 to 15.

Examination Results

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to her answer of 3 November 2005, Official Report, column 1326W, on vocational qualifications, how many 15-year-olds achieved five or more A* to C grades at GCSE or equivalent including a full intermediate GNVQ (a) as a proportion of all 15-year-olds and (b) as a proportion of all 15-year-olds who achieved five or more A* to C grades at GCSE or equivalent. [36027]

Jacqui Smith: Out of the 636,796 15-year-old[1] pupils on roll in 2005 7.8 per cent. achieved five A*-C grades at GCSE and equivalent including a full intermediate GNVQ. Of the 358,413 pupils who achieved any five A*-C grades in 2005,13.9 per cent. achieved this level including a full intermediate GNVQ.

Of course, these pupils may still have achieved this level even if they had not taken the GNVQ.

[1] Age at the beginning of the academic year (i.e. 31 August).

Forensic Science

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many individuals have started forensic science-related National Vocational Qualifications since 1997; and what percentage have completed the course. [49132]

Bill Rammell: Two NVQs for "Forensic Science" at Levels 4 and 5 were accredited by QCA in January 1998, expired on 30 June 2000 and reached their certification end date on 30 June 2003. Information is not collected on how many learners started NVQs—however, no certificates were awarded for either of these qualifications.

General Teaching Council

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many disciplinary cases were heard by the General Teaching Council in each year since 2000; [48134]

(2) what the average period between referral to the General Teaching Council and a disciplinary hearing taking place was in each year since 2000; [48139]

(3) how many teachers were referred for disciplinary action before the General Teaching Council in each year since 2000. [48140]

Jacqui Smith: According to information provided by the General Teaching Council for England (GTCE) 161 teachers were referred to the Council for disciplinary action in 2001–02. This figure rose to: 217 in 2002–03, 267 in 2003–04 and 322 in 2004–05. For 2005 to date there have been 265 referrals.

These figures relate to the receipt of all referrals made to the Council. The Council has the power to take disciplinary action on teacher incompetence, and on cases of teacher misconduct which do not relate to child protection.

Cases are scrutinised by the Council's Investigating Committee before being recommended for a full formal hearing before a professional conduct or professional competence committee. Based on the latest information available from the Council, the number of full hearings dealt with by these committees is set out in the table:

	Number of hearings
2001–02	[1]3
2002–03	20
2003–04	43
2004–05	40
2005–31 January 2006	53

[1] The first regulatory hearing of the Council was convened in January 2002

The GTCE does not hold the data about the average period between referral of a case to the Council and a disciplinary hearing taking place in a readily accessible form. However, the Council estimates that the average waiting period is currently around 12 months.

Head Teachers

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what powers school governors have to regulate head teachers' (a) work-life balance and (b) holiday periods. [49312]

Jacqui Smith: Governing bodies have a statutory duty, in their management of the head teacher, to have regard to his/her work-life balance. Members of the leadership group, as well as some other teachers, are not subject to the working time provisions which apply to full-time classroom teachers through the School Teachers' Pay and Conditions Document, and it is for governing bodies to establish their expectations regarding holiday periods, having regard to the general duties required of different classes of teacher.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps she has taken to ensure that the regulation of head teachers' work-life balance by school governors is applied consistently. [49313]

Jacqui Smith: Following on from my previous response to the hon. Member today, the issue of regulating the work-life balance of head teachers falls to the governing body who would be expected to agree suitable arrangements with the head. With over 20,000 schools across the country there will of course be a range of differing measures and practices adopted by schools, head teachers and governing bodies to ensure that the work-life balance of their head teachers is appropriately agreed and addressed. We are confident in the professionalism of our head teachers and in the skills and judgment of school governors across the country. We would expect that they will work collaboratively to ensure that the work-life balance of the head and indeed the whole school workforce is addressed accordingly.

Jewish Festivals

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what her Department did to (a) celebrate Hanukkah and (b) mark Yom Kippur in 2005. [46756]

Bill Rammell: The Department celebrates a range of diversity events and publicise them to staff via personal invites on the Department's intranet system. Some events are generated by staff themselves. In 2005 we have provided, ongoing mandatory, cultural awareness training events for staff, which cover issues on religion and belief and highlight legislation.

Prisons

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps she plans to take to increase the uptake of educational opportunities and skills learning in the prison estate; and if she will make a statement. [48430]

Phil Hope: We are introducing a new offender learning and skills service that is more learner-centred and flexible, with better links between education and vocational training. This is intended to motivate more offenders in custody to address their learning and skills needs. The new service is already being delivered by the Learning and Skills Council in three development regions and will be rolled out in the remaining six English regions from 31 July 2006.

Looking further ahead, the Government have set out a strategy to improve the skills and job prospects for offenders in the Green Paper "Reducing Re-Offending Through Skills and Employment", published on 15 December. The document was published jointly on behalf of the Department for Education and Skills, the Home Office and the Department for Work and Pensions. We have now embarked on an extensive period of consultation, running until the end of May, during which we welcome a full range of views.

Private Tutors

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures she is proposing to ensure the safety of children taught by private tutors. [45177]

Ruth Kelly [holding answer 24 January 2006]: Where an individual is barred from working with children under section 142 of the Education Act 2002 on the grounds that he or she is "unsuitable to work with children", it is a criminal offence to work or seek work in any position that includes training or being in sole charge of a child or children. A person guilty of this offence is liable, on summary conviction, to imprisonment for up to six months and/or a fine and, on indictment, to imprisonment for up to five years and/or a fine.

The Department would strongly advise parents to verify the credentials of any person employed to provide private tuition for a child, particularly if that person is likely to be alone with the child at any time. For example, parents could ask prospective tutors for references from a recent employer.

The Department is fully aware that parents currently have limited access to information. The new scheme to be implemented as part of the Bichard Inquiry Recommendations will allow parents to access relevant information on people they wish to employ as home tutors.

I made clear in my statement to the House on 12 January, we are committed to implementing Sir Michael Bichard's recommendations to tighten the system of vetting and barring people who wish to work with children and that will entail the ability for parents to check whether tutors, nannies, and other individuals whom they employ, are barred or disqualified.

School Attendance

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2006, Official Report, column 2286W, on fast track to attendance, if she will revise the 2003 guidance Ensuring School Attendance to include joint assessment and support working between Children's and Adult Services. [49300]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 6 February 2006]: A general duty is placed on local authorities by section 17 of the Children Act 1989 to safeguard and promote the welfare of children under 18 who are in need by providing a range of services appropriate to meeting those needs. Assessments undertaken by local authorities of children should focus on the needs of the child, the capacity of the parents and wider environmental factors.

"Ensuring Regular School Attendance: Guidance on the Legal Measures available to Secure Regular School Attendance" is a short document the purpose of which is to give an overview of the various legal measures available. This guidance refers to the importance of investigating the underlying causes of poor attendance and to joined-up working between agencies but it is not a suitable vehicle for setting out case working procedures in more detail.

My Department issued Effective Attendance advice last year to local authorities and to schools. It stressed the need for all parts of local authorities to be co-ordinated to identify and meet the needs of vulnerable children and families. It highlighted the need for schools to have support systems in place for vulnerable pupils, including young carers. It also emphasised multi-agency support meetings to agree appropriate action. In addition guidance (available since 1999) on "Managing Behaviour and Attendance: Groups at Particular Risk" highlights the particular needs of young carers.

Truancy

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the 10 schools in each local education authority with the highest rates of truancy. [46380]

Jacqui Smith: The Department does not collect figures on truancy. However school level information on unauthorised[1] absence (of which truancy forms a part) can be found in the 2005 Achievement and Attainment Tables website, primary schools can be found at the following address: http://www.dfes.gov.uk/performancetables/primary_05.shtml and secondary schools at: http://www.dfes.gov.uk/performancetables/schools_05.shtml.

[1] Unauthorised absence includes other forms of absence such as lateness, holidays during term time not authorised by the school, absence where reason is not yet established and truancy. Truancy forms only one part of the unauthorised figures.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Design for Manufacture

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 9 January 2006, Official Report, column 253W, on Design for Manufacture, how many and what proportion of homes in each development will be sold at market rates; and how many will be available for (a) affordable rent and (b) shared equity. [47000]

Yvette Cooper: At this stage of the competition the actual numbers of affordable rent and shared equity homes that will be provided under Design for Manufacture are still subject to detailed negotiation between English Partnerships, developers and local authorities. Across the 10 sites it is anticipated that about 30 per cent. of all the homes will be affordable homes.

Provisional estimates of the total number of homes intended to be affordable on each site to date are listed as follows. However, English Partnerships are also in the process of negotiating the shared equity allocations, which may change these numbers:

Oxley Park, Milton Keynes, Phase 2 site, total number homes 145, of which 43 homes, or 30 per cent., will be affordable

Oxford Road, Former TA Centre, Aylesbury Vale, total number of homes 100, of which 30 homes, or 30 per cent., will be affordable

Upton, Northampton, Site D2, total number of homes 165, of which 36, or 22 per cent., will be affordable

Allerton Bywater Millennium Community, Leeds, Yorkshire, total homes 150, of which 30, or 20 per cent., will be affordable

School Road, Hastings, total homes 12—number of affordable homes to be determined

Horns Cross, Stone, Dartford, total homes 37, of which 11, or 30 per cent., will be affordable

Former Rowan High School site, Merton, London, total homes 210 of which up to 63, or 30 per cent., will be affordable (these figures update the estimated figures given to the hon. Member on 20 January 2006, Official Report, column 1689W

Former Renny Lodge Hospital, London Road, Newport Pagnell, Bucks, total homes 60, of which 20, or 33% per cent., will be affordable

Former Park Prewett Hospital, Kingsclere Rd, Basingstoke, total homes 137, of which 47, or 34 per cent., will be affordable

Former Linton Hospital site, Maidstone, total homes 123, of which 43, or 35 per cent., will be affordable.

Fire Services

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to his answer of 28 November 2005, Official Report, column 202W, on fire services, what assessment the Government have made of the expenditure by the London Fire and Emergency Planning Authority on the fire control centre for London; and whether the Government made any additional payment to the Authority to finance the cost. [48159]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has made no specific assessment of the expenditure by the London Fire and Emergency Planning Authority (LFEPA) on the current London regional fire control centre. The ODPM has received 10 year expenditure forecasts from all 46 fire and rescue authorities in England (including London) for the costs of operating their control centres, which informs the business case for the FiReControl project. No additional payments were made by ODPM to finance the costs of the current London control centre.

Housing Market Renewal Pathfinders

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether it is his policy to encourage the housing market renewal pathfinders in England to form themselves into limited companies; and if he will make a statement. [44608]

Yvette Cooper: Housing market renewal pathfinders are non-statutory partnerships and it is for each partnership to decide the governance arrangements which are best for its circumstances. There is therefore a variety of governance arrangements for pathfinders with which the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has been content to enter into funding agreements. At present these include one company limited by guarantee, for Elevate East Lancashire.

Local Government Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many full-time equivalent staff worked within section LGF 3G—Council Tax Revaluation and Balance of Funding Review Analysis Branch in each year since its creation. [48048]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Two full-time equivalent staff worked within section LGF 3G—Council Tax Revaluation and Balance of Funding Review Analysis Branch—from its creation in September 2003 until the conclusion of the Balance of Funding review.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) what work his Department's Local Government Finance Working Group on Local Government Financial Statistics has conducted on council tax revaluation in (a) England and (b) Wales; [48050]

(2) whether his Department has a Local Government Finance Working Group on Local Government Financial Statistics. [48155]

Mr. Woolas: The Working Group on Local Government Financial Statistics (WGLGFS) discussed council tax revaluation twice at recent meetings.

At the meeting held on 26 January 2005, a paper was presented by a representative of the Welsh Assembly Government on "Revaluation of council tax in Wales".

At the meeting held on 20 July 2005 an oral report was presented on "Data and timing issues associated with Council Tax revaluation and the Lyons Inquiry".

Papers and minutes of these meetings are published on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website at: http://www.local.odpm.gov.uk/finance/stats/wglfs/index.htm .

Peter Luff: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what factors explain the reduction in the final financial settlement for 2006–07 to Worcestershire county council from the provisional figures; and what the percentage increase is between (a) 2005–06 and 2006–07 and (b) 2006–07 and 2007–08 for non-education services. [49657]

Mr. Woolas: There are a number of factors which explain the reduction of £19,692, or 0.03 per cent., in formula grant for Worcestershire county council between consultation and settlement. These are described briefly as follows:

(a) A 0.1 per cent. decrease in the 2005–06 Adjusted Local Education Authority Central Functions Formula Spending Share. This was due mainly to a downward revision of the control total for this service block which affected all relevant authorities. A smaller downward revision was also made to the teachers pay grant adjustment for Worcestershire.

(b) A further transfer of £12.269 million for the WEEE directive was added into the 2006–07 formula grant between Consultation and Settlement. In order to ensure a like-for-like comparison between 2005–06 and 2006–07, an adjustment of £11.974 million was made to the County-Level Environmental, Protective and Cultural Services Formula Spending Share in 2005–06. This led to a 0.3 per cent. increase for all authorities.

(c) A 0.1 per cent. decrease in the 2005–06 Adjusted Capital Financing Formula Spending Share due to a change in the methodology of adjusting for the Education SCE(R) programme which transferred to capital grant in 2006–07. The SCE(R)'s for Building Schools for the Future were excluded from this adjustment thereby increasing the 2005–06 Adjusted Capital Financing Formula Spending Share for those authorities that received a Building Schools for the Future SCE(R) in 2005–06, and decreasing the 2005–06 Adjusted Capital Financing Formula Spending Share for those authorities that did not receive a Building Schools for the Future SCE(R) in 2005–06, like Worcestershire.

The combined effect of the adjustments shown in (a) to (c) led to a decrease of £19,307 in the Adjusted Formula Grant for 2005–06.

(d) The number of pupils aged 3 to 18 increased by 7 pupils for Worcestershire between consultation and settlement due to the inclusion of pupils aged 16 and over on Form 8b. However as these had previously not been included for all authorities, this had a negligible effect on Worcestershire's Local Authority Central Education Functions Relative Need Formula.

(e) A further transfer of £12.269 million for the WEEE directive was added into formula grant. This increased all upper-tier authorities', including Worcestershire's, County-Level Environmental, Protective and Cultural Services Relative Needs Formula by approximately 0.3 per cent.

(f) A 0.2 per cent. decrease in Capital Financing Relative Needs Formula. At consultation, the Capital Finance Relative Needs Formula is calculated with provisional SCE(R) data and this is expected to change at settlement. Extra SCE(R)s were included in the calculation of the settlement that were not included at consultation. This results in a lower scaling factor for all authorities i.e. those authorities who see an increase in their SCE(R) allocation take a larger slice of the fixed control total so reducing the Capital Financing Relative Needs Formula for other authorities. Although Worcestershire did receive an increase in SCE(R) allocations at settlement, this increase was not enough to counter the reduction in Relative Needs Formula resulting from the reduced scaling factor.

(g) The changes to both the Adjusted 2005–06 Formula Grant and the 2006–07 Relative Needs Formulae, led in turn to changes in both the share of taxbase for authorities with education and personal social services responsibilities, and in the split between the Relative Needs Amount, the Relative Resource Amount and the Central Allocation blocks.

The combined effect of the changes shown in (d) to (g) led to a decrease in formula grant before floor damping of £10,880. The combined effect of the changes shown in (a) to (g) led to a decrease in formula grant after floor damping of £19,692.

In 2006–07 Worcestershire received an increase in Formula Grant of 3.8 per cent. on a like-for-like basis, after adjusting for changes in funding and function. However, we are also making Amending Reports for both 2004–05 and 2005–06 at the same time as the 2006–07 Settlement. Worcestershire's 2004–05 Amending Report Formula Grant was £1,007,385 less than the 2004–05 Settlement Formula Grant; Worcestershire's 2005–06 Amending Report Formula Grant was £196,583 less than the 2005–06 Settlement Formula Grant. Therefore the net change in Formula Grant for Worcestershire in 2006–07 is 2.0 per cent. Worcestershire is a floor authority: it receives £3,381,779 formula grant from the floor damping mechanism.

In 2007–08 Worcestershire received an increase in Formula Grant of 2.7 per cent. Again Worcestershire is a floor authority: it receives £2,958,439 formula grant from the floor damping mechanism.

Planning Policy Guidance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what substantive changes to density regulations were introduced by the publication of Planning Policy Guidance 3 in 2000; and if he will make a statement on his proposals for reform of such regulations in the forthcoming Planning Policy Statement 3. [48055]

Yvette Cooper: Planning Policy Guidance Note 3: "Housing" (PPG3), published in 2000, introduced the objective into planning for housing policy that development should make the best use of land. It also introduced a policy that local planning authorities should avoid housing developments which make inefficient use of land (those of less than 30 dwellings per hectare net); encourage developments which make more efficient use of land (between 30 and 50 dwellings per hectare net); and seek greater intensity of development at places with good public transport accessibility.

Draft Planning Policy Statement 3 "Housing" (PPS3), published for consultation in December 2005, maintains the Government's objective to make the most efficient use of land. It asks local authorities to develop density policies having regard to Annex C of draft PPS3, which sets out indicative density ranges for different types of location, to help local planning authorities develop density policies for their plan area with local stakeholders and local communities. The presumption is that the minimum density of development should be no less than 30 dwellings per hectare.

Regulatory Reform Orders

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many regulatory reform orders his Department has laid before Parliament in each of the last five calendar years. [46807]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is tabled as follows:

Department	RRO	Initial scrutiny start	Outcome
Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM)	Housing: Private sector renewal	13 December 2001	Made
ODPM	Business Tenancies (England and Wales)	22 July 2002	Made
ODPM	Assured Periodic Tenancies (Rent Increases)	16 October 2002	Made
ODPM	Housing Management Agreements	4 November 2002	Made
ODPM	Schemes under Section 129 of the Housing Act 1988 (England)	10 March 2003	Made
ODPM	Fire Safety	10 May 2004	Made

Social Enterprises

Mr. Drew: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what additional help he is planning to make available to encourage social enterprises working with local authorities. [47801]

Mr. Woolas: The Government are preparing an action plan around social enterprise. Building on the many good examples of social enterprises working in partnership with local authorities to deliver local public services such as social housing, leisure services, community transport, regeneration and recycling, we are exploring how to widen the opportunities for the third sector in the delivery of local public services and the community ownership or management of local assets. We are also providing £300 million through a new Local Enterprise Growth Initiative which will provide many organisations and businesses, including social enterprises, with new opportunities for delivering local economic outcomes.

Standards Board

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 24 November 2005, Official Report, column 2239W, on the Standards Board, if he will place in the Library copies of the full text of each judgment. [48161]

Mr. Woolas: Judgments made in High Court cases are matters for the High Court itself, and not the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister. Questions about the dissemination of such judgments, including whether they should be placed in the Library of the House, would be for the Lord Chancellor to consider.

Statutory Instruments

John Bercow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the statutory instruments introduced by his Office since 6 May 2005. [46205]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has introduced 45 statutory instruments since 6 May 2005. A list containing details of these statutory instruments has been deposited in the Library of the House.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Adult Literacy

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many adults in the province are deemed to be functionally illiterate, broken down by (a) Northern Ireland local Government district and (b) parliamentary constituency. [49389]

Angela E. Smith: Information relating to adult literacy levels in Northern Ireland is not available at local Government district or parliamentary constituency level.

The International Adult Literacy Survey (IALS), which was conducted in 1996, indicated that 2 per cent. of the adult population in Northern Ireland performed at the lowest level of literacy.

In response to the IALS report, the Department for Employment and Learning launched the Essential Skills for Living Strategy in October 2002 and has met its interim target of supporting 25,000 adults to improve their levels of literacy and numeracy by March 2005.

Asbestos-related Illness

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people died of an asbestos-related illness in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [48284]

Angela E. Smith: The table gives the number of deaths registered in Northern Ireland in each year between 2000 and 2004 where the underlying cause of death was recorded as mesothelioma[1] or 'asbestosis'[2].

[1] International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision code C45 for years 2001–2004 and Ninth Revision codes 158.9 or 163.9 for year 2000.

[2] International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision codes J61 and J92.0 for years 2001–04 and Ninth Revision code 501 for year 2000.

Number of registered deaths by year in Northern Ireland resulting from asbestos related illnesses (mesothelioma and 'asbestosis')

Registration year	Mesothelioma	'Asbestosis'	Total
2000	37	6	43
2001	54	9	63
2002	42	12	54
2003	46	9	55
2004	51	14	65

Belfast City Hospital (Radiotherapy)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many patients from (a) Northern Ireland, (b) the Irish Republic and (c) elsewhere have received radiotherapy treatment at Belfast City Hospital in each of the last six months. [49392]

Mr. Woodward: The number of patients from (a) Northern Ireland and (b) the Republic of Ireland receiving radiotherapy treatment at Belvoir Park Hospital from July 2005 to December 2005 is shown in the following table:

	(a) Northern Ireland	(b) Republic of Ireland
July	266	0
August	261	0
September	284	0
October	306	0
November	272	0
December	274	3

Notes

1. No patients outside of Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland received radiotherapy treatment.

2. Belvoir Park Hospital is part of Belfast City Hospital Health and Social Services Trust.

Brain Injury Unit (Castlereagh)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the work of the Reconnect-acquired brain injury rehabilitation unit in Castlereagh; how much funding the unit has received from Government in each of the last three years; and how much funding has been allocated to the unit for the next three years. [49391]

Mr. Woodward: Reconnect provide valuable rehabilitation support for people with acquired brain injuries.

I also understand that Reconnect has recently reshaped their service comprehensively and further developments are under way to expand the scope of the organisations activities via the person-centred, social inclusion reintegration model.

The Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety in conjunction with the Eastern Health and Social Services Board provided funding in 2004–05 and 2005–06 of £300,000. At present, no decisions have been taken on future funding.

Child Poverty in Northern Ireland

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, what measures are in place to tackle child poverty in Northern Ireland. [47536]

Angela E. Smith: New Targeting Social Need (NTSN) is Northern Ireland's high level policy for tackling poverty and social exclusion by directing efforts and resources, within existing departmental programmes, towards people, groups and areas in greatest social need.

In line with a commitment of the previous Northern Ireland Executive, Government have recently reviewed its policy in this area, and in light of this, will soon announce its priorities for tackling poverty, including child poverty in Northern Ireland. In addition, the Children's and Young People's Unit of OFMDFM is also currently developing a 10-year strategy for children and young people. One of the high level outcomes will be linked to the reduction in child poverty.

Government already targets significant resources at tackling child poverty in Northern Ireland, for example working tax credit, and child tax credit, both provide financial assistance for working families on low incomes. In addition working tax credits also provide help for childcare, benefiting around 11,000 families with an average of around £58 per week.

In addition, Government are placing significant emphasis on initiatives that focus on the early years of life, such as the Sure Start and Book Start and the Pre-School Education Expansion Programme. Building on these initiatives, the Northern Ireland priorities and budget 2006–08, launched on 14 December 2005, established two new ring fenced priority funding packages—the children and young people, and the skills and science funds.

These funds, worth around £96 million over the next two years, will play an important role in giving children the best start in life, and tackling child poverty. Government will announce further details on these funds shortly.

Children (Strangford)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many children resident in Strangford constituency travel outside the constituency to attend grammar school. [49388]

Angela E. Smith: In 2004–05, there were 3,111 pupils who were resident in the Strangford constituency and travelled outside the constituency to attend a grammar school.

Children's Commissioner

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost was of the Children's Commissioner for Northern Ireland in the last year for which figures are available. [45945]

Angela E. Smith: The cost of the Commissioner for Children and Young People's office for the financial year 2004–05 was £1.725 million.

Contraception

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many females (a) aged 16 and (b) 15 years or less have received contraceptive injections or implants in the Province in each of the last three years. [49399]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is not available in totality due to contraceptive injections and implants being available from a number of health facilities where either the data are not collected centrally or are not collected in the age bands stipulated in the question.

The only contraceptive information collected centrally by age breakdown is for Family Planning Clinics. Please note contraceptive injections and implants are also available from general practitioners—information is only available on the number of prescriptions rather than the number of females and no age breakdown is available.

Both contraceptive injections and implants are available at specialist clinics such as Family Planning Clinics; this does not involve issuing a prescription. The available information for this service is the number of first attendances in each financial year for the age groups under 16 and 16–19 by main method of contraception (see following table). Please note data are not yet available for 2004–05.

Number of first attendances in each financial year, 2001–02 to 2003–04

Main method of contraception	2001–02	2002–03	2003–04
Contraceptive Injections
Under 16	33	35	17
Aged 16–19	391	515	407
Contraceptive Implants
Under 16	6	3	2
Aged 16–19	60	72	77

Note:
The information is recorded in respect of the first visit during the financial year, therefore the figures equate to the total number of females attending these clinics during the year. The main method of contraception used refers to the method currently in use or to be started immediately after the consultation.

Day Case Procedures

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average cost of a hospital day case procedure was in each health trust in the Province in 2004–05. [49405]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is not yet available. I will write to the hon. Lady with the information as soon as it is available and place a copy in the Library.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many day case procedures were conducted in 2004–05 in each health trust in the Province. [49408]

Mr. Woodward: The number of day case procedures[1] conducted at each health trust in Northern Ireland in 2004–05 are shown in the following table:

Number of day case procedures[1] carried out in surgical specialties by health trust for the year 2004–05

	Number
Mater Infirmorum	7,309
Belfast City	6,258
Royal Group	25,910
Green Park	3,575
UC&HT	15,170
Down Lisburn	6,705
United	15,301
Causeway	6,344
Craigavon Group	9,721
Newry and Mourne	3,542
Altnagelvin	15,006
Sperrin Lakeland	4,510
Total	119,351

[1] For the purposes of this question a day case procedure has been taken to mean a procedure undertaken within a surgical specialty, where the patient did not require an overnight stay.

Hospital Inpatient System

Dentistry

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to increase in-patient dental surgery provision in Northern Ireland for individuals with complex needs. [49400]

Mr. Woodward: The vast majority of patients with complex needs requiring dental treatment are treated as out-patients, either in a primary care setting or in a day procedure unit within a secondary care setting. A small number of these patients require to be treated as in-patients and across Northern Ireland as a whole, in-patient provision is considered adequate. There have been problems experienced in the Eastern Health and Social Services Board (EHSSB) recently in identifying adequate in-patient services for learning disabled patients requiring dental treatment under general anaesthetic. The Board has assured the Department that it will improve the in-patient provision available to patients from their area by identifying additional sessions in their area and, if necessary, securing in-patient services from the other Boards.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on access to NHS dentists in the Newry and Kilkeel area. [49320]

Mr. Woodward: I am satisfied with the level of dental provision in the Newry and Kilkeel area both in terms of availability and accessibility. The health service provides a full range of dental services through general dental practitioners, the community dental service and the hospital dental service. No one in that area should be unable to obtain health service dental treatment.

General dental practitioners are the main providers of dental services in Northern Ireland. There is approximately one general dental practitioner for every 2,400 people in Northern Ireland. This compares to one practitioner for every 2,773 people in England, Scotland and Wales.

The full range of dental services they provide is supplemented by the community dental service, operating under the control of health and social services trusts, which has a specific role in treating patients with learning difficulties and screening school children. The community dental service also acts as a 'safety net' in circumstances where the services of a general dental practitioner cannot be obtained. The hospital dental service provides specialist dental services.

Departmental Expenditure

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many widescreen televisions have been purchased by his Department for use in London Headquarters in each of the last five years; and what the cost was in each year. [39146]

Mr. Hain: The Northern Ireland Office has not purchased any wide screen televisions for its London Headquarters in the last five years.

Doctors (National Contract)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether staff grade and associate specialist doctors in the Province will be covered by a national contract for their grades. [49319]

Mr. Woodward: The Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety is currently not part of the formal negotiation process on a new contract for these doctors. However, officials from the Department attend the negotiating meetings in an observer status. It is too early to say what the outcome of the negotiations will be and how it may impact in Northern Ireland.

Drug Treatment

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to extend services for the treatment of intravenous drug users in the Province. [49401]

Mr. Woodward: There are no current plans to extend services for the treatment of intravenous drug users. However the form, format and level of current services continue to be assessed, and the newly launched consultation document New Strategic Direction for Alcohol and Drugs in Northern Ireland 2006–2011 does contain proposals in respect of the commissioning and provision of such services.

East Londonderry (Employment)

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps are being taken by Invest Northern Ireland to ensure viable long-term employment opportunities are being introduced to the East Londonderry constituency. [48530]

Angela E. Smith: Since it was set up in 2002, Invest NI has made offers of assistance in the constituency totalling £22 million which will lead to planned total investment in client companies of £61 million; this includes assistance towards a major investment by Seagate at its Limavady plant, which along with a further new investment at Seagate's Londonderry facility will provide 300 new jobs for the area. The agency has also assisted the establishment of over 700 new businesses in the constituency which have the potential to create more than 1,200 new jobs.

Invest NI is currently implementing an Action Plan for the North West of Northern Ireland, including the East Londonderry constituency. This Plan includes a series of actions to address constraints that are inhibiting business growth in the area. It includes actions to improve the area's business infrastructure, to improve levels of innovation and enterprise in local businesses, to increase the rate of new businesses and to attract inward investment to the area.

Invest NI is firmly focused on assisting its client companies become more competitive. In pursuing this objective, the agency's priorities are to help them become more entrepreneurial and innovative and more capable of operating in export markets. Ultimately, success in these areas will lead to more viable, long-term employment opportunities.

Invest NI is committed to maximising the economic development prospects for the East Londonderry constituency and opened an office in Coleraine during 2003 to help strengthen its links with local business interests.

Education (Admissions)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many of the responses to the recent consultation on new post-primary admissions criteria for Northern Ireland supported the retention of academic selection. [49357]

Angela E. Smith: In January 2004 the Government decided that academic selection in Northern Ireland would end after 2008. The consultation on new admission arrangements for post-primary schools invited comments on options for new admission arrangements which would operate following implementation of the Government's decision. The detailed analysis of the responses received focused on the strength of arguments put forward in support of, or against, the options described within the consultation document, and did not take the form of a statistical analysis of views received.

Energy Prices

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent representations he has received from (a) industry and (b) voluntary group representatives in Northern Ireland on energy prices. [48283]

Angela E. Smith: Representatives of the Federation of Small Businesses, the Confederation of British Industry (Northern Ireland) and the General Consumer Council for Northern Ireland have expressed ongoing concern about high energy prices in Northern Ireland at meetings with myself and officials in the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment.

Specific representations have been received by my colleague the Minister with responsibility for the Department for Social Development from National Energy Action (Northern Ireland), the Transport and General Workers' Union and the General Consumer Council for Northern Ireland on the adverse impact that the high energy prices have on the level of fuel poverty in Northern Ireland. In addition, the Northern Ireland Fuel Poverty Advisory Group has reported the outcome of its discussions on energy prices to the Minister for Social Development.

Equality Commission for Northern Ireland

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the (a) religious and (b) gender composition is of the Equality Commission for Northern Ireland. [47669]

Angela E. Smith: A total of 137 are employed by the Equality Commission for Northern Ireland. 32 per cent. of the staff are male and 68 per cent. female. A breakdown by religion shows that 36 per cent. of the workforce are Protestant and 58 per cent. are Roman Catholic; 6 per cent. have been classified as 'non determined'.

Essential Skills in the Workplace

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 19 December 2005, Official Report, column 2590W, on Northern Ireland Employer Champions, in which locations it has been possible to influence others to take action; what the response has been; how the profile of Essential Skills was raised in the press; which employer-focused events they attended; and how attendance at employer-focused events helped the Department to implement Essential Skills in the Workplace. [46461]

Angela E. Smith: Employer Champions are unpaid, informal appointments and as such the Department for Employment and Learning does not formally monitor their activities and the response to their work.

The Department is, however, aware that the Employer Champions contributed articles to the Belfast Telegraph, the Institute of Directors Newsletter and Business First to help raise awareness of Essential Skills in the workplace. Employer Champions also attended a briefing Seminar for Investors in People Advisers and Assessors, took part in a focus group meeting with other employers and Further Education Providers. They attended a Ministerial discussion which helped to influence the Employer strand of the Essential Skills Strategy.

Farming Households (Income)

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many farming households in Northern Ireland were living below the Government low-income threshold in each year since 1996–97. [49171]

Angela E. Smith: The sources of income for most farming households are varied and inevitably include many non-farm sources, such as other employment, investments and pensions. Although data are available on average agricultural incomes, there are no reliable data on farm household incomes or on the proportion of farm households that may lie below any given threshold.

However, data published by HM Revenue and Customs for 2003–04 indicate that there were 37,000 self-employed individuals assessed for tax in Northern Ireland who had at least one agricultural or horticultural source of income. Their average total income was £16,151, of which, 38 per cent. came from agricultural and horticultural activities.

Firefighters

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many part-time firefighters applied to become full-time firefighters in each Northern Ireland fire service station in each of the last five years; and how many of those applications were successful. [49106]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is not held centrally, either within the Department or by the Fire Authority for Northern Ireland and will take time to prepare. I will write to the hon. Gentleman when the information becomes available.

First Responders

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many trained first responders there are in each district council area in the Province. [49318]

Mr. Woodward: Information on the number and distribution of trained first responders is not held centrally. However, the Northern Ireland Ambulance Service (NIAS) is aware of the schemes set out in the following table. This should not be regarded as a comprehensive list of first responders.

Scheme	Location	Council	Number of volunteers
Public Access Defibrillation (PAD)[1]	North and West Belfast	Belfast	270 Lay People
	Antrim	Antrim	130 Lay People 24 PSNI
	Ballymena	Ballymena	155 Lay People 35 PSNI
	Magherafelt	Magherafelt	45 Lay People 23 PSNI
St. John Neighbourhood Responder Scheme	Islandmagee	Larne	31
Lifesavers West	Newtownbutler and Rosslea	Fermanagh	24
	Gortin and Plumbridge	Tyrone	10
	Park and Claudy	Londonderry	20

[1] Volunteers in this scheme are cardiac defibrillation trained responders and not fully trained first responders in the recognised meaning of the phrase.

There are approximately 300 volunteers trained in the use of automated external defibrillators by the Cormac McAnallen Trust in the West of the Province. It is understood that this group provide their services at local sporting venues.

Inpatient Procedures (Costs)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average cost of an elective inpatient hospital procedure was in each health trust in the Province in 2004–05. [49406]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is not yet available. I will write to the hon. Lady with the information as soon as it is available and place a copy in the Library.

Lyons Inquiry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 5 December 2005, Official Report, column 1074W, on the Lyons Inquiry, if he will place in the Library a copy of the written submission. [48037]

Angela E. Smith: The Lyons Inquiry is independent of the Government. Sir Michael Lyons will decide what to publish when he makes available his final report.

Mental Health (Crisis Response)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to increase the number of crisis response mental health teams across the Province. [49355]

Mr. Woodward: Crisis response teams will be developed in line with the recommendations from the Review of Mental Health and Learning Disability and the Suicide Strategy.

Mental Health Review

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the final cost of the review of Mental Health and Learning Disability. [49354]

Mr. Woodward: The estimated final cost of the review is around £1.2 million.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will estimate the cost of the Review of Mental Health and Learning Disability to date. [49403]

Mr. Woodward: To date, just over £1 million has been spent on the Review

NHS Procedure (Costs)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average cost of an NHS hospital procedure was in each health trust in the Province in 2004–05 [49407]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is not yet available. I will write to the hon. Lady with the information as soon as it is available and place a copy in the Library.

Operations

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average number of operations performed by a whole-time equivalent consultant surgeon was in each health trust in the Province in 2004–05. [49409]

Mr. Woodward: The average number of operations[1] carried out by a whole-time equivalent surgeon at each health trust in Northern Ireland in 2004–05 are shown in the following table. These figures do not take into account the patient casemix in each trust.

Average number of operations carried out by a whole-time equivalent surgeon in surgical specialties by health trust for the year 2004–05

Over-80s

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people over the age of 80 years there are in Northern Ireland; and how many he estimates there will be in 2016. [49153]

Angela E. Smith: At mid-year 2004, the official estimate of the Northern Ireland resident population aged 80 years and over was 58,000 people. At mid-year 2016, the Northern Ireland resident population aged 80 years and over is projected to be 78,400 people.

Paediatric Cardiology

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to increase paediatric cardiology provision in the Province. [49398]

Mr. Woodward: I am committed to ensuring that safe, sustainable paediatric cardiology services continue to be available to patients in Northern Ireland.

The paediatric cardiology service is currently provided at the Royal Belfast Hospital for Sick Children (RBHSC) by a team of three consultant cardiologists and support staff. There are currently no plans to increase paediatric cardiology provision in Northern Ireland.

Pathways to Work

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what assessment he has made of the Pathways to Work pilot programmes in Northern Ireland; and when the pilots are expected to finish; [48460]

(2) what criteria were used to decide where the Pathways to Work pilot programmes would be sited in Northern Ireland. [48461]

Angela E. Smith: Pathways to Work pilots began in Northern Ireland on 3 October 2005; it is, therefore, too early to undertake an assessment of their operation or effectiveness. In Northern Ireland the pilots are currently planned to run until March 2008. Interim evaluations will be carried out after 18 months of operation and full evaluations at a later stage. Indications from the Pilots in Great Britain, which began in 2003, suggest that Pathways is enjoying considerable success in stemming the on-flow to long term benefit dependency.

The following criteria were considered when selecting areas for inclusion in the Pathways to Work pilots the existence of a joint work-focused service delivered through Jobs and Benefits Office in the pilot areas with sufficient available accommodation;

the need to match GB pilot coverage of annual on-flow to incapacity benefit (IB);

the need for wide coverage for evaluation purposes;

the need to target some "IB hot-spots" (i.e. where IB claims are high compared to ISA claims); the need to avoid "initiative overload" in some areas; and the capacity of partner organisations, mainly SSA and DHSSPS, to deliver new services in the selected areas within the required timescale.

It is planned to extend Pathways in Great Britain and Northern Ireland to cover 30 per cent. of annual fresh claims by October 2006. An announcement will shortly be made about the additional pilot areas in Northern Ireland.

Radiotherapy

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the health trusts in the Province with mobile radiotherapy equipment. [49402]

Mr. Woodward: The Cancer Centre at Belvoir Park Hospital in Belfast provides all radiotherapy services in Northern Ireland. Radiotherapy treatment is provided by linear accelerators which are not mobile. There are no health trusts in Northern Ireland with mobile radiotherapy equipment.

Rates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the Government's plans are for a phasing out of industrial de-rating in Northern Ireland; and what the average estimated increase is in non-domestic rates for an industrial business as a result. [49268]

Angela E. Smith: The phasing out of industrial derating, which was fully consulted on as part of the overall Review of Rating Policy, came into operation on 1 April 2005 when businesses entitled to industrial derating became liable for rates at 15 per cent. of their full rate assessment.

The percentage amount of the full rate liability payable in 2006–07 will be 25 per cent., in 2007–08 35 per cent., in 2008–09 50 per cent., 75 per cent. in 2009–10 and in 2010–11 with full rates becoming payable from 1 April 2011.

As with all new policies the Government will review the phasing out of industrial derating. In this case a reasonable period of time is considered to be two years from the date of implementation.

The average rate bill for properties entitled to industrial derating in 2005–06 is estimated at £2,290. Over the period of phasing out it is projected to be £3,990 in 2006–07, £5,840 in 2007–08, £8,710 in 2008–09, £13,660 in 2009–10, £14,270 in 2010–11 and £19, 890 in 2011–12.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the (a) value significant codes and (b) property attribute types the computer assisted mass appraisal system being used in the Northern Ireland rates revaluation has the capacity to store and evaluate. [49270]

Angela E. Smith: A full list of data fields relating to value significant codes and property attributes which are stored and evaluated by the Computer Assisted Mass Appraisal System being used in Northern Ireland will be placed in the Library.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate the Government have made of the (a) number and (b) proportion of households whose rates bills will (i) increase, (ii) decrease and (iii) remain the same under the planned rates revaluation and shift to discrete capital values. [49345]

Angela E. Smith: This cannot be determined until the Valuation and Lands Agency completes the revaluation process in the spring of 2006. A study published by the University of Ulster in 2003, using sales information, suggested that the proportion whose bills would decrease following the move to discrete capital based rating would be 61 per cent., while 39 per cent. would face an increased bill. The Department's own analysis supports these estimates and indicates that the proportion of properties which will experience a decrease in bill of more than 5 per cent. is 52 per cent., the proportion that will face an increase in bill of more than 5 per cent. is 35 per cent. and the proportion with no change in bill (that is, between + /- 5 per cent.) is 13 per cent.

This assumes overall revenues remain static. Furthermore the estimates do not allow for households which may qualify for housing benefit nor does it take into account the moderating impact of a three year transition scheme and any interim arrangements that may be considered for the treatment of district rates.

School Property (Community Use)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking to encourage the use of school property in Northern Ireland for community activities outside school hours. [49397]

Angela E. Smith: The Children and Young People's Funding Package, which will come on stream in April, includes funding for extended schools. A key element of extended schools is the concept of after-school provision and the wider use of school premises by the local community.

Schools (Suspensions/Expulsions)

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many pupils have been expelled or suspended from schools in Northern Ireland for incidents relating to drugs in each of the last 10 years. [48885]

Angela E. Smith: The Department does not hold information on the reasons for suspension and expulsion for each of the last 10 years.

From the 2002–03 school year, statistics on the reasons for suspensions have been gathered annually from each education and library board and relate to the number of individual suspensions not to the number of pupils suspended. In 2002–03, data on substance abuse was combined with alcohol abuse, however in 2003–04 substance abuse was identified separately as shown in the table.

Suspensions

	Substance or alcohol abuse	Substance abuse
2002–03	426	—
2003–04	—	272

Suspension statistics in relation to 2004–05 have still to be fully analysed and I will write to the hon. Gentleman providing the details when they become available in March.

Reasons for expulsion were first collected in 2003–04. In 2003–04 data on substance abuse was combined with alcohol abuse, however in 2004–05 substance abuse was identified separately as shown in the following table.

Expulsions

	Substance or alcohol abuse	Substance abuse
2003–04	14	—
2004–05	—	10

Each year, data on suspensions and expulsions requested from the boards has become more comprehensive and, from the 2002–03 school year, the Department has been publishing this information on its website, www.deni.gov.uk

Sick Leave

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how many of his Department's employees who are within one year of the official retirement age are on extended sick leave; [32594]

(2) when he will provide an answer to Question 32594, on Departmental employees, tabled by the hon. Member for Monmouth on 24 November 2005. [49835]

Mr. Woodward: There are currently no members of staff in the Northern Ireland Office who are within one year of the official retirement age and on extended sick leave.

Ulster Hospital (Development)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on development plans for the Ulster Hospital at Dundonald. [49395]

Mr. Woodward: Since a major redevelopment programme at the Ulster Hospital was announced in 2001 more than £38 million has been invested, including the construction of new Maternity and Renal Units. My Department has also recently approved an additional £62 million which will allow the Trust to complete Phase A of the redevelopment programme. The main feature of Phase A will be a new multi-story critical care block incorporating theatres, critical care unit, laboratories and sterile services. To facilitate this development and to ease car parking congestion on the site, a new 500-space terraced car park will be constructed. The car park is expected to be complete in early 2007 when work on the multi-storey block will commence.

The Trust has also been allocated £1.5 million to invest in conceptual design for the remainder of the hospital site. This includes the appointment of a specialist Exemplar Design Team which will design the new hospital complex and assist with the preparation of a business case that will provide the basis for approving the balance of the planned investment, estimated at £240 million.

Valuation and Lands Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland from which company the computer-assisted mass appraisal application was purchased by the Valuation and Land Agency; and what the total cost was of the contract and associated liabilities. [47899]

Angela E. Smith: The Computer Assisted Mass Appraisal application was purchased by Valuation and Lands Agency from a consortium of companies lead by ESRI Ireland Ltd. and including Almy Gloudemans Jacob and Denne, Noyalis Technologies and Causeway Data Communication Ltd.

The total cost of the contract signed with the consortium was £659,700 including first year annual liabilities in respect of systems support of £57,120.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what training (a) videos and (b) DVDs the Valuation and Lands Agency has produced for its staff and contractors in relation to (i) domestic and (ii) business rates (A) valuations, (B) revaluations and (C) computer-assisted mass appraisal. [47900]

Angela E. Smith: The VLA has produced no videos or DVDs in any of the above areas for its staff and/or contractors.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to his answer of 5 December 2005, Official Report, columns 1082–3W, on the Valuation and Lands Agency, from which Government agency the staff are seconded. [48039]

Angela E. Smith: The two staff are qualified statisticians seconded from the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency, an Agency of the Department of Finance and Personnel.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Building on New Deal

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have found work as a result of Building on New Deal since its launch; whether his Department retained its target to get 600,000 people into work through the scheme; and if he will make a statement. [45216]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 24 January 2006]: In November 2004 we published a paper setting out our proposals to pilot Building on New Deal (BoND) in 11 Jobcentre Plus Districts. Since that announcement, we have undertaken detailed planning to ensure that the flexibilities set out in the BoND strategy paper can be fully tested.

We expect BoND to make a positive impact on the numbers of people helped into work but the Department does not have a fixed employment target for the pilots.

Child Poverty

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what percentage of children were living in poverty in each year since 1997. [43814]

Margaret Hodge: The seventh annual 'Opportunity for all' report (Cm 6673) sets out the Government's strategy for tackling poverty and social exclusion and reports progress against a range of indicators. Detailed information about the number and proportion of children living in low income households is published in "Households Below Average Income 1994/95–2003/04", available in the Library. The threshold of below 60 per cent. contemporary median income is the most commonly used in reporting trends in low income.

The information requested is in the tables.

Family Resource Survey

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what percentage of children in poverty were estimated to be living in the most disadvantaged areas in each year since 1997; and in which areas the remaining children living in poverty were resident. [43816]

Margaret Hodge: The information is not available.

Detailed information about the proportion of children living in low income households is published in "Households Below Average Income 1994–95 to 2003–04", available in the Library. Information is sourced from the family resources survey (FRS), which does not allow for robust estimates below Government office region level. Information is not currently available which enables separate identification of households on the family resources survey by whether they live in disadvantaged areas. Information on deprivation for disadvantaged areas is available in the Office for Deputy Prime Minister's publication "The English Indices of Deprivation (2004)".

The seventh annual 'Opportunity for all' report (Cm 6673) sets out the Government's strategy for tackling poverty and social exclusion and reports progress against a range of indicators, and includes seven communities indicators, which measure outcomes of those in deprived areas compared to the rest of the population.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether it is his policy to increase benefit entitlements to levels that guarantee all children are above the poverty line. [44252] work for those who can, helping parents participate in the labour market; financial support for families, with more support for those who need it most, when they need it most; delivering excellent public services that improve poor children's life chances and help break cycles of deprivation; and support for parents in their parenting role so that they can confidently guide their children through key life transitions.

Margaret Hodge: The Government's strategy for tackling child poverty is based on:

Our approach to tackling child poverty is therefore based on a wide range of different policies and is not solely about increasing benefit levels.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he makes comparisons of child poverty levels in the UK with levels in other developed countries; and if he will make a statement. [44733]

Margaret Hodge: International comparisons are important because we aspire to be among the very best performers in Europe on child poverty, on a par with countries such as Sweden and Denmark. A focus on income before housing costs, as adopted in our spending review 2004 target, supports this as this measure is used across other European Union countries.

'Measuring child poverty', published in December 2003, compares findings with our European Union counterparts. It showed that the UK had the highest child poverty rate in Europe in 1999 (29 per cent.), but according to latest data for 2003, we are now closer to the EU average of (23 per cent.). European comparisons are made using data from the European Household Panel Study, and are not comparable with figures using the Family Resources Survey. Data from 2003 remains the most up to date as this was the last year that data was produced for the UK using this dataset. UK comparisons across Europe will be measured using the European Union Survey of Income and Living Conditions (EUSILC) from autumn 2006.

'Child Poverty in Rich Nations 2005', a UNICEF report on child poverty, highlights the progress we have started to make in halving child poverty by 2010 and eliminating it by 2020. By 2020, we want to be comparable to the very best countries in the world. Where the UK had a child poverty rate on the UNICEF measure of 15.4 per cent. in 2004, Scandinavian countries (Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden) had rates of less than 5 per cent.

All publications listed are available in the Library.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of children living in poverty in Castle Point in each of the last five years. [42911]

Margaret Hodge: Information on the number of children living in poverty is not available below regional level.

Council Tax (Pensioners)

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether eligible pensioners will receive a £200 payment towards council tax in 2006–07. [47865]

Mr. Timms: The £200 age-related payment to help with council tax bills was for 2005–06 only. We have no current plans to make a payment in 2006–07. The Government keeps all tax and welfare policies under review and any changes are considered as part of the normal budget and spending review processes.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of pensioners in (a) England and (b) the UK who (i) are eligible and (ii) will claim the £200 one-off payment towards council tax in 2005–06. [47892]

Mr. Timms: We estimate around 6.2 million pensioners in England and 7.2 million in Great Britain will be eligible for the £200 age-related payment to help with council tax bills.

We expect almost all of the £200 age-related payments to be made automatically without the need for a claim because the Department can identify those entitled from existing administrative data.

Payments made in Northern Ireland are a matter for my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

Customer Management System Centres

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average number of days taken was (a) to call back and (b) from call back to interview date for each customer management system centre in the last period for which figures are available. [46882]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 31 January 2006]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what the average number of days taken is (a) to call back and (b) from call back to interview date for each Customer Management System centre in the last period for which figures are available. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Our aim is to call customers back within 24 hours of the inbound call. The latest data we have available is for week ending 20 January 2006 where the average across all contact centres is 1 working day. The call back data for each CMS contact centre operating call-backs for the same period is listed in the table below:

Contact Centre	Week ending 20 January 2006 time taken to call customer
Blackburn	2 working days ahead
Bootle	Following working day
Bridgend	Following working day
Coventry	Following working day
Derby	Following working day
Dundee	Following working day

Newcastle	Following working day
Paisley	Following working day
Pembroke Dock	Following working day
Poole	Following working day

We do not routinely collect data on the number of days from first contact to completion of the work-focussed interview centrally. In my earlier reply to you, in response to PQ 34273, the data was collated over a sample period only from 16 September to 25 November 2005.

I hope this is helpful

Disabled People (Independent Living)

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress his Department has made in setting up the Taskforce for Independent Living referred to in "Improving the Life Chances of Disabled People"; when he expects it will issue its first report; and if he will make a statement. [49829]

Mrs. McGuire: The Prime Minister's Strategy Unit report "Improving the Life Chances of Disabled People" recommended that a Taskforce for Independent Living was established to develop imaginative new solutions and ways forward to actively promote independent living in a variety of ways.

An official from the Department of Health has already been appointed to the Office for Disability Issues to set up the taskforce and a scoping exercise is now under way. Proposals will be put to the ministerial group in spring 2006 and the taskforce will be established shortly afterwards. The timing of the first report will be confirmed once the taskforce has been set up.

Household Income

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the minimum income which a UK household needs to live on; and if he will make a statement. [41394]

Margaret Hodge: Our concerns about research on minimum income standards have been well documented. What people need to live on varies greatly depending on their needs and a range of factors. Different research methods tend to make different assumptions and generate a range of estimates.

There are a range of research methods such as budget standards, deprivation studies, expenditure studies and consensual studies that can be used to look at questions of absolute and relative adequacy of benefits. We look at all these research methods when assessing benefit levels although it is often difficult to draw strong conclusions as the results are sometimes contradictory.

In practice, when setting benefit rates other objectives such as the need to maintain incentives to work and the need to control public expenditure are also considered.

Poverty is wider than income alone. We have a comprehensive strategy for tackling poverty and social exclusion. Our annual report 'Opportunity for All' sets out how we are tackling the problems faced by individuals throughout their lives. Monitoring low incomes is one part of a wider strategy for tackling the causes of poverty and social exclusion, not just the symptoms.

Housing Benefit

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the change in average processing time for housing benefit claims was in (a) Pathfinder and (b) non-Pathfinder areas in each of the last two years. [40886]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is in the following table.

Average processing times in days for all housing benefit claims

	2003–04	2004–05	Change
Pathfinder areas	51	54	+ 3
Pathfinder areas excluding Leeds[1]	53	46	-7
Non-Pathfinder areas	50	44	-6

[1] Leeds had problems with its software system in 2005 which had a negative impact on the processing times for 2004–05. The average housing benefit processing for all Pathfinders excluding Leeds is 46 days in 2004–05 compared to 53 days in 2003–04.

Notes:

1. The reported figures are for housing benefit claims and do not include council tax benefit claims. The processing times cover claims from tenants renting from a social landlord as well as those renting from a private landlord, so the large majority of these claims in Pathfinder areas will not be for the local housing allowance.
2. The reported averages are weighted averages (by new claim workload).

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to his answer of 19 January 2006, Official Report, column 1549W, on housing benefit, whether the evidence collected on work incentives as part of the local housing allowance evaluation will include evidence on (a) the level of income tapers and (b) the level of earnings disregards. [47190]

Mr. Plaskitt: The local housing allowance evaluation is collecting evidence on the level of income tapers and this will be included as part of the final evaluation.

The local housing allowance does not alter the level of earnings disregards and this is not part of the evaluation.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the merits of making participation in a rehabilitation scheme compulsory for incapacity benefit claimants who are drug addicts. [32049]

Margaret Hodge: We want to make sure that everyone in society has the opportunity to enter into employment including those who misuse drugs. We have been working towards this goal for some time. The progress2work initiative, which supports those who are recovering from drugs misuse into work, has now been rolled out across Jobcentre Plus. It delivers specialist support to help people find and sustain employment. So far, over 4,000 claimants on incapacity benefits have participated in the initiative.

Our assessment is that making participation in a rehabilitation scheme compulsory for incapacity benefit claimants who misuse drugs would be inappropriate. For drug and alcohol misuse, the most effective medical intervention is likely to be counselling/cognitive behavioural therapy, but neither route is going to be effective unless the patient willingly engages. Compulsory therapy with an unwilling participant is most likely to be ineffective.

Medical treatment can be agreed as part of a claimant's action plan. This is because an individual can volunteer to undertake treatment (whether of their own volition or by persuasion from a personal adviser) as happens in Pathways. However, for a health care professional to carry out a medical intervention, there must be patient consent. That consent must be informed consent, given freely. In law, consent given under duress is not given fully and freely and the fear of losing benefit could amount to duress. This means that we cannot sanction a claimant for not undertaking medical treatment if they decided they did not want to do it at any point in the process.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has had with the Department for Health on the potential effects of the expert patient programme on incapacity benefit reform; and if he will make a statement. [40916]

Margaret Hodge: Ministers from the Department for Work and Pensions have regular discussions with Health Ministers.

Relationships between the expert patient programme and incapacity benefit reform were considered in the development of our recently published Green Paper; "A new deal for welfare: Empowering people to work" and the, also recently published, Department of Health White Paper.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the cost of cutting the rates of short-term incapacity benefit for people under state pension age to the rates of jobseeker's allowance; and if he will make a statement; [41391]

(2) what estimate he has made of the cost savings from phasing out the higher rate of short-term incapacity benefit for people under state pension age for new claimants; and if he will make a statement. [41565]

Margaret Hodge: Proposal for reform have been set out in the Welfare Reform Green Paper and are subject to consultation.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps the Government are taking to provide people on incapacity benefit with (a) training, (b) rehabilitation and (c) counselling in order to get them back into work; and if he will make a statement. [46296]

Margaret Hodge: The Government has been piloting Pathways to Work for new Incapacity Benefit Claimants successfully for over two years now. In the Welfare Reform Green paper 'A new deal for welfare: Empowering people to work', the Government committed to rolling out Pathways to Work nationally by 2008.

Pathways to Work gives a single point of access to the New Deal for Disabled People, Work Based Learning for Adults and other training courses. Pathways to Work also offers access to rehabilitation and counselling services in the form of Condition Management Programmes run by health professionals. These programmes typically include pain management and cognitive behavioural therapy.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on his Department's plans to reduce the number of people claiming incapacity benefit. [47667]

Margaret Hodge: We recently published our Green Paper, "A new deal for welfare: Empowering people to work". It lays out why we are proposing to help those people on incapacity benefit back to work and how we mean to achieve that goal. It is available in the Library.

Income Support

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the annual cost of income support for single parents who are not required to work due to the age of their children; and if he will make a statement. [44776]

Mr. Plaskitt: A person's status as a lone parent entitles them to claim income support until their youngest child reaches 16. Lone parents in receipt of income support are not required to seek work but do have to attend work focused interviews. The expenditure on income support for lone parents reduced from £4,937 million[1] in 1997–98 to £4,602 million[1] in 2004–05.

Since 1997 the number of lone parents getting income support has reduced by 22 per cent. The success of new deal for lone parents has been a major contributing factor to the increase in lone parent employment in every region, the reduction in the number of children in workless households and the reduction in child poverty.

[1] Figures are expressed in real terms (2005–06 prices), rounded to the nearest million and consistent with PBR 2005.

Jobcentres

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many applicants there have been for a crisis loan in the last six months in the JobcentrePlus offices in West Dunbartonshire; and how many calls from people applying for crisis loans have gone unanswered. [46641]

Margaret Hodge: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many applicants there have been for a crisis loan and how many calls from people applying for crisis loans have gone unanswered in the last six months in the Jobcentre Plus offices in West Dunbartonshire. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Crisis Loans in West Dunbartonshire were processed by both Clydebank social security office and Helensburgh Jobcentre Plus office. From 22 November, Crisis Loans continue to be processed by Helensburgh but the processing formerly undertaken in Clydebank moved to Inverness social security office. Inverness is not part of West Dunbartonshire.

Helensburgh handled 730 Crisis Loan applications in the six months from July to December 2005. From July 2005, until the processing of Crisis Loans ceased there on 21 November 2005, Clydebank handled 5071 applications.

Information on unanswered calls to the Crisis Loan service is not available. This is due to the nature of the telephony system in use at Helensburgh, and that formerly used at Clydebank.

Learning Disability

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what system is in place to monitor the numbers of people with a learning disability who are on benefit and using Jobcentre Plus employment programmes; and if he will make a statement. [47251]

Margaret Hodge: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what system is in place to monitor the numbers of people with a learning disability who are on benefit and using Jobcentre Plus employment programmes. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as chief executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus monitors, collates, and reports on the numbers of customers with disabilities who use our services, including those claiming benefits and accessing employment programmes.

In doing this, we do not specifically monitor information on learning disabilities. However, when our advisers are identifying and addressing a customer's needs they record the individual's own definition of their disability on our labour market system. This cannot be extracted as monitoring information, but is used by advisers in subsequent discussions with the customer.

I hope this is helpful.

Lone Parents

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what assessment he has made of the impact on the rate of movement of lone parents into jobs of the outsourcing of new deal for lone parent provision; [44929]

(2) what the rate of movement was of lone parents into jobs (a) in London areas where provision for lone parents is outsourced and (b) other areas in the last 12 months for which figures are available; and what the rate was in those London areas prior to outsourcing. [44930]

Margaret Hodge: Multiple provider employment zones have been providing employment support to lone parents since April 2004. Single provider zones have been providing lone parent support since October 2003. In London employment zone areas, employment support is provided to lone parents through the zones rather than through NDLP. Outside London, lone parents in employment zone areas can choose whether to receive help through employment zones or NDLP.

Information on lone parent employment rates for employment zone areas is not available, either before or after the outsourcing of lone parent provision. This information is not available below Government Office regional level.

More than 423,000 lone parents have already been helped into work through NDLP and more than 4,200 jobs have been secured by lone parents through employment zones. Information on lone parent jobs secured through employment zones in the last 12 months, broken down by zone, is in the table.

Employment zones—lone parents into jobs 1 December 2004 to 30 November 2005

Department for Work and Pensions Procurement Division.

An evaluation of employment zones is currently ongoing and analysis of data will examine the performance of employment zones in relation to selected Jobcentre Plus comparison sites. This analysis will examine performance by client groups including lone parents and we expect to complete this by the autumn and publish results by the end of the year.

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to publish evaluations of the impact on numbers of lone parents entering employment of (a) the work search premium, (b) discovery weeks, (c) in work credit, (d) extended schools child care pilots, (e) the in work emergency fund and (f) employment zones. [48297]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 2 February 2006]: Evaluation of the impact on the numbers of lone parents entering employment through a range of initiatives including the work search premium, the in-work credit and the extended schools child care pilots is ongoing and we expect to publish results in the autumn.

The in-work emergency fund (IWEF) is being evaluated as part of the evaluation of new deal plus for lone parents and we expect to publish this report in December. Early qualitative evidence on the IWEF will be available in the forthcoming report: 'Work Focused Interviews and Lone Parent Initiatives: Further analysis of policies and pilots' which will be published on the 16 February and will be placed in the Library. There are no plans to publish any assessment of discovery weeks.

Evaluation of employment zones is currently ongoing and analysis of data will examine the performance of employment zones in relation to selected Jobcentre Plus comparison sites. This analysis will examine performance by client group including lone parents. We expect to complete this by the autumn and publish results by the end of the year.

Three recent publications include qualitative analysis of lone parents' experience of employment zones and relevant information can be found in the following reports: Evaluation of the Single Provider Employment Zone Extension, DWP Research Report No.312, 2006, Chapter 6; Evaluation of Multiple Provider Employment Zones: Early Implementation Issues, DWP Research Report No.310, 2006, Chapter 7; Evaluation of Single Provider Employment Zone Extensions to Young People, Lone Parents and Early Entrants: Interim Report, DWP Research Report no. 228, 2005, Chapter 7, all of which are available in Library.

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the forecast cost is of introducing work-focused interviews every three months for lone parents whose youngest child is 14 and who have been on benefit for more than a year; [48298]

(2) how many personal advisers will be needed for work focused interviews (a) every three months for lone parents on benefit more than a year whose youngest child is 14 years and (b) every six months to all lone parents on benefit for more than a year. [48301]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 2 February 2006]: Quarterly work focused interviews were introduced in October 2005 for lone parents claiming income support (IS) with a youngest child aged at least 14. For lone parents who remain on IS until their youngest child reaches 16, this will involve a series of up to eight work focused interviews over a two year period, which is six more than under previous arrangements. The interviews aim to help as many lone parents as possible move into work, or closer to the labour market, before their child reaches 16 by providing information, advice and guidance on work opportunities and the range of help on offer.

We estimate a total expenditure of approximately £4.3 million on this initiative during 2005-06, £0.7 million of which represents the cost of an anticipated increased participation in new deal for lone parents resulting from the work focused interviews. It is too early to confirm allocations for 2006-07.

Potentially all Jobcentre Plus lone parent advisers could be involved in delivering these quarterly work focused interviews, but funding for the initiative is based on a planning assumption of the equivalent of an additional 65 full time staff for the period October 2005 to March 2006 or 130 for a full year.

Currently, lone parents who have been on income support for more than a year receive an annual work focused interview which provides information, advice and guidance on work opportunities and the range of help and support on offer. Results from these have shown that such interviews help lone parents think about work and many go on to prepare for it by joining new deal for lone parents.

In our Welfare Reform Green Paper: 'A new deal for welfare: Empowering people to work', we set out our proposals to increase the frequency of interviews for lone parents on income support for more than a year to six monthly. This will build on the above success by providing additional opportunities for lone parents to meet with a lone parent adviser.

We are also proposing changes to our quarterly work focused interview regime which will now be widened to all lone parents on income support with a youngest child aged at least 11.

These proposals are currently out for public consultation and the delivery details are still being developed.

Lyons Inquiry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether his Department has sent a written submission to the Lyons Inquiry on local government finance. [47893]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Department for Work and Pensions has not sent a written submission to the Lyons Inquiry on local government finance.

Pathways to Work

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the full Pathways to Work scheme will commence in April; and whether West Dunbartonshire will be included in this. [46642]

Margaret Hodge: In April 2006 seven more Pathways to Work pilots will start. The locations for these have been chosen to reflect the highest proportion of new claims. The April 2006 pilots will be:

Barnsley, Rotherham and Doncaster; City of Sunderland; County of Durham; Lanarkshire and East Dunbartonshire; Liverpool and the Wirral; Greater Manchester Central; Swansea Bay and West Wales.

In the Welfare Reform Green paper 'A new deal for welfare: Empowering people to work', the Government committed to rolling out Pathways to Work across the whole of the United Kingdom by 2008.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the funding per person on the Pathways to Work programme for each person entitled to access the programme for each year from 2000-01 to 2008-09; and if he will make a statement. [46874]

Margaret Hodge: The latest estimate for the average funding per person on the Pathways to Work programme, for each person entitled to access it, is around £400, excluding the return to work credit.

The Pathways to Work programme pilots began in October 2003 and costs per person vary from claimant to claimant, depending on the different components available within the Pathways package taken up. We do not expect the cost of these components to change markedly in future years, in real terms.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average cost per participant was in Pathway to Work pilots since their introduction. [47009]

Margaret Hodge: The latest estimate for the average cost of the funding per person on the Pathways to Work programme is around £400, excluding the return to work credit.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average cost to his Department has been of a participant in the Pathway to Work pilots since the scheme was introduced. [49366]

Margaret Hodge: The latest estimate for the average cost of the funding per person on the Pathways to Work programme is around £400, excluding the return to work credit.

Pensions

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what options other than bank or building society accounts pensioners will be able to choose for receipt of pensions after 2010. [49618]

Mr. Plaskitt: We expect that there will always be a small number of people who we are unable to pay into an account. These customers are paid by DWP cheque which can be cashed at post office branches. In addition, we will continue to monitor wider developments in the banking industry as more efficient and secure ways of paying customers become available. Within this, there will be opportunities for Post Office Ltd. and others to provide payment services.

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the final version of the Contracting Out Regulations (The Occupational and Personal Pension Schemes (Miscellaneous Amendments) Regulations) will be published. [48098]

Mr. Timms: Most of the amendments in the draft Occupational and Personal Pension Schemes (Miscellaneous Amendments) Regulations are connected to, and dependent on, changes in the Finance Act 2004 and will be taken forward in an HM Revenue and Customs Order. The remaining amendments will be included in a miscellaneous set of DWP regulations. It is planned that both statutory instruments will be made by mid-March and will come into force on 6 April 2006.

Pensions Protection Fund

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) if he will make a statement on the operation of the Pensions Protection Fund to date; [48609]

(2) how many applications to the Pensions Protection Fund have been received to date. [48610]

Mr. Timms: The Pension Protection Fund became operational on the 6 April 2005. It will pay compensation to members of eligible non money purchase pension schemes where an employer becomes insolvent and the scheme is unable to afford to pay benefits at the level of PPF compensation.

The Board will produce an annual report and set of accounts for its activities in respect of each financial year, which the Secretary of State will present to Parliament.

To date, there are 40 schemes in an assessment period for the Fund, accounting for over 21,500 scheme members.

Post Office Card Account

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he last met Ministers from the (a) Treasury and (b) Department of Trade and Industry to discuss (i) financial inclusion and (ii) the future of the Post Office Card Account. [48733]

Mr. Plaskitt: I, my ministerial colleagues and officials have regular discussions with HM Treasury and the Department of Trade and Industry about a range of issues, including the Government's wider financial inclusion agenda and the Post Office Card Account.

Workplace Accidents and Health Report

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 9 January 2006, Official Report, column 2060W, on workplace accidents and health report, when he will place in the Library the data for 2003–04. [49698]

Mrs. McGuire: The Commons Library has confirmed that the information requested by the hon. Member was deposited when I gave my written reply to his original question, 24 January 2006, Official Report, column 2060W.

HEALTH

Ambulance Service

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance she has given to the ambulance service on the passing on of information to the police relating to call-outs involving drugs. [43853]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 19 January 2006]: The Government's 2001 response to the advisory council on the misuse of drugs report into drug related deaths said that:

> "An emergency call to a person who has overdosed should be viewed by the ambulance and police services as a medical emergency in the first instance. Ambulance controls should not as a matter of course inform the police when called to a drugs overdose but might do so if the original call indicated some risk to the safety of the ambulance crew, difficulty in access or other unusual circumstances. Additionally, when the original call indicates that the patient might be dead or the paramedic finds that to be the case on attendance, it is reasonable to expect that the police would be informed immediately.
> Local policy along these lines should be agreed through the Drug Action Team".

In addition, the Joint Royal Colleges Ambulance Liaison Committee (part funded by the Department) national clinical practice guidelines set out that overdoses from, or use of, illegal drugs would not warrant ambulance crews to provide a lesser level of patient confidentiality than any other health condition. Only when drug use is compounded by situations such as sudden or suspicious death would it be appropriate to override the duty of confidentiality.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of emergency ambulance coverage in (a) Forest of Dean constituency and (b) Gloucestershire. [48809]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 6 February 2006]: Each ambulance service should plan to provide appropriate resources to meet local demand. This may include resources in addition to traditional ambulance provision, for example in using rapid response vehicles and motorbikes, as well as utilising staff such as community paramedics or emergency care practitioners. The fleet mix will vary across the country depending on operational and geographical requirements. Patients who need a traditional ambulance response will continue to receive one.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the adequacy of resources available to the Gloucestershire Ambulance Service NHS Trust. [48810]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 6 February 2006]: Revenue allocations are made direct to primary care trusts (PCTs) and not to national health service trusts. The PCTs in Avon, Gloucester and Wiltshire received an average increase of 30.5 per cent. over the last three years, which is sufficient to ensure all parts of the local health services have sufficient resources. Decisions on how the resources are used is for local discretion.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the financial situation of the Gloucestershire Ambulance Service NHS Trust. [48811]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 6 February 2006]: Gloucestershire Ambulance Service National Health Service Trust is forecasting a breakeven position for 2005–06 at the mid-year point (month six).

The forecast out-turn position for 2005–06 month six, for all NHS organisations (strategic health authorities, primary care trusts and NHS trusts), is available in the Library and is available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/PublicationsAndStatistics/FreedomOfInformation/ClassesOfInformation/fs/en

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, how many ambulances in (a) Gloucestershire and (b) the Cotswolds (i) there were in 2000, (ii) there were on the latest date for which figures are available and (iii) are projected in the current three year plan. [47519]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Each ambulance service should plan to provide appropriate resources to meet local demand. This may include resources in addition to traditional ambulance provision, for example in using rapid response vehicles and motorbikes, as well as utilising staff such as community paramedics or emergency care practitioners. Patients who need a traditional ambulance response will continue to receive one. The fleet mix will vary across the country depending on operational and geographical requirements.

Aylesbury Vale PCT

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the policy implications for her Department of the growth in population in Aylesbury Vale. [39672]

Caroline Flint: In relation to the policy on allocating revenue funds to primary care trusts (PCTs), ensuring that a robust population base is used to allocate funds is a primary consideration.

The revenue allocations for 2006–07 and 2007–08, announced in February 2005, are based on Office for National Statistics (ONS) population projections. These data are the best available population data, which properly take account of growing populations.

In addition, in conjunction with the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM), a "Growth Area Adjustment" was included in the 2006–08 revenue allocations for designated ODPM growth areas. This adjustment supports those PCTs that will experience considerable population growth as a direct consequence of additional housing development in the growth areas. The Vale of Aylesbury PCT received a growth area adjustment within its 2006–08 revenue allocation. This adjustment is based on the additional increase in population, over and above ONS figures, that is due to the Government initiative.

Childhood Vaccinations

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list vaccinations routinely given to infants. [48260]

Caroline Flint: This information is available on the Immunisation for Life's website at: www.Immunisation.nhs.uk/article.php?id=97.

Clinical Services

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information she collects on the extent to which provision of clinical services is outsourced or undertaken by private sector or community sector partners; and in which (a) primary care trusts and (b) NHS trusts (i) clinical services and (ii) management is provided other than by directly employed staff. [45452]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 25 January 2006]: The annual financial returns of national health service trusts, primary care trusts and health authorities show the total expenditure on services provided by all non-NHS bodies, including local authorities, other statutory bodies, and the independent sector.

Contract and activity monitoring information is collected on the centrally procured independent sector elective and diagnostic treatment programmes.

Continence Services

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of progress by NHS and social care organisations in developing integrated paediatric continence services; [34827]

(2) what discussions her Department has had with the Department for Education and Skills concerning the implementation of the National Service Framework for Children in respect of paediatric continence services. [34829]

Mr. Byrne: The assessment of availability and access to effective, and quality led health care, and the need to safeguard and promote the welfare of children, form a part of the Healthcare Commission's duties. The national service framework (NSF) for children provides a standard for determining progress with establishing integrated community-based paediatric continence services, by reference to a continence "Essence of Care" best practice tool. The Department has regular contact with the Department for Education and Skills on the means by which children who have health care needs may be supported in schools and early years settings, as part of achieving the goals of the NSF. The Department has also funded the voluntary organisation Promocon to draft guidance for the use of schools, relating to children with continence problems.

Crack Cocaine

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many crack cocaine users are in tier four residential drug services. [47718]

Caroline Flint: In 2004–05, 511 individuals were reported to the national drug treatment monitoring service in tier four treatment with the main problem drug of crack cocaine. Of these, 115 were in inpatient treatment and 396 were in residential rehabilitation. In the same year, 969 people were reported in tier four treatment with crack as their secondary drug of use—368 in inpatient treatment and 601 in residential rehabilitation.

Darent Valley Hospital

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons venereal disease treatment at Darent Valley Hospital has been reduced; and if she will make a statement. [43261]

Caroline Flint: Primary care trusts (PCTs) are responsible for providing sexual health services which meet the needs of their local populations, and decisions about the level of services will be agreed in the context of other health priorities.

I understand from inquiries made with Kent and Medway strategic health authority that some short-term changes have been introduced at the Darent Valley Hospital clinic, but that services are being managed in a way that minimises any impact on the public.

In planning the local delivery of services, PCTs must work towards the targets to improve access to genitourinary medicine (GUM) and reducing sexually transmitted infections set out in the public health White Paper. The Department is allocating £145 million nationally to PCTs to improve access to GUM services. Sexual health has now been identified as one of the top six priorities for the national health service in 2006–07.

Drug Treatment Programmes

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many Government employees are involved in delivering treatment for abuse of illegal drugs. [47724]

Caroline Flint: The Government do not employ staff in drug treatment directly.

The National Treatment Agency reported that the number of people working in the drug treatment sector in England has increased from 6,794 in March 2002 to 10,106 in September 2005. These are employed by the national health service and a range of voluntary sector agencies.

Drug Users

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding has been available in each of the last five years for the treatment of problem drug users. [44117]

Caroline Flint: The Department and the Home Office have combined the funding provided centrally for drug treatment. Known as the 'pooled treatment budget', this money is allocated to the 149 drug action teams (DATs) across the country. This budget has increased from £142 million in 2001–02 to £300 million in 2005–06.

The pooled treatment budget allocation since 2001 is shown in table 1.

Table 1: Pooled treatment budget allocation, 2001–02 to 2005–06

	Amount (£ million)
2001–02	142
2002–03	191
2003–04	236
2004–05	253
2005–06	300

The 149 DATs also receive funding from the local organisations that form part of the DAT. This includes primary care trusts (PCTs), local authorities (LAs), strategic health authorities (SHAs) and probation services. The National Treatment Agency monitors how this money is spent.

In addition to this investment a substantial amount of mainstream funding is made available. Estimates of these amounts for the past five years are shown in table 2.

Table 2: Estimated funding, 2001–02 to 2005–06

	Amount (£ million)
2001–02	145
2002–03	131
2003–04	200
2004–05	[1]204
2005–06	[1]208

[1] Local funding increases based on two per cent. inflation increase.

In addition to the money spent directly on delivering treatment, central and local government funding is also spent on improving access to treatment and supporting drug misusers after they come out of treatment, for example social services aftercare and supporting people grant.

GM Safety Research

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, what Government-funded studies were carried out to ascertain the safety of genetically modified products intended for animal or human consumption since 1999; what the cost to public funds of such studies were; and what steps she plans to take as a result of these studies; [47560]

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the Government-funded feeding studies designed to ascertain the safety of GM products intended for animal or human consumption which have been undertaken since 1999; what the cost to public funds has been of such studies; and what action to safeguard public health she plans to take as a result of such studies. [48681]

Caroline Flint: The Food Standards Agency (FSA) has commissioned work under three research programmes relevant to the safety of genetically modified (GM) foods. The current programme began in 2005 and aims to ensure that the most up to date scientific knowledge is used in the mandatory safety assessment of GM and other types of novel foods. Prior to April 2000, food safety research was the responsibility of the Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food (MAFF). The cost of the research funded by MAFF and the FSA into issues related to GM food safety during 1999 to 2005 was £9.72 million.

Four of these projects involved experiments where ingredients from GM plants were fed to human volunteers or farm animals in order to examine the fate of the deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA) present in the plant material. The cost of these projects from 1999 onwards was £0.62 million.

Details of the individual research projects are presented in the annual reports of the FSA's research and surveys programmes, which are available in the Library, and also from the FSA's website. The results have provided reassurance that the most up to date science is applied to the safety assessment of GM foods, and they lay the foundations for the possible application of new technologies such as proteomics in the future. No action is planned on the basis of this research.

GP Practices (Uxbridge)

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many general practitioner practices there are in the Uxbridge constituency; and what the average number is of patients registered with a practice in Uxbridge. [46596]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not hold this information in the format requested. However, figures for the average number of registered patients per general practitioner practice for Hillingdon primary care trust as at September 2004 is shown in the table.

Average number of registered patients per general practitioner practice for Hillingdon primary care trust, as at 30 September 2004

Late Payments

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 20 January 2006, Official Report, column 1671W, on late payments, if she will make an assessment of the effect of late payments on small and medium sized firms; what guidance she has given to NHS professionals regarding this; and if she will make a statement. [46369]

Mr. Byrne: NHS professionals are required to comply with the Confederation of British Industry's Better Payment Practice Code (BPPC) target of paying 95 per cent. of undisputed invoices within contract terms or 30 days where no terms have been agreed.

In 2004–05, NHS professionals exceeded this target, paying 97 per cent. of its bills on time. We have made no assessment of the effect of late payments on small and medium sized firms.

Meat (Labelling)

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether meat that is reared abroad but processed in the UK may be labelled British. [47600]

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether meat that is reared abroad but processed in the UK may be labelled British. [47608]

Caroline Flint: The Trade Descriptions Act 1968 defines country of origin as the country in which a food last underwent a treatment or process resulting in a substantial change. Therefore, products made from meat that has been processed in the United Kingdom can be labelled as British. However, the Food Standards Agency has issued best practise guidance which recommends that where a product is declared to be British, but the meat originates outside of Britain, this should be made clear on the label.

Myalgic Encephalomyelitis

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent estimate she has made of the number of people diagnosed with myalgic encephalomyelitis in England; and how this estimate is made; [46618]

(2) what definition her Department uses of myalgic encephalomyelitis; [46619]

(3) what funding has been allocated by the Government for research into myalgic encephalomyelitis in the last 10 years. [46620]

Mr. Byrne: The Department does not collect the information requested on the number of people diagnosed with myalgic encephalomyelitis in England. The report of the independent Chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis (CFS/ME) Working Group, published in January 2002, estimated, on the basis of results from a number of small-scale studies, a population prevalence of around 0.2 per cent. to 0.4 per cent. in adults and around 0.07 per cent. in children.

CFS/ME is the accepted umbrella term for patients experiencing a combination of variable and overlapping symptoms. While there is no universal definition of CFS/ME, the widely used ones all require significant fatigue and a set of attendant symptoms for at least six months.

On funding for research into myalgic encephalomyelitis, I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 15 June 2005, Official Report, column 501–02W.

National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many meetings officials from her Department have had with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to discuss Herceptin. [45359]

Jane Kennedy: Departmental officials have had no specific meetings with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to discuss the drug Herceptin.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many meetings her Department has had with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to discuss the appraisal of drugs to treat Alzheimer's disease in the last year. [45360]

Jane Kennedy: Departmental officials have had no specific meetings with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) to discuss drugs for Alzheimer's disease. The progress of this appraisal has been discussed on a number of occasions within the context of NICE'S wider work programme and as part of regular communications between the Department and NICE.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many meetings (a) she and (b) her Ministers have had with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence in the last 12 months to discuss approval of Herceptin. [45361]

Jane Kennedy: The Secretary of State and departmental Ministers have had no specific meetings with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to discuss the drug, Herceptin.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many meetings Ministers in her Department have had with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence in the last 12 months to discuss the prescribing of drugs to treat Alzheimer's disease. [45362]

Jane Kennedy: Ministers have had no specific meetings with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to discuss drugs for Alzheimer's disease in the last 12 months.

NHS Confederation

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding has been provided to the NHS Confederation from (a) her Department's budget and (b) the NHS budget in each financial year since 1997–98. [31011]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested for years 2001–02 is shown in the table. Information before 2001–02 could be supplied only at disproportionate cost. The increased amount paid in 2003–04 and 2004–05 reflect the transfer of activities from the Department of Health.

NHS Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 11 January 2006, Official Report, column 732W, on NHS finance, what expert advice was provided to NHS trusts forecasting a deficit prior to her written statement of 1 December 2005, Official Report, column 37WS, on NHS finance, that turnaround teams were being established. [44931]

Mr. Byrne: Strategic health authorities (SHAs) are responsible for delivering overall financial balance for their local health communities, and for ensuring that each and every body achieves financial balance. It is for SHAs to determine how best to support their local organisations to achieve this objective. This includes the provision of expert advice. Details on how SHAs have managed their local organisations is not held centrally.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 11 January 2006, Official Report, column 732W, on NHS finance, with which companies her Department has contracted to provide turnaround support. [45481]

Mr. Byrne: The turnaround teams were announced by the Secretary of State in a written ministerial statement on 1 December 2005. The teams will comprise of experts with a mix of commercial and national health service turnaround skills.

The first stage of this is a baseline assessment, the aim of which is to ensure there is an agreed understanding of the local financial problem and that actions are in hand to address this.

The contract for the baseline assessment was awarded to consultants KPMG. The consultants Ernst and Young were subcontracted by KPMG to undertake a small number of assessments to avoid potential conflicts of interest.

After the baseline assessments are complete a tailored package of turnaround support will be agreed by the local NHS.

Obesity

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 September 2005, Official Report, columns 2742–43W, on obesity, what progress has been made in setting up the national partnership of obesity; and if she will make a statement. [32307]

Caroline Flint: Over the coming months, the Department will explore with relevant non-governmental organisations how it could support the establishment of a national partnership for obesity. As set out in the Choosing Health White Paper, the objective will be to promote practical action on the prevention and management of obesity and provide a source of information and evidence of effectiveness.

Operations

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the potential impact of primary care trust debt on the carrying out of routine hospital operations. [44835]

Mr. Byrne: All national health service organisations have minimum standards of quality they must deliver, including meeting targets for maximum waiting times. These are dramatically better than the standards of the NHS in the past and there can be no trade-off between these quality standards and removing deficits.

Prescriptions

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what percentage of NHS prescription items issued by general practitioners were repeat prescriptions in 2004–05; [45885]

(2) what estimate she has made of the percentage of NHS patients who received more than 14 prescription items over the last 12 months who had bought a 12 month prescription prepayment certificate. [45886]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not readily available from data available to the Department. Information on prescriptions from the Prescription Pricing Authority does not link individual patients to prescriptions dispensed. Therefore it is not known how many prescription items were repeat prescriptions or how many prescription items patients received.

Public Health

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what public health campaigns her Department (a) is running, (b) has announced and plans to start in 2006 and (c) has promised but not yet announced a start date for. [44923]

Caroline Flint: The Department is currently running tobacco education, drug prevention (FRANK, jointly with Home Office and the Department for Education and Skills) and 5 a Day public health campaigns. The Department has also announced plans for a sexual health campaign to start in 2006, and to launch a long-term obesity social marketing programme in the autumn of 2006. Its focus will be on providing the general public with the necessary information and support to lead healthier lifestyles in relation to diet and physical activity, and has promised but not yet announced a start date for a campaign on alcohol harm reduction.

Sexual Health

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people under 16 years have attended a sexual health clinic in (a) West Lancashire and (b) Lancashire in the last year for which figures are available. [45096]

Mr. Byrne: The number of new episodes of selected diagnoses (chlamydia, syphilis, gonorrhoea, herpes and warts) in the under 16 age group seen in genitourinary medicine clinics in Cumbria and Lancashire strategic health authority for 2004 is 85.

The data contains the number of new diagnoses and not the number of people attending. The latter is not collected centrally.

Smoking Ban

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of public houses in the Hammersmith and Fulham constituency likely to be exempt from a smoking ban under the provisions of the Health Bill; and what assessment she has made of the likely impact of the Health Bill on health inequalities within the Hammersmith and Fulham constituency. [45290]

Jane Kennedy: The Health Bill has not been assessed on the basis of its likely impact on the constituency of Hammersmith and Fulham nor on any other individual constituency. No estimate has been made of the number of public houses in Hammersmith and Fulham in this context.

A partial regulatory impact assessment for the Health Bill has been published and is available in the Library.

TB Vaccinations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reason it is her policy not to make TB vaccinations available to children or adults who might be in contact with cattle diagnosed with bovine TB. [33785]

Caroline Flint: There are approximately 1 per cent. of human tuberculosis (TB) cases attributed to M. bovis each year. Most of these cases are reactivated disease in older adults who were infected perhaps decades ago or are due to more recent infections contracted abroad.

The strict policy of testing cattle for TB infection combined with meat inspection and pasteurisation of milk and milk products has dramatically reduced the risk from bovine TB. While transmission of tuberculosis from cattle to humans is possible, it is extremely rare. There has been no reported case of transmission of bovine TB from cattle to a child in England and Wales since the Health Protection Agency national reporting system MycobNet began in 1993.

In the event of children coming into contact with cattle with tuberculosis the general principles for contact tracing are the same as for contacts of a human case of tuberculosis and should be limited to close contacts likely to have had significant exposure to infection. Bacillus Calmette-Guerin vaccination may be offered to previously unvaccinated tuberculin negative children who have been exposed to cattle with tuberculosis.

Walk-in Centres

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people have been treated at NHS walk-in centres in each year since their inception; and if she will make a statement. [46314]

Mr. Byrne: There are now 72 national health service walk-in centres open and a further 17 in development. Since the first NHS walk-in centre opened in 2000, the number of visits has increased each year, which is shown in the table

NHS walk-in centres, 2000–01 to 2004–05

	Total number of visits
2000–01	574,000
2001–02	1,143,000
2002–03	1,372,000
2003–04	1,582,000
2004–05	2,068,000

NHS walk-in centres focused on serving commuters are beginning to open with newly opened centres near Liverpool Street station in London and Piccadilly station in Manchester. The Government's White Paper, "Our health, our care, our say: a new direction for community services" published on 30 January 2006 highlights that NHS walk-in centres already provide easy access to a range of primary care services and commits to further expansion of these services, according to local need.

Working Time Directive

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment has been made of the financial impacts of extending the working time directive to junior doctors. [47335]

Mr. Byrne: The European working time directive (WTD) is health and safety law. The Government negotiated an extension to the WTD for doctors in training to enable phased implementation from August 2004. Actual costs of the financial impact of extending the working time directive to doctors in training are not held centrally and could not in any case be separated from the overall cost of the national health service growth and modernisation.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Cleaning Staff

Mr. Doran: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will make a statement on the progress being made in settling the dispute between the House's cleaning contractors and their employees. [49196]

Nick Harvey: I am pleased to report that a settlement has now been reached in the dispute between the House's principal cleaning contractors, MITIE, and their employees. I understand that this involves an increase from 1 March in the basic hourly rate of pay to £6.10. Employees will be entitled to 20 days paid holiday, plus the eight statutory holidays, and five days sick pay after a standard qualifying period. There will be a further rise in the basic rate in October 2006. The two parties have agreed to work together within the terms of the current contract to seek to identify further efficiency savings acceptable to the parliamentary authorities, with the aim of funding a further rise in the basic hourly rate to £6.70 an hour in 2007.

Variations in the detailed specification of services have been agreed in order to allow the necessary efficiency gains to be made to fund the increases in wage rates. The basic terms of the contract remain unchanged.

Computer Systems (Hackers)

Harry Cohen: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the nature was of the attack by hackers reported to have taken place before Christmas on the House's computer systems; what investigation has taken place into where the attack came from; what the result was of that investigation; what the extent was of the attack; and what measures have been taken to prevent further such attacks. [49593]

Nick Harvey: As a matter of policy the Commission does not comment on specific matters relating to ICT security.

PRIME MINISTER

Beef

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Prime Minister how much Brazilian beef was procured for use at 10 Downing Street in the last year for which figures are available. [47120]

The Prime Minister: This information is not held centrally. However, there is a requirement for caterers used by my Office to seek to increase opportunities for local producers to compete to supply food to the public sector.

Freedom of Information Act

Bob Spink: To ask the Prime Minister what total sum has been received by his Office for the provision of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in its first year of operation. [48492]

The Prime Minister: Nil.

Wilson Doctrine

Dr. Cable: To ask the Prime Minister (1) whether the Wilson doctrine applies to (a) Members of the Northern Ireland Assembly and (b) (i) UK and (ii) non-UK members of the European Parliament; [47539]

(2) whether the Wilson doctrine applies to Members of (a) the Welsh Assembly and (b) the Scottish Parliament; [47545]

(3) what discussions he has had on the right to privacy under Article 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights in relation to a possible suspension of the Wilson doctrine; [47548]

(4) what discussions have taken place regarding the suspension of the Wilson doctrine on interception of parliamentary communications; [47550]

(5) whether the Wilson doctrine has been updated to apply to internet activity; [47556]

(6) whether the Wilson doctrine applies to (a) communications traffic data and (b) the interception of postal services. [47557]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to my written ministerial statement, 15 December 2005, Official Report, column 173WS and my answers at Prime Minister's Questions on 18 and 25 January.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Administrative Costs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the administration costs of (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies in (i) cash terms and (ii) real terms using 2004–05 prices since 1996–97, broken down by business area; what the forecast is for each of the next two years; and if he will make a statement. [41217]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions was formed in June 2001 from the Department of Social Security and parts of the former Department for Education and Employment including the Employment Service. Therefore it is not possible to provide information prior to 2001–02.

Information on departmental administration costs in resource terms, including future plans, is published on an annual basis in the Department's Departmental Report, which can be found in the Libraries of the House. The 2005 Departmental Report was published in June 2005 (Cm 6539).

Asbestos

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will (a) remove the provisions relating to textured coatings from the Control of Asbestos Regulations 2006 and (b) conduct a separate consultation on this proposal. [47012]

Mrs. McGuire: Following consultation on proposed amendments to the Control of Asbestos at Work Regulations 2002 undertaken by the Health and Safety Commission, it will consider whether any changes are necessary to the proposals relating to asbestos containing textured decorative coatings. The Commission will also decide whether any further consultation is necessary before advising Ministers on any changes to the regulations.

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will ensure that no further changes will be made to (a) the licensing of other asbestos materials and (b) removal techniques without parliamentary scrutiny. [47014]

Mrs. McGuire: All regulations recommended to Ministers from the Health and Safety Commission are subject to negative resolution in Parliament—the same will apply for the proposed amendments to the Control of Asbestos at Work Regulations—there will be no changes before this takes place.

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the extent to which the Health and Safety Executive's proposals for asbestos removal are more applicable to the demolition industry than other parts of the construction industry. [47128]

Mrs. McGuire: The Control of Asbestos at Work Regulations apply to the removal of all asbestos, including, where necessary, prior to demolition. Where removal of an asbestos containing material is necessary, the same precautions and control measures are required as are applicable to all industries.

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will apply the Health and Safety Executive's proposals relating to the removal of textured coatings containing asbestos only to demolition work. [47132]

Mrs. McGuire: The Health and Safety Commission will advise on amendments to the Control of Asbestos at Work Regulations, including any proposals relating to the removal of asbestos containing decorative coatings, following an analysis of the responses received to the consultation.

Building Site Employees

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the implications for health and safety on building sites of the recruitment of employees from Eastern Europe. [44195]

Mrs. McGuire: Migrant workers, including those from Eastern Europe, have a vital role to play in providing skills and in filling labour shortages in the UK construction industry. Many are experienced trades people and some enter the workforce through the highly skilled migrant programme.

The Health and Safety Executive has commissioned research, completed this month, to assess the significance of nationality as a health and safety risk factor among construction workers in London and the South East. The research found no evidence of additional risk.

The duty to manage health and safety risk factors on individual construction sites, where communication barriers or differences in health and safety culture may be issues, rests with the employer. The construction industry and the Health and Safety Executive have already taken action to develop guidance to help employers to discharge their responsibilities effectively.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps are being taken to monitor the safety of building sites where a high proportion of workers from EU accession states are employed. [44196]

Mrs. McGuire: The Health and Safety Executive monitors the health and safety risks to all workers and does not discriminate in its actions on any grounds, including nationality.

Monitoring of the construction industry more generally is carried out partly through research and the most recent report, completed this month, found no link between increased health and safety risk and nationality.

Other monitoring is carried out through a new Health and Safety Executive Omnibus survey that began in 2005. It provides data on construction industry characteristics (including information about the nationality of the workforce) as well as its accident and ill-health profile. This data will assist with future monitoring and assessment of risk.

Site inspections also provide intelligence that allows the Health and Safety Executive to monitor the safety of building sites and to support employers in fulfilling their duties where sites are employing a large proportion of migrant workers. The Health and Safety Executive has recently undertaken a project to increase awareness of good health and safety practices amongst London's Polish community through a presentation and the provision of Polish language written guidance.

In addition, HSE has provided translations of basic construction health and safety guidance in 20 languages.

Buncefield Oil Depot

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether there have been changes to the guidance from the Health and Safety Executive to local authority planning departments since the Buncefield oil depot fire; and if he will make a statement. [47588]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 2 February 2006]: The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) advises local planning authorities about risks from major hazard sites and their potential effects on developments nearby. HSE and the Environment Agency have commenced a thorough investigation into the explosions and fire at Buncefield oil depot on 11 December 2005 and will make a special report in due course. The terms of reference of the investigation include establishing the root causes of the incident and making recommendations for future action to ensure the effective management and regulation of major accident risks at such sites.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Devine: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many external consultants were used by the Child Support Agency in 2005; and at what cost. [44019]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive, Mr Stephen Geraghty. He will write to the hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Mr Stephen Geraghty, dated 8 February 2006:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many external consultants were used by the Child Support Agency in 2005; and at what cost.

Overall during the calendar year 1st January 2005 to 31st December 2005 34 consultants working for 6 separate companies have worked for the Child Support Agency and Child Support Reform project. The total cost of external consultants to the Child Support Agency and Child Support Reform project recorded on the Agency accounting system for the calendar year was £1,677,258. These consultants provided services and expertise which did not already exist within the Agency.

I hope you find this useful.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many outstanding Child Support Agency applications from people in (a) Tamworth and (b) Staffordshire were received more than (i) six months and (ii) 12 months ago; and what percentage of the total number of such applications each figure represents. [48649]

Mr. Plaskitt: This information is not available at the geographical level requested.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Child Support Agency cases in (a) Hertfordshire and (b) St. Albans were in arrears in each year between 1997 and 2005. [49333]

Mr. Plaskitt: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Wellingborough (Mr. Bone) on 14 December 2005, Official Report, column 1985W.

Civil Servants

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of each civil service grade in his Department is located in each (a) region and (b) nation of the UK; what the average salary is for each grade; and if he will make a statement. [35912]

Mrs. McGuire: My hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary at the Cabinet Office will write to the hon. Member with details for the civil service of the percentage of staff in post by region and grade responsibility and the median salary of staff in post by region and grade responsibility as at 1 April 2004. Copies of his letter will be placed in the Library.

Departmental Research Reports

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department has spent on (a) internally and (b) externally commissioned research reports in each year since 1997. [45710]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department's expenditure on externally commissioned research is given in the following table. The Department for Work and Pensions was formed in June 2001, therefore figures have been provided from the financial year 2001–02 onwards. Costs of internal research are not available.

Financial year	Expenditure (£ million)
2001–02	11.8
2002–03	10.2
2003–04	12.5
2004–05	14.2

Departmental Staff

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff are employed by his Department in each (a) region and (b) nation of the UK; and if he will make a statement. [35911]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested is published in Civil Service Statistics. Table D of this publication covers permanent staff numbers (Full-Time Equivalent) in each Department and agency.

Civil Service Statistics are available in the Library and at the following address on the Cabinet Office website: http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management_of_the_civil_service/statistics/civil_service_statistics/index.asp

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the overall expenditure on incapacity benefits was, including severe disablement allowance and income support on the grounds of incapacity (a) on the grounds of mental and behavioural disorders and (b) in total, in each year since 1997. [46325]

Mrs. McGuire: Information for income support expenditure is not available broken down by diagnoses. For the expenditure on incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance, I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave on 30 January 2006, Official Report, column 251W.

Internal Audit Recommendations

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 21 July 2005, Official Report, column 2018W, on internal audit recommendations, when he plans to place these in the Library. [35361]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department's review of its internal audit recommendations, Internal Audit Recommendations 2002–05 (06/011), was placed in the Library of the House on 23 December 2005. The only exceptions to this will be those recommendations where there is specific commercial or policy reason not to make the information available and those recommendations already placed in the Library on 22 March 2005 for the Child Support Agency.

Jobcentre Plus

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will list the Jobcentre Plus offices which (a) closed and (b) have had reductions in opening times of over one day per week since 1 January 2005; and if he will make a statement. [41219]

Margaret Hodge: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking if he will list the Jobcentre Plus offices which (a) closed and (b) have had reductions in opening times of over one day per week since 1st January 2005. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive.

It may help if I first explain that the majority of our Jobcentre Plus offices are open from 9am to 5pm, Monday-Friday. There will however be occasions when we adjust our opening hours to meet the demand for our services. For instance, during January many of our services were open for longer than their usual hours, including weekends, to ensure that we maintained customer service and benefit processing during some of our busiest times.

In some circumstances, we do also take the decision to reduce the number of hours that some of our Jobcentre Plus offices remain open. This may be appropriate where we deliver some services from other premises in the area and need to fit with their opening hours. Elsewhere we will reduce opening hours if demand does not warrant full opening hours. We of course keep office opening hours under regular review to ensure we give a good service to our clients.

Our modernisation programme is opening up new ways for clients to access and use our services. For instance, customers are now able to receive advice on jobs and benefits over the telephone and on the internet. These improvements do enable us to look more flexibly at the service we deliver through our Jobcentre Plus offices.

Creating Jobcentre Plus out of two separate services has enabled us to rationalise our outlets and so far, 130 offices are no longer required. 36 offices have reduced their hours in response to customer demand. The information on sites specifically affected has been placed in the Library.

I must apologise as we were previously unable to provide this information, specifically in response to your earlier Parliamentary Question (PQ 18416).

Customer Satisfaction Surveys

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library copies of the (a) customer satisfaction surveys and (b) results of mystery shopper exercises conducted since 2001 for (i) Jobcentre Plus, (ii) the Pension Service, (iii) the Child Support Agency and (iv) the Disability and Carers Service. [35360]

Mrs. McGuire: Jobcentre Plus was created in April 2002 bringing together the former Employment Service and those parts of the former Benefits Agency delivering services to working age people.

There have been three quantitative national Jobcentre Plus customer satisfaction surveys completed since 2002. The reports for each survey, Jobcentre Plus National Customer Satisfaction Survey 2003, 2004, and 2005, are available in the Library, together with a national qualitative customer satisfaction survey that was undertaken during 2003, Jobcentre Plus Customer Satisfaction 2003: Findings from Qualitative Research.

Copies of the Jobcentre Plus Mystery Shopping National Reports for 2002–03, 2003–04 and 2004–05 have been placed in the Library.

The Pension Service was created in April 2002 to deliver services to those over sixty years of age.

A customer satisfaction survey for the Pension Service was conducted in 2003. The report for this survey is available in the Library. A further survey was undertaken in 2005. The results are due to be published in 2006; copies of the report will be placed in the Library.

Mystery Shopping, which provides an independent assessment of service delivery, was introduced in the Pension Service in April 2004. The results are used for internal improvement actions and are weighted according to pensioners' customer priorities. Copies of the Pension Service mystery shopping results for 2003–04 and the first three quarters of 2005–06 have been placed in the Library.

The Child Support Agency has not conducted any national customer satisfaction surveys or mystery shopper exercises since 2001.

The Disability and Carers Service conducted a customer survey in 2003–04. A copy of the disability and carers service—customer service survey 2003–04—final report has been placed in the Library.

The Disability and Carers Service does not use mystery shopping, but has its own internal measurement checks known as Measurement of Customer Service (MCS). Copies of the annual reports of MCS results for 2004–05, 2003–04 and 2002–03 have been placed in the Library.

TRANSPORT

A21 Upgrade

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what role (a) the South East England Development Agency, (b) the South East England regional assembly, (c) the Highways Agency, (d) the Environment Agency and (e) local councils will have in plans for an upgrade to the A21 in East Sussex. [49459]

Dr. Ladyman: The South East Regional Transport Board, which includes representatives from the South East England Development Agency, the Highways Agency, South East England regional assembly officers and nominated local authority representatives, has recently provided advice to Government on the timing and funding of schemes to upgrade the A21 in East Sussex as part of its overall advice on priorities for major transport schemes. The Environment Agency is one of four statutory environmental bodies which advise Government on the environmental impacts of road improvements. Upgrade schemes which are approved for funding would be promoted and delivered by the Highways Agency.

British Transport Companies (Overseas Competition)

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to help British transport companies to compete with foreign counterparts. [49059]

Dr. Ladyman: Some sectors of the road haulage industry face challenges arising from increasing foreign competition and we are working closely with industry in a joint task group to develop understanding of this and other issues of concern.

We are also keen to help companies become more efficient, not least because benefits such as lower fuel consumption and reduced empty running also help with wider Government objectives to reduce pollution and congestion. This is why, for several years, we have been running a best practice programme that helps operators to apply good operating practices.

Citizens Juries

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on how many occasions his Department consulted citizens' juries on departmental policies in the last five years; in how many of those consultations the recommendations of the citizens' jury differed from existing departmental policy; and on how many occasions departmental policy was changed to reflect the recommendations of the citizens' jury. [46227]

Ms Buck: The Department for Transport has not used citizens' juries in so far as records show. The department is committed to developing policies which meet the needs of all. As such, the department consults widely with transport users, often targeting directly users with specific transport needs or hard to reach groups.

Congestion (EU Support)

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which regions he expects will receive support from the EU's Sixth Environmental Action Programme to deal with congestion; and what the nature of the support will be in each case. [49023]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department will contribute to the objectives and priorities in the EU's Sixth Environmental Action Programme through its Public Service Agreement target for urban roads. This states that, by 2010–11, the 10 largest urban areas will meet the congestion targets set in their Local Transport Plans. Local authorities in all regions are working to finalise their strategies to tackle congestion, and will include them in their Local Transport Plans due to be published in March 2006. Targets consistent with these strategies will be set by July.

Departmental Entertaining

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent on entertaining in each month since June. [25634]

Ms Buck: The following table provides a breakdown of the total for each month where this is available.

	DfT (Centre)	DSA (Driving Standards Agency)
June	29.22	3,174.86
July	841.29	0
August	106.59	263.88
September	566.76	72.86
October	165.70	0
November	265.70	1,000.00

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on bottled water in 2004–05. [40324]

Ms Buck: The cost of providing water coolers and bottled water at meetings cannot be separated without disproportionate cost. A total of sanitisation costs of some of £146,595 was spent on these two costs around 1,000 DfT central and agency sites. This includes the maintenance, servicing and the water coolers at DfT regional sites. The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency do not record the purchase of bottled water separately from other refreshments and cannot confirm the amount spent without disproportionate cost.

Departmental Staff

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many disciplinary actions against civil servants employed in his Department (a) were commenced and (b) resulted in a sanction being applied in each of the last five years. [43486]

Ms Buck: Since the establishment of the Department for Transport in May 2002, the number of employees against whom disciplinary action commenced; and those which resulted in a sanction being applied is as follows:

Disciplinary action commenced
2002:	15
2003:	58
2004:	83
2005:	86
Disciplinary action resulting in a sanction
2002:	14
2003:	57
2004:	80
2005:	67

The Department has procedures in place to deal with misconduct, unsatisfactory performance or attendance. The normal penalty for gross misconduct is dismissal. The procedures are published in our internal Staff Handbook that is readily available to staff.

Digital Tachographs

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the timescale for the introduction of EU regulations relating to digital tachographs; and within what time period (a) private companies and (b) individuals will be required to comply with the new regulations. [49839]

Dr. Ladyman: New EU regulations on drivers' hours, which include a revised mandatory fitting date for digital tachographs, were recently agreed by the Council and the European Parliament.

The new regulations will require the operators and drivers of certain heavy goods and public service vehicles to use digital tachographs in any such vehicles put into service for the first time from a date 20 days after formal publication of the new regulations.

The Council and Parliament have indicated that they will make every effort to ensure that the new regulations are published in the Official Journal of the European Union in April this year.

Consequently, digital tachographs should become mandatory for all new in-scope vehicles from early May 2006.

Changes to the drivers' hours rules themselves will enter into force one year after publication.

Freedom of Information

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what total sum has been received by his Department for the provision of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in its first year of operation. [48488]

Ms Buck: Department for Transport along with other central Departments is currently participating in a monitoring exercise to record the costs of responding to all FOI requests received during the week commencing 30 January 2006.

This survey will be completed on 20 March and is intended to reveal actual costs of handling FOI cases, and particularly the activities where most cost is incurred.

Heathrow Airport

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on what date the public consultation on mixed-mode at Heathrow airport will (a) start and (b) finish. [48943]

Ms Buck: We expect to consult later this year. Consultation will be in line with the Cabinet Office code of practice on public consultations which requires a minimum period of 12 weeks for responses.

Jewish Festivals

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his Department did to (a) celebrate Hanukkah and (b) mark Yom Kippur in 2005. [46766]

Ms Buck: The Department celebrated Hanukkah and marked Yom Kippur in 2005 through advertisement of the occasions in a multi-cultural calendar accessible to all staff.

There were articles about the occasions in the in-house magazines of two the Department's Executive Agencies: the Driving Standards Agency and the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency.

The Department aims to increase staff awareness of faith and cultural issues through a range of activities that include the publication of information and guidelines.

Staff may take at any time one and a half days of their annual entitlement to two and a half days privilege leave. The one and a half days were customarily known as Christmas and Maundy Thursday. The flexibility is designed to enable staff to take the time suitable to their faith or convictions.

Staff must obtain their line manager's prior approval for taking their privilege leave on any particular dates but any requests will only be refused for exceptional operational reasons and will at all times be considered in the context of the right of staff to Equal Opportunity and their rights under relevant legislation.

London Mainline Terminals

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what capital sums have been spent on each mainline terminal railway station in London in each year since 1997, broken down by source of capital; and what capital sums are planned to be spent on each such station in each year between 2005-06 and 2007-08, broken down by source of capital. [47351]

Derek Twigg: This is an operational matter for Network Rail (NR). I have asked NR to write directly to the hon. Member.

M1 (Accidents)

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents involving the closure of the M1 motorway in (a) either and (b) both directions between junctions 1 and 32 have occurred in (i) 2001, (ii) 2004 and (iii) 2005. [48406]

Dr. Ladyman [holding answer 6 February 2006]: The figures supplied in the following table relate solely to full carriageway closures in each direction, or full closure of the M1 motorway in both directions. There have been a number of incidents on the M1 motorway, for the periods in question, that have not involved full closure of carriageways in either direction or full closure of the M1 motorway in both directions. These figures have not been provided.

Figures for 2001 have been given where the information is readily available. Further figures for 2001 can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Number of accidents involving the closure of the M1 motorway between junctions 1 and 32

	North	South	Full closure
2001	6	1	—
2004	29	22	4
2005	28	22	5

M180

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reasons over six miles of the M180 motorway has the outside lane closed in both directions; why the maintenance work being carried out was not restricted to a shorter stretch to avoid congestion; and if he will make a statement. [49027]

Dr. Ladyman: A nine mile stretch of the M180 between junctions 3 and 4 has lane closures, a contraflow and a 50 mph speed limit in place in both directions to carry out essential safety improvements.

These improvements include low noise resurfacing, installation of a new concrete central reserve barrier and to carry out drainage and maintenance work. The Highways Agency is undertaking the works as one scheme to reduce its duration on site, thereby minimising disruption and risk to the road user, as well as making it safer for roadworkers. It also provides better value for money, as it is less expensive than a number of smaller schemes.

Traffic flows have been monitored since the scheme commenced on 16 January and delays of no more than 10 minutes have been experienced at the busiest times.

National Trust (Road Scheme Objections)

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list road schemes objected to by the National Trust in cases where the Trust has invoked special parliamentary procedures; and what the outcome was in each case. [47006]

Dr. Ladyman: Our records over the last 20 years show that the Secretary of State has not invoked the special parliamentary procedure to get a compulsory purchase order made that related to land held inalienably by the National Trust on any road scheme.

Peterborough City Council (Road Budget)

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much funding from his Department Peterborough city council unitary authority has received for its road budget in each year since 1997. [49285]

Ms Buck: The funding support provided directly to Peterborough city council unitary authority through the local transport capital settlement for each year is shown in the following table. It has been for Peterborough city council unitary authority to decide how that allocation was spent in line with their local transport plans and their priorities.

The Department does not have the data for the years 1997–98 as Peterborough was not a highway authority and allocations for the area were made to the county councils then responsible.

£ million

Peterborough city council unitary authority	2005–06	2004–05	2003–04	2002–03	2001–02	2000–01	1999–2000	1998–99
Integrated Transport Block	1.900	2.187	2.196	2.000	2.000	0.900	0.640	0.330
Capital Highways Maintenance	3.749	4.227	1.834	1.843	1.765	1.082	0.961	0.619

Total	5.649	6.414	4.030	3.880	3.765	1.982	1.601	0.949

Emergency funding of £2.2 million was also made available to Peterborough city council in 2003–04 for the repair of roads damaged by drought.

In addition central funding support for services, including routine highways services, is provided by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister through revenue support grant. This is not allocated by the Government between individual council services.

Press Coverage

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on how many occasions since 1 April 2003 he has complained to the Press Complaints Commission about the coverage in the press of (a) Ministers or officials and (b) his Department; and how many of these complaints were upheld. [47087]

Ms Buck: We have not made any complaints about the press coverage of Ministers, officials or the Department to the Press Complaints Commission since 1 April 2003.

Railways

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many train operating companies applied for revenue support following the bombings in London in July 2005; what the value of those claims was; and how much money has been awarded to each as a result. [48256]

Derek Twigg: Two companies have applied for revenue support following the London bombings. Negotiations are continuing with the companies concerned but no amounts have yet been agreed or paid.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many times during the last two years passengers on the Swindon to Cheltenham line have (a) been diverted to coaches and (b) have been required to wait for the next train following a missed connection the fault for which lies with the train operator. [49494]

Derek Twigg: These are matters for the train operators concerned. Figures are not kept by the Department.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the procedures are for Network Rail to give notice of maintenance works, with particular reference to the Great Western line; and how much notice is required to be given to the train operating companies. [49495]

Derek Twigg: Under condition 9 of its network licence, Network Rail is required to plan their engineering work, provide information about this work to train operators, and to manage the resulting revisions to the national timetable at least 12 weeks in advance of operation (T-12). The procedures apply to planned engineering works across the whole of Network Rail's network, including the Great Western line. Where it is necessary to carry out emergency engineering works, the notice given may be much shorter.

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much capital expenditure in the railways has been made by (a) the public sector and (b) the private sector since 2000; and on what projects the capital expenditure has been spent. [40877]

Derek Twigg: Investment in the rail industry (National Rail) since 2000–01 is set out in table 6.4 of National Rail Trends copies of which, are in the Libraries of the House. Total investment since 2000–01 is set out in the following table:

£ million

	Total investment	Of which rolling stock
2000–01	2,404	554
2001–02	3,148	922
2002–03	3,756	566
2003–04	4,722	774
2004–05	[1]3,538	[1]1,923

[1] Provisional

Of that investment the Government made direct grants to Railtrack plc/Network Rail and London and Continental Railways relating to investment on infrastructure undertaken by those companies as follows:

£ million

	Railtrack plc/Network Rail	London and Continental Railways
2001–02	499	185
2002–03	792	374
2003–04	1,448	222

The remaining investment was undertaken by the private sector. Investment in rolling stock is noted in the table above. A detailed breakdown of the remaining private investment is not available as it is collected by the Office for National Statistics on a confidential basis. That said the unprecedented levels of public and private investment is delivering significant improvements in the railway including:

the Channel Tunnel Rail Link, upgrading of the West Coast Main Line,

the TPWS programme to tackle accidents at signals, modernising the power supply south of the Thames, and renewing around 900 km of rail this year.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many railway stations (a) have obtained secure station status, (b) had secure status withdrawn and (c) not sought secure station reaccreditation in the latest period for which figures are available. [49194]

Ms Buck: Since the launch of the secure stations scheme in 1998 a total of 323 rail stations, including 49 London Underground stations, have been accredited under the scheme. Of these a total of 83 rail stations, including 48 London Underground stations, have not, so far, sought re-accreditation. No stations have had their secure status withdrawn since the scheme's launch.

A list of accredited stations has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures his Department has taken to reduce the risk of road vehicles obstructing railway tracks. [47447]

Derek Twigg: The Department participates in the National Level Crossing Safety Group, which supports research by the Rail Safety and Standards Board and Network Rail into ways of reducing incidents at level crossings.

The Health and Safety Executive's HM Rail Inspectorate ensure on a case-by-case basis that individual level crossings are compliant with health and safety legislation, that essential safety standards are being met and risks are controlled. Specific control measures to reduce the risk of road vehicles obstructing railway tracks include; the provision of road markings, traffic lights and signage, level crossing notices and specific guidance within the highway code.

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is the size of the Network Rail discretionary fund for (a) 2006–07 and (b) 2007–08. [45536]

Derek Twigg: The Network Rail discretionary fund (NRDF) is an arrangement whereby Network Rail will spend a total of £200 million up to the end of the current regulatory control period in March 2009 on smaller enhancements and improvements to the rail network. The amount spent is nominally £50 million in each financial year.

Regulatory Reform Orders

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many regulatory reform orders his Department has laid before Parliament in each of the last five calendar years. [46801]

Ms Buck: Since it was established in May 2002 the Department has laid one Regulatory Reform Order before Parliament. The Regulatory Reform (Public Services Vehicles) Order 2005 was laid for first stage scrutiny in November 2005.

Road Building Projects (South-east)

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received regarding the South East England Regional Assembly Regional Transport Board's advice on priorities for road building projects in the South East. [49464]

Dr. Ladyman: On 31 January the Government received the South East region's advice on funding priorities. Prior to receiving the advice, we received various representations relevant to the region's prioritisation exercise.

Road Pricing

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research he has conducted into the merits of the introduction of a road pricing system through (a) national, (b) regional and (c) local schemes; and if he will make a statement. [49564]

Dr. Ladyman: Research undertaken for the Feasibility Study of Road Pricing in the UK, published by the Department for Transport in July 2004, showed that a national road pricing scheme could potentially reduce congestion by some 40 per cent. with benefits of up to £12 billion a year in time savings and increased reliability. But moving to a national system of road pricing would be a huge and complex task. That is why the study recommended that local or regional schemes should be used to pilot approaches to road pricing. A copy of the study report has been placed in the Library.

The Government are working with local authorities to develop a major pilot in the next four to five years. Because the development of these schemes will be a complex undertaking the Government has made £18 million of pump priming funding available between 2005–06 and 2007–08 to help support the work of local authorities in developing local demand management schemes. The first allocation to seven areas was announced on 28 November 2005, Official Report, columns 3–4WS.

Road Projects

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list road improvement projects which are behind schedule; and what the reasons are in each case. [49024]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency has 17 major projects either currently on site, or which have received approval to proceed to construction. 15 of these are on schedule, in line with the timetable planned at approval to proceed to construction stage, and two are behind schedule.

The schemes behind schedule are the A14 Rookery Crossroads Grade Separated Junction and the M1 J6A-10 Widening. In the case of A14 Rookery Crossroads, the original completion date of mid December has slipped due to the complexity of the traffic management arrangements during the scheme construction. With the M1 J6A-10 Widening a review of the costs and agreement of a target cost with the appointed contractor has taken longer than anticipated, delaying the full start of works. Advance works have, however, commenced on schedule.

For local highway schemes, delivery timescales and the reasons for any slippage are a matter for the promoting local authority.

St. Pancras Thameslink

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the meeting of the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State with the hon. Members for North Bedfordshire, North-East and St Albans (Anne Main) on 15 September 2005, whether he is in a position to state when the St Pancras Thameslink box will be fully fitted out. [47630]

Derek Twigg: Department for Transport is continuing to work with stakeholders to determine if there is a robust route to deliver the fit out in advance of the Thameslink 2000 Project at a price that offers acceptable value for money. I would expect to make a more detailed statement in due course

Transport Demand Research

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research he has (a) conducted and (b) evaluated on the relationship between economic growth and (i) rail passenger demand, (ii) demand for air travel and (iii) road investment programmes; and if he will make a statement. [49567]

Ms Buck: The Department has not conducted or evaluated specific research into the relationship between economic growth and rail passenger demand as estimates are made by the rail industry. These estimates are, however, used in the Department's National Transport Model, information on which can be found on the DfT website at: http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_econappr/documents/page/dft_econappr_610556.pdf

In May 2000, the Department published "Air Traffic Forecasts for the United Kingdom 2000". This internal piece of work provided forecasts over the period to 2020 and used econometric methods to assess the contribution of factors, including economic growth, to determine air traffic growth. This can be found at: http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_aviation/documents/page/dft_aviation_503314_01.hcsp#P38_1015

In 1996 the Standing Advisory Committee on Trunk Road Appraisal (SACTRA) was asked by the then Secretary of State for Transport to consider the effects on the performance of the economy which might be caused by transport projects and policies, including new infrastructure, changing prices, demand management and measures to reduce traffic. This report can be found at: http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_econappr/documents/page/dft_econappr_610277.hcsp

Transport Expenditure

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent on (a) road works and (b) (i) road resurfacing and (ii) resurfacing noisy concrete road surfaces in each region since May 2002; and what projections his Department has for spending on each category of expenditure in each region over the next three years. [43026]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency is responsible for highway maintenance on the strategic road network in England.

The Highways Agency's expenditure on road maintenance since 2002–03 is set out in the following table. They do not routinely record this information by region. The expenditure on renewal of roads is also shown in the table. Road resurfacing work is contained within the budget for renewal of roads which also funds other expenditure such as street lighting, drainage and safety fencing.

Highway maintenance on local roads in England is the responsibility of each local highways authority. My Department provides funding to local authorities in England and outside London for capital highway maintenance through the local transport settlement. The funding made since 2002 is shown as follows.

£ million

Capital maintenance	2002–03	2003–04	2004–05	2005–06	2006–07
North East	36.120	35.878	47.095	44.170	44.165
Yorkshire and Humberside	68.038	67.848	85.425	76.588	84.625
West Midlands	65.552	66.545	75.357	82.105	82.908
East Midlands	61.427	62.463	68.918	65.178	68.380
Eastern	73.293	69.601	83.947	91.119	87.856
South West	82.343	83.194	96.103	107 685	116.804
South East	79.986	91.599	100.533	105.008	102.315
North West	92.085	88.872	93.059	88.144	84.819
Total	558.844	566.000	650.437	659.997	671.872

Indicative allocations for capital maintenance by local authority and region for the period 2006–07 to 2010–11 were published in December 2004. These can be found on the Department's website www.dft.gov.uk in the document entitled "Provisional Planning Guidelines for Local Transport Capital: 2006–07 to 2010–11".

Funding for local authority capital highway maintenance is not ring fenced. It is for the local authorities to decide how such funding is spent in line with their priorities, across the whole range of services that they provide.

In addition, revenue provision is made to local authorities in England but outside London, by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister for highway maintenance through the local authorities' Formula for Standard Spending (FSS). ODPM publish information on local authority outturn expenditure annually, including data on highway maintenance. Information for 2002–03 and 2003–04 can be found on the ODPM website www.local.odpm.gov.uk. Information on later years has not yet been published.

Highway maintenance funding in London is the responsibility of the London Mayor.

Transport Innovation Fund

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the Transport Innovation Fund. [48229]

Ms Buck: I refer the hon. Member to the written statement given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2006, Official Report, columns 66–67WS, and the paper "Transport Innovation Fund: Guidance—January 2006" published on that date.

Transport Staff (Alcohol/Drug Tests)

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) aircraft crew, (b) air traffic controllers and (c) aircraft maintenance engineers have been tested for (i) drugs and (ii) alcohol since 2001; and what proportion have been found to be above the legal limit. [48268]

Ms Buck: Under part 5 of the Railway and Transport Safety Act 2003, it is an offence for defined personnel to perform an aviation or ancillary function when their ability to do so is impaired through drink or drugs. The Act came into force in March 2004. It also set a prescribed blood/alcohol limit for safety critical personnel in aviation. Responsibility for testing personnel under the Act for the effects of drugs and alcohol rests with the local police force. These statistics are not collated nationally.

However, statistics provided to us by the Home Office show that in 2004 two defendants were proceeded against and found guilty of this offence.

Violent Offences (Public Transport)

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many victims of violent offences on public transport have been recorded by the British Transport police in each police force area in England and Wales since 1998–99. [48266]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 8 December 2005, Official Report, columns 1466–68W, to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman).

The table of figures given in that answer represents violent offences against passengers on trains. The policing of offences committed on other modes of public transport is within the remit of local police forces.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Active Service Prosecutions

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Solicitor-General what criteria are applied when deciding to remove from military to civil jurisdiction decisions to prosecute service personnel for actions carried out on active service. [48375]

The Solicitor-General: Where an offence alleged to have been committed by a serviceman overseas is triable in either the court martial or the civilian courts here, it is ultimately for the Attorney General to decide, as part of his constitutional and superintendence roles, whether the case should be dealt with in the military or the civilian system. Only exceptionally will such a case be dealt with in the civilian system. This may be because it is no longer possible to use the court martial jurisdiction or because the particular circumstances of a case indicate that the civilian courts are best placed to deal with it.

Prosecutions (Hertfordshire)

Anne Main: To ask the Solicitor-General how many and what percentage of prosecutions in Hertfordshire were not completed in 2004–05. [49331]

The Solicitor-General: In 2004–05, CPS Hertfordshire received 25,397 cases in the magistrates' courts, inclusive of pre-charge decisions, while finalisations for the year amounted to 24,126, representing 95 percent. of receipts.

In the Crown court, receipts totalled 1,760, inclusive of appeals and committals for sentence, while finalisations amounted to 1,535, or 87.2 percent.

The remaining cases (1,271 in the magistrates courts and 225in the Crown court) were carried forward for completion in the following year.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Adult Guidance Provision

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of the change in the burden of administration on adult guidance providers since the Learning and Skills Council was established. [28765]

Phil Hope: Information, advice and guidance services on learning and work for adults are delivered by the Learning and Skills Council primarily through an integrated information and advice service comprising the national learndirect telephone and online advice service, and 47 local nextstep information and advice providers. In addition, adults participating in any LSC funded learning can access information and advice services through their learning provider. The administration of the service is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council, and is managed and overseen by Mark Haysom the LSC's chief executive. Mark Haysom has written to the hon. Member in response to this question and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 24 January 2006:

I write in response to your recent Parliamentary Question regarding assessment of the change in the burden of administration on adult guidance providers since the Learning and Skills Council was established?

Since the introduction of the "nextstep" service in 2004, the LSC has reduced the administrative burden on providers of adult Information, Advice and Guidance (IAG) services by:

Publishing an annual delivery specification setting out the programme requirements and complimenting this with a single planning template

Agreeing with the IAG delivery sector, a national customer record that captures core data for the national nextstep service and which is capable of being customised for local European Social Fund funded guidance provision

Introducing a standardised monthly management upload process for customer data associated with the core nextstep contract

Before these changes were implemented, consultation was undertaken with a representative of the then Bureaucracy Review Group to ensure their appropriateness. Feedback from our regional IAG working group indicates that the changes have been well received and have had a significant impact on the quality and availability of management information on services provided.

Child Care Places

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many child care places were available in each of the last 10 years in (a) England, (b) London and (c) each London borough. [48702]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested has been placed in the House Libraries.

Children's Centres

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate she has made of the capital cost of establishing a full offer children's centre. [48377]

Beverley Hughes: There is no standard capital cost for developing a children's centre. Children's centres will grow out of a range of existing provision including Sure Start local programmes, Neighbourhood nurseries, primary schools, health and community provision and capital cost will differ according to particular circumstance.

Departmental Salaries

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the 10 highest-paid employees in her Department, broken down by (a) job title and (b) salary including bonuses; and whether the individual concerned is (i) a civil servant and (ii) a contractor in each case. [27571]

Maria Eagle: The following table lists the 10 highest-paid employees in my Department, as at 1 January 2006. The salary figures do not include bonuses which will be determined at the end of March 2006. The occupants of these posts were civil servants. For clarity, any contractors in my Department are not employees.

Job title	Salary (£)
Permanent Secretary	159,500
Director General	143,500
Director General	136,106
Divisional Manager	127,627
Director	123,436
Director General	121,681
Director	120,000
Director	120,000
Director General	117,859
Director	114,117

Drop-out Rates

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average drop out rate at universities was in the last period for which figures are available; what the total cost of courses taken but unfinished was in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [39929]

Bill Rammell: Information on projected non-completion rates for higher education students is published annually by the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) in "Performance Indicators in Higher Education". The latest figures are given in the table.

UK domiciled full-time first degree starters at English Higher Education Institutions who were projected to neither obtain an award nor transfer to another institution

Neighbourhood Nurseries

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 23 January 2006, Official Report, column 1918W, on neighbourhood nurseries, how many nursery places were taken up in (a) March 2003, (b) March 2004 and (c) March 2005, broken down by region. [49083]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 6 February 2006]: The information requested on the take-up of nursery places in neighbourhood nurseries is not collected centrally. Pursuant to my answer on 23 January 2006, Official Report, column 1918W, the number of neighbourhood nursery places that were available in (a) March 2003, (b) March 2004 and (c) March 2005, broken down by region, is in the following table.

Region	Places created by March 2003[1]	Places created April 2003-March 2004	Places created April 2004-March 2005	Total
East Midlands	224	1,426	1,208	2,858
Eastern England	114	1,495	1,006	2,615
London	851	3,359	3,717	7,927
North East	405	4,878	122	5,405

South East	229	2,298	1,360	3,887
South West	232	2,425	1,208	3,865
West Midlands	554	4,095	1,725	6,374
Yorkshire and Humberside	815	4,843	1,084	6,742

[1] Figures include places created between 2001 and March 2003.

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance she has issued to local education authorities on the replacement of nursery schools with nursery classes. [49206]

Beverley Hughes: None. However, we continue to make clear to local authorities that maintained nursery schools have a vital role to play in taking forward our agenda for families and children and should not be closed unless there are exceptional grounds for doing so.

Local school organisation committees, who make decisions on school organisations, must have regard to "the presumption against closure" provisions included in the statutory guidance on school organisation. This states that decisions to close a maintained nursery school must take account of: the quantity, quality, value for money and convenience to parents and the proposed replacement provision; the impact of the potential loss of the nursery school's experience and knowledge and alternatives to closure.

Overseas Students

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of British-Indians have applied to study in further education institutes in each year since 1997. [45118]

Bill Rammell: Data on applications to study in further education institutes are not held centrally.

School Admissions

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the secondary schools which admit pupils on the basis of partial selection by ability criterion, broken down by local authority; and what the percentage is of pupils at each school admitted in this way. [49453]

Jacqui Smith: This information is not collected centrally as admission arrangements are set locally, after an annual consultation process. However, I have listed below those schools we are aware of which operate partial selection by ability or aptitude which it would not now be lawful to introduce. This is not a definitive list.

LEA	School	Pre-existing partial selection
Barnet	Mill Hill School	25%—technology, music and dance

Schools (Newcastle-upon-Tyne)

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the percentage of each cohort who failed to achieve level four at key stage two in each school in Newcastle-upon-Tyne in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [49346]

Jacqui Smith: The figures for the performance of pupils in schools in Newcastle-upon-Tyne are published as part of the Key Stage 2 Achievement and Attainment Tables each year. These are available on the Department's website at http://www.dfes.gov.uk/performancetables/. The information is also available in the House Library.

Primary standards in English and mathematics are continuing to improve. Since 1997, the proportion of 11-year-olds achieving the target Level 4 and above as measured by the Key Stage 2 National Curriculum tests has increased by 16 percentage points to 79 per cent. in English and by 13 percentage points to 75 per cent. in mathematics. In Newcastle-upon-Tyne the proportion achieving the target Level 4 and above has increased by more than the national rate of improvement (up by 21 percentage points since 1997 to 72 per cent. in English and by 18 percentage points to 69 per cent. in mathematics).

The Government have set a national public service agreement target for 2008 to reduce by 40 per cent. the number of schools in which fewer than 65 per cent. of pupils achieve Level 4 or above in English and Level 4 in mathematics. Good progress has been made towards achieving this target. Compared with 2003 (baseline year), there has been an overall reduction of 34 per cent. (978 schools) in the number of schools achieving below 65 per cent. in English and 22 per cent. (770 schools) in the number of schools achieving below this level in mathematics.

In Newcastle-upon-Tyne there are 23 schools where fewer than 65 per cent. of pupils achieved Level 4 and above in English in 2005, compared with 29 schools in 2003. In mathematics, 26 schools achieved results below 65 per cent. in 2005 compared with 29 schools in 2003.

Sex Offenders

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what records she keeps of the number of social workers employed by local authorities who have convictions or cautions for sex offences; and what advice she has issued on the management of their contact with children. [45822]

Ruth Kelly [holding answer 26 January 2006]: The Department does not hold such information.

The Government issued statutory guidance, effective October 2005, on making arrangements to safeguard and promote the welfare of children under section 11 of the Children Act 2004, which makes clear that local authorities should have policies and procedures in place to prevent unsuitable people from working with children.

Speech Therapy (Westmorland and Lonsdale)

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much has been spent on speech therapy services for children in Westmorland and Lonsdale in each of the last three years. [47055]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 31 January 2006]: I have been asked to reply.

Primary care trusts (PCTs) are responsible for commissioning services, including speech therapy services for children, to meet the health needs of their local population. In the current financial year, PCTs in Cumbria and Lancashire received resource revenue allocations totalling £2 billion, with the two PCTs covering Westmorland and Lonsdale receiving a total of £413.3 million. By 2007–08, the total resource allocation to PCTs in Cumbria and Lancashire will have increased to £2.8 billion, with the two PCTs covering Westmorland and Lonsdale receiving £528.8 million.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Africa

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding his Department has allocated to tackling eclampsia in Africa in 2005–06. [49079]

Hilary Benn: DFID recognises that eclampsia is an important cause of maternal and neonatal death and disability. DFID provides most of its health-related assistance through non-earmarked Poverty Reduction Budgetary Support (PRBS) or ear-marked health sector support. Funds are not generally allocated against specific medical conditions, so it is not possible to specify the amount for tackling eclampsia in the current financial year.

To prevent and treat eclampsia, women need an integrated health service with facilities and staff for antenatal and obstetric care, emergency referral to specialists and surgeons when they are required, reliable equipment and access to the right drugs. DFID funding supports country governments' plans to develop and strengthen their health systems. The aim is to improve access to all health services, including those for antenatal and obstetric care.

DFID is committed to a year-on-year increase in spending on maternal health. DFID's bilateral expenditure (excluding spend through general poverty reduction budget support) on programmes marked as contributing towards improving maternal health has increased by 34 per cent. over the last three years (and by 41 per cent. if reproductive health services which contribute to reducing maternal mortality are included).

To complement our country level support, DFID also channels funds though the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA). In 2005–06, DFID has provided £20 million core funding and £10 million specifically for reproductive health.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to strengthen property rights in Africa. [49081]

Hilary Benn: Fair and sound property rights are essential for growth, investment and poverty reduction in Africa. DFID works both to improve the business environment to boost private sector investment and create jobs and to secure the investments and livelihoods of poor people.

DFID is helping Governments and other non-Government groups with land rights and administration in countries such as Ghana, Kenya, Uganda, South Africa, Lesotho, Rwanda, Swaziland, Botswana, Angola and Mozambique. This support is to improve poor people's access to land and property and enable them to secure their rights to land and property assets.

DFID is also helping support an African Union Land Policy Conference to be held in Addis Ababa at the end of March, held with the UN Economic Commission for Africa (UNECA) and the Africa Development Bank.

DFID funds various programmes across Africa that aim to strengthen court systems and thereby enhance property rights. A major new African initiative, the Investment Climate Facility for Africa (ICF), has property rights as one of its priority areas and will substantially increase the support that DFID currently provides to property rights in Africa. DFID committed $30 million to this initiative in November 2005.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what presentations were undertaken by the Commission for Africa in the run-up to the G8 summit; in which country each presentation took place; and what the date was of each presentation. [49224]

Hilary Benn: Following the launch of the Commission for Africa report on 11 March 2005, the Commission undertook a four month series of presentations leading up to the G8 summit at Gleneagles. This included regional events in Africa as well as G8 countries. More than 45 presentations were made in over 20 countries. Audiences included the African Union (AU) NEPAD, governments, private sector and civil society. Listed as follows is a list of key presentations made by the Commission during this period.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what financial remuneration was paid by his Department to each Commissioner of the Commission for Africa; and what the (a) amount and (b) purpose was of each payment. [49225]

Hilary Benn: The Commissioners of the Commission for Africa (CfA) received no financial remuneration from DFID for their services. DFID paid expenses for travel and accommodation and the cost of administrative support when appropriate.

Consultants

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list the contracts let by his Department to external consultants that were subsequently sub-let in each of the past five years; and what the value was of each (a) original and (b) sub-let contract. [49220]

Hilary Benn: The Department for international Development (DFID) welcomes consortia and sub-contracting arrangements. However, no business has been sub-contracted in its entirety subsequent to the issue of contract.

Global Fund (Myanmar)

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much funding has been pledged by the UK to the global fund to fight HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria; how much of that funding has been delivered; and if he will make a statement. [48946]

Mr. Thomas: The UK has pledged £359 million to the Global Fund for the period 2002 to 2008. Our contribution in 2005 was £51 million, which brings our total contribution delivered to date, to £159 million. Over the next two years, we have pledged to provide £100 million to the Global Fund for 2006 and £100 million for 2007 to support the fund's estimated resource needs of US$ 7 billion for this period. The two-year total of £200 million represents 8.4 per cent. of the total pledged to date (i.e. £3.7 billion) and 5.1 percent. of the US$ 7 billion total resource needs. This is above our gross national income (GNI) fair share and is consistent with our past support. The UK is currently the fourth largest donor for the period 2006 and 2007 (after France, the US and Japan) and the second largest in the EU.

There will be a mid-term review of the Global Fund's replenishment process in June. This will be an opportunity for the international community to review further the Global Fund's performance and urge new and existing donors to put in more money. The UK will continue its efforts to encourage additional support for the Global Fund, including from the private sector.

Millennium Development Goals

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department has taken to implement the recommendation in paragraph 3 of the UN General Assembly resolution A/60/L.2 on the World Programme of Action for Youth, relating to Youth and the Millennium Development Goals. [49219]

Hilary Benn: DFID funds programmes that support young people as an integral part of many of its international development programmes. DFID encourages its development partners to adopt an inclusive approach and to involve all groups in society, including young people, in developing and monitoring their Poverty Reduction Strategies.

DFID has provided support for young people's participation in a number of countries. Examples include working with schoolchildren, as well as their carers and teachers, to develop School Improvement Plans in Malawi, and encouraging consultation with children and young people in the development of the Government of the Democratic Republic of Congo's plan for reducing poverty.

In Sierra Leone, DFID has contributed to youth projects to provide conciliation resources and equip young people with skills to develop their livelihoods; community re-integration projects, with a focus on child soldiers; and a programme for promoting peace, security and stability, through a radio programme for children, produced by children, and through training young people to use dialogue as a means of resolving or transforming conflict. The UK Government also provides 30 per cent. of the funding for the Commonwealth Youth Programme. Its contribution this year is £650,000.

The Government are committed to the eighth Millennium Development Goal, a Global Partnership for Development, which includes supporting decent and productive work for youth. The Government's support for youth employment is mainly channelled through the International Labour Organisation (ILO) and the World Bank.

DFID is also completing a briefing note on post primary education, which will recognise the increasing importance of addressing the educational needs of young men and women.

I have arranged for copies of a recent DFID policy paper entitled 'Reducing Poverty by tackling Social Exclusion' to be placed in the Libraries of the House. DFID will take forward work to encourage participation by young people in decisions that affect their lives as an integral part of its work on social exclusion.

Rwanda

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much bilateral aid the UK spent in Rwanda in each of the past eight years for which records are available; and what the planned figures are for each of the next five years. [49217]

Hilary Benn: The following Table 1 provides the bilateral aid the UK has provided to Rwanda since 1997–98, while Table 2 provides the UK imputed multilateral share to EC. Table 3 provides the planned bilateral aid figures for the next three years.

Table 1: UK's bilateral aid to Rwanda 1999–98 to 2004–05

Sudan

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had on a renewed and strengthened UN mandate on Darfur. [49086]

Hilary Benn: I have had a number of such discussions. DFID welcomes the African Union's (AU) decision at the 12 January Peace and Security Council (PSC) expressing support in principle to handing over its monitoring mission in Darfur (AMIS) to the UN. The UN Security Council has instructed the UN Secretary General to report back to the Council on the options for such a UN operation. We are discussing with the UN and the AU, the possible size, mandate and composition.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding he has supplied to the African Union peacekeeping mission in Darfur; and whether he plans to allocate further funds. [49087]

Hilary Benn: The UK has committed £19 million funding this financial year to the African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS). This brings our total contribution to AMIS, since its inception, to almost £32 million. We are using this money to provide equipment (we have purchased a total of over 900 vehicles), as well as military and civilian policing advice, expertise and training. Some of our contribution has also funded airlift of troops into Darfur, and further troop rotation this year. The UK will continue to support AMIS during its deployment, and the AU-led mediation of the Abuja peace talks on Darfur.

WALES

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the annual expenditure on (a) fixture and fittings, (b) general office expenses and (c) office equipment was of his Department in (i) Wales and (ii) each English region in each of the last three financial years; and what the planned expenditure is for 2005–06 in each case. [40099]

Mr. Hain: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs on 23 January 2006, Official Report, column 1834W.

Dispensing Appliance Contractors

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the likely effect on services and support for patients in Carmarthen, East and Dinefwr of the review of the system by which dispensing appliance contractors are paid; and whether specialist products for patients will continue (a) to be available and (b) to be paid for by his Department. [43169]

Mr. Hain: This is a matter for the Welsh Assembly Government. I understand that no decision on the way forward in Wales has been made yet. The consultation period on the proposals in England ended on 23 January and the Welsh Assembly Government are currently watching developments and will decide in due course on the most appropriate action for Wales.

Local Government

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales pursuant to his answer of 30 November 2005, Official Report, column 532W, on local government, how much funding the Valuation Agency received from the National Assembly for Wales Government. [48040]

Mr. Hain: The Valuation Office Agency received a total of £28.63 million in funding from the Welsh Assembly Government in the three years 2002–03 to 2004–05. This included £5.27 million to cover the cost of revaluation in Wales.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales pursuant to his answer of 30 November 2005, Official Report, column 532W, on Local Government Act, whether local authorities, with particular reference to council tax collection departments, incurred costs because of the implementation of section 77 of the Act. [48154]

Mr. Hain: The Welsh Assembly Government's proposals for revaluation and rebanding were set out in its policy statement "Freedom and Responsibility in Local Government" and were implemented in agreement with local authorities and the Welsh Local Government Association. The WLGA did not identify any additional financial pressures as a consequence of revaluation—costs were met from within existing resources.

Manufacturing

Mr. Paul Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the (a) First Minister and (b) Welsh Assembly Government on support for the manufacturing industry in Wales. [44494]

Mr. Hain: I regularly meet the First Minister and discuss a range of issues including support for manufacturing in Wales. My hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Wales has similar meetings with Welsh Assembly Government Ministers.

Both the UK Government and the Welsh Assembly Government recognise that manufacturing remains vital to the Welsh economy, accounting for 19 per cent. of GVA—proportionally higher than the UK as a whole.

The UK Government are working in partnership with industry, trade unions regional development agencies and other stakeholders to deliver the Manufacturing Strategy launched in May 2002 and reviewed in 2004, to secure a long-term future for manufacturing.

The Assembly and its agencies provide a range of support to Welsh manufacturers. These include financial assistance, business advice, promoting innovation, for example the Technium programme, and initiatives to improve skills and promote entrepreneurship.

The Assembly works directly with the sector through the manufacturing task and finish group. The Assembly's Economic Development Minister announced at the Wales TUC manufacturing conference last October that there will be a Welsh manufacturing forum represented by a cross section from the sector, and is consulting on the detail. This initiative has been well received by the manufacturing sector in Wales.

Parliamentary Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many parliamentary questions tabled in the last 12 months for answer by him on a named day (a) were transferred and (b) received a substantive answer (i) on the day named and (ii) after the day named. [49883]

Mr. Hain: Departments aim to ensure that Members receive a substantive response to their named day question on the named day and to endeavour to answer ordinary written questions within a working week of being tabled. Unfortunately, this is not always possible but this Department makes every effort to achieve these time scales.

(a) None

(b) (i) 90.48 per cent.

(ii) 9.52 per cent.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many ordinary written parliamentary questions tabled for answer by him in the last 12 months have been answered (a) within 14 days, (b) between 14 and 28 days, (c) between 28 days and two months and (d) in excess of two months after the date of tabling; and if he will make a statement. [49893]

Mr. Hain: Departments aim to ensure that Members receive a substantive response to their named day question on the named day and to endeavour to answer ordinary written questions within a working week of being tabled. Unfortunately, this is not always possible but this Department makes every effort to achieve these time scales.

(a) 90.51 per cent.

(b) 9.49 per cent.

(c) None

(d) None

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Accountancy Profession

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will introduce legislation to break up the big four accountancy firms. [49726]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government have no plans to introduce such legislation.

Aerospace Trade Missions

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which British companies (a) took part in the October 2005 aerospace trade mission to Japan and (b) will be taking part in the February 2006 aerospace trade mission to Singapore. [48434]

Ian Pearson: (a) The following companies took part in the October 2005 aerospace mission to Japan:

Airclaims Ltd.

Apollotek Ltd.

Bae Systems (International) Ltd.

BCF Designs Ltd.

Burcas Ltd.

Delcam Japan

Kuehne and Nagel Ltd.

Maher Ltd.

Nallatech Ltd.

Rolls Royce International Ltd.

W. L. Gore and Associates

(b) The following companies are scheduled to take part in the February 2006 mission to Singapore:

Aerotech World Trade Ltd.

Air Service Training (Engineering) Ltd.

Atlantic Bridge Aviation Ltd.

Fly BN Ltd.

Herman Smith and Associates

Novar Projects Ltd.

RHE Ltd.

South East Airports Ltd.

Southern Gas Turbines Ltd.

The mission to Singapore is timed to coincide with the Asian aerospace trade fair at which other UK companies are exhibiting.

Anti-corruption Guidelines

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to publish the Export Credits Guarantee Department's revised anti-corruption guidelines. [48435]

Ian Pearson: ECGD expects to publish the Government's final response to the consultation on its anti-bribery and corruption procedures in the next few weeks.

Automotive Academy

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether he plans to extend Automotive Academy re-employment training to areas other than the West Midlands; and if he will make a statement. [49026]

Alun Michael: The Automotive Academy is an independent organisation established by the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders to deliver on a partnership between the Government and the industry. Its remit, supported by a £12 million grant from DTI, is to raise the skills base in the automotive industry among small and large companies alike, throughout the supply chain. It does this in part by developing industry-led world-class training courses and materials. The pre-employment training programme is a new course striving to augment the skill set of those actively seeking re-employment. This course is being piloted in the West Midlands. The Automotive Academy has a national focus and once fully tested and developed all courses are made available across the UK via the academy's regional infrastructure for delivery via quality assured third party training providers.

Bifrangi UK Ltd

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the dates of the meetings officials of his Department have held with representatives of Bifrangi UK Ltd in Sheffield in the last 12 months. [49077]

Alun Michael: Since January 2005 officials have met representatives of Bifrangi UK Ltd on the following dates:

11 January 2005—Yorkshire and Humberside Development Agency in Italy

17 March 2005—Yorkshire and Humberside development Agency in Sheffield

3 May 2005—UK Trade and Investment in London

27 June 2005—Yorkshire and Humberside Development Agency in Sheffield

Business Insolvencies

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list each (a) corporate administration, (b) receivership and (c) liquidation that started over 20 years ago but has not yet been completed. [49718]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Details of these records from over 20 years ago are not available in this form and obtaining the data would incur disproportionate cost.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the trend in the number of business insolvencies. [49730]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Business insolvencies include company liquidations and the self-employed subset of individual bankruptcy orders. It is not currently possible from centrally collated information to identify or quantify the element of business-related individual voluntary arrangements (IVA's). Figures quoted in the following table relate to England and Wales.

Company liquidations and self-employed bankruptcies in England and Wales 1992–2005: Number and percentage change

	Company liquidations	Percentage change year on year
1992	24,425	—
1993	20,708	-15.2
1994	16,728	-19.2
1995	14,536	-13.1
1996	13,461	-7.4
1997	12,610	-6.3
1998	13,203	4.7
1999	14,280	8.2
2000	14,317	0.3
2001	14,972	4.6
2002	16,305	8.9
2003	14,184	-13.0
2004	12,192	-14.0
2005	12,893	5.7

	Self-employed bankruptcies	Percentage change year on year
1992	19,525
1993	18,561	-4.9
1994	15,114	-18.6
1995	13,282	-12.1
1996	12,667	-4.6
1997	11,269	-11.0
1998	10,420	-7.5
1999	10,723	2.9
2000	9,952	-7.2
2001	9,839	-1.1
2002	8,854	-10.0
2003	9,139	3.2
2004	9,564	4.7
2005	n/a	n/a
January-September 2004	7,192
January-September 2005	8,131	13.1

The trend in both company liquidations and self-employed bankruptcies has been decreasing, with some fluctuation, since the last recession in the early 1990's. The 2005 figure of 12,893 company liquidations is just over half of the level reached in 1992 (24,425); self-employed bankruptcies in 2004 (the latest full year available) at 9,564 are less than half the level in 1992 (19,525). The latest available data for self-employed bankruptcies are for January-September 2005, where the 8,131 bankruptcy orders compare with 14,531 during the same period of 1992.

Since 1997, company liquidations have shown modest increases year-on-year until 2002 after which the figures fell in 2003 and again in 2004. The 2005 figure, while up slightly on 2004, is about the same as for 1997. Self-employed bankruptcies decreased year-on-year from 1997 to 2002, after which 2003 and 2004 saw small increases; the 2004 figure (at 9,564) remains, however, lower than in 1997 (11,269).

When compared with numbers of companies on the Companies House active register, the rate of company insolvencies has been falling from Q3 1992 to Q4 2005; the latest figure of 0.7 has remained the same for the last six quarters and compares to that of 2.6 for Q3 1992. The equivalent rate during the second half of 1997 was 1.2.

Company Law

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will introduce legislation requiring companies to file a copy of their audit contract with the Registrar of Companies. [49719]

Alun Michael: Clause 480 of the Company Law Reform Bill, introduced in the House of Lords on 1 November, will create a power for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State to make regulations requiring companies to disclose the terms on which their auditors are appointed.

Credit Cards

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will introduce legislation to ban credit card companies from issuing credit cards to anyone below the age of 18 years. [49731]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government do not see the need to introduce such legislation. Under section 50 of the Consumer Credit Act 1974 it is already an offence to send a document to a minor inviting them to borrow money and therefore no-one under the age of 18 should be offered a credit card. If, however, a minor were to enter into a credit agreement, that agreement would not be binding under the general law.

Departmental Conferences

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 17 January 2006, Official Report, column 1245 on departmental conferences, what is his Department's definition of the marketing mix; and how much his Department spent on marketing in each year since 1997. [45827]

Alan Johnson: The communication specialists at DTI adopt an industry accepted definition of the marketing mix which can include direct mail, paid-for advertising, use of non-news media and promotional items. When marketing strategies are developed, a strong emphasis is placed on the desired outcomes and this influences what parts of the marketing mix are used.

The then Secretary of State for Trade and Industry provided the following responses:

> 14 January 2004 "My Department's expenditure on advertising through the Central Office of Information in 1997-98 amounted to £2,504,885 excluding VAT and subsequent COI rebates. Records of expenditure on other information campaigns are not held centrally."
> 21 January 2004 "For expenditure on advertising by my Department through COI from 1995-96 to 2000-01 I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Twickenham on 20 November 2001, Official Report, column 162W. Expenditure for 2001-02, 2002-03 and 2003-04 (to date) was £6,610,240, £13,741,906 and £2,044,497 respectively. These figures include advertising by the Small Business Service and exclude VAT."

Information on publicity expenditure from centrally held budgets is contained in the Government's Expenditure Plans and, more recently, the DTI's annual Departmental Report, which are available in the Libraries of the House. Figures relating to other information campaigns, and information on publicity and advertising by NDPBs, are not held centrally and could be produced only at disproportionate cost.

Dyfed Postal Area

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received since 1999 about changing the name of the Dyfed postal area to take account of new local authority areas since 1999. [49228]

Barry Gardiner: This is an operational matter for Royal Mail plc. The chief executive has been asked to reply to the hon. Member.

Energy Consumption (Wales)

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the average annual energy consumption per household in Wales was in 2004-05; and if he will make a statement. [49746]

Malcolm Wicks: Total energy consumption figures at regional and local authority level for 2003 were published as experimental statistics in the December 2005 edition of Energy Trends, copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House. These show that household energy consumption in Wales (excluding transport use) totalled 29,554.7GWh (2,541.3 thousand tonnes of oil equivalent) during 2003. This equates to an annual household consumption of around 24,300kWh.

Energy Pricing

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he (a) last discussed and (b) next plans to discuss energy prices for industry with Ofgem. [29389]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 17 November 2005]: Ministers and senior officials in DTI meet regularly with their counterparts in Ofgem to discuss a broad range of energy market issues, including energy prices. The next meeting between Ministers and Ofgem is scheduled for the very near future. DTI established the Gas Prices Working Group, which includes Ofgem and industry representatives, to consider ways of mitigating the impact of high energy prices on industrial users.

Equitable Life

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations his Department has made to the EU in response to its proposed investigation into Equitable Life. [49725]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have been asked to reply.

The European Parliament set up a Committee of Inquiry into Equitable Life on 12 January. The Treasury has received no approach from the Committee in relation to this inquiry. The Government will carefully consider any approach it receives and what representations it might make.

EU Accounts Modernisation Directive

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the estimated cost to businesses is of the Business Review under the EU Accounts Modernisation Directive. [49828]

Alun Michael [holding answer 7 February 2006]: The Regulatory Impact Assessment which accompanies the Companies Act 1985 (Operating and Financial Review and Directors' Report etc.) Regulations 2005 (S.I. 2005/1011), estimates the cost of preparation and audit assurance for the Business Review at a total of £103.74 million for 37,290 companies.

Fireworks

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the efficacy of the restrictions on the supply of fireworks since the coming into force of the Fireworks Regulations 2004. [49516]

Mr. Sutcliffe: None. However, an assessment of enforcement activities under relevant fireworks legislation will be undertaken in due course.

Gas Supplies

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking with the European Commission to secure fair access to supplies of gas at competitive prices. [49785]

Malcolm Wicks: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer wrote to the European Commission on 5 December to ask them to consider whether the price volatility on the UK gas market last November may have been the result of abusive behaviour or distortions in the wider EU gas market. The Commission is already carrying out an inquiry into the EU gas and electricity sector and I understand they intend to present their preliminary findings on 16 February. We would expect and encourage them to take urgent action to address any examples of such abusive behaviour or distortions.

Indian Companies

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the five Indian companies in the UK with a presence in the financial services sector which have the highest turnover; and what the turnover is of each. [45129]

Ian Pearson: According to publicly available information from Companies House, the top five Indian companies in the financial services sector in the UK, based on turnover in 2004–05, are given in the following table. Several Indian banks have only branches in the UK but these, according to Companies House, are not required to provide separate accounts.

Company	Latest year	Turnover (£000)
1. ICICI Bank UK Ltd	31 March 2005	7,124
2. JB Boda and Co (UK) Ltd	31 December 2004	552
3. KM Dastur and Co Ltd	31 March 2005	243
4. First Global (UK) Ltd	31 March 2005	49
5. Ridge Futures Ltd	31 March 2004	16

Note:
Turnover figure not available, the above figure refers to operating income, (including fees and other income).

Military Equipment (Exports)

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what export credit arrangements have been put in place to provide cover for military equipment exported to Saudi Arabia under the Memorandum of Understanding document signed in December 2005; and if he will make a statement. [48688]

Ian Pearson: There are no export credit arrangements in place to provide cover for this business.

New Delhi Declaration

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the 2002 New Delhi Declaration, what assessment his Department has made of the operation of the (a) Joint Economic and Trade Committee and (b) Indo-British Economic and Financial Dialogue. [48396]

Ian Pearson: The purpose of (JETCO) is to engage bilaterally with business on UK-India trade and investment issues and take action where possible to increase business opportunities. The second meeting was held in London on 31 January. The meeting, chaired by John Sunderland of the CBI and in the presence of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry and Indian Minister of Commerce, Kamal Nath, was well attended by business delegations from India and the UK. Progress reports were given on 11 areas of work taking place under JETCO, including intellectual property rights and sector based activity being conducted by business to business working groups e.g. legal services, hi-tech, infrastructure, health, agribusiness and creative industries. JETCO has already seen the liberalisation of air services and the signing of a bilateral film co-production agreement. During the second JETCO meeting, Ministers Nath and Johnson asked their officials to continue conduct a six monthly review of the JETCO process. Findings will be submitted at the mid-year review (summer 2006). Both Ministers agreed that JETCO is playing a vital role in promoting an increasing bilateral trade and investment.

Terms of reference for the Indian British Economic and Financial Dialogue were agreed in London on 4 February 2005 by the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Indian Finance Minister, Mr. P. Chidambaram. Since then, senior officials from both countries have held useful exploratory discussions about topics to take forward in partnership under the dialogue. A first session of the Dialogue is expected to take place later this year.

Nuclear Fuels

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment his Department has made of the energy requirements of producing nuclear fuels. [48020]

Malcolm Wicks: In the context of the Energy Review, the Government are looking at the lifecycle carbon emissions of nuclear generation. This will require an understanding of the energy requirements for the preparation of fuel, operation, and decommissioning and waste management.

Nuclear Power

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with representatives of Amicus on the new nuclear build. [43747]

Malcolm Wicks: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry and I both have regular discussions with representatives of Amicus on a wide range of issues. However, none of our recent meetings have been specifically related to new nuclear build.

During the Energy Review consultation, I want to engage a wide range of stakeholders, including trade unions, in an assessment of all options to help us deliver our medium and long term objectives.

Operating and Financial Review

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what estimate his Department has made of the financial costs incurred by business prior to November 2005 in respect of implementing the operating and financial review; [45500]

(2) if he will list the interested parties who were consulted by his Department prior to November 2005 in respect of the proposal to remove the requirement to prepare operating and financial review statements. [45502]

Alun Michael: The options to increase narrative reporting requirements were considered in the final regulatory impact assessment that accompanied the Companies Act 1985 (Operating and Financial Review and Directors' Report etc) Regulations of March 2005 which was the subject of extensive consultation in summer 2004. It follows that no further consultation was carried out by the Department of Trade and Industry before the regulations repealing the operating and financial review were introduced.

Because of the high degree of overlap between the content requirements of the OFR and the business review, the bulk of the preparatory work undertaken by quoted companies for OFR purposes should be applicable to the preparation of the business review, so formal assessment has been carried out of costs already incurred by business.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what methods he used to calculate the estimated financial consequences for business of the Operating and Financial Review prior to his decision not to proceed with it; and what discussions he had with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs before taking this decision; [48452]

(2) what assessment he made of the economic effects of requiring large companies to report on environmental issues under the Operating and Financial Review prior to his decision not to proceed with the scheme, with particular reference to resource efficiency. [48453]

Alun Michael: The options to increase narrative reporting requirements and the associated costs of these were fully considered in the final regulatory impact assessment (RIA) that accompanied the Companies Act 1985 (Operating and Financial Review and Directors' Report etc.) Regulations of March 2005 which was the subject of extensive consultation in summer 2004. No further RIA was considered necessary because the information provided in the original RIA was used by the Government to adjust its decision. In deciding to repeal the OFR, the Government chose one of the original options rather than another, and did not consider that a new RIA was necessary. Relevant Departments were consulted before the decision to repeal the OFR requirement was taken.

Post Office Card Account

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which organisations contribute to the cost of running the Post Office Card Account scheme; and how much was contributed by each organisation in each year since its establishment. [47947]

Barry Gardiner: A number of organisations have committed to making a contribution towards the costs of the Post Office card account between 2003–08. The contributing organisations, in alphabetical order, are: Abbey National Group, Alliance and Leicester, Bank of Ireland, Barclays, Co-operative Bank, First Trust, Halifax-Bank of Scotland, HSBC, Lloyds-TSB, National Australia Group, Nationwide Building Society, Northern Rock, Royal Bank of Scotland Group.

Details of individual payments are commercially confidential but in total these organisations have pledged around £182 million over the term of the agreement.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the Government's financial contribution has been to the Post Office Card Account system. [48676]

Barry Gardiner: The Government's financial contribution to the Post Office card account system is made under contracts between Post Office Ltd. and the Department for Work and Pensions, the Northern Ireland Social Security Agency and Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs.

Postal Services

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what percentage of first class letters posted in Leicester met Royal Mail's online delivery target in the last year for which figures are available. [49645]

Barry Gardiner: This is an operational matter for Royal Mail. The chief executive has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Power Loss (Compensation)

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much compensation for loss of power was paid to customers by each power company in each of the last five years. [49048]

Malcolm Wicks: Ofgem, the independent gas and electricity markets regulator, is responsible for the levels of compensation paid following a loss of power. Ofgem's chief executive officer has promised to write to the hon. Member with the details.

Renewable Energy

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether his Department holds information on (a) the number and (b) the locations of micro-wind turbines in England. [47585]

Malcolm Wicks: (a) Under the Clear Skies Programme, which covers England, Wales and Northern Ireland, grants are available for micro turbines. Currently 231 households and 90 community groups have been offered grant funding.

(b) Details of all Clear Skies grant funded community projects can be downloaded from the website, http://www.clear-skies.org/communities/ApplicationGuidelines.aspx

Special Advisers

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the special advisers in post in his Department, broken down by pay band; and what the total budgeted cost to his Department of special advisers is for 2005–06. [29421]

Alan Johnson: Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and overall cost of special advisers and the number in each payband. For the most recent information I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 21 July 2005, Official Report, c. 158–62WS.

Information on the numbers of special advisers prior to 2003 was provided at regular intervals and this information will be available in the Libraries of the House.

Information relating to costs for 2005–06 will be published after the end of the current financial year.

VAT Registration

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many businesses (a) registered and (b) deregistered for VAT in each year in Ribble Valley since 1997. [49796]

Alun Michael: The number of businesses which (a) registered and (b) deregistered for VAT in each year in Ribble Valley since 1997 is displayed in the following table:

	VAT registrations	VAT deregistrations
1997	195	160
1998	185	160
1999	200	160
2000	175	150
2001	195	165
2002	250	170
2003	270	215
2004	205	175

World Trade Organisation

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he will publish the compendium due on the Hong Kong World Trade Organisation meeting. [48817]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 6 February 2006]: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State made a statement to the House on the 20 December 2005 to provide an update on progress made at the 6th World Trade Organisation (WTO) Ministerial Conference in Hong Kong. In line with normal practice, there will be no formal, written report on the Conference.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether it is the Government's policy that the Russian Federation's accession to the World Trade Organisation should be conditional on its ratification of the Energy Charter Treaty. [49695]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 7 February 2006]: To date, Russia has reached bilateral agreements on its accession to the WTO with the vast majority of WTO members. Only a few remain to be concluded. The bilateral agreement with the EU was reached in May 2004. Ratification of the Energy Charter Treaty was not a requirement under that bilateral agreement.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Road Traffic Accidents

7. Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the number of serious road traffic accidents in Northern Ireland in 2005; and if he will make additional funding available to promote road safety. [48310]

Mr. Woodward: Provisional figures for 2005 indicate that there were 128 fatal collisions, resulting in 136 deaths, the lowest number since 1952 and 1041 serious injuries.

The Government announced last December that £5.5 million has been set aside for road safety for each of the next two financial years.

Paramilitary Organisations

8. Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what factors he will take into account when assessing the future intentions of paramilitary organisations on ceasefire. [48311]

Mr. Hain: I take into account whether an organisation is committed to the use now and in the future of only democratic and peaceful means to achieve its objectives; has ceased to be involved in preparation for violence; and is co-operating fully with the Decommissioning Commission.

13. Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made in reducing the involvement of paramilitary organisations in criminality in Northern Ireland. [48316]

Mr. Woodward: The partner agencies of the Organised Crime Task Force are relentlessly pursuing organised criminals in Northern Ireland, regardless of whether they are linked to paramilitary groups or not. Good progress is being made—last year 28 top level organised crime gangs in Northern Ireland were disrupted or dismantled as a result of law enforcement activity.

Child Sex Abuse

9. David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will instruct the Police Service of Northern Ireland to create a separate database of child sex abuse allegations and cases in Northern Ireland. [48312]

Mr. Woodward: The Police Service of Northern Ireland currently employs a number of databases that record relevant information about sex offenders. They are managed to nationally agreed standards. The Police Service of Northern Ireland is also currently considering the development of a new victim centred database that would enhance the organisation's ability to track suspected incidents/reports of all sexual offence investigations, including those involving child sex abuse.

Smoking Ban

10. Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the response from the people in Northern Ireland has been to the proposed smoking ban in public places. [48313]

Mr. Woodward: My announcement on 17 October was widely welcomed by a broad spectrum of public opinion, including health professionals, trades' unions and the main political parties. A recent survey commissioned by Action Cancer and Action on Smoking and Health found that 78 percent. of Northern Ireland respondents support laws to make all workplaces, including pubs and restaurants, smoke-free.

Fuel Smuggling

11. Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps the Government are taking to combat illegal fuel smuggling into Northern Ireland. [48314]

Mr. Woodward: Bearing down on oils fraud is a key priority for the Organised Crime Task Force. Legitimate fuel deliveries into NI have increased by 28 percent. since 2000.

Security

14. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the security situation in Northern Ireland. [48317]

Mr. Woodward: We continue to see dramatic improvements in the security situation compared to the height of the troubles, with paramilitary style attacks on a downward trend.

Breast Screening

15. Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking to restore public confidence in reporting on breast screening in Northern Ireland following the Wilson review. [48318]

Mr. Woodward: The recommendations of the Wilson report will be implemented in full as will those of the Regulation and Quality Improvement Authority when it reports in March. Delivery of breast diagnosis will in future be achieved through multi/disciplinary team working. The Department is urgently addressing the need to recruit further consultant radiologists and is already considering how best to deploy current resources to provide a quality service to women with breast disease.

Coastal Erosion

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the measures he has taken to reduce the impact of coastal erosion around Northern Ireland. [18247]

Angela E. Smith: Northern Ireland does not have any legislation specifically related to coastal erosion. Essential works within the sphere of interest of various Departments continue to be dealt with under various pieces of existing legislation according to the Bateman formula.

The Bateman formula is an historic interdepartmental agreement detailing the procedure for executing essential coastal protection works. Within this formula cost beneficial works, to protect essential infrastructure, may be undertaken by the Department or authority responsible for the asset at risk. For example, Translink is responsible for sea defences on certain sections of the rail network and has recently completed £600,000 of work repairing sections of rail between Downshire Halt and Whitehead.

DARD's Rivers Agency undertakes essential cost effective works that do not fall within the functional area of other Departments or agencies.

Drugs Seizures

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many seizures have been made in each parliamentary constituency in Northern Ireland of (a) ecstasy tablets, (b) cocaine, (c) cannabis and (d) heroin during each of the last 12 months for which figures are available. [48282]

Mr. Woodward: Neither the Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI) nor Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC) hold records of the number of seizures of illicit drugs made in each parliamentary constituency in Northern Ireland.

Information relating to the number of seizures of ecstasy, cocaine, cannabis and heroin which have been made in the last twelve months by PSNI, and broken down by district command unit, and by HMRC broken down by airports and postal depots has been placed in the Library.

Dungiven Castle

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what (a) environmental and (b) historical protection there is against inappropriate developments adjacent to Dungiven castle, County Londonderry. [49152]

Angela E. Smith: Dungiven castle is a Grade B1 listed building. It is listed under Article 42 of the Planning (NI) Order 1991. Both the castle and its setting are protected from inappropriate works under this Order and Planning Policy Statement 6 (PPS 6) "Planning Archaeology and the Built Heritage". The Draft Northern Area Plan, published May 2005 is also a material consideration in determining planning applications and affords protection to the castle and its surrounding area by two designations. The first is as a Local Landscape Policy Area. This seeks to prevent proposals liable to adversely affect features that contribute to the environmental quality, integrity or character of the area. The second is as an Area of Archaeological Potential. This highlights, for prospective developers, areas where it is likely that archaeological remains will be encountered in the course of development. Where remains are found, PPS 6 provides policies for their safeguarding and management. The Castle Environmental Park is a major area of existing open space which is protected by another Planning Policy (Statement 8 Open Space and Recreation). A small part of this park is within an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty.

There is a scheduled archaeological site and monument located to the south east of the castle which is also afforded protection under PPS 6.

Floral Displays

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much money was spent by each district council in the Province on floral displays in the last 12 months. [49356]

Angela E. Smith: The information requested is not held centrally and councils inform the Government that they do not record this separately.

GCSEs

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proportion of students in (a) grammar schools and (b) non-grammar schools in Northern Ireland achieved passes at grades A* to C at GCSE level in at least five subjects including English and mathematics in each of the last five years. [49493]

Angela E. Smith: The requested information is as follows:

Academic year	Grammar schools	Non-grammar schools	Northern Ireland average
2003-04	91	26	49
2002-03	92	26	50
2001-02	92	26	50
2000-01	92	25	49
1999-2000	92	24	49

Notes:
1. The figures refer to the percentage of year 12 pupils who achieved five or more GCSEs at A* to C including English and mathematics.
2. The latest information available relates to the 2003-04 academic year.

General Practitioners

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the trend in the number of general practitioners in Northern Ireland continuing to practise beyond the age of 65 years. [49396]

Mr. Woodward: At 6 February 2006 there are 28 general practitioners over the age of 65 who are working in primary care, out of a total of 1,490. Full historic detail of the age profile of general practitioner's is not held.

Health Commissioning Bodies

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the likely costs of developing and sustaining seven new health commissioning bodies in the Province. [49323]

Mr. Woodward: Under the new arrangements to be put in place as a result of the Review of Public Administration, four health and social services boards and 18 trusts are to be replaced by a single strategic health and social services authority and five trusts.

Seven social commissioning groups will be established as local offices of the authority.

The operational costs of these new commissioning arrangements are still being considered but it is expected that the new structures will deliver significant savings in overall management and administration costs.

Hospitality Costs

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer by his colleague of 12 January 2006, Official Report, column 791W, on hospitality costs, how hospitality was paid for by (a) the Secretary of State and Direct Rule Ministers, (b) Ministers in the Northern Ireland Assembly, (c) the Speaker of the Northern Ireland Assembly, (d) the Chief Constable and (e) district commanders in each of the last 10 years; what limit was placed upon the amount of alcohol allowable under the hospitality budget; and what accounting procedures were in place to monitor the amount spent on hospitality in each case. [46470]

Mr. Woodward: Hospitality costs for (a) the Secretary of State and Direct Rule Ministers are paid from the NIO's budget, (b) Ministers in the Northern Ireland Assembly are paid for directly by the relevant NI Department of each Minister, (c) the Speaker of the Northern Ireland Assembly are paid for from the budget of the NI Assembly, (d) the Chief Constable are paid for from the PSNI budget and (e) district commanders are also paid for from the PSNI budget.

For the Northern Ireland Office and the NI Assembly, there is no fixed figure for the amount of alcohol which can be paid from a hospitality budget. The director, or head of division, is responsible for ensuring that the Department's policy on controlling and accounting for hospitality is adhered to at all times.

For the PSNI and the Department of Finance and Personnel (DFP), specific guidance is available on the provision of hospitality, including limits for expenditure on alcohol. In general, such expenditure should be modest and, in the case of a sit down meal for example, should not exceed one third of the total cost of food. DFP are currently reviewing their departmental guidance.

All hospitality budgets are allocated annually and strictly monitored throughout the accounting period. Records are subject to audit.

Martin Kelly

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what role the Police Service Northern Ireland's underwater search unit has played in relation to the investigation into the case of Martin Kelly. [49284]

Mr. Woodward: The deployment of police resources in an investigation, including the underwater search unit is an operational matter for the Chief Constable.

Ministerial Car Fleet

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 9 January 2006, Official Report, column 303W, on ministerial car fleet, how police drivers are paid for; and which agency or Department provided drivers for each devolved minister in the Northern Ireland Executive. [46462]

Mr. Woodward: Police drivers and their associated costs are initially paid from the Police Service of Northern Ireland's (PSNI) own budget, and these costs then are recouped from the NIO on a quarterly basis.

Under devolution the Department of Finance and Personnel (car pool) provided and paid for drivers for all devolved Ministers for the Northern Ireland Executive apart from those who were covered by the PSNI close protection unit (CPU) and those Ministers from Sinn Fein who provided drivers from their party.

Northern Ireland Development Agency

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the location is of each Northern Ireland Development Agency office; what the annual running cost was of each in the last period for which figures are available; and how much (a) inward investment each attracted and (b) trade each produced for Northern Ireland in that period. [48921]

Angela E. Smith: Invest NI in line with our foreign direct investment (FDI) competitors in GB and ROI do not provide costs for individual offices. The overall budget for running the office network and associated marketing activities in 2004–05 amounted to £5.56 million.

Invest Northern Ireland has investment and trade offices in Europe—London, Dublin, Brussels and Düsseldorf; Asia Pacific—Seoul, Tokyo, Taipei, and Shanghai since December 2005; United States—Boston, San Jose, Atlanta, Washington DC, Denver and New York since June 2005; and the Gulf States—Dubai.

During 2004–05 Invest NI secured 17 new FDI projects offering the potential of 1,905 jobs and representing a total investment of £58.2 million; with a further investment of £150 million offering the prospect of 1,562 new jobs by follow-on investment by FDI companies in previous years.

Six projects were secured from the United States, five from the Republic of Ireland, four from Great Britain, and two from continental Europe.

In 2004–05 companies using trade offices in Boston, Denver and Dubai reported new business worth £35.7 million.

Saville Inquiry

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the total sums of public money paid to each relevant firm of lawyers for work done for or in connection with the Saville Inquiry. [44190]

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Saville Inquiry has cost to date; how much has been paid to each (a) leading counsel and (b) firm of solicitors involved; and how much he estimates the total cost will be. [5781]

Mr. Hanson: The following table provides details of the payments made by the Northern Ireland Office to each of the legal firms involved in the Bloody Sunday Inquiry. These payments include VAT and other disbursements where appropriate and so do not necessarily represent the amounts received by individuals.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many days retainers of (a) £750 and (b) £1,500 were claimed by each of the legal representatives at the Saville inquiry since its commencement. [46794]

Mr. Hanson: Fees were paid to legal firms and counsel for work specifically devoted to the Bloody Sunday inquiry. No retainer fees have ever been paid to any legal representatives.

Details of the amounts paid to legal representatives have been provided in answer to previous parliamentary questions from the hon. Member, the most recent on 25 January 2005, Official Report, column. 311W and today in answer to parliamentary questions from the hon. Member for Aylesbury and the hon. Member for Aldershot.

Shorts/Bombardier

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland by what means the Government have been monitoring how grant aid allocated from public expenditure to Shorts/Bombardier in the last five years has been spent by the company. [49147]

Angela E. Smith: In my answer to a previous question by the hon. Gentleman on 28 January 2006, Official Report, column 2332W, I listed the financial assistance which had been allocated to Bombardier by Invest NI and its predecessor organisations in financial years 2000–01 to 2004–05.

In accordance with Invest Northern Ireland's principles of intervention, performance criteria were determined as part of the appraisal and approval process and these are incorporated into financial assistance agreements between Invest Northern Ireland and the company. The criteria are monitored on a regular basis and payments are made following the fulfilment by the client of its obligations, or where appropriate having vouched eligible expenditure incurred, under the terms of the financial assistance agreements.

Vaccination

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the merits of making the influenza vaccine available to encephalomyelitis ME sufferers in the Province. [49384]

Mr. Woodward: Immunisation policy in the UK is determined on advice received from the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) which advises all UK Health Departments. Overall immunisation policy is constantly reviewed by JCVI and influenza immunisation is currently not recommended for ME patients.

DEFENCE

Accommodation (Armed Forces Personnel)

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many homes are provided by his Department to (a) former and (b) current members of the armed forces and their families; and if he will make a statement; [49143]

(2) what percentage of the total stock of housing provided by his Department is allocated to (a) former and (b) current members of the armed forces and their families; and if he will make a statement. [49144]

Mr. Touhig: This information is not held centrally in the form requested. I will write to the hon. Member and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Aircraft Carriers

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to identify target in-service dates for each of the future aircraft carriers. [48823]

Mr. Ingram: As for all projects, the in-service dates (ISDs) for the future aircraft carriers will only be set following the main investment decision and once they have been approved by Ministers. This decision has not yet been taken, and will only be taken when we know with confidence the risks, the costs and the associated contractual framework involved in building the carriers.

Defence Activity (West Midlands)

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what financial support he will provide for defence activity in the West Midlands in each of the next five years. [40486]

Mr. Touhig: Defence is a national capability and is funded functionally rather than geographically. Consequently the answer to this question could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Defence Vetting Agency

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average time was for an application to be processed by the Defence Vetting Agency for (a) a security check and (b) developed vetting on individuals in each country in the UK in the last year for which figures are available. [49745]

Mr. Ingram: The DVA's computerised vetting records are not held in a format that enables the vetting statistics to be broken down by country. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The average times, for all initial and review cases undertaken in 2004–05 were:

Security check—39 calendar days

Developed vetting—70 calendar days

Joint Casualty Treatment Ship

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 25 January 2006, Official Report, column 2127W to the hon. Member for Woodspring (Dr. Fox), on the Joint Casualty Treatment Ship, what the terms of reference are for the review; whether they include the possibility that RFA Argus will not be replaced; and when the review is expected to be completed. [48892]

Mr. Ingram: The review of the Joint Casualty Treatment Ship programme was established to look into the options for delivering maritime deployed medical capability; taking into account the existing capability provided by RFA Argus.

The review is expected to complete in April 2006.

Military Decorations

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the medals and decorations that were awarded by the United States administration to British military personnel of the rank of (a) Commodore, (b) Brigadier and (c) Air Commodore and above for operations in the Iraq war in 2003. [48212]

Mr. Straw: I have been asked to reply.

The United States administration made six awards in the Legion of Merit (Degree of Officer) to British military personnel of the rank of Commodore, Brigadier and Air Commodore and above for operations in the Iraq war in (January to March) 2003.

Operation Enduring Freedom

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements have been made for increased NATO international security assistance force command integration with the US-led Operation Enduring Freedom; and if he will make a statement. [42992]

John Reid: The international security assistance force (ISAF)'s peace support mission will remain distinct from the counter-terrorism aspects of the Operation Enduring Freedom coalition's mission. NATO has, however, revised its operational plan for the ISAF to outline clear arrangements for creating greater synergy between the ISAF and the coalition. Clear command arrangements will co-ordinate, and where necessary, deconflict efforts between the two missions as agreed under the auspices of the operational plan.

QinetiQ

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the study commissioned from Accenture, referred to on page 24 of the QinetiQ prospectus. [47266]

John Reid: As the QinetiQ prospectus states, the Accenture study was privately commissioned by QinetiQ. Any queries relating to this are therefore a matter for the company; questions should be referred to the chief executive at the following address:

Graham Love
Chief Executive
QinetiQ Limited
Cody Technology Park
Building A1
Ively Road
Farnborough
Hampshire GU14 OLX

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much profit has been recorded since the formation of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency, including that recorded by QinetiQ; and where these funds have been invested. [47271]

John Reid: In July 2001 the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) was split into its two successor organisations: QinetiQ and the Defence Science and Technology Laboratory (Dstl). Profit figures (including dividend distribution) for DERA up to the split, as shown in the Agency's annual reports are given as follows:

£ million

	Profit (loss) for the financial year	Dividend to MOD	Retained profit (loss)
1995-96	49.6	0	49.6
1996-97	61.7	[1]23.9	37.8
1997-98	40.6	20	20.6
1998-99	31.0	25	6
1999-2000	41.5	25	16.5
2000-01	2	5	(96.8)

[1] Includes £8.9 million deducted as an appropriation of a surplus arising on sale of operations.
[2] Loss for 2000-01 reflects the impact of a number of exceptional items including the costs of the split of the former DERA, losses for the termination of certain operations, and a write down in the value of certain other assets.

DERA profits after dividends were invested in the agency's operations. Profits recorded by QinetiQ are a matter for the company and recorded in its annual reports. Figures for the last three years, from 2001-02 to 2004-05, are, however, summarised in the QinetiQ Sale Prospectus, a copy of which was placed in the Library of the House on 26 January 2006.

Service Accommodation

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many of his Department's service accommodation properties were (a) grade 1 standard, (b) grade 2 standard, (c) grade 3 standard and (d) grade 4 standard in (i) Cyprus and (ii) Gibraltar (A) on the last date for which figures are available and (B) in 1997. [48778]

Mr. Touhig: The number and standards for condition of service families accommodation (SFA) and single living accommodation (SLA) in Cyprus and Gibraltar as at April 2005 are given in the following table. We do not hold comparative data for 1997.

Grade	SLA	SFA
Cyprus
1	60	246
2	1,093	343
3	1,659	709
4	434	914
Total	3,246	2,212
Gibraltar
1	6	349
2	6	121
3	0	35
4	546	7
Total	558	512

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many homes are provided by his Department to (a) former and (b) current members of the armed forces and their families; and if he will make a statement; [49143]

(2) what percentage of the total stock of housing provided by his Department is allocated to (a) former and (b) current members of the armed forces and their families; and if he will make a statement. [49144]

Mr. Touhig: This information is not held centrally in the form requested. I will write to the hon. Member and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Sudan

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had with NATO counterparts on the possibility of supplying armed forces for peacekeeping in Sudan. [49454]

Mr. Ingram: There has been no discussion on the provision of NATO forces for peacekeeping in Sudan. NATO continues to support the African Union's Mission in Sudan through the provision of airlift, training and capacity building.

SCOTLAND

Citizens Juries

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland on how many occasions his Department consulted citizens' juries on departmental policies in the last five years; in how many of those consultations the recommendations of the citizens' jury differed from existing departmental policy; and on how many occasions departmental policy was changed to reflect the recommendations of the citizens' jury. [46229]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office has not consulted citizens' juries in the last five years.

Press Coverage

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland on how many occasions since 1 April 2003 he has complained to the Press Complaints Commission about the coverage in the press of (a) Ministers or officials and (b) his Department; and how many of these complaints were upheld. [47088]

David Cairns: No complaints have been made to the Press Complaints Commission.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Burdens Doctrine

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether his Department's New Burdens Doctrine applies to new obligations imposed on local authorities by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs; and if he will make a statement. [49778]

Mr. Woolas: The New Burdens Doctrine applies to all Government Departments. It requires them to fund the net additional costs of any policy or initiative which increases the cost of providing local authority services.

Casino Operators

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many meetings he has had with casino operators since May 1997; and (a) where and (b) when each such meeting took place. [49688]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM) was created following Machinery of Government changes on 29 May 2002 and no records are held from before this time.

On 28 November 2004, while my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister was in Sydney on official business, my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister visited Sydney's Star City Casino, to get a feel for what an establishment of that size was like. My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister was shown around by a government relations officer at the casino.

Community Contact Centres

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what criteria are used in assessing the eligibility for funding of community contact centres through the investing in communities programme in the eastern region; and if he will make a statement. [49274]

Alun Michael: I have been asked to reply.

Investing in communities is an innovative 10 year programme introduced by the East of England Development Agency which seeks to ensure that the region's most deprived communities can achieve their full potential. The aim is to identify the needs of local communities and, identify long term strategic solutions to address them. It will be for local partnerships to identify whether community contact centres have a role to play in developing long term strategic solutions to tackling the barriers which face disadvantaged communities in terms of accessing employment, skills, training and starting businesses.

Correspondence

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister when the Minister for Communities and local government will reply to the letter of 9 December 2005 from the right hon. Member for Sunderland, South regarding single status. [48148]

Mr. Woolas: I replied to my hon. Friend on 6 February.

Departmental Groups

Pete Wishart: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the administration costs associated with his Department's (a) Ministerial Group, (b) Legal Directorate and (c) Tackling Disadvantage Group in the last year for which figures are available. [48853]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following table sets out the net administration costs of the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's Ministerial Group, Legal Directorate and the Tackling Disadvantage Group in 2004–05. These figures exclude the relevant group's or directorate's share of corporate overheads (such as IT and accommodation costs) which are managed centrally.

	£ million
	2004–05
Ministerial Group	4.74
Legal Directorate	5.97
Tackling Disadvantage Group	14.12

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many staff work in his Department's Sustainable Communities Group; how many are based in (a) London and (b) each region; and what the total salary costs were of the group in each area in the last year for which figures are available. [48888] of these 477.65 (FTE) staff are based in London. The total salary costs for the 2005–06 financial year currently stands at £17.938 million.

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has 498.95 staff on full-time equivalent (FTE) basis working in the Sustainable Communities Group.

The above figures are as at 2 February 2006.

The ODPM does not hold data regarding the regions; such a breakdown could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Weir: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the administration costs of his Department's Regional Development Group in the last year for which figures are available. [48893]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The net administration costs of the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's Regional Development Group (excluding the Government offices) in 2004–05 were £5.1 million. These figures exclude the group's share of corporate overheads (such as IT and accommodation costs) which are managed centrally.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the administration costs associated with his Department's Sustainable Communities Group in the last year for which figures are available. [48897]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The net administration costs of the Sustainable Communities Group in 2004–05 were £27.13 million. These figures exclude the group's share of corporate overheads (such as IT and accommodation costs) which are managed centrally.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many staff have been employed in his private office in each year since he became Deputy Prime Minister. [46888]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minster was formed on 29 May 2002.

The number of full-time equivalent staff employed in my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister's private office were as follows:

	Number
On 1 April 2003	6
On 1 April 2004	8
On 1 April 2005	8

Development (Castle Point)

Bob Spink: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether his Department has held meetings on development in Castle Point with Hickfort Ltd of Westcliff-on-Sea, Essex. [49350]

Yvette Cooper: Neither the Thames Gateway Delivery Unit nor the Government Office for the East of England (GO-East), as the appropriate divisions within the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, have held a formal meeting with Hickfort Ltd. Representatives from Hickfort Ltd visited the Government stand at the Thames Gateway Forum on 23 November 2005. They had an informal discussion with a representative from GO-East about a proposed development in Castle Point, but no follow-up actions were agreed.

Directly-elected Mayors

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the cost was of the referendum for a directly elected mayor in each area where such a process has been conducted. [49325]

Mr. Woolas: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister does not hold information on the costs of referendums for directly-elected mayors.

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many councils have conducted a referendum in which the local electorate (a) accepted and (b) rejected directly elected mayors. [49327]

Mr. Woolas: 33 local authorities have conducted referendums on whether to have a directly elected mayor. Of these 12 voted for, and 21 against a directly elected mayor.

Early Retirement

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many departmental employees have taken early retirement due to ill-health in each of the past five years for which figures are available. [46779]

Jim Fitzpatrick: During the last five years there have been less than five ill-health retirements in any one year.

Following guidance on data protection, we cannot provide further detailed analysis on these figures.

Financial Irregularity

Anne Main: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what measures he has in place to prevent fraud and financial irregularity in his Department. [49329]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A number of measures are in place to manage the risk of fraud and financial irregularity including:

promoting an anti-fraud culture in the Offices of the Deputy Prime Minister; providing guidance to staff on how to reduce the risk of fraud;

defining responsibilities for guarding against fraud;

reviewing the system of internal controls to ensure they are effective in detecting and deterring fraud;

ensuring that an adequate separation of duties exists;

providing appropriate avenues to enable staff and other stakeholders to report suspicions of fraud or irregularities.

These measures are set out in a fraud policy statement which is made available to all staff.

Housing (Rochdale)

Paul Rowen: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on future funding for the Rochdale and Oldham housing market renewal area. [48302]

Yvette Cooper: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has received the scheme update from the Oldham Rochdale pathfinder and are currently considering their proposals. Funding for 2006–07 and 2007–08 will be announced in due course.

Local Exchange Trading Systems

Mr. Drew: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what support his Department provides for local exchange trading systems. [41467]

Mr. Woolas: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister does not provide support for local exchange trading systems.

Lyons Inquiry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the likely total cost of the Lyons inquiry. [47880]

Mr. Woolas: The Lyons inquiry spent £239,565 in 2004 05. Following the extension to its remit announced on 20 September 2005, it has an estimated spend of £850,000 for 2005 06 and £950,000 for 2006 07.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) if he will place in the Library copies of the written submissions made by his Department to the Lyons inquiry into local government; [47881]

(2) whether (a) a Minister and (b) a civil servant from his Department has submitted a formal submission to the Lyons inquiry. [48156]

Mr. Woolas: The Lyons inquiry is independent of the Government. Sir Michael Lyons will decide what to publish when he makes available his final report.

Post Office/Shop Closures

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what information his Department collects on the closure of (a) post offices, (b) bank branches and (c) independent retail shops. [49420]

Mr. Woolas: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Hastings and Rye (Michael Jabez Foster) on 14 December 2005, Official Report, column 1963W.

Press Coverage

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister on how many occasions since 1 April 2003 he has complained to the Press Complaints Commission about the coverage in the press of (a) Ministers or officials and (b) his Office; and how many of these complaints were upheld. [47092]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Two. One was resolved.

Rates

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the average (a) council tax and (b) business rates bill, paid by a composite hereditament, was in England in the latest year for which figures are available. [49782]

Mr. Woolas: Details of the average (a) council tax and (b) business rates bill, paid by composite hereditaments, in England are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Regional Spatial Strategy

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will review the Regional Spatial Strategy for the East of England with reference to the merits of establishing a Stansted-Cambridge-Peterborough growth corridor. [49119]

Yvette Cooper: The growth potential of the London-Stansted-Cambridge area was identified as part of the previous Regional Planning Guidance for the wider South East in 2001. The Sustainable Communities Plan, "Sustainable Communities: Building for the Future", published February 2003, established the London-Stansted-Cambridge growth area, and it was extended to cover Peterborough in January 2004.

The draft East of England Regional Spatial Strategy was published by the East of England Regional Assembly in December 2004. Following public consultation, the draft Plan is currently subject to Examination in Public by an independent panel. Once Government receives the panel's report it will consider the recommendations, including any relating to the London-Stansted-Cambridge-Peterborough growth area.

TREASURY

Caparo Judgment

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will commission research into the impact of the Caparo judgment on audit quality. [49717]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have been asked to reply.

The Government have no plans to commission such research.

Climate Change Levy

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library the studies of the impact of the climate change levy produced by the Government Economic Service. [48917]

John Healey: The Government commissioned Cambridge Econometrics to carry out an independent evaluation of the climate change levy. Copies of the evaluation, "modelling the initial effects of the climate change levy" were published at Budget 2005, are available in the House of Commons Library and on www.hmrc.gov.uk. and its main findings are summarised in chapter 7 of the PBR 2005 report.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Government's assessment is of the impact of the climate change levy on carbon emissions; and how much of this impact it estimates is attributable to (a) the price effect and (b) other effects consequent upon its introduction. [48918]

John Healey: The Government commissioned Cambridge Econometrics to carry out an independent evaluation of the Climate Change Levy (CCL). This evaluation, "Modelling the initial effects of the climate change levy", concluded that the levy is effective and should save over 3.5 million tonnes of carbon per annum by 2010. In particular, Cambridge Econometrics concluded that the announcement effect of CCL in Budget 1999 will, in combination with the price effect, have reduced energy demand in the commerce and public sector by 14.6 per cent. by 2010. Cambridge Econometrics attribute most of the emissions savings to the announcement effect. However, because these two effects interact in CE's model, it is not possible to apportion precise carbon savings to either effect in isolation.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the impact of a 10 per cent. change in the climate change levy on carbon emissions after (a) six months and (b) three years. [48919]

John Healey: Based on historical price movement, it is estimated that an increase in CCL rates of 10 per cent. could reduce emissions by around 0.1 million tonnes of carbon per annum after three years. This excludes any announcement effect. No reliable estimates are available of the impact on carbon emissions after 6 months.

Consolidated Budget Guidance

Mr. Harper: To ask Mr Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to paragraph 333 of Consolidated Budget Guidance 2006–07, what arrangements his Department has agreed with the Ministry of Defence for the control of non-cash to near-cash switches; and what definition of near-cash he uses. [49766]

Mr. Des Browne: Near-cash in the MOD is defined in the same way as in other Departments except that it includes profit and loss on disposal and excludes the cash release from provisions. This definition was agreed at spending review. As part of the settlement, and to incentivise MOD to rationalise its asset base, MOD was provided with limited flexibility from 2006–07 to switch resources from non-cash to near-cash when non-cash savings are made which result from managed physical reductions in assets, or when non-cash savings result from management decisions to extend the life of an asset on value for money grounds.

Franked Investment Income

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the (a) net borrowing and (b) net taxes and national insurance contributions projections contained in the pre-Budget report make allowance for the forthcoming group litigation orders in the European Court of Justice on franked investment income tax rules. [49173]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Consistent with the Code for Fiscal Stability, the PBR projections take into account the fiscal effects of all firm decisions announced in the PBR or since Budget 2005. Also consistent with the Code, the PBR projections do not take account of circumstances where the impact could not be quantified at the time with reasonable accuracy. The PBR document made it clear that the Government would continue to robustly defend the corporation tax system against legal challenges under EU law.

Mesothelioma

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will list the 20 local authority areas with the highest male mesothelioma mortality levels in the last year for which figures are available; [46357]

(2) if he will list the 20 local authority areas with the highest female mesothelioma mortality levels in the last year for which figures are available; [46358]

(3) what the mortality rates from mesothelioma for (a) men and (b) women were in each London borough in the last year for which figures are available; [46359]

(4) what the number of deaths from mesothelioma for (a) men and (b) women in the UK was in the last year for which figures are available. [46361]

Mrs. McGuire: Mesothelioma mortality rates are not readily available for individual years. However, mortality rates for local and unitary authorities (UAs) relative to the rate for Great Britain as a whole are available for the period 1996–2000. Rates are not available for Northern Ireland.

For 1996–2000, the 20 local or unitary authorities with the highest levels of mortality for males, in order of statistical significance, are:

West Dunbartonshire UA
Barrow-In-Furness
South Tyneside
Plymouth UA
Sunderland
North Tyneside
Portsmouth UA
Barking and Dagenham
Medway UA
Southampton UA
Newcastle-Upon-Tyne
Gosport
Renfrewshire UA
Inverclyde UA
Eastleigh
Knowsley
Wirral
Hartlepool UA
Crewe and Nantwich
Glasgow City UA

Similarly, the 20 unitary or local authorities with the highest levels of mortality for females are:

Sunderland
Leeds
Swale
Kirklees
Barking and Dagenham
Cherwell
Castle Point
Glasgow City UA
Basildon
West Dunbartonshire UA
Eastleigh
Southampton UA
Erewash

Gedling
Medway UA
Southwark
Newham
Carlisle
North Tyneside
Hillingdon

Mesothelioma mortality rates for London boroughs relative to the rate for Great Britain as a whole for the period 1996–2000 for males and females are given in the following table. An area with a relative rate above 100 indicates a higher rate of mortality than for Great Britain as a whole; conversely an area with a rate below 100 has a lower rate than Great Britain as a whole.

HSE GB mesothelioma register

The number of mesothelioma deaths in Northern Ireland, hence the total for the UK, is not available by sex. There were 1,922 mesothelioma deaths in total in the UK in 2003 (the most recent year for which data are available). Of these, 1,874 deaths occurred in Great Britain, of which 1,591 were among males and 283 among females.

Property Valuation (Scotland)

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what public sector organisation is responsible for the valuation of domestic properties in Scotland for (a) inheritance tax and (b) capital gains tax purposes. [47864]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Valuation Office Agency, an executive agency of HMRC.

Tax Harmonisation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with EU counterparts on plans for tax harmonisation. [49382]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Government have made it clear that fair tax competition is the way forward for Europe, not proposals for tax harmonisation.

Vegetable Oils

Ms Abbott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the criteria are for classifying vegetable oils as (a) fuel substitutes and (b) bio-diesel. [48903]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Birmingham, Yardley (John Hemming) on 15 December 2005, Official Report, column 2265W.

Adam Price: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Government's policy is on the taxation of vegetable oil when used in (a) modified and (b) unmodified form as a vehicle fuel. [49200]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Birmingham, Yardley (John Hemming) on 15 December 2005, Official Report, column 2265W.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Afghanistan

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what contribution his Department will make to training of the Afghan National and Border police; and if he will make a statement. [49314]

Mr. Straw: Germany is responsible for co-ordinating international assistance to the Afghan Government's police reform programme. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) will continue to contribute to these programmes through the Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP), jointly funded by the Department for International Development, FCO and the Ministry of Defence. Since 2002, the GCPP Afghanistan Strategy has contributed over £4 million to support police reform. The Strategy is examining several proposals for supporting police reform in financial year 2006–07, including the provision of trainers to the Regional Training Centre in Kandahar and mentors and advisers to police chiefs and Ministry of Interior senior officials in Kabul and Helmand. It is also considering how best to support the development of border security, including through the Afghan Border Police. Additionally, the UK is considering providing resources, support and mentoring for the Counter-Narcotics Police of Afghanistan (CNPA) Provincial HQ in Lashkar Gah and to recruit, train and make operational a CNPA mobile detection team.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the composition will be of the Joint Co-ordination and Monitoring Board recommended in the Afghanistan Compact of 31st January 2006; what the UK's contribution will be to the board; and if he will make a statement. [49364]

Mr. Straw: The Government of Afghanistan and the United Nations are consulting with the international community on the composition of the Joint Co-ordination and Monitoring Board. We are very pleased that the Board is being established to facilitate co-ordination and monitoring in Kabul. We envisage a flexible and representative approach to its composition.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support his Department is providing to the Afghan Government to ensure establishment of (a) civil administration, (b) police, (c) prisons and (d) judiciary in the Afghan province of Helmand; and if he will make a statement. [49411]

Mr. Straw: As stated by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence in his statement to the House on 26 January 2006, Official Report, column 1529, the UK presence in Helmand will be

> "working to ensure that we provide Afghanistan with a seamless package of democratic, political, developmental and military assistance in Helmand".

Envisaged Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) led activity includes building capacity in governance, security, economic and social development and counter-narcotics fields. This will include support to the Governor of Helmand, training, mentoring and advice to the police and judicial authorities, and institutional development advice and mentoring for the counter-narcotics police. The Department for International Development (DFID) and HM Revenue and Customs will be pursuing other activities. Detailed planning continues and will be informed by the deployments to Lashkar Gah of FCO and DFID staff scheduled for March 2006. It will also be necessary to support capacity-building and institutional reform programmes in the central Ministries in Kabul, to ensure that Afghan Government programmes give suitable priority to Helmand.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what measures are in place to ensure the co-ordination of (a) military assistance, (b) non-military Government aid and (c) Government-funded work by non-governmental organisations with work of the Government of Afghanistan. [49793]

Hilary Benn: I have been asked to reply.

The Government of Afghanistan recently approved an Interim Afghanistan National Development Strategy (I-ANDS) which sets out priorities for poverty reduction and economic growth, security and governance. To improve co-ordination of development efforts, the Government and the international community have committed themselves to taking forward the Paris Declaration on aid effectiveness. The Afghanistan Compact, agreed by the Afghan Government and the international community at the London Conference on Afghanistan on 31 January, provides for the creation of a Joint Co-ordination and Monitoring Board to oversee all Afghan and international military and development assistance. This includes co-ordination of donor funds channelled through the Government, as well as work through non governmental organisations, in support of priorities set out in the Interim Afghanistan National Development Strategy.

There is a need for separate but coordinated military and development efforts. Military forces are primarily responsible for creating an enabling environment for development, leaving the Afghan Government and development agencies responsible for implementing development activities.

China

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of China on internet viruses and attempts through internet fraud that emanate from China to obtain confidential data from public and commercial bodies in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [49705]

Ian Pearson: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not raised this issue with the Chinese authorities.

Departmental Assets

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the items of departmental property worth over £100 that have been reported as (a) lost and (b) broken in the last 12 months. [47682]

Mr. Straw: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Ex-Prisoners of War

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions his Department has had since 2001 with the ex-Prisoners of War Association regarding compensation for British soldiers captured by Germany during the second world war who were subjected to forced labour. [48738]

Ian Pearson: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has not had discussions since 2001 with the ex-Prisoners of War Association regarding compensation for British soldiers held in Germany during the second world war.

The Government are satisfied that British servicemen detained as prisoners of war by the Germans do not fall within the category of forced labourers. A small number of British servicemen detained in Nazi concentration camps received compensation under a special fund paid for by the Germans in the 1960s to victims of Nazi ideology.

Freedom of Information Act

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what total sum has been received by his Department for the provision of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in its first year of operation. [48469]

Mr. Straw: Nothing.

Iran

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Government White Paper, Prospects for the European Union in 2006, what assessment he has made of the steps necessary to be taken at this stage by the UN Security Council in order to reinforce the authority of International Atomic Energy Agency resolutions regarding Iran; and if he will make a statement. [48708]

Dr. Howells: The purpose of involving the United Nations Security Council in the question of Iran's nuclear programme is to reinforce the authority of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), while leaving the door open for related diplomatic efforts and negotiations. Our objective is to ensure that both the Security Council, with its primary responsibility for matters of international peace and security, and the IAEA can contribute to the resolution of the issue within their competencies.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the European Initiative for Democracy and Human Rights spending on the promotion of human rights and the rule of law in Iran. [48749]

Dr. Howells: The EU has allocated around €4.4 million to projects in Iran under the European Initiative for Democracy and Human Rights. Three projects, to which the EU has allocated a total of €2.9 million, are implemented by UN agencies. A further €1 million project was launched in January 2005.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the capability of Iran to deliver nuclear weapons in the event of their being developed. [48824]

Dr. Howells: Iran claims that its Shabab 3 ballistic missiles are capable of reaching Israel. Information relating to Iran has been made available to the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) suggesting that Iran may be designing a missile re-entry vehicle which could have a military nuclear dimension. Iran has refused to address this information with the IAEA.

Mr. Ahmed Saardat

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the basis is for UK/US monitoring of the detention of Ahmed Saardat of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine; what assessment he has made of the reported declaration by Hamas that it would release Mr. Saardat; whether he plans to make changes in UK arrangements for the monitoring of this detention; and if he will make a statement. [47773]

Dr. Howells: Ahmed Saadat is one of the six Palestinian detainees held by the Palestinian Authority in Jericho as part of the 2002 Ramallah Agreement with Israel. The US/UK role is simply to monitor the terms of this agreement and to report any non-compliance. The Ramallah Agreement states that any changes in the status of the detainees should be agreed between Israel and the Palestinian Authority.

New Delhi Declaration

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made since the 2002 New Delhi Declaration in strengthening ties between the UK and India. [48399]

Dr. Howells: Britain's bilateral relations with India are stronger than they have ever been. India is and will continue to be a key strategic partner for this country. Since the 2002 New Delhi Declaration was signed, there has been a wide range of initiatives and two-way visits focused on developing this partnership. My right hon. Friend the Prime Ministers' Initiative, signed on 20 September 2004 during Manmohan Singh's visit to the UK, set out a new strategic partnership between the UK and India. The text of this is available at: http://www.britishhighcommission.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1101400864001. Under this rubric, the two Governments have established the Joint Economic and Trade Committee to remove blockages to bilateral trade and services. This met most recently at Secretary of State level at the end of January 2006. The same initiative established also the Economic and Financial Dialogue, inaugurated in February 2005 by the Chancellor of the Exchequer and his Indian opposite number.

My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister held a bilateral summit with Manmohan Singh in Delhi in September 2005. My right hon. Friend announced

£10 million funding for UK-India Education and Research initiative. He also announced an enhanced Air Services Agreement under which direct services between the UK and India will quadruple. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister was accompanied by a delegation of senior British CEOs.

The UK is conducting a major public diplomacy initiative in India, launched by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister in Delhi, to change perceptions of the UK and promote better understanding of our modern, innovative, integrated society. Other bodies active in promoting the bilateral relationship include the Indo British Partnership Network and the UK-India Round Table.

A detailed overview on the current state of Indo/UK relations is available at: http://www.britishhighcommission.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1017170902405

Palestinian Election

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications of the outcome of the recent Palestinian legislative elections for the European Commission and European Investment Bank's package to support economic regeneration in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. [48593]

Dr. Howells: We fully support the statements of the Quartet (EU, US, UN and Russia) and EU Foreign Ministers at the General Affairs and External Relations Council on 30 January. The Council concluded that it

> 'expects the newly elected Palestinian Legislative Council to support the formation of a Government committed to a peaceful and negotiated solution of the conflict with Israel based on existing agreements and the Roadmap as well as to the rule of law, reform and sound fiscal management. On this basis the European Union stands ready to continue to support Palestinian economic development and democratic state building.'

Pingat Jasa Medal

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions (a) he, (b) Ministers and (c) officials in his Department have held with Malaysian Government officials since September 2005 on the award of the Pingat Jasa medal; and if he will make a statement. [48210]

Mr. Straw: Neither I nor my ministerial colleagues have had any discussions on this subject with Malaysian Government officials since September 2005. The British high commissioner in Kuala Lumpur had discussions with senior Malaysian officials about the Pingat Jasa medal in September and October 2005. Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials had meetings with officials in the Malaysian high commission on 25 October, 18 November, 20 December 2005, and 1 February. There have also been several exchanges of correspondence and telephone calls between officials and members of the Malaysian high commission since September 2005.

My hon. Friend the Minister for Trade, Inward Investment and Foreign Affairs, Ian Pearson, made a written ministerial statement on the Pingat Jasa medal in this House on 31 January 2006, Official Report, column 11WS.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions (a) he and (b) his officials have had with the Royal British Legion on the wearing of the Pingat Jasa medal since September 2005. [48211]

Mr. Straw: Neither I nor my officials have had any discussions with the Royal British Legion on the wearing of the Pingat Jasa Malaysia medal.

Somalia

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the African Union on it launching a mission to Somalia. [49349]

Ian Pearson: Officials in Addis Ababa and Nairobi have had frequent discussions with their African Union (AU) contacts about a possible Peace Support Operation in Somalia, most recently on 31 January 2006.

The UN Security Council has welcomed the readiness of the AU to support the establishment of a functioning central Government in Somalia, including by possible deployment of a Peace Support Operation (PSO). The Council emphasised that a prerequisite for any PSO should be a detailed mission plan, endorsed by the Transitional Federal Institutions, on the basis of a national security and stabilisation plan, spelling out ceasefire arrangements, and the precise role of a PSO.

Sudan

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government has taken to make its financial support to the Government of Sudan conditional on a substantial and rapid decline in military spending; and if he will make a statement. [47629]

Mr. Straw: The Government continues to press Sudan to fully implement the Comprehensive Peace Agreement signed on 9 January 2005, which commits both the Sudanese Armed Forces and the Sudan People's Liberation Army to the downsizing of all their forces, following the completion of the comprehensive cease-fire agreements. We are supporting the World Bank in undertaking a public expenditure review which is examining military spending.

We have not linked our development and humanitarian assistance to the level of military spending by Sudan but have, for example, made clear that we will not proceed on areas such as debt relief until there has been a substantial improvement to the situation in Darfur.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in imposing targeted sanctions in Sudan; and if he will make a statement. [47635]

Mr. Straw: The Panel of Experts established under UN Security Council Resolution 1591 presented their report and recommendations to the Sanctions Committee on 23 December 2005. Discussions on the Panel's recommendations, including on the imposition of sanctions on individuals, continue in the Sanctions Committee in New York. We are pressing for swift action on the Panel's recommendations.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what direct support his Department has provided to the government of Sudan to improve policing in the Darfur region; and if he will make a statement. [47636]

Mr. Straw: The UK has contributed six police experts to the EU's civilian policing mission to the African Union mission in Darfur (AMIS), including the EU appointed Police Head of Mission. These experts are based in Darfur and at the AU HQ in Addis Ababa; their role is to help build civilian policing capacity, through support to the chain of command, pre-deployment training and training courses for trainers. These experts also assist AMIS civilian police in their role working alongside Government of Sudan police in Darfur.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with colleagues in (a) NATO and (b) the UN on supplementing the African Union Mission in Sudan. [49348]

Ian Pearson: We have regular discussions with both NATO and the UN on supporting the African Union Mission in Darfur (AMIS). NATO continues to do so through the provision of training, capacity building and airlift such as the troop rotation currently in progress. The United Nations Mission in Sudan (UNMIS) liaises closely with AMIS and has undertaken joint activities on the ground in Darfur, such as training in policing and operational planning. We welcome the African Union's (AU) decision at the 12 January Peace and Security Council expressing support in principle to handing over its monitoring mission in Darfur to the UN. We will continue to encourage both the UN and NATO to cooperate closely with the AU to promote stability and security in Darfur.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his EU counterparts on the effectiveness of the African Union force in Darfur; and if he will make a statement. [47627]

Mr. Straw: We regularly discuss the African Union (AU) Mission in Sudan (AMIS) with our EU counterparts. The UK and other international partners, including the EU, also recently participated in a joint assessment mission with the AU to examine the effectiveness of AMIS. We believe that AMIS does a good job in difficult circumstances, but have made clear that we stand ready to help the AU implement the recommendations of the assessment mission's report and further improve the effectiveness of the mission.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with counterparts in (a) NATO and (b) African Union member countries regarding the expiry of the African Union's mandate in Darfur in March. [47628]

Mr. Straw: We welcome the African Union's (AU) decision at the 12 January Peace and Security Council (PSC) expressing support in principle to handing over its monitoring mission in Darfur (AMIS) to the UN. The PSC recommended that this decision be approved by AU Foreign Ministers before the end of the current AMIS mandate in March 2006. We regularly discuss AMIS with NATO and AU member countries, and are pressing the AU to convene the Foreign Ministers meeting as soon as possible. AMIS's mandate will need to be further extended even if there is firm agreement that the United Nations should take over the force, as time will be required to prepare for handover.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what practical assistance his Department has given to the African Union mission in Darfur; and if he will make a statement. [47637]

Mr. Straw: The UK has committed £19 million funding this financial year to the African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS). This brings our total contribution to AMIS, since its inception, to almost £32 million. We are using this money to provide equipment including the purchase of a further 460 vehicles in addition to our original 450, as well as military and civilian policing advice, expertise and training. Some of our contribution has also funded airlift of troops into Darfur, and further troop rotation this year. The UK will continue to support AMIS during its deployment, and the AU-led mediation of the Abuja peace talks on Darfur.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will give local communities a formal means of (a) requesting and (b) monitoring whether action is taken against antisocial behaviour. [48357]

Hazel Blears: The Government recognise that tackling antisocial behaviour is not the responsibility of police and local authorities alone but acting with other key agencies in partnership together. To tackle such behaviour effectively, local agencies need to listen to, act upon community concerns and priorities and report back on what has been done.

The Police and Justice Bill, contains provisions for the Community Call for Action which was first announced in the Police Reform White Paper. This is a way for local communities to demand a response from agencies to persistent local community safety or antisocial behaviour problems, via an approach to their ward councillor. The Bill extends the remit of local authority overview and scrutiny committees to consider community safety issues, and the councillor will be able to refer particularly difficult matters raised in this way to the committee. Crime and disorder reduction partnerships will have to respond to any report of the scrutiny committee, and to explain any decision not to take action.

Asylum/Immigration

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 30 January (PQ31458), how many of the 5,385 principal asylum applicants considered on another Family ILR application were granted indefinite leave to remain; and how many dependants of these principal applicants have also been granted indefinite leave to remain in each of the last three years. [48288]

Mr. McNulty: The requested information is not available. This could be obtained only at disproportionate cost by examination of individual case records.

Information on asylum applications and initial decisions are published quarterly and annually. Copies are available from the Library of the House and on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate website at http://homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the latest Quarterly Bulletin of Statistics, how many dependants there are in respect of (a) the 9,390 main applicants awaiting an initial examination and (b) the 11,895 main applicants awaiting a decision under the family indefinite leave to remain exercise of 24 October 2003. [48463]

Mr. McNulty: The requested Information is not available. One of the aims of the one-off exercise is to reconcile records held on older family applications. While good information is often held on main applicants, up-to-date data on their dependants is frequently missing.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the latest Quarterly Bulletin of Statistics, how many of the 4,430 applicants found to be ineligible under the family indefinite leave to remain exercise of 24 October 2003 have subsequently (a) had an asylum application granted, (b) had an asylum claim refused, (c) otherwise been granted leave to remain in the UK and (d) been removed from the UK. [48465]

Mr. McNulty: The requested Information is not available. This could be obtained only at disproportionate cost by examination of individual case records.

Information on asylum applications and initial decisions are published quarterly and annually. Copies are available from the Library of the House and on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate website at: http://homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of the applicants under the Government's family indefinite leave to remain exercise of 24 October 2003 have been identified as being the subject of a possible third country removal; and how many of them have subsequently been removed to a third country. [48466]

Mr. McNulty: The requested Information is not available. This could be obtained only at disproportionate cost by examination of individual case records.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the latest Quarterly Bulletin of Statistics, what the main reasons were for refusal of the 7,405 refused applicants under the Government's family indefinite leave to remain exercise of 24 October 2003; and how many of these applicants subsequently (a) had an asylum application granted, (b) had an asylum application refused, (c) were otherwise granted leave to remain and (d) were removed from the UK. [48467]

Mr. McNulty: Over the last six months, the reasons for refusal under the exercise are given in the following table.

This information is based on internal management information and as such is not published within the official statistics.

Regarding subsequent decisions on applicants who have been refused under the exercise, the requested Information is not available. This could be obtained only at disproportionate cost by examination of individual case records.

Information on asylum applications and initial decisions are published quarterly and annually. Copies are available from the Library of the House and on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the implications of the political instability in the Ivory Coast for his policy of repatriation of Ivorian asylum seekers; and if he will make a statement. [48742]

Mr. McNulty: Asylum decision-makers take into account the human rights situation in the country of origin of each asylum applicant when making a decision on an asylum claim. Every effort is made to establish each individual applicant's personal circumstances and full basis of claim before a final decision is made.

We continuously monitor the situation in all asylum intake countries including the Ivory Coast taking into account information from a wide range of recognised and respected governmental and non-governmental organisation sources as well as current news reports. We will continue to monitor the situation in Ivory Coast but there is currently no indication that conditions are such that we should change our policy of seeking to remove those who have been found, on an individual assessment, have no protection needs or other basis of stay in the United Kingdom.

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers whose applications were refused since 1992 were originally from (a) Afghanistan, (b) Kosovo, (c) Iraq, (d) European Community states, (e) European Accession states, (f) Latin America, (g) Asia and (h) Africa. [49091]

Mr. McNulty: The following table show refusals of asylum at initial decision for nationals of Afghanistan, Kosovo, Iraq, EU Accession states (excludes Malta), Americas (includes small numbers from USA and Canada), Far East and Africa from 1992 to September 2005 where available. It is impossible to determine whether these nationals were originally from these countries or areas.

Refusals of asylum for nationals of EU countries (prior to the inclusion of the EU Accession states in May 2004) could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Information on asylum initial decisions is published quarterly and annually. Copies are available from the Library of the House and on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Immigration and Nationality Directorate, Home Office, Asylum Statistics

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) asylum and (b) immigration applications were outstanding on 2 May 1997. [49070]

Mr. McNulty: The Immigration and Nationality Directorate does not publish data on historical Immigration backlogs but I can confirm that the number of asylum applications awaiting initial decision as at the end of April 1997 was 54,020.

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department by what percentage asylum applications have changed in each year since 1992. [49073]

Mr. McNulty: The following table shows asylum applications, excluding dependants, from 1992 to 2004 including the percentage change from the previous year.

Information on asylum applications is published quarterly and annually. Copies are available from the Library of the House and on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate website at http://homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum applications were refused in each year since 1992. [49094]

Mr. McNulty: Information on asylum applications and initial decisions are published quarterly and annually. Copies are available from the Library of the House and on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate website at http://homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applicants have been granted indefinite leave to remain in the UK for each year since 1992, broken down by country of origin. [49098]

Mr. McNulty: The latest published information on persons granted indefinite leave to remain in the United Kingdom by nationality is shown in the annual command paper "Control of Immigration: Statistics United Kingdom,2004". Copies are available from the Library of the House and on the Home Office website:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

British Citizenship Test

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which (a) Ministers and (b) section of his Department are responsible for making the arrangements for the provision of British citizenship tests. [49678]

Mr. McNulty: As Minister for Immigration, Citizenship and Nationality this falls within my remit. The Immigration and Nationality Directorate's Social Policy Unit oversees arrangements for citizenship testing in conjunction with the Nationality Group.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average waiting time was for a British citizenship test in the most recent period for which figures are available. [49679]

Mr. McNulty: The average waiting time for a citizenship test is currently less than two weeks. Under the terms of their service level agreement with Immigration and Nationality Directorate, Ufi are required to offer 80 percent. of candidates an appointment to take the life in the UK test within four weeks of their initial request and 98 percent. within eight weeks.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the extent to which the capacity for British citizenship tests is sufficient to meet the demand. [49680]

Mr. McNulty: An initial assessment of the necessary testing capacity, based on the published statistics for persons seeking British citizenship, was made prior to the introduction of tests on 1 November 2005. An appropriate number and geographical spread of test centres was identified and their ability to meet demand is constantly monitored. So far, there have been no reports of test centres failing to meet their target of offering 80 percent. of candidates an initial test date within four weeks and 98 percent. within eight weeks of their request.

Charles Munyaneza

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) for what reasons Charles Munyaneza was granted refugee status and unlimited leave to remain in the UK; [48208]

(2) if he will reconsider the granting of unlimited leave for Charles Munyaneza to remain in the UK. [48207]

Mr. McNulty: It is not our policy to comment on individual cases and I cannot therefore provide information on the specific details of this case.

Child Protection

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many (a) children and (b) adults have been charged with the offence of making and possessing indecent images of a child under the age of 18 years under section 1(1) (1A) of the Protection of Children Act 1999 in each year since 2000; [48189]

(2) how many adults have been charged with the offence of making and possessing indecent images of a child under the age of 18 years under section 1(1) (1A)

of the Protection of Children Act 1999, in households where children have been charged for the same offence, in each year since 2000. [48190]

Paul Goggins: Data on the number of adults and juveniles proceeded against at magistrates courts for offences related to the making and possession of indecent images of a child under the age of 18 years in England and Wales for the years 2000 to 2004, are provided in the following table. It is not possible to identify whether defendants live in households where children have been charged with the same offence as the circumstances of the defendants are not centrally collected.

Data for 2005 will be available in the autumn of 2006.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts for offences related to the possessing or making indecent images of children, by age group, England and Wales, 2000-04

Correspondence

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the letter of 5 September 2005, from the hon. Member for Aylesbury to the Minister for Immigration, Citizenship and Nationality about the case of Mr. S. S. of Aylesbury (reference S1081532; MI4464/5). [49197]

Mr. McNulty: I wrote to the hon. Gentleman on 7 February.

Criminal Records Bureau

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what factors determine the amount of time taken by the Criminal Records Bureau to process (a) an enhanced and (b) a standard check. [48693]

Andy Burnham: The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) aims to complete all disclosure applications within the shortest time possible, but recognise that there may be some applications which take longer than others to complete. Factors that may influence the time taken to process applications include, but are not restricted to, incomplete or inaccurate application forms that require further information from the applicant or counter-signatory; the existence of criminal record information or other relevant non-conviction information and, for enhanced disclosures, the performance of disclosure units within police forces.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how long on average it took to complete an enhanced Criminal Records Bureau check in the last period for which figures are available; [48694]

(2) what proportion of standard Criminal Record Bureau checks were processed within two weeks in 2005; [48695]

(3) what proportion of enhanced Criminal Record Bureau checks were processed within four weeks in 2005. [48696]

Andy Burnham: Data concerning the average time taken to complete a disclosure are not a performance target and are not routinely collated by the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB). However, the bureau has calculated that during 2005 it took on average 31.5 days to complete all enhanced disclosures; although this figure does include time out with the customer, where applications were returned for correction or clarification. In such circumstances the CRB cannot control when an application will be returned in a fit condition to be completed.

The CRB operates to a set of published service standards (PSS), which are to process 93 per cent. of standard disclosure applications within two weeks and 90 per cent. of enhanced disclosure applications within four weeks. The proportion of standard checks completed within PSS was 99.4 per cent. and the proportion of enhanced checks completed within PSS was 85.5 per cent.

For enhanced disclosures, CRB are expected to complete their part of the checking process in 90 per cent. of cases in 12 days before referring these applications to local police forces for them to complete their part of the checking process against local intelligence databases. The CRB has consistently exceeded its targets in processing disclosures up to the point at which they are referred to police forces. In December 2005, the latest period for which information is available, CRB processed 95.8 per cent. of valid enhanced applications to the police within six days of receipt. This has provided forces with considerably more time to complete their checks within the PSS.

In 2005, the bureau received 293,615 standard disclosures and 2,443,207 enhanced disclosures.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of (a) standard and (b) enhanced Criminal Records Bureau checks were failed during 2005. [48698]

Andy Burnham: The information requested by my hon. Friend is not available from the Criminal Records Bureau. It is solely a matter for a recruiting organisation to determine whether information revealed on a standard or enhanced disclosure indicates that an individual is unsuitable for a position.

However, a CRB-commissioned MORI customer research programme showed that in 2004, over 20,000 unsuitable people were prevented from gaining access to children or vulnerable adults, as a direct result of CRB checks. Many more unsuitable people were deterred from applying to work with children and the vulnerable as a direct result of a requirement for a CRB check.

Detention Centres

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people held in detention centres have died from (a) AIDS, (b) tuberculosis and (c) hepatitis since 2000. [49866]

Mr. McNulty: Since 2000, no one in immigration detention has died from these illnesses.

DNA Profiles

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 16 January 2006, Official Report, columns 1111–12W, on DNA profiles, how many people over the age of 18 are on the DNA database who have never been charged or cautioned; and if he will make a statement. [45931]

Andy Burnham: On 1 December 2005, there were 124,347 persons on the national DNA database who had been arrested and had a DNA sample taken and who had subsequently not been charged or cautioned for any offence. Of these, 100,179 persons were over the age of 18 and 24,168 were under 18 years of age.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 16 January 2006, Official Report, columns 1111–12W, on DNA profiles, if he will break down the 24,000 cases by constabulary. [45932]

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department why DNA profiles collected from those arrested but not charged of any offence are retained. [49663]

Andy Burnham: Taking a DNA sample (and fingerprints) from someone who has been arrested for a Recordable offence and detained in a police station is now part of the normal process within a police Custody Suite. It is no different to recording other forms of information such as photographs, witness statements etc.

Early research has shown that sampling persons who have been arrested but not proceeded against has yielded a match with a crime scene in over 3,000 offences. These links may never have been made had the police not been given powers to take and retain samples on arrest. Retention of the DNA profile on the National DNA Database may prove to be vitally important in the event of that person committing a crime in the future.

Identity Cards/Verification

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proposed powers in the Identity Cards Bill he plans to use to facilitate data sharing between the identity card database and other public sector databases. [44102]

Andy Burnham: The Identity Cards Bill includes provisions in clause 11 to enable information to be required from public sector or other organisations to validate National Identity Register entries. The Bill also allows for information to be provided from the National Identity Register to public sector or other organisations under clause 14, with the individual's consent, and to public authorities under clause 17 for identity checks as a condition of the provision of public services and under clauses 19 to 23, without the individual's consent, for specified purposes such as the prevention or detection of crime. Apart from the provision of information with consent under clause 14, and unless named on the face of the Bill, the particular public authority will need the approval of Parliament via secondary legislation.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 19 July 2005, Official Report, column 1610W, on identity cards, what level of risk has been identified through his Department's consultations on methods of fooling biometric readers; what has been learnt from his communication with other schemes that are using biometrics with identity cards; and what types of biometrics are used by those other schemes. [50323]

Andy Burnham: There is a broad consensus arising from reviews of reputable scientific literature, consultations with anti-fraud and biometric experts as well as communication with other biometrics schemes. It indicates that supervision of the enrolment process and the implementation of anti-spoofing technologies can counter the "spoofing" of a biometric which in any case is very difficult to achieve. Furthermore, these consultations also indicate that the use of multiple biometrics, as envisaged in the Identity Card Scheme, will provide further protection.

As noted in the answer of 19 July 2005, the Identity Card Scheme will have a supervised enrolment process and the systems proposed by the various manufacturers during procurement, to meet the scheme requirements, will be rigorously tested to ensure risks from fake biometrics are adequately mitigated. Work with experts and other schemes to counter such threats will continue through this process. Such issues will also be independently scrutinised in order for the Scheme to achieve official security accreditation.

The Scheme is consulting with biometric identity card and border control schemes that use, or propose to use, facial, fingerprint or iris biometrics as part of their operations.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with EU counterparts on the development of biometric passports and identity cards; and what representations have been made by (a) business and (b) IT companies on security issues in relation to mechanisms for identity verification. [49342]

Andy Burnham: The security of EU travel documents and passports is an important issue and there have been a number of discussions with EU counterparts on the matter. The UK has participated regularly in discussions with member states in EU working and technical groups concerning the development of biometric passports.

The Council regulation on standards for security features and biometrics in passports and travel documents issued by member states requires biometric facial identifiers to be included in passports by August 2006. It is anticipated that the Council will shortly make a decision on the date from which biometric fingerprints should also be included in passports.

The UK has been excluded from the regulation but we are mirroring the provision and challenging our exclusion in the European Court of Justice. The Home Office has not received any representations from IT companies or businesses on mechanisms for identity verification in regard to e-passports. Identity cards have been discussed at bi-lateral meetings with Justice and Interior Ministers of several EU states. In December 2005 the Justice and Home Affairs Council, acting intergovernmentally, adopted Council Conclusions on common minimum security standards for national identity cards which encompass the inclusion of biometric identifiers. The Identity Cards Programme has held individual meetings with over 90 commercial organisations during the course of consultations and market sounding on ID cards, and has engaged with many more organisations at conferences and other market events. These interactions have been carried out in accordance with procurement guidelines and best practice established by the Office for Government Commerce and most have been facilitated through working with Intellect, a UK based ICT trade association with over 1,000 members. Most of these organisations have commented in some way on security aspects of the scheme and several have commented on more specific operational and technology issues including security issues related to identification and verification. In particular, in October 2004 the programme ran a seminar specifically on verification issues and in December 2004 ran a seminar on security. Both of these seminars would have included representations on security issues related to verification. The seminars were hosted by Intellect. There were 35 commercial organisations represented at the verification event and 51 at the security event. A list of those represented is as follows:

Illegal Immigration

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government is taking in (a) Romford and (b) Havering to combat illegal immigration; and if he will make a statement. [48556]

Mr. McNulty: Operations are undertaken targeting those who are working here illegally.

Operations are intelligence led. Any information received concerning Romford and the borough of Havering is considered according to priorities and operations set up as necessary.

Immigration and Nationality Directorate

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to allocate a caseworker to the immigration application of Mr. M. P. B. of Aylesbury (reference B1082715). [47633]

Mr. McNulty: Mr M. P. B. was granted discretionary leave to remain in this country for an initial period of three years on 2 February.

Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Bill

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the potential effect of the provisions of the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Bill on the availability of low-skilled workers in the UK. [49433]

Mr. McNulty: The Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Bill is not directly concerned with regulating the admission of migrant workers. The Home Office has prepared regulatory impact assessments in respect of the Bill and these have been placed in the Library of the House. The Government have recently undertaken a consultation exercise on its proposals to introduce a point-based system to manage economic migration to the UK, including the admission of migrants to fill vacancies at low-skill levels. The Government's response to that consultation exercise will be published in due course.

IMPACT System

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Impact police intelligence system is due to come into service. [48303]

Hazel Blears: The Impact programme remains on course to deliver a national police information sharing capability over the course of the next five years, as set out in the second progress report on the Bichard Inquiry recommendations published in November last year. The first deliverable—the Impact Nominal Index—was made available in a Child Abuse Investigation Unit in each force in England and Wales on 23 December 2005.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent on the national police intelligence system, Impact. [48165]

Hazel Blears: Including spend by PITO during 2004–05, expenditure on the Impact programme to the end of December 2005 totalled £17.2 million.

Methylamphetamine

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he has taken to control access to the precursors of methamphetamine. [49295]

Paul Goggins: In November 2005 the Advisory Council on the misuse of drugs (ACMD) produced its report on methylamphetamine which included recommendations to control precursors of methylamphetamine.

The ACMD recommended that the precursor chemicals red phosphorus and hydroiodic acid are added to the European drug precursor Legislation.

I have accepted the recommendations in full and we are currently considering how to take these recommendations forward.

Ephedrine and pseudoephedrine are already controlled under European drug precursor legislation.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the street names by which methamphetamine is known. [49297]

Paul Goggins: The report on methylamphetamine by the Advisory Council on the misuse of drugs published in November 2005 identifies a number of street names used for the drug including:

Crystal Ice
GlassTina
Christine Meth
Crank Crystal
Nazi crank

In Thailand the substance is sometimes called Yaba ("crazy drug"), and Shabu in Philippines.

The ACMD methylamphetamine report can be downloaded from www.drugs.gov.uk via the ACMD web pages.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what advice he has received from the police on the classification of methylamphetamine. [49294]

Paul Goggins: Two representatives of the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) are full members of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs and contribute their expertise and knowledge of policing issues to the council.

One such representative was a member during ACMD's consideration of methylamphetamine, and was closely involved in, and supportive of, the recommendations made to the Government in the council's report. In addition, I am aware that ACPO are closely monitoring the situation regarding methylamphetamine in the UK and we will continue to seek the views of the police wherever appropriate.

National Asylum Support Service

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he next plans to review the work of the National Asylum Support Service. [48669]

Mr. McNulty: An independent review was held into the operation of the National Asylum Support Service in early 2003. The implementation of the review's recommendations has been overseen by a steering group chaired by the director general of the Immigration and Nationality Department. The National Audit Office's report on 'The Provision of Accommodation for Asylum Seekers', published on 7 July 2005, identified improvements which had been made by NASS.

There are no plans for a further review of the kind undertaken in 2003.

Police Finance (Hertfordshire)

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost was at current prices of policing per head of population in Hertfordshire in (a) 1997–98, (b) 2004–05 and (c) 2005–06; and how much of this funding came from (i) council tax, (ii) police grant, (iii) national business rate, (iv) revenue support grant and (v) other funding sources in each year. [44393]

Hazel Blears: The information is set out in the table. The figures are not directly comparable because in April 2000 the area covered by the Hertfordshire police authority was increased as a result of a boundary change with the Metropolitan Police area.

We do not distribute grant to police authorities purely on the basis of population. The police funding formula uses a range of socio-demographic data to reflect reasonably the relative needs of each authority. Grant allocations also take into account the relative resources of each authority. Grant allocations are stabilised by damping changes to limit year-on-year variations.

1. Real terms at 2004–05 prices using GDP deflator at 23 December 2005.
2. Approximately half the 'Other' funding for 2004–05 and 2005–06 is from Home Office specific grants.

Police Force Reconfiguration

Mr. Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether (a) his Department and (b) the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is responsible for examining the impact of police force mergers in Norfolk on the system of police funding; and if he will make a statement. [38865]

Hazel Blears: A working group led by my Department with participation from the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, the Welsh Assembly Government, HM Treasury and police representative bodies has been established to examine the financial aspects of reorganisation, including the impact of restructuring on budgets, grant and council tax.

Prisons

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average daily sum spent by the Prison Service was on feeding adult (a) male and (b) female prisoners and (i) male and (ii) female prisoners in young offenders institutions in the last year for which figures are available. [43583]

Fiona Mactaggart: For 2004–05, the latest period for which data are available, the average public sector Prison Service daily food cost for adult males was £1.79.

For male prisoners held in Young Offender Institutions (YOIs) the figure was £2.26. The average figure for all female prisoners was £2.16. It is not possible to separately identify food costs for female adult and female young offenders as they are held in the same establishments. The differentiation in costs between adult males and male prisoners in YOIs mainly reflects the general recognition that young people require more vitamins and protein to ensure healthy growth.

Respect Agenda

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the implementation of the Government's Respect Agenda will affect the number of police working in Romford. [48553]

Hazel Blears: As part of the Respect Agenda, the Government have committed that, by 2008, every area will benefit from its own neighbourhood policing team. The Respect Agenda also supports the increase in number of PCSOs so that by 2008 there will be over 24,000 which will make a significant difference to policing in our communities. The Metropolitan police will benefit from the increase in PCSOs. The deployment of police officers to Romford is an operational matter for the Havering Borough Commander. The workforce total for the borough is determined annually by the Commissioner, subject to the budget set for the force by the Mayor of London.

Security Industry

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what estimate the Security Industry Authority (SIA) has made of the cost of the security industry regulation to be delivered by the SIA; [26181]

(2) whether the Security Industry Authority has selected and is training eight assessment bodies to operate option four of the Approved Contractor Scheme as detailed in the Partial Regulatory Impact Assessment; [26183]

(3) what the key criteria will be upon which the selection of an Approved Contractor Scheme for the private security industry will be based. [26184]

Paul Goggins: The private security industry has invested approximately £400 million in meeting the requirements of the Government regulations under the Private Security Industry Act 2001 (PSIA).

A Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA) on the Approved Contractor Scheme (ACS) went out to consultation on 25 August 2005 until 17 November (a period of 12 weeks). The SIA continued working to be ready to proceed with four options under the RIA included in the consultation. This work included a meeting with eight potential assessing bodies.

Following analysis of the responses received from the RIA, Paul Goggins announced, on 12 January, that the Government had decided to introduce an Approved Contractor Scheme which would comprise elements of Options 3 and 4. Option 3 would require companies to possess one or more of a list of specified existing standards, and Option 4, would introduce a new standard defined by the Security Industry Authority. Further details about the shape of the scheme will be announced in due course.

The estimated cost to the private security industry to implement a combination of Options 3 and 4 of the Approved Contractor Scheme ranges from between £2.0 million to £2.6 million per annum.

Special Branch

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what review of the size and structure of Special Branch he (a) has undertaken and (b) plans to undertake. [44708]

Hazel Blears: The substantive resource allocation, in terms of staffing and associated costs, to Special Branch is the responsibility of Chief Officers in each force. The role of the National Co-ordinator of Special Branch is to set and promulgate Special Branch policy, set standards and codes of practice for Special Branch activity and quality assure its work nationally. As part of his role, the National Co-ordinator reviews and monitors the size and structure of Special Branches.

Following the publication of the HMIC Thematic Inspection Report in 2003, Regional Intelligence Cells (RICs) were established and are now operating in all of the ACPO regions. More recently, the 'Closing the Gap' report by Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary recommended that the creation of strategic forces offered the best means for providing the Police Service with the necessary capacity and resilience to meet the threats posed by terrorism and organised crime.

Work Permits

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many work permits were granted through the Highly Skilled Migrant Programme in each of the last 10 years. [48604]

Mr. McNulty: The following table provides detail of the numbers of approvals under the Highly Skilled Migrant Programme (HSMP) for each calendar year since the programme was launched in January 2002. These approvals allow individuals to apply either for leave to enter or leave to remain in the United Kingdom as highly skilled migrants.

	Number
2002	1,180
2003	3,695
2004	7,515
2005	17,635
Total	30,025

Note:
This data are not provided under national statistics protocols. They have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change. Figures have been rounded up to the nearest 5.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individual work permits were issued in (a) 2003, (b) 2004 and (c) 2005; how many of these were (i) long-term permits of a year or more duration and (ii) short-term permits; how many of the short-term permits were in respect of the sector-based schemes; and how many (A) long-term and (B) short-term permits were issued to people who were already residing in the UK. [48758]

Mr. McNulty: The total number of individual work permits issued in 2003, 2004 and 2005 is set out in table 1. Also included is the number of these permits issued with a fixed expiry date. It is not possible to determine the duration of these permits.

The number of individual work permits issued in 2003, 2004 and 2005, for a period of a year or more and a period of less than a year, is set out in table 2. Also included is the number of Sectors Based Scheme (SBS) permits issued for a period of less than a year. These figures exclude any permits issued to a fixed expiry date.

The number of individual work permits issued to people already in the UK in 2003, 2004 and 2005, for a period of a year or more and a period of less than a year is set out in table 3. Also included is the number of permits issued to people already in the UK that were issued to a fixed expiry date where it is not possible to determine how long they were issued for.

(This data is not provided under National Statistics protocols. It has been derived from local management information and is therefore provisional and subject to change.)

Worker Registration Scheme

Mr. Davidson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the number of workers from EU accession countries who are working within the United Kingdom but are not registered under the Worker Registration Scheme; on what basis he made the calculation of this figure; and if he will make a statement. [47661]

Mr. McNulty: If an accession state worker (those from Poland, Hungary, the Czech Republic, Slovakia, Slovenia, Estonia, Lithuania and Latvia) works in a job in the UK for 30 days or more, he or she is required to register on the Workers Registration Scheme (WRS) in order to be lawfully employed.

However, all European Economic Area (EEA) nationals have a right of free movement and residence in the United Kingdom. Accession state nationals are not subject to immigration control, and if they are working for less than 30 days, have no requirement to register with the scheme.

This means that an accession state national can be legally working in the UK without registration.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

British Beef Exports

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects the EU to vote to lift the ban on the export of British beef; and for what reasons the ban has not been lifted thus far. [49188]

Mr. Bradshaw: The European Commission's formal proposal to lift the ban is being considered by the Standing Committee on the Food Chain and Animal Health (SCoFCAH). Provided there is no significant opposition, the Commission has promised to put its proposal to a vote at SCoFCAH on 8 March 2006. The earliest that the lifting of the ban could take place is mid-April.

Previously, the Commission made clear that discussions on lifting the ban could only take place once the UK had satisfied two criteria. First, securing a reduction in the incidence of BSE below 200 cases per million adult cattle. Secondly, achieving a favourable outcome to the inspection of our BSE controls in June 2005 by the EU Food and Veterinary Office (FVO). The European Food Safety Authority (EFSA) confirmed, in March 2005, that the incidence of disease had declined sufficiently. And a satisfactory FVO mission report was published on 28 September 2005. Accordingly, the Commission opened discussions with member states on lifting the ban in November 2005, and made a formal written proposal in January 2006.

Carbon Emissions

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of the displacement of carbon emissions has been achieved through the introduction of energy efficiency measures in each year since 1997. [44788]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 23 January 2006]: An exercise has been carried for the household sector, for the period 1970 to 2001. The carbon changes are subject to a "decomposition analysis" into seven factors, two efficiency ones—reduced losses from the building envelope, and improved heating system efficiency—and five others which drive emissions both up and down—household numbers, level of energy service demand (e.g. for comfort, hot water), external temperature, the carbon intensity of grid electricity, and fuel switching by households. The changes are presented in terms of tonnes of carbon rather than shares of the net change. The results for the three decades are shown graphically, for each complete decade, to illustrate the longer term effects of the different factors, and eliminate the shorter term annual fluctuations. The table gives the annual changes from 1997 to 2001. The graph will be placed in the Library.

Defra is currently completing a separate exercise to develop energy efficiency indicators for the household sector, and plans to use these, together with decomposition analysis, to report in more detail on the achievements of its various policies. Comparable work on indicators for the Industry and Services sectors is also under way but at a less advanced stage since energy use is much more complex, and energy efficiency technical measures more numerous, than in the household sector.

Components of carbon emission change (MtC)

Between years	Household growth	Level of service	External temperature	Building envelope heat loss	Heating system efficiency	Electricity Supply Industry factors	Other carbon factor changes	Total
1997–98	0.32	1.03	-0.35	-0.08	-0.24	-0.17	0.78	1.30
1998–99	0.35	1.02	0.56	-0.08	-0.81	-0.10	-1.47	-0.51
1999–2000	0.24	1.02	0.03	-0.67	-0.50	-0.13	0.47	0.46
2000–01	0.25	1.06	0.82	-0.76	-0.59	+1.42	1.02	3.22

Cattle Movements

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many animals have been involved in incidents of non-compliance with cattle movement orders since 2001; where these incidents occurred; and how many animals were involved in each case; [48597]

(2) what the percentage rate of compliance has been with the cattle movement order since 2001. [48598]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 6 February 2006]: A full breakdown of information on incidents of non-compliance is not available without disproportionate cost.

However, 10 per cent. of all cattle holdings are inspected every year to ensure compliance with the requirements for cattle identification and reporting of movements set out in EC Regulation No 1760/2000 (implemented in domestic law by the Cattle Identification Regulations 1998 as amended).

The results of these inspections are reported annually to the EU Commission. The following table provides the results of inspections between 2002–03 and 2004–05. The inspection programme for 2001–02 was halted because of the foot and mouth disease outbreak.

Percentage

	Rates of non-compliance overall	Rates of non-compliance with cattle movement requirements
2002–03	13.54	3.36
2003–04	14.54	3.61
2004–05	10.49	2.75

These figures are based on the total number of non-compliance incidents divided by the number of cattle that have been inspected. Some animals will be the source of more than one instance of non-compliance.

In addition to these inspections, local authorities also undertake inspections of markets, hauliers and farms each year as part of their duty to enforce the cattle identification regulations. The results of these inspections are not held centrally.

Guidance is available to keepers on the cattle identification and movement recording requirements. The British Cattle Movement Service has a national helpline to answer queries from keepers. Our enforcement authorities are active in correcting non-compliance whenever it is found, and co-operate fully with one another.

Civil Servants (Overseas Visits)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what costs were incurred by her Department as a result of sending civil servants on overseas visits in each of the last 10 years. [46284]

Jim Knight: It is the policy of DEFRA, its agencies, non-departmental public bodies and, where appropriate, its sponsored organisations to make financial redress in accordance with the guidance set out in Chapter 18.7 and Annexes 18.1 and 18.2 of Government Accounting.

Officials within the Department can confirm that all travel complied with the requirements of the civil service management code.

The information you requested is set out in the following table:

DEFRA
	£000
2001–02	1,792
2002–03	2,468
2003–04	2,242
2004–05	2,730

Conservation Areas

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) when she expects to conclude bilateral biogeographic discussions with the European Commission on the designation of Bolton Fell Moss and Solway Moss as special areas of conservation; [46988]

(2) what scientific objections remain unresolved with regard to the candidature of Bolton Fell Moss and Solway Moss as special areas of conservation under the Habitats Directive; [46989]

(3) what representations she has received from peat extraction companies on Bolton Fell Moss and Solway Moss following English Nature's advice for these sites to become candidate special areas of conservation; [46990]

(4) what the expected timeframe is for concluding the designation of Bolton Fell Moss and Solway Moss as Special Areas of Conservation; and what steps she is taking to conclude the designations within the current financial year; [46991]

(5) what steps the Government is taking (a) to address the findings of the Sites of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI) Condition Summary for Bolton Fell Moss and (b) to secure the notified conservation interest of the site and the Government's public service agreement target for SSSI condition. [46992]

Jim Knight: A meeting is being arranged with the European Commission to discuss the sufficiency of the UK list of degraded raised bog Special Areas of Conservation (SACs), including the merits of Solway Moss and Bolton Fell Moss. I hope that this will result in the Commission coming to its final view this summer.

There are outstanding objections (including scientific ones) from the peat extraction operators on the criteria used for the selection of the two peat sites, principally concerning the composition of the topography and the restorability of the sites and their margins. English Nature is in discussion with the objectors to resolve these concerns.

During the public consultation undertaken by English Nature on the proposal to designate these sites as Special Areas of Conservation for their degraded raised bog interest, objections were received from the peat extraction companies at each of the sites. Discussions aimed at resolving the objections included correspondence with the Secretary of State over the grounds for including these sites as Special Areas of Conservation.

Given the complex nature of the objections raised about the candidature of Solway Moss and Bolton Fell Moss, it is not possible to give a definite date for their resolution and subsequent conclusion of the consultation. Once concluded, and if Bolton Fell Moss and Solway Moss are required to be included as part of the UK list of sites of degraded raised bog sites within the UK, these will be designated as candidate SACs immediately.

Bolton Fell Moss Site of Special Scientific Interest has been assessed by English Nature as being in an unfavourable condition. As part of its overall work on the SSSI PSA target, which is to bring 95 per cent. of Sites of Special Scientific Interest into favourable condition by 2010, English Nature is identifying the works which need to be put in place, and by whom, to restore all unfavourable sites to a recovering or favourable condition. And it is in the process of discussing options to achieve this with interested parties. Overall the latest figures indicate that 70 per cent. of sites are now in favourable condition.

Cormorants

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many licences for the culling of cormorants were issued in England in 2005–06; how many cormorants were killed under licence in England in 2005–06; and if she will make a statement. [47735]

Jim Knight: The Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 (as amended) protects all wild birds. However, the Secretary of State has authority under section 16(1)(k) of the Act to grant licences to permit the killing of cormorants to prevent serious damage to fisheries. Licenses are only issued where DEFRA is satisfied that other non-lethal methods have been tried and found to be ineffective, and where there is no other satisfactory solution.

Licences to shoot cormorants are normally issued for a limited period between 31 August and 15 April so we are still issuing licenses for the 2005–06 season. During the current licence period, 392 licences have been granted so far and 435 cormorants are recorded as having been killed.

Further information on cormorants can be found on the DEFRA website at: http://www.defra.gov.uk/wildlife-countryside/vertebrates/piscivorous.htm

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the annual expenditure on vehicles of (a) her Department and (b) each (i) non-departmental public body, (ii) executive agency and (iii) other public body for which her Department is responsible in each English region was in each of the last three financial years; and what the planned expenditure is for 2005–06. [40118]

Jim Knight: It is the policy of DEFRA, its agencies, non-departmental public bodies and, where appropriate, its sponsored organisations to make financial redress in accordance with the guidance set out in chapter 18.7 and annexes 18.1 and 18.2 of 'Government Accounting'.

However, the information you requested relating to DEFRA's agencies, NDPB's and other bodies sponsored by DEFRA is not held centrally by the Department and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Since the Department holds records centrally for the whole of England only, it is not possible to provide the details requested for each English region.

The historical expenditure on vehicles which the core Department has purchased or rented can be analysed as follows:

£000

DEFRA	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05
Purchased vehicles:
Department	1,173	795	842
Agencies
NDPBs
Bodies sponsored by Department
Rented vehicles:
Department	1,119	108	228
Agencies
NDPBs
Bodies sponsored by Department

The planned expenditure on vehicles in 2005-06 within the core Department is not available due to expenditure budgets being held at a higher level than is being requested. Accordingly, this high level budget information would not be appropriate as a response to the question being asked.

The expenditure in 2002-03, both for purchased and rented vehicles, is disproportionately high as a result of costs incurred by the Department in dealing with the foot and mouth outbreak.

For details of expenditure on ministerial vehicles provided to the Department by the Government Car and Despatch Agency, I refer the hon. Member to the letter of 20 December 2005 from the chief executive of the Government Car and Despatch Agency to the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker). Copies of this letter are available in the Library.

Departmental Transport

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 19 December 2005, Official Report, column 2376W, on departmental transport, if she will place in the Library a copy of the site-wide notice to all staff and contractors issued on 15 December 2005. [46055]

Jim Knight: The notice to which the PQ is referring to, is published on the DEFRA intranet, and says the following:

Guildford Office Notice 37-05

Parking Off Site

It is clear that due to the shortage of parking facilities on the Guildford site, some staff and externals from the DEFRA site have been using local side streets for parking. There has been a significant increase in the number of complaints from the surrounding streets, including Down Road, Darrington Drive, Carroll Avenue, Gateways, Broadwater Rise and Pitt Farm Road, over the last three months.

DEFRA has a responsibility to be a good neighbour and this is an obligation that applies to us all. We therefore ask that staff from the Guildford site, should consider our neighbours when parking in local streets around the site. This means parking only where it is legal to do so and in a way that is reasonable and takes account of neighbours views. It also means parking in a way that does not block the road or access.

There are a number of streets to the west of the site, towards Guildford Town Centre, that have controlled parking zones and the council plan to increase this in the near future. Wherever possible it would be helpful if you parked in these designated areas. Your co-operation in this matter is much appreciated.

Accommodation Section

This notice will expire on 31 December 2006.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 19 December 2005, Official Report, column 2376W, on departmental transport, what further steps she can take to stop staff and contractors from her Department's site on the Epsom Road, Merrow, Guildford continuing to park in residential roads. [46725]

Jim Knight: When Guildford Site Security report that there are potentially vehicles parked off-site, Defra are carrying out patrols in the local roads to try to identify vehicles which belong to IBM or Defra employees. Drivers or their line managers are then contacted and asked to move their vehicles even though these may be parked legally.

Defra have also met with Guildford borough council and with Surrey county council, to see if it would be possible to join Surrey's Car Share Scheme. We are currently waiting for an update from Guildford borough council.

Defra are also negotiating with a local bus company, along with Guildford borough council, to see if we can identify a possible site for a park and ride scheme.

EU Habitats Directive

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government plans to take to meet its obligations under the EU Habitats Directive. [45672]

Jim Knight: Preparations are under way to consult on amendments to legislation that transposes the directive to clarify its application. New regulations will also be introduced to extend the application of the directive to marine areas beyond our territorial seas.

The UK has also done far more than most to address the policy objectives of the Habitats Directive (maintaining or restoring species and habitats favourable conservation status). We were the first country to designate and fully protect all 608 of its proposed special areas of conservation at the end of 2004. In addition, the Government have set itself a public service agreement (PSA) target of bringing 95 percent. of sites of special scientific interest into favourable condition by 2010. The latest figures indicate that 70 per cent. of sites are in favourable condition now.

The UK has also taken significant action to protect marine biodiversity. We were the first country to identify a truly offshore special area of conservation, the Darwin Mounds, and worked through the Common Fisheries Policy to ensure damaging bottom-set trawling in the area was banned. In 2004 the UK unilaterally banned pair trawling for sea bass in its waters, which was widely blamed for high numbers of dolphin and porpoise deaths.

Forestry

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding has been allocated by the Forestry Commission for woodland creation schemes in each of the last three years; and what the allocation is for each of the next three years. [47167]

Jim Knight: The Forestry Commission has paid the following amounts in woodland creation grants over the last three years.

Financial year	Cash payments (£ million)
2002–03	9.6
2003–04	8.9
2004–05	10.3

The payments in 2004–05 included a proportion of the £3 million additional funding made available to the Forestry Commission to meet existing commitments at a time of increased demand for grants.

In the current year (2005–06) it is expected that the Forestry Commission will spend £6.4 million on woodland creation grants. The recent change of support mechanism from the Woodland Grant Scheme to the English Woodland Grant Scheme means that claims and most payments for work undertaken during the current planting season will not occur until April 2006. The allocation of funding for woodland creation in 2006–07 currently stands at £7.4 million and like the current planting season some claims and payments for work in the 2006–07 planting season will not be made until the following financial year.

The allocation of funding for any Forestry Commission grants beyond 2006–07 has not been set, but the Commission will continue to meet the commitments made in its grant scheme contracts.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of the woodland grant scheme is allocated to (a) woodland creation and (b) woodland management in 2005–06. [47170]

Jim Knight: The Forestry Commission expects to spend £6.4 million on woodland creation grants and £10.1 million on woodland management grants in the current financial year. This means that creation grants will make up around 40 per cent. of all grants.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of woodland in England is managed in accordance with the UK Forestry Standard. [47843]

Jim Knight: There is no requirement on woodland owners to provide details of the area that they manage in accordance with the UK Forestry Standard. However, a very large proportion of actively managed woodland in England receives support from the Forestry Commission through its grant scheme agreements or is subject to a felling licence issued by the Commission. Recipients of grants and felling licences are expected to meet the UK Forestry Standard. The public forest estate is also managed to the UK Forestry Standard and has been independently certified under the UK Woodland Assurance Scheme.

The Forestry Commission estimates that the area of actively managed woodland in both public and private ownership that meets the UK Forestry Standard is 470,000 hectares, which is 42 per cent. of the woodland in England.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance is being prepared in relation to the Habitats Regulations following the recent European Court decision. [47664]

Jim Knight: Preparations are under way to consult on amendments to legislation that transposes the Habitats Directive in the UK to clarify its application and we are considering what new guidance may be required to support any legislative changes. In line with current Government best practice, any guidance needed will be published at least 12 weeks before changes to legislation come into force.

Packaging

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps her Department is taking to reduce the amount of packaging being used for commercial products by companies in England. [47501]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 31 January 2006]: Two sets of regulations cover packaging in the UK, both of which encourage producers to minimise packaging. The Producer Responsibility Obligations (Packaging Waste) Regulations 2005 are intended to increase the recovery and recycling of packaging waste. The amount of packaging waste producers have to recover and recycle is determined, in part, by the amount of packaging they handle. Therefore businesses can save money if they reduce the amount of packaging they use around their products.

The Packaging (Essential Requirements) Regulations 2003 (as amended) place a number of requirements on all packaging placed on the market in the UK, including a requirement that packaging should be manufactured so that the packaging volume and weight are limited to the minimum adequate amount to maintain the necessary level of safety, hygiene and acceptance for the packed product and for the consumer.

Poultry Slaughterhouses

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many poultry inspection assistants are employed by poultry slaughterhouses; and which slaughterhouses employ such assistants. [44894]

Caroline Flint: I have been asked to reply.

In the United Kingdom, as at 26 January 2006, there were 517 food business operator establishment staff, formerly known as plant inspection assistants, authorised under EC Regulation 854/2004 to carry out post-mortem inspection duties. These staff are employed at 71 poultry slaughterhouses.

The following slaughterhouses employ authorised establishment staff:

Recycling

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will set national standards for recycling which apply to all local authorities. [45698]

Mr. Bradshaw: Government have set each local authority in England a statutory target for 2003–04 and 2005–06 and to assure that further progress is made. I recently launched for consultation options for further recycling/composting targets in 2007–08. Analysis of the responses is under way and there will be a formal announcement once a decision is made.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of corporate waste was recycled in each year between 2000 and 2005. [47502]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 31 January 2006]: Information on waste management by the businesses has been collected through the Environment Agency's Commercial and Industrial Waste Survey, conducted in 2002–03. This survey estimates that around 37 per cent. of waste from the commercial sector in England was recycled or re-used in 2002–03. Data for other years in the period requested are not available.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans her Department has for increasing (a) recycling and (b) composting. [46412]

Mr. Bradshaw: Waste Strategy 2000 set out national recycling and composting targets for household waste, of 17 per cent. in 2003–04, rising to 25 per cent. in 2005–06, then 30 per cent. in 2010 and 33 per cent. in 2015. Each local authority was also set a statutory target for 2003–04 and 2005–06 and to assure that further progress is made, I recently consulted on options for further recycling/composting targets in 2007–08. Analysis of the responses is under way and there will be a formal announcement once a decision is made. Provisional figures show more than a fifth (approaching 23 per cent.) of household waste in England was recycled, in 2004–05. Furthermore, waste disposal authorities have been set challenging landfill diversion targets for biodegradable municipal waste which will drive authorities to ensure that the recycling of this waste is maximised.

To support the attainment of these targets, Defra introduced the Household Waste Recycling Act in 2003 which provides that English waste collection authorities shall ensure, except in certain circumstances, that by the end of 2010 they collect at least two recyclable materials from doorsteps separate from the remainder of the waste. About two thirds of households in England now receive a kerbside collection of recyclable materials.

In the Spending Review 2004 the Government announced an increase in the Environmental, Protective and Cultural Services block of £888 million over 2004–05, by 2007–08 and over the three-year period to 2005–06, authorities are also benefiting from a total of 294 million invested through Defra's Waste Minimisation and Recycling Fund. Its successor, Defra's Waste

Performance and Efficiency Grant, will run in parallel for the first year and provide a further £260 million over the three years to 2007–08.

Since 2002, Local authorities have also been assisted by targeted support and advice available through the Waste and Resources Action Programme and Defra's Waste Implementation Programme—which will continue to provide targeted assistance to authorities for a further two years and an announcement of its new programme will be made in December 2005.

For the longer-term, as part of the review of waste strategy, Defra is looking at what levels and what forms of targets will be the most efficient at continuing the recent improvements we have seen in waste performance. The review will take into account existing policy levers designed to drive the management of waste up the hierarchy (such as the Landfill Allowance Trading Scheme, the landfill tax escalator, and the obligations on producers in relation to packaging and waste electrical and electronic equipment). The Government intend to publish a consultation document on the Waste Strategy review in the next few weeks, followed by a revised waste strategy in the autumn.

Regulatory Reform Orders

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many Regulatory Reform Orders her Department has laid before Parliament in each of the last five calendar years. [46810]

Jim Knight: The Department has laid before Parliament the following Regulatory Reform Orders:

The Regulatory Reform (Sugar Beet Research and Education) Order 2003 (made on 8 May 2003)

The Regulatory Reform (British Waterways Board) Order 2003 (made on 12 June 2003)

The Regulatory Reform (Joint Nature Conservation Committee) Order 2005 (made on 9 March 2005)

The Regulatory Reform (Forestry) Order 2006 (laid on 23 January 2006)

Snares

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions she has had with the National Farmers' Union on the use of snares. [46434]

Jim Knight: We have had discussions on this issue with a number of key stakeholders, including the National Farmers' Union, in connection with the current consultation on "Controlling the spread of bovine tuberculosis in cattle in high incidence areas in England: badger culling".

I also refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 24 January 2006, Official Report, column 1960W.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research she has commissioned into the use of snares over the last three years. [47862]

Jim Knight [holding answer 6 February 2006]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 24 January 2006, Official Report, column 1960W, which explained Defra's current testing or research into snares for catching wildlife and the possibility of future work in this area. No additional research has been undertaken in the last three years.

Special Protection Area Status

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs under which EU directive or regulations special protection area status was introduced; and whether the Government published a regulatory impact assessment in relation to its incorporation into UK law. [49813]

Jim Knight: Special Protection Areas (SPAs) are strictly protected sites classified in accordance with Article 4 of the EC Directive on the conservation of wild birds (79/409/EEC), also known as the Birds Directive, which came into force in April 1979. The provisions of the Birds Directive were initially transposed into domestic legislation by the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 (as a mended). No regulatory Impact Assessment was undertaken at that time.

Stewardship Schemes

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers have applied, and been accepted, for (a) Entry Level Stewardship and (b) Higher Level Stewardship. [49377]

Jim Knight: As of 1 February 2006 the following applications have been received and accepted:

(a) Entry Level Stewardship (including Organic Entry Level)—17,296 applications received and 13,762 accepted

(b) Higher Level Stewardship—806 applications received and 297 accepted.

Tyres

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what estimate she has made of the number of tyres which became redundant in the last year for which an estimate is available; and what estimate she has made of the proportion of tyres which were disposed of by each disposal route used; [46019]

(2) if she will make a statement on the use of landfills for redundant tyre disposal; and what steps she is taking to ensure that (a) alternative disposal routes exist and (b) these routes will be able to deal with the anticipated annual flow of redundant tyres. [46023]

Mr. Bradshaw: The latest available figures for used tyres are for 2003, based on information supplied to the Used Tyre Working Group (UTWG).

	Tonnes
Used tyre arisings	444,000
Re-use	105,000
Materials recovery	160,000
Energy recovery	78,000
Engineering uses	15,000
Exports	13,000
Landfill	85,000

Data for 2004 should be available shortly. They are likely to show growth on overall recovery to over 400,000 tonnes per year, led by increases on the engineering and materials recovery sectors.

A survey was recently completed for DTI to determine the quantity of tyres accepted into landfill in the UK during 2004 and the first 6 months of 2005. The survey sought information on whether tyres were being disposed or used for engineering purposes and whether in whole or shredded form. Tyres are also disposed to landfill as part of automotive shredder residue from end of life vehicles. I will place a copy of the survey in the Library of the House.

There are many ways of putting used tyres to good use, although broadly all of these can be defined as either reuse, recycling or recovery. WRAP (the waste and resources action programme) was established in 2001 in response to the Government's Waste Strategy 2000 to promote sustainable waste management. Its mission is to accelerate resource efficiency by creating efficient market for recycled materials and products. In 2005, WRAP began developing a discrete used tyres programme and is currently working on a series of projects and trials investigating the properties and potential applications of new products made from used tyre rubber. Further information about WRAP, and its tyres programme, can be found on www.wrap.org.uk.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Aircraft Fuel (Taxation)

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with HM Treasury on the impact of a green tax on aircraft fuel on tourism. [49363]

James Purnell: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has not discussed this with Treasury Ministers. However, my officials, who are part of the cross Whitehall sustainable tourism group, have discussed this issue with their counterparts in HM Treasury and in the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, with a view to ensuring that the interests of the tourism sector are fully represented. And my Department contributes to the development of the Government's policies on sustainability and environmental issues, with that aim in mind.

Airport Expansion

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations her Department has made to (a) the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister and (b) planning inquiries on the expansion of capacity at (i) Heathrow, (ii) Gatwick and (iii) Stansted airports on behalf of the tourism industry. [49315]

James Purnell: My Department has made no interventions in these specific planning inquiries. However, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport works with the Department for Transport on transport issues affecting the tourism industry. The vital importance of tourism to the UK economy is reflected in the Government's White Paper on the Future of Air Transport.

BBC

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment will be made of market impact in the approval process for new BBC public services; and what role will be played by Ofcom in the assessment process. [47784]

Tessa Jowell: In the Green Paper on BBC Charter Review, we proposed that any new service or significant change to an existing service should require a public value test. Part of the test should be a market impact assessment, to be conducted according to a formula agreed by Ofcom and the BBC Trust and to be carried out by Ofcom in the case of new services. Our conclusions in this area, following the Green Paper consultation, will be set out in the forthcoming White Paper.

British Grand Prix (Policing)

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent representations she has received requesting financial support for policing at the British Grand Prix at Silverstone. [49176]

Mr. Caborn: I have received a number of representations from the British Racing Drivers Club (BRDC) requesting financial support for policing at the British Grand Prix (BGP) at Silverstone. While there are ongoing discussions between the BRDC, Home Office, Northamptonshire police force and other interested parties about the level of charging, the Government has made clear that it will not provide funding for future police costs incurred as part of the BGP.

Casinos

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what date she has set for the panel's report on the locations for regional, large and small casinos under the Gambling Act 2005 to be submitted to her Department. [49370]

Mr. Caborn: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has asked the Casino Advisory Panel to make its recommendations to her by 31 December 2006.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations she has received from local authorities on the number and location of regional casinos under the pilot scheme. [49371]

Mr. Caborn: We have received a number of letters from local authorities and others in support of an increase in the number of regional casinos permitted by the Gambling Act 2005.

Despite these representations, we do not believe the case has yet been made for an increase, and we are therefore proceeding with implementation on the basis of the one regional casino specified in the Act.

We have established an independent panel to advise the Government on the areas where the 17 new casinos permitted by the Act should be located. Any representations relating to the location of the new casinos will be for the casino advisory panel to consider in developing its recommendations to Ministers.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate she has made of the value of the (a) casino and (b) gambling industry to the economy in each year since 1997 in (i) Leicester and (ii) England. [49740]

Mr. Caborn: The Office for National Statistics (ONS) produces an annual estimate of household expenditure on gambling in the UK. The estimated expenditure (stakes less prizes) excluding the national lottery is included in the table. The ONS also makes an annual estimate of employment in the gambling industry through its Annual Business Inquiry, and this information is also provided.

No separate figures are available for the casino industry. However, the Gambling Commission (formerly the Gaming Board for Great Britain) publish annual figures for the house win in casinos in Great Britain, which is included in the table.

No separate data are available for Leicester or England.

[2] Gaming Board/Gambling Commission Annual Reports.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the procedures are for increasing the number of regional casinos in the pilot scheme under the Gambling Act 2005. [50099]

Mr. Caborn: Sections 175(1)-(3) of the Gambling Act 2005 specify the maximum number of casino premises licences that may have effect in respect of regional, large and small casinos—currently 1, 8 and 8 respectively. Section 175(8)(a) provides that the Secretary of State may by order amend any of sections (1), (2) or (3) so as to substitute a new maximum number of casino premises licences. Any order would be subject to the affirmative resolution procedure, requiring the approval of both Houses of Parliament.

We have no plans to bring forward such an order at this stage.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport under what provisions a casino licence issued under the Gaming Act 1968 may be reinstated after a temporary cessation of trading for unforeseen reasons by the holder. [50100]

Mr. Caborn: A casino licence issued under the Gaming Act 1968 would not lapse automatically if the license holder was temporarily prevented from trading for unforeseen reasons.

Subject to the normal annual renewal process, the licence could be retained. Under the 1968 Act, if the holder of a casino licence was faced with circumstances which meant they had to move or substantially alter their premises, they would be required to apply for a new certificate of consent and casino licence.

Once the Gambling Act 2005 is formally implemented, casinos that had been licensed under the 1968 Act, and which are subsequently licensed under the 2005 Act, will continue to be able to apply to transfer their business to new premises, so long as it is within the area of their licensing authority. Casinos will have a general right to apply for such a move, and would not be limited to circumstances where a move is essential.

Category C Gaming Machines

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the extent to which operators and providers of category C gaming machines (a) are crime free and (b) can meet conditions on the protection of vulnerable people. [49367]

Mr. Caborn: The Gambling Act 2005 for the first time introduces new requirements on operators of all categories of gaming machines to ensure that gambling remains crime free, and that children and vulnerable people are protected. DCMS and the Gambling Commission are working with the industry and other interested parties to develop the relevant licence conditions and codes of practice that are needed to deliver these protections. The Gambling Commission and licensing authorities will be responsible for monitoring compliance with the new requirements once they are formally implemented in September 2007.

Christmas Cards

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will estimate the cost to her Department of sending Christmas cards in 2005. [45918]

Mr. Lammy: 5,000 Christmas cards were printed at a total cost of £2,019. The cards were sent out by Second Class post.

Circus Industry

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions her Department has had with the circus industry relating to licensing proposals; and if she will make a statement. [49136]

James Purnell: I have had regular meetings with circus representatives to discuss the implications of the Licensing Act 2003, including Arts Council England, the Association of Circus Proprietors of Great Britain and the Circus Arts Forum. My most recent meeting was with a delegation led by the hon. Member for Mid Worcestershire on 26 January 2006.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the expenditure on (a) buildings and (b) insurance of buildings and staff was of (i) her Department and (ii) each (A) non-departmental public body, (B) Executive agency and (C) other public body for which her Department is responsible in each English region in each of the last three financial years; and what the planned expenditure is for 2005–06 in each case. [40070]

Mr. Lammy: Expenditure by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on buildings, including rent and building services was services was £7,040,000, in 2002–03, £7,488,000 in 2003–04 and £7,311,000 in 2004–05; with planned expenditure of £7,300,000 in 2005–06.

Expenditure by the Department on insurance of buildings was £76,200 in 2003–04 and £88,500 in 2004–05; with planned expenditure of £107,400 in 2005–06. Insurance costs for 2002–03 could be extracted only at disproportionate cost.

Neither the Department, nor Royal Parks Agency, insure its staff.

The Royal Parks Agency, did not incur expenditure on insurance of buildings until 2005–06, when there is forecast expenditure of £7,000.

The Royal Parks Agency does not pay rent on the buildings for which it has responsibility. Its building services costs were: £6,941,000 in 2002–03, £7,738,000 in 2003–04, £7,574,000 in 2004–05 and with planned expenditure of £7,000,000 in 2005–06.

Information requested in respect of the non-departmental public bodies could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the annual expenditure on (a) fixtures and fittings, (b) general office expenses and (c) office equipment was of (i) her Department, (ii) each (A) non-departmental public body, (B) Executive agency and (C) other public body for which her Department is responsible in (1) Scotland, (2) Wales, (3) each of the English regions and (4) Northern Ireland in each of the last three financial years; and what the planned expenditure is for 2005–06 in each case. [40111]

Mr. Lammy: Expenditure by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on fixtures and fittings was £477,000 in 2002–03, £475,000 in 2003–04 and £335,000 in 2004–05; with planned expenditure of £100,000 in 2005–06.

The term "general office expenses" is neither used as part of the Department's accounting procedures, nor those of the Royal Parks Agency.

Annual expenditure by the Department on office equipment, including computers, was £938,000 in 2002–03, £958,000 in 2003–04, £1,100,000 in 2004–05; with planned expenditure of £350,000 in 2005–06.

The Royal Parks Agency's accounts do not identify separately figures for fixtures and fittings and attempts to provide these would be at disproportionate cost.

Annual expenditure by the Royal Parks Agency on office equipment, including computers, was £11,000 in both 2002–03 and 2003–04, £23,000 in 2004–05, with planned expenditure of £23,000 in 2005–06.

Information requested in respect of the non-departmental public bodies could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the expenditure on (a) buildings and (b) insurance of buildings and staff was of (i) her Department and (ii) each (A) non-departmental public body, (B) executive agency and (C) other public body for which her Department is responsible in (1) Scotland, (2) Wales, (3) each of the English regions and (4) Northern Ireland in each of the last three financial years; and what the planned expenditure is for 2005–06 in each case. [40112]

Mr. Lammy: Expenditure by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on buildings, including rent and building services was £7,040,000, in 2002–03, £7,488,000 in 2003–04, and £7,311,000 in 2004–05; with planned expenditure of £7,300,000 in 2005–06.

Expenditure by the Department on insurance of buildings was £76,200 in 2003–04 and £88,500 in 2004–05; with planned expenditure of £107,400 in 2005–06. Insurance costs for 2002–03 could be extracted only at disproportionate cost.

Neither the Department, nor Royal Parks Agency, insure its staff.

The Royal Parks Agency, did not incur expenditure on insurance of buildings until 2005–6, when there is forecast expenditure of £7,000.

The Royal Parks Agency does not pay rent on the buildings for which it has responsibility. Its building services costs were: £6,941,000 in 2002–03, £7,738,000 in 2003–04, £7,574,000 in 2004–05 and with planned expenditure of £7,000,000 in 2005–06.

Information requested in respect of the non-departmental public bodies could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

English Heritage

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the level of resources English Heritage allocates to the scheduling of newly discovered monuments. [49112]

Mr. Lammy: All designation, including scheduling as well as the listing of buildings of special architectural and historical interest, and the Registers of Parks and Gardens and of Battlefields, is undertaken by the heritage protection department of English Heritage.

The heritage protection department includes 58 staff. The department's budget in 2005–06 is £2,169,000.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people English Heritage employs in the designation of ancient monuments. [49244]

Mr. Lammy: English Heritage receives almost £130 million grant in aid from the Department. High level priorities are agreed in the funding agreement, which is co-signed by the ODPM and Defra, in recognition of the contribution English Heritage makes to the delivery of the targets in all three Departments. It is up to English Heritage to decide how much funding to allocate to specific activities.

External Consultants

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much her Department has paid since 2004 to external consultants who had previously been employed by the Department in any capacity within the previous five years. [41206]

Mr. Lammy: Since 2004, the amounts paid to external consultants who had previously been employed by the Department, are as follow:

PKF (2 projects)	283,371
PriceWaterhouseCoopers (5 projects)	239,581
Forethought Associates	47,304
BMRB	43,267
Opsis Renewal Consulting	27,600
Odgers, Ray and Berndtson	26,250
Monterosa	14,965
Enable UK	4,850

Film Council

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the ratio was between the administration costs of the UK Film Council and the funds which it provided for film production in the last period for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [48481]

James Purnell: In 2004–5, UK Film Council operating costs were £9.05 million—11 per cent. of UK Film Councils total expenditure of £79.48 million—of which, £7.7 million were attributed to lottery activities. In 2004–05, new lottery award commitments were made to the value of £50.66 million—of which, £27.25 million related to film production, and £23.41 million related to other schemes covering distribution, exhibition, training and regional awards—including those to delegated bodies.

Freedom of Information

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what total sum has been received by her Department for the provision of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in its first year of operation. [48473]

Mr. Lammy: My Department has received no monies for the provision of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in its first year of operation.

The Freedom of Information Act allows for public authorities to determine when the cost of processing a request will exceed the appropriate limit, which for central Government is set at £600 and for the wider public sector £450. In this instance the public authority may decide to either approach the applicant to help them refine their request and where possible to bring it under the appropriate limit. Alternatively, public authorities may charge the applicant the cost of processing the request. There is, however, no obligation for Departments to provide information if the cost of processing the request exceeds the appropriate limit.

Public authorities may also charge for disbursements when handling requests where it is deemed appropriate. Further information on the FOI fees regime can be found on the DCA website at http://www.foi.gov.uk/feesguide.htm

Institutions (Assets)

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the impact of requirements on institutions for which she is responsible to maximise income on (a) appropriate and (b) sustainable use of their assets. [46132]

Mr. Lammy: No overall assessment has been made, however the financial memoranda that apply to the Department's sponsored bodies stipulate that bodies should seek to optimise income from non-Exchequer sources in a way that does not conflict with their main functions.

Historic Royal Palaces, for example, was set up by Royal Charter with the objective

> "to administer, conserve, renovate, repair, maintain and improve the Palaces to a high standard consistent with their status as buildings of Royal, historic and architectural importance".

It is free to generate and optimise income within the boundaries set out in its Royal Charter, and to use that income to further its historical, cultural and educational objectives. The Secretary of State has given no directions to Historic Royal Palaces to maximise the income and commercial activity outside of their Charter obligations.

The Public Accounts Committee, which considered the issue of income and commercial activities in its thirty-third report (Income generated by the museums and galleries), concluded that the Department's sponsored museums and galleries should set targets for income growth, with an assessment of the risks. The Department is currently finalising three-year funding agreements with the museums and galleries that will set targets for income generation consistent with delivery of their wider objectives.

Licensing

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what data sets are being collected in the 10 scrutiny councils to monitor how the new licensing regime is being delivered. [46003]

James Purnell: The main purpose of the Scrutiny Council initiative is to generate qualitative information about the interaction of the national policy framework with local licensing policy statements and objectives.

Officials from my department are working with council officers and through them with local police and other responsible authorities, residents' groups, businesses and other stakeholders, to gather information about how the new regime is working on the ground.

We will be gathering data from the 10 Councils about, for example, the number of hearings, appeals, reviews and closures and the spread of licensing hours. Of course, this quantitative data will not provide a representative sample, but will help to enrich the other case study material being gathered.

The report on the Scrutiny Council initiative will be made available in the summer.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations she has received on changes to the limits on temporary events notices under the Licensing Act 2003; and from whom. [49375]

James Purnell: In response to a consultation mounted last autumn, we have received over 100 representations about the limits on temporary events notices (TENs), particularly regarding the number of TENs which premises may submit in any one year, and the duration of events for which TENS are required. Submissions were received from a range of organisations including residents' associations, village halls and licensing authorities. We are currently considering the responses and will announce our conclusions, and publish the responses to the consultation, shortly.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations she has received from Action with Communities in Rural England regarding the implementation of the Licensing Act 2003 for village halls. [49376]

James Purnell: Action for Communities in Rural England (ACRE) represent an important sector and, as members of my high level group of key stakeholders, I have met them on several occasions to discuss the impact of the licensing act on village and community halls. I have also met with them separately on two occasions. ACRE responded to the consultation on the temporary event notice (TEN) regulations in September. ACRE'S main concerns relate to the limits associated with the new TENs regime and the difficulty for some volunteer-run halls in meeting the requirements for a designated premises supervisor when a licence includes alcohol sales. ACRE are conducting research into how village halls have adapted to the new regime since it came into effect on 24 November 2005. Their views, and any evidence they provide, are being fed into both our review of the statutory guidance and the Independent Review of Licensing Fees.

Marine Historic Review

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will nominate a member of the British Sub-Aqua Club to sit on the Marine Historic Review Working Group; if she will meet representatives of the club to discuss the progress of the working group; and if she will make a statement. [48714]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 6 February 2006]: The British Sub-Aqua Club (BSAC) is a member of the Joint Nautical Archaeology Policy Committee (JNAPC), the umbrella group whose membership spans archaeological bodies, diving organisations and other bodies with responsibilities for underwater cultural heritage. The JNAPC is represented on the Marine Historic Environment Review Salvage and Reporting Working Group. At least three members of the working group are also members of the BSAC.

In November 2005 I met with representatives of the JNAPC to discuss, among other things, progress on the Marine Historic Environment Review.

Media Relations

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much her Department has spent on external media relations in each year since 2001. [29571]

Mr. Lammy: There was a zero spend on external media relations in each of the years 2001 through to 2003. In 2004 the cost was £51,000 and in 2005 we are expecting the cost to be £226,000.

Schedule of Ancient Monuments

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many new sites were added to the Schedule of Ancient Monuments in each of the last five years. [49123]

Mr. Lammy: The number of new sites added to the Schedule of Ancient Monuments in the past five years is as follows:

	Number
2005	11
2004	224
2003	437
2002	583
2001	880

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the role of the scheduling of ancient monuments in protecting the UK's archaeological resource. [49124]

Mr. Lammy: Archaeological remains are scheduled to ensure that the case for preservation is fully considered given any proposals for development or other work which might damage the monument. Circa 19,800 are currently protected by scheduling.

The protection of archaeologically important sites, either by scheduling or by other mechanisms, is being considered as part of the current Heritage Protection Review.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many scheduled sites without up-to-date descriptions and for which there is no publicly available information remain to be reassessed; and whether there is a programme in place for this work. [49236]

Mr. Lammy: There are now approximately 19,800 scheduled ancient monuments. Of the 12,500 older schedule entries, approximately 7,000 have been reviewed. Three-quarters of the present schedule thus has up-to-date documentation.

The English Heritage Monuments Protection Programme, which was a review of all recorded archaeological sites in England, was put on hold in 2003. English Heritage are now developing plans for a new strategic designation programme in light of the heritage protection review.

Secondments

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people from science and technology backgrounds have been seconded into the civil service in her Department in each of the last three years. [48411]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport is fully committed to interchange and working in partnership with other organisations. In the last three years, 23 people have been seconded into the Department but information on their academic or professional backgrounds is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Television Licences

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what process her Department is following to set the future level of the BBC licence fee; and when a decision is expected to be reached. [47779]

Tessa Jowell: The Government are currently conducting a funding review in line with the commitment in the Green Paper on BBC Charter Review. An announcement on the level of the television licence fee to apply from April 2007 will be made in due course.

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what external advice and analysis has been sought by her Department during the process to set the future level of the licence; and whether that advice will be published. [47781]

Tessa Jowell: In line with the commitment in the Green Paper to take independent advice, PKF were appointed in July 2005 to provide the Government with expert financial advice on a range of issues including the value for money of the BBC. Subject to proper consideration of confidentiality, we intend to make PKF's findings public in due course.

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps will be taken to ensure that the future level of BBC licence fee funding will take account of the BBC's wider impact on (a) the market and (b) public service broadcasting on commercial channels. [47782]

Tessa Jowell: The Government are currently conducting a funding review to determine the level of the licence fee to apply from April 2007, and will consider all relevant issues in doing so.

VisitBritain

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she expects to name a new Chairman for VisitBritain. [49360]

Tessa Jowell: My Department will shortly begin the process of appointing a new Chairman of VisitBritain to succeed Lord Marshall who leaves an excellent legacy following his time in the post. The post will be advertised widely as part of an open process, and the aim throughout will be to identify the best qualified person for this key post in tourism. It is expected that the successful candidate will be appointed in the summer.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many abortions were performed on inmates in each prison in England and Wales in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [37535]

Number of abortions to women giving a prison postcode as their place of residence, England and Wales, 1995–2004

	Yearly total	Three year total
2004	24
2003	[1]
2002	[1]	23
2001	[1]
2000	[1]
1999	[1]	16
1998	[1]
1997	[1]
1996	[1]	[1]10
1995	[1]

[1] Suppressed values where totals are between zero and nine. For confidentiality reasons totals less than 10 are not released.

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her opinion piece in The Independent on 19 January, on what data her statement that there were 0.75 million more attendances at accident and emergency departments this year than in 1996–97 was based. [45513]

Mr. Byrne: In the opinion piece referred to, the figures quoted for accident and emergency activity (A and E) should have read

'in 1996–97 there were 14.1 million attendances at A and E—this year it is 15.8 million'.

This represents a rise of 1.7 million. The source of 1996–97 attendance data is KH09, Consultant Outpatient Attendance Activity and Accident and Emergency Services Activity and QMAE, Quarterly Monitoring of Key Standards and Targets: Accident and Emergency, England for 2004–05. Attendances at walk in centres have been excluded from this comparison, as they did not exist in 1996–97. Including walk in centres, the 2004–05 figure rises to 17.8 million.

Agenda for Change

David Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what she expects the cost of implementing agenda for change to be. [40346]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire (Mr. Lansley) on 2 February 2006, Official Report, column 724W.

Ambulance Service Trusts

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her answer of 8 November 2005, Official Report, column 387W, on ambulance services trusts (West Midland), why her Department does not maintain ambulance trust population figures. [45902]

Mr. Byrne: The Department does not directly maintain population figures for ambulance service trusts as the boundaries of the catchment areas for these trusts are not in all cases coterminous with those of the primary care trusts, care trusts or local authorities they serve. From time-to-time approximate populations are calculated and published, most recently in the statistical bulletin, 'Ambulance Services, England: 2001–02', which is available in the Library and on the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/02/28/82/04022882.pdf

Benzodiazepine

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the provision of dedicated NHS benzodiazepine withdrawal clinics. [47364]

Caroline Flint: People with dependence on benzodiazepines can access services in primary and secondary care. In primary care, counselling, advice and/or psychological therapy is available, and secondary care services are also available, including specialised mental health services and specialised drug services. While there are some specialist clinics in parts of England, NHS services are commonly provided on the basis of clinical need rather than the causes of need per se. Support for benzodiazepine withdrawal can be provided in a range of settings.

In 2005, responding to advice from professionals in the substance misuse field, and consistent with recommendations made in "Drug misuse and dependence—guidelines on clinical management" (1999),[1] the Department amended prescribing regulation to allow diazepam to be dispensed in instalments for the treatment of drug addiction—to assist doctors in prescribing benzodiazepines more safely.

Breast Cancer

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what targets she has to reduce rates of breast cancer over the next (a) five and (b) 10 years. [47987]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 2 February 2006]: There are no specific targets for reducing breast cancer rates. It is important to note that a key Government target is to reduce mortality rates for all cancers in people under 75 by 2010 and we are well on the way to achieving this.

Our strategy for improving the general health of the population leading to the prevention of a number of diseases, including cancer, was set out in the Choosing Health White Paper, published in 2004.

Cigarette Packet Warnings

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what date has been set for the commencement of the planned public consultation regarding the possible inclusion of graphic or pictorial warnings on cigarette packets as permitted by EU Directive 2001/37/EC. [48571]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 6 February 2006]: No date has yet been set for the Government's public consultation on introducing picture health warnings on tobacco packs.

Crack Cocaine

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many crack cocaine users are in community-based treatment. [47690]

Caroline Flint: 5,000 individuals were reported to the national drug treatment monitoring system (NDTMS) in 2004–05 in community-based treatment, specialist prescribing, general practitioner prescribing, structured day programmes, structured counselling, other structured treatment, with the main problem drug of crack cocaine.

15,373 were reported with crack as their secondary drug of use.

Dentistry

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she plans to increase the number of dental access centres in England. [32330]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As of April 2006, primary care trusts (PCTs) will be responsible for commissioning primary care dentistry. It will therefore be up to individual PCTs to decide what the most appropriate services are, based on the needs of their local populations.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Written Ministerial Statement of 9 November 2005, Official Report, columns 17–18WS, on national health service dentistry, how many of the 1,400 new dentists will be placed in (a) the general dental service, (b) salaried primary care dental services and (c) the hospital dental service. [31445]

Ms Rosie Winterton: A precise breakdown of the information requested is not available. However, the vast majority of the 1,459 whole-time equivalent dentists are working in general dental services or personal dental services with a small number working in the salaried primary care dental services. None of the 1,459 dentists are working in the hospital dental service.

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average cost was of a national health service dental check-up in (a) England, (b) London and (c) Uxbridge constituency in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [46594]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The fee for a national health service dental check-up is fixed across England. This fee is set by the Department and is reviewed each year, usually in April.

The dentists' fees since 1994 have been as follows:

January 1994	4.75
April 1994	4.90
April 1995	5.00
April 1996	5.15
December 1996	5.20
April 1997	5.30
December 1997	5.40

December 1998	5.80
April 1999	5.95
April 2000	6.15
April 2001	6.40
April 2002	6.65
April 2003	6.85
April 2004	7.05
April 2005	7.30

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of the population was registered with an NHS dentist in (a) England, (b) London, (c) the London borough of Hillingdon and (d) Uxbridge constituency in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [46595]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information available is shown in the tables. Information on people registered with a national health service dentist in the Uxbridge constituency is not provided as population data are not available at this level.

The drop in registrations between September 1997 and September 1998 is mostly attributable to the reduction in re-registration period from two years to 15 months.

Estimated percentage of the population registered in general dental services (GDS) and personal dental services (PDS) as at 30 September each year

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS (a) dentists and (b) patients were registered in Welwyn, Hatfield in each year since 1997. [46366]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of national health service dentists and number of patients registered in Welwyn Hatfield Primary Care Trust as at 30 September in each year specified, are provided in the table.

	Dentists	Registrations
1997	50	57,514
1998	52	50,733
1999	47	50,387
2000	51	50,442
2001	52	52,110
2002	55	50,061
2003	64	49,123
2004	69	49,106
2005	68	50,007

Notes:
1. Data include General Dental Services (GDS) and Personal Dental Services (PDS) registrations/PDS patients seen (counts patients seen in the past 15 months for some PDS schemes).
2. The drop in registrations between September 1997 and September 1998 is mostly attributable to the reduction in re-registration period from two years to 15 months.

Departmental Performance Support Team

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the functions of her Department's performance support team; how many staff it has; and what the differences are between the roles of the performance support team and the turnaround teams she announced in her statement of 1 December 2005, Official Report, column 37WS, on NHS Finance. [46612]

Mr. Byrne: The performance support team is a national health service team which works with a small number of hospital trusts which need additional support in meeting the clinical and .managerial requirements of the NHS Plan. It has 23 employees.

Turnaround teams will comprise of experts with a mix of commercial and NHS turnaround skills. The first stage of their work was a baseline assessment with those organisations with the largest financial challenges. The first phase assessed 62 organisations and the second 35. Following the initial assessments, they will agree a tailored package of turnaround support with the organisations facing the largest risks and with their strategic health authority. This will help them to achieve financial balance and provide services more efficiently.

Drug Prescribing

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the annual level of prescribing of (a) carmustie implants and (b) temozolomide outside the context of clinical trials was in the last three years for which figures are available, broken down by (i) strategic health authority and (ii) primary care trust. [44794]

Jane Kennedy: The estimated cost of temozolomide and carmustine dispensed in hospitals and in the community (primary care) in England over the last three financial years is shown in the table.

A separate figure for carmustine implants is not provided due to contractual restrictions on how data on drugs issued in hospitals can be used. The figure includes all preparations of carmustine.

Estimated cost of temozolomide and carmustine dispensed in hospitals and in the community—England

The usage of temozolomide in primary care is negligible and carmustine is not used at all in primary care. Therefore, since the primary care usage is so low, sub-national data cannot be provided for patient confidentiality reasons.

Usage of carmustine in hospitals is low. Data on carmustine at a sub-national level is not provided due to contractual restrictions.

Data for temzolomide at cancer network level were published by the Department as part of the review undertaken by the National Cancer director on the variations in usage of cancer drugs appraised by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence. The report is available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/08/38/95/04083895.pdf.

Data on drugs issued in hospitals are not available at primary care trust level.

Drug Treatment Programmes

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people involved in providing drug treatment programmes have (a) resigned and (b) taken leave for medical reasons in each of the last five years. [47723]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Financial Targets

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS trusts have been investigated by her Department over the last 12 months due to failure to meet financial targets; and if she will make a statement. [47464]

Mr. Byrne: The performance management of national health service trusts is the responsibility of strategic health authorities (SHAs). There are continuous discussions between the Department and SHAs regarding the financial performance of NHS trusts within their health economy. The Department has not carried out specific investigations of NHS trusts due to a failure to meet financial targets, but it has commissioned an external assessment by KPMG of the financial position in 48 NHS trusts.

Genetic Testing

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which staff groups specialise in genetic testing; how many staff in these groups there were in (a) 1997 and (b) the latest date for which figures are available; and how many full-time equivalent posts those figures represent. [44734]

Mr. Byrne: Information on genetics staff in England for the specified years is shown in the following table.

National health service hospital and community health services: genetics staff in England by level as at 30 September each specified year

	1997		2004
	Full-time equivalent	Headcount	Full-time equivalent	Headcount

Health Service Initiatives (Costs)

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was budgeted for the (a) general practitioner contract, (b) consultant contract and (c) Agenda for Change; and how much each has cost to implement. [38379]

Mr. Byrne: For the General Medical Service contract, forecast spend based on available primary care trust (PCT) data is shown in the table.

Forecast spend against PCT allocated resources

Financial year	Allocation	Outturn	£ billion Over
2003–04	5.7	5.8	0.1
2004–05 [1]	6.8	6.9	0.1
2005–06 [1]	7.4	7.5	0.1

[1] Forecast outturn, i.e. still subject to finalised PCT accounts.

The consultant contract was costed on a methodology agreed with the British Medical Association and on that basis the estimated cost of the contract, and the funding, was £133 million in 2003–04 rising to £250 million in 2005–06. In late 2004 we adjusted the tariff for 2005–06 by £150 million in response to suggestions from the service that this was the further cost pressure. However, our national survey, published in February 2005, indicated that the actual additional cost to the service was around £90 million.

The agreed funding envelope for agenda for change was £480 million in 2004-05 rising to £950 million in 2005-06.

There are local concerns based on monitoring in a number of sample sites that initial costs may have been higher than expected in some places, and follow-up work is currently being carried out on the costs of implementation within each Strategic Health Authority to test this. The agenda for change funding envelope is due to increase in 2006-07 and 2007-08 and it is too soon to conclude whether or not the overall envelope will be exceeded.

Health Worker Pay

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what account is taken of differences between the value of NHS pension provision and that of workers in comparable jobs in the private sector in setting the pay of health workers. [24815]

Mr. Byrne: The pay levels for most national health service staff is determined by independent pay review bodies after they receive evidence from Government and staff side trade unions. When making recommendations the review bodies are able to take into account pensions benefits.

Heart Disease

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in (a) England and (b) Forest of Dean constituency suffered from heart disease in each of the last five years; and what the mortality rate was in each year. [36869]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of people diagnosed with coronary heart disease (CHD) is collected at primary care trust (PCT) level, and is not held by constituency. The number of patients diagnosed with CHD identified by general practitioner (GP) practices in West Gloucestershire PCT (which includes residents in Forest of Dean constituency) in 2004-05 was 7,908. The number of patients diagnosed with CHD identified by GP practices in England in 2004-05 was 1,893,184. Figures are not available for previous years.

Hospital Bed Occupancy

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the optimal level of bed occupancy in NHS hospitals. [45514]

Mr. Byrne: Evidence from the national beds inquiry (February 2000) and elsewhere suggests that the optimal bed occupancy rate is around 82 to 85 per cent. These figures however, are merely a guideline and it is up to the national health service locally to decide how best to manage their services. Some hospitals operate at occupancy levels in excess of these levels while still delivering a high quality of care, patient safety and the key access targets.

Influenza

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of recent evidence on the effectiveness of Tamiflu; and what effect this has had on her Department's planning for an influenza pandemic. [45381]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 24 January 2006]: We are aware of the recent review of antiviral effectiveness published in The Lancet[1] and have given it full consideration. Studies in the review are specific to seasonal flu and do not affect our plan for pandemic flu. The findings to date are of little public health significance as the change to make the strain more resistant to antivirals also makes it less infectious.

Tamiflu was chosen for the United Kingdom stockpile on the basis of independent expert advice that reflected its efficacy and ease of administration. Internationally, this is agreed as the product of choice. Our antiviral strategy is kept under constant review and we are looking carefully at alternatives as a possible back-up to Tamiflu.

International Recruitment of Health Workers

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many recruitment agencies have signed the Code of Practice on the International Recruitment of Health Workers in each of the past five years for which records are available. [44440]

Mr. Byrne: NHS Employers is responsible for monitoring the code of practice on international recruitment and maintains a register of international recruitment agencies that comply with the code.

A revised code was published in December 2004, which tightened arrangements for locum recruitment and the private sector and made it a requirement that all agencies supplying permanent and temporary healthcare professional staff to the national health service comply with the code of practice.

The number of agencies on the NHS Employers list is shown in the table.

	NHS Employers list[1]
2003	64
2004	164
2005	[2]140

[1] As a list of agencies compliant with the code of practice was not established until 2003, data cannot be provided prior to this date.
[2] The reduced number in 2005 reflects in part the effect of mergers in the commercial recruitment agency sector.

Lyme Disease

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many specialist consultants in England are involved in the treatment of extreme cases of Lyme disease. [46384]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 30 January 2006]: As of June 2005, 111 consultants in infectious diseases were employed in the national health service in England. They have the principal role in the treatment of Lyme disease of differing levels of severity. In addition, the Health Protection Agency (HPA) employs 118 consultants in communicable disease control who have a role in the diagnosis of Lyme disease.

All of these consultants have rapid and easy access to the HPA's Lyme Borreliosis specialist diagnostic service for confirmation of diagnosis of Lyme disease in accordance with internationally agreed diagnostic criteria.

Mental Health Services

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of the level of funding for mental health services in (a) Cambridgeshire and (b) Peterborough. [33478]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department assesses annually the investment in mental health services published in the national survey of mental health services. The report details the level of investment by strategic health authorities (SHAs) in adult mental health services and compares it with results reported in previous years. The latest national survey for 2004–05 showed Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridgeshire SHAs7 planned investment in mental health services per head of weighted working age population was £169.551 million. This is an increase of £27.283 million on the previous year.

The analysis in the report is derived from the detailed finance mapping exercise co-ordinated by local implementation teams as part of the regular adult mental health review process undertaken each autumn.

A copy of the "National Survey of Investment in Mental Health Services 2004–05" is available at the Department's website at: www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/11/52/96/04115296.pdf or by contacting:

Midwives

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many supervisors of midwives there have been in England in each year since 1997. [45735]

Mr. Byrne: This information is not collected centrally.

The Nursing and Midwifery Council collates statistics on the number of practising midwives per supervisor. This information is available on the Nursing and Midwifery Council's website at www.nmc-uk.org

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance her Department has issued on financial payments by NHS trusts to supervisors of midwives. [45843]

Mr. Byrne: The NHS Terms and Conditions of Service Handbook provides that employers may use their discretion, subject to partnership arrangements, to reward staff undertaking statutory, regulatory duties performed outside of those required by the job description and/or measured by the NHS Job Evaluation scheme.

Ministerial Meetings

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which (a) maternity, (b) children's and (c) young people's organisations the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Care Services has met since his appointment. [33109]

Mobile Phone Masts

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research has been evaluated by her Department into the health effects of non-thermal pulsed microwave radiation associated with mobile telephone masts. [47303]

Caroline Flint: The independent expert group on mobile phones (IEGMP), under Sir William Stewart produced the Stewart Report in May 2000 and its principal conclusion in relation to exposures to radiofrequency radiation (RF) from base stations (masts) was that

"the balance of evidence indicates that there is no general risk to the health of people living near to base stations on the basis that exposures are expected to be small fractions of the guidelines."

A more recent report, 'Mobile Phones and Health 2004', reviewed measurements of exposures to radiofrequency radiation from masts (or base stations) made by Ofcom and by National Radiological Protection Board and noted that they were consistent with those available at the time of the Stewart Report 2000. These reports are available on the Health Protection Agency's website at www.hpa.org.uk/radiation

It had been noted that concern had been expressed about exposures to pulsed fields. However, a 'Review of Scientific Evidence for Limiting Exposure to Electromagnetic Fields' (0–300 GHz) was published in 2004 (Docs NRPB Vol. 15 No. 3 2004) in support of its 'Advice to Government on Exposure Guidelines for EMFs'. This review included a consideration of possible biological effects of exposure to pulsed radiofrequency fields. Overall, no convincing and consistent evidence in support of low-level pulsed fields having detrimental effects was found.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans the Government have to undertake research into the health effects of non-thermal pulsed radiation associated with mobile telephone masts; [48000]

(2) whether her Department has (a) conducted and (b) commissioned research into the effects of non-thermal pulsed radiation associated with mobile telephone masts. [48001]

Caroline Flint: Mobile phone base stations and handsets comply with national and international guidelines that were introduced to prevent thermal effects from exposure to radiofrequency (RF) electromagnetic fields (EMF). The guidelines have been based on extensive scientific reviews by the International Commission on Non-ionizing Radiation Protection, the World Health Organisation (WHO) and, in this country, the Health Protection Agency (HPA). This includes consideration of non-thermal effects in tissues and a variety of pulsed signals at the levels normally encountered from mobile phone technology in use today. Independent measurements near base stations (masts) have demonstrated that RF exposures are very much lower than the guidelines (www.ofcom.org.uk).

In response to recommendations for continuing research, the mobile telecommunications and health research (MTHR) programme, jointly funded by Government and industry, has supported about 30 individual studies to investigate the potential health effects of RF exposures from mobile phone technology. A description of the programme and the individual studies is available on its website at www.mthr.org.uk The studies in the MTHR programme concentrate largely on the exposures from the mobile phone handsets because these exposures are considerably higher than those from base stations.

Worldwide research is evaluated periodically by the WHO and the HPA's radiation protection division. The report, 'Mobile Phones and Health 2004', available on the HPA's website at www.hpa.org.uk/radiation, noted that there are continuing concerns about the impact of base stations on health and well-being

"despite the current evidence which shows that exposures of individuals are likely to be only a small fraction of those from phones".

The report recommended

"studies focused on ascertaining the exposure of people to RF fields".

In line with this recommendation, the MTHR programme is supporting a number of studies in relation to base stations.

National Carers Grant

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to maintain the National Carers Grant after 2008. [47544]

Mr. Byrne: The comprehensive spending review (CSR) 2007 will set the Government's priorities for the longer term. It will examine what has already been achieved and should identify what further steps must now be taken, by undertaking a zero-based review of baseline expenditure.

The National Carers Grant, along with other Department adult's social care specific grants, will be examined as part of the CSR 2007.

CSR 2007 will cover the period between 2008 and 2011.

NHS Chemotherapy Budget

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total NHS chemotherapy budget was in each of the last five years. [42474]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 January 2006]: This information is not held centrally. It is for individual primary care trusts to decide and allocate funding for chemotherapy in their area.

NHS Finance

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the projected financial out-turn for 2005–06 is for each of the NHS trusts in the West Midlands Government Office area. [44406]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested on the financial outturn for 2005–06 for each of the national health service trusts in the West Midlands Government Office is provided in the table.

The forecast outturn position for 2005–06, as submitted by NHS organisations at the mid-year point (month six), is available in the Library. Copies of this information is also available on the Department's website at:

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether slipping payment on pay-as-you-earn and national insurance contributions, as mentioned in her interview with the Health Service Journal on 19 January, is a method sanctioned by her Department for controlling deficits in NHS organisations; what discussions she has had with (a) strategic health authorities and (b) other NHS organisations regarding delaying payment; what the content of these discussions was; and if she will make a statement. [45518]

Mr. Byrne: The Department's policy is that all national health service organisations should ensure that payments of pay-as-you-earn tax and national insurance contributions are made when they are due, or by the date agreed with the Inland Revenue. The issue has been discussed with all strategic health authorities and they have been reminded of the Department's policy. Where it has come to our attention that organisations are making specific proposals to delay payment, we have reminded them of the policy.

NHS Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 8 December 2005, Official Report, column 1575W, on NHS finance, what the end-of-year financial position of the NHS in total was in each year since 1997–98. [41958]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 12 January 2006]: The year-end financial position of all national health service organisations, including NHS trusts, primary care trusts and strategic health authorities, is shown in the table for the period 1997–98 to 2004–05. In the year immediately before this period the deficit was £460 million.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her written statement of 1 December 2005, Official Report, column 37WS, on NHS finance data, if she will place in the Library a copy of the latest in-year financial forecasts for each NHS trust, primary care trust and strategic health authority for 2005–06. [46859]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 30 January 2006]: The forecast outturn position for 2005–06, as submitted by national health service organisations (strategic health authorities, primary care trusts and NHS trusts) at the mid-year point (month six), is available in the Library and is also available on the Department's website at: www.dh.gov.uk/PublicationsAndStatistics/FreedomOfInformation/ClassesOfInformation/fs/en

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the current overall national financial deficit of the NHS is; what the deficit is of each (a) strategic health authority and (b) primary care trust which has one; and what percentage of debt is (i) historical and (ii) recurring in each case; [42690]

(2) what account she has taken of the unexpected costs incurred by primary care trusts in implementing the Government's required changes to GP contracts and out of hour services in assessing the overall national NHS deficit; and if she will make a statement; [42698]

(3) what guidance she has issued to primary care trusts in the priority they should give to (a) repayment of debt and (b) delivery of services; [42699]

(4) what assessment she has made of the effects of (a) short-term financial pressures on primary care trusts (PCTs) and (b) Government requirements on PCTs to address financial deficits on (i) patients and (ii) healthcare services; and if she will make a statement; [42700]

(5) to what timescale a primary care trust in a financially balanced recurrent expenditure position but with an accrued historic budget deficit is required to repay that historic element. [42723]

Jane Kennedy: The net deficit for 2004–05 across the national health service was £256 million, which includes the financial outturn of NHS Foundation Trusts (NHSFTs). The forecast outturn position for 2005–06, as submitted by NHS organisations at the mid-year point, is a net deficit of around £620 million, excluding NHSFTs. The 2004–05 financial position and the 2005–06 forecast month six position for NHS organisations, excluding foundation trusts is available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/PublicationsAndStatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidanceArticle/fs/en?CONTENT_ID=4119175&chk=JuzTDZ

Overspending and underspending by NHS bodies is carried into the following year, as part of the carry forward regime. This is operated by the Department at strategic health authority level (SHA), and SHAs have the authority to determine how the regime operates for organisations within their health economy. For this reason we do not know how much of the carry forward was applied to individual organisations, so it is not possible to distinguish between historical and recurring deficits for primary care trusts (PCTs) and SHAs. For the purposes of comparison, the turnover and financial position for all SHAs and PCTs for each of the last two years, 2003–04 and 2004–05 has been placed in the Library.

All NHS Trusts and PCTs should break even every year. Where an organisation has a historic deficit, the SHA can provide financial support to the organisations to allow them more time to break even whilst the recovery plan is implemented. SHAs have the responsibility for ensuring the organisations across its area are in financial balance every year, so to provide planned support to one organisation requires other NHS organisations within the health economy to underspend over the same period. Any such arrangements would have to be subject to the agreement of local providers, commissioners and the managing SHA.

All NHS organisations have minimum standards of quality they must deliver, including targets for maximum waiting times. These are dramatically better than the standards of the NHS in the past and there can be no trade-off between these quality standards and removing deficits. All areas of the country have seen dramatic improvements in care, and all areas of the country will continue to see improvements. Going further in a specific hospital cannot be achieved if it is unaffordable. This would, in effect, be one part of the NHS spending the money of another part of the NHS to deliver a better service, which is unfair on the other parts of the country.

The Department allocated PCTs £4.5 billion through primary medical services (PMEDS) funding arrangements in 2005–06, contributing towards the implementation of new general medical services (GMS) contract arrangements including out of hours and quality outcome framework (QOF) services for both GMS and personal medical services.

The latest available data, which are still being validated, is for 2004–05. This data indicates that PCTs are having to manage overspends on allocations around the quality outcome framework (£200 million) and out of hours (£100 million). This has been offset by lower than expecting growth in other areas, such as hospital elective activity and prescribing expenditure.

The NHS has received record increases in funding, and the majority of PCTs are delivering improved services as well as living within their budget. Where organisations are failing to do this it is due to poor management, so there is no need to sacrifice the delivery of the required standards and targets to deliver financial balance.

NHS Financial Deficits

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the year-end financial deficits of (a) Buckinghamshire Mental Health NHS Trust, (b) East Sussex Hospitals NHS Trust, (c) Medway NHS Trust, (d) Royal United Hospital Bath NHS Trust, (e) Royal West Sussex NHS Trust and (f) Trafford Healthcare NHS Trust were in (i) 2002–03, (ii) 2003–04 and (iii) 2004–05; whether trusts which have failed to achieve breakeven or a surplus in three consecutive financial years are considered by her Department to have failed in their duty laid out in section 10 of the NHS and Community Care Act 1990; what measures are put in place when a trust fails to achieve the duty laid out in section 10 of the 1990 Act; and if she will make a statement. [46397]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 30 January 2006]: The year-end surplus/deficit position for the years 2002–03 through 2004–05 for the trusts is shown in the table.

Organisation name	Final accounts surplus / deficit 2002–03	2003–04	2004–05
Buckinghamshire Mental Health NHS Trust	(916)	(1,689)	(1,049)
East Sussex Hospitals NHS Trust	(1,450)	(1,787)	(4,983)
Medway NHS Trust	(967)	2,372	(279)
Royal United Hospitals Bath NHS Trust	(24,784)	(1,968)	1946)
The Royal West Sussex NHS Trust	(1,349)	(3,572)	(15,483)
Trafford Healthcare NHS Trust	2	(744)	(3,490)

The NHS and Community Care Act 1990 sets out the breakeven duty for national health service trusts as a requirement to breakeven "taking one financial year with another".

In agreement with the Audit Commission and other audit bodies, this has been clarified by the NHS Finance Manual as a requirement to breakeven over a three-year period, starting from first year of deficit. This period can be extended by agreement with the local strategic health authority (SHA) for up to five years.

Furthermore, the accumulated deficit at the end of the financial year must be material for the trust to be deemed to have failed to breakeven in that year. Material has been clarified as meaning greater than 0.5 per cent. of turnover.

Using these criteria, Medway NHS Trust has achieved its breakeven duty in 2003–04 and 2004–05. Similarly, Trafford Healthcare NHS Trust achieved its breakeven duty in 2002–03 and 2003–04; its three-year breakeven duty period therefore commenced in 2004–05.

The remaining four trusts have all agreed extended five-year recovery terms with their SHAs, and therefore none are in breach of their statutory duty to break-even "taking one year with another".

Compliance with the statutory duty to breakeven is inextricably linked to improving financial performance. Various measures are taken to improve this, the most recent being the announcement of the turnaround teams. Details of the turnaround team process, and the organisations covered is available on the Department' website at: www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot?04/12/71/88/0412 7188.pdf.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the likely impact of financial deficits in primary care trusts on the achievement of Government targets. [46662]

Mr. Byrne: All national health service organisations have minimum standards of quality they must deliver, including meeting targets for maximum waiting times. These are dramatically better than the standards of the NHS in the past and there can be no trade-off between these quality standards and removing deficits.

NHS Staff (Attacks)

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many attacks on NHS staff have been recorded in (a) England, (b) the Tees Valley and (c) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency, in each year since 1997. [43287]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested has not been collated centrally for the period 1997–99. Data outlining the estimated number of reported violent incidents collected by the Department for 2000–01, 2001–02, 2002–03 for each strategic health authority (SHA), national health service trust and primary care trust (PCT) in England has been placed in the Library.

In April 2003, the NHS security management service (NHS SMS) was created and assumed responsibility for the issue of tackling violence against NHS staff. The NHS SMS has collected data on the number of physical assaults on NHS staff in England for the period 2004–05. The figure for assaults on staff who work in mental health or learning disabilities was 43,301. For the acute sector the figure was 11,482 and for the ambulance service the figure was 1,329. Figures on physical assaults in the primary care sector are currently being validated and will be released shortly.

A breakdown of figures for each SHA, NHS trust and PCT in England for the year 2004–05 will be released shortly.

NHS Tariff Uplift

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 17 January 2006, Official Report, column 1304W, on NHS tariff uplift, what the NHS tariff uplift (a) will be between 2005–06 and 2006–07 and (b) was between 2004–05 and 2005–06; and if she will provide a breakdown of the major components contributing to uplift between (i) 2005–06 and 2006–07 and (ii) 2004–05 and 2005–06. [45421]

Mr. Byrne: The national health service tariff uplift will be 4 per cent. between 2005–06 and 2006–07. It was 5.3 per cent. between 2004–05 and 2005–06.

A breakdown of the major components contributing to the uplift for these two periods is shown in the following table.

NHS Trusts (Invoices)

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS trusts (a) paid and (b) did not pay 95 per cent. of undisputed invoices within contract terms or 30 days where no terms have been agreed in the last period for which figures are available; and what the total value is of those invoices. [44928]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

The most recent period for which figures are available is as reported in the individual final accounts of national health service trusts for 2004–05.

Parkinson's Disease

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government are taking to ensure that general practitioners are adequately trained in the (a) diagnosis and (b) treatment of Parkinson's disease; and if she will make a statement. [47347]

Mr. Byrne: Government do not specify the content of the general practitioner (GP) training curriculum. This is the job of the Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board (PMETB), which is the competent authority for postgraduate medical training in the United Kingdom. PMETB is an independent professional body.

Regulations specify seven competencies which must be tested, and which the curriculum must therefore teach:

> factual medical knowledge sufficient to enable the doctor to perform the duties of a GP; the ability to apply factual medical knowledge to the management of problems presented by patients in general practice; > effective communication, both orally and in writing;
> the ability to consult satisfactorily with general practice patients;
> the ability to review and critically analyze the practitioner's own working practices and to manage any necessary changes appropriately;
> clinical skills; and
> the ability to synthesize all of the above competencies and apply them appropriately in a general practice setting.

GPs are expected therefore to learn in trailing the skills needed to deal with all their patients.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to answer questions (a) 28223 tabled on 14 November 2005 and (b) 29705 tabled on 11 November 2005 by the hon. Member for Yeovil. [40645]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 2 February 2006, Official Report, columns 718–19W, and to the reply given to him by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health on 19 December 2005, Official Report, column 2636W.

Pension Liability

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the level of pension liability is for health sector workers. [46797]

Mr. Byrne: The Government Actuary's Department has valued the total liabilities of the NHS Pension Scheme as at 31 March 2005 to be £127.9 billion. The NHS Pension Scheme covers staff directly employed in the national health service; staff employed in general practices; and, under specific direction from the Secretary of State for Health, staff employed in other organisations including health charities, universities, and other government departments who are engaged in healthcare related activities.

Post-traumatic Stress Disorder

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many NHS in-patient beds are available for the specialist treatment of those with post-traumatic stress disorder or related conditions. [49187]

(2) how many NHS in-patient beds are available for the specialist treatment of those with post-traumatic stress disorder and related conditions. [49473]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answers 6 and 7 February 2006]: National health service beds are allocated to in-patients on the basis of clinical need, and beds are not set aside for the management of specific medical conditions.

NHS organisations were given guidance on the management of post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) in primary and secondary care by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) in March 2005. Local NHS organisations should review their existing clinical guidelines, care pathways and protocols in the treatment and management of PTSD in the light of this guidance, and revise them accordingly.

The NICE guidance is available on its website at www.nice.org.uk/CG026NICEguideline This guidance should be used in conjunction with the national service framework for mental health, which is available on the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/07/72/09/04077209.pdf

Primary Care Trusts (Financial Deficits)

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many primary care trusts incurred financial deficits in (a) 2003–04 and (b) 2004–05; and how many she expects will be in deficit at the end of 2005–06. [46029]

Mr. Byrne: In 2003–04, 41 primary care trusts (PCTs) posted a deficit. In 2004–05, 90 PCTs posted a deficit. 70 PCTs are forecasting a deficit for 2005–06 at month six.

Private Finance Initiative

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total capital sum is of each of the private finance initiative schemes over £10 million (a) in operation and (b) where the outline business case has been approved for which her Department is responsible; and what the (i) total optimism bias percentage, (ii) net value at commencement and (iii) amount of optimism bias for the public sector comparator is in respect of each scheme. [44806]

Jane Kennedy: Table 1 shows the capital value for all private finance initiative schemes over £10 million which are open. Table 2 shows the capital value for private finance initiative schemes which have reached financial close with work started on site or have advertised in the Official Journal of the European Union. All these schemes have an approved outlined business case.

The requirement to make explicit quantified adjustments for optimism bias in business cases, complementing the risk analysis already undertaken, was announced by Treasury in January 2003 and is applicable to national health service schemes that reached the invitation to negotiate stage from April 2003. Schemes which applied optimism bias are indicated in Table 2. This information is only available for schemes above £25 million. To collect and collate percentages and amounts of optimism for all these schemes could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Sleep Disorders

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment her Department (a) has undertaken and (b) plans to undertake into possible links between induced abortion and (i) sleep disorders and (ii) sleep disturbances; and if she will make a statement. [47980]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 16 January 2006, Official Report, column 1054W.

Ward Closures

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospital wards in England have been closed

(a) permanently or (b) temporarily since 30 June 2005 due to financial constraints; and if she will make a statement. [4746[3]]

Mr. Byrne: This is not information held centrally. These are operational matters for decision locally having regard to patients' needs.

Research Funding

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the amount of NHS research funding, broken down by disease area or type for each of the last five years. [45596]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is shown in the table.

[4] Funding provided exceptionally to the NHS to defray the treatment costs of eligible R and D, normally met from patient care budgets.

Details of individual projects supported by NHS research and development (R and D) funding can be found on the national research register on the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk/research

Retinal Screening

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, if she will make support available for the use of fundus cameras in opticians practices to provide convenient diabetes retinopathy screening for patients; and if she will make a statement [46659]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 31 January 2006]: Capital funding of £27 million has been made available to buy digital cameras and related equipment for retinal screening. £5 million has been made available in 2003–04, £9.6 million in 2004–05 and £12.4 million in 2005–06. The capital has been apportioned on a population basis through strategic health authorities.

Primary care trusts are responsible for implementing diabetic retinopathy screening to national standards as set out in "Improvement, Expansion and Reform: the next three years", the planning and performance framework for 2003 to 2006 and diabetes national service framework delivery strategy. It is for local health services to decide how they want the programme to be delivered locally. At national level optometrists have played an important role on the national diabetic retinopathy screening project advisory group set up to steer the development of the programme.

Smoking

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the average age at which people start smoking in England. [39343]

Caroline Flint: Data on smoking are available from the general household survey. We are able to provide estimates for 2003, of the average age at which people started smoking in England, using the results of the general household survey 2003. The raw data required to calculate the average at which people start smoking regularly are available to us up to 2003.

The general household survey 2004 has recently been released (December 15 2005) and we are able to provide estimates of the age range people started smoking in England for 2004. The sample population for this survey is adults aged 16 and over.

The available data for 2003 (average age) and 2004 (age ranges) are shown in the table.

Suffolk Coastal Primary Care Trust

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when the financial and management specialist team sent to Suffolk Coastal primary care trust is due to report its findings to her Department; and when those findings will be made public; [47654]

(2) which patient representative bodies the financial and management specialist team met during its visit to Suffolk Coastal primary care trust. [47655]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 2 February 2006]: Suffolk Coastal primary care trust (PCT) was subject to a baseline assessment exercise. The aim of this exercise is to ensure there is an agreed understanding of the local financial problem and that actions are in hand to address this. This involved the strategic health authority (SHA) and an assessment of the PCTs financial management.

It is the responsibility of the PCT to work with stakeholders, including patient representative bodies and such discussions were outside the scope of the baseline line assessment.

The PCT will then agree a tailored package of turnaround support with their SHA.

A report from the Director of Finance of the Department on 25 January 2006 was released which gives the results of the assessments. Suffolk Coastal PCT was assessed as needing drive and focus to maintain their high priority to turnaround.

Written Answers to Questions

Thursday 9 February 2006

PRIME MINISTER

Mr. Victor Bout

Harry Cohen: To ask the Prime Minister what discussions he has had with the United Nations on whether Mr Victor Bout should be on a list of those subject to planned UN sanctions on arms trafficking; and if he will make a statement. [49806]

The Prime Minister: I have had no discussions with the United Nations on this matter.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Mitigation Speeches

23. Mr. Borrow: To ask the Solicitor-General if he will encourage prosecutors to challenge derogatory attacks on a victim's character made by defence lawyers in mitigation. [49932]

The Solicitor-General: Yes, on 21 October 2005 I announced the publication of the revised Attorney General's Guidelines on the Acceptance of Pleas and the Prosecutor's Pledge. Both require prosecutors robustly to challenge defence mitigation which is derogatory to a victim's character.

Electoral Fraud

24. James Duddridge: To ask the Solicitor-General what role he expects the Law Officers' Departments to play in ensuring prosecutions are brought in relation to electoral fraud. [49934]

The Solicitor-General: Prosecutions for election offences, including electoral fraud, are conducted by the special crime division of the Crown Prosecution Service, based in London and York.

A specialist Crown prosecutor will review the case, as in all cases, in accordance with the Code for Crown Prosecutors.

The Law Officers, who superintend the work of the Crown Prosecution Service, would be informed about high profile cases, however the DPP does not require law officers consent to prosecute a case.

Crime Victims

25. Keith Vaz: To ask the Solicitor-General when he last met the Director of Public Prosecutions to discuss liaison between the Crown Prosecution Service and victims of crime. [49935]

The Solicitor-General: The Attorney General and I and our officials have regular discussions with the Director of Public Prosecutions and his officials on a wide range of victim related issues, including the No Witness No Justice initiative and the Prosecutor's Pledge, which are significantly changing the relationship between prosecutors and victims and witnesses of crime.

Criminal Cases

26. Mr. David Jones: To ask the Solicitor-General what steps the Crown Prosecution Service is taking to improve management of the procedure of criminal cases in court. [49936]

The Solicitor-General: The Criminal Procedure Rules Committee (CPRC) sets the rules which govern the practice and procedure of the criminal courts and give courts explicit powers actively to manage criminal cases and to avoid unnecessary delays and promote consistency between courts.

The DPP is a member of the CPRC and both the CPS and my office play a leading role in contributing to the work of the CPRC and its sub-groups. The CPS was closely involved in the drafting of the overriding objective, the case management rules and forms. Significant contributions were made on the disclosure and terrorism protocols. The CPS regularly provides comment and suggestions on issues which the Committee are considering. In addition the criminal case management framework complements the rules in setting out the role and responsibilities of the CPS and others involved in managing criminal cases through the courts.

Crown Prosecution Service

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Solicitor-General what steps the Crown Prosecution Service is taking to improve the delivery of court papers. [49933]

The Solicitor-General: Steps are being taken to improve service—including the timely service of papers by the police. The electronic service of papers is increasingly being used by the CPS in the more complex criminal cases such as complex frauds and complex computer related crimes. The CPS in electronically serving evidence on the court has to ensure that the police have signed paper statements of all witnesses. The statements themselves can then be served electronically on the court and defence; this can be done by CD or e-mail. The signed paper bundle has to be retained by the police.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Solicitor-General what the average time taken by the Crown Prosecution Service to decide whether to prosecute a juvenile was in the last year for which figures are available. [50064]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service maintains no central record of the time taken to reach pre-charge decisions, nor is the information recorded on individual case files. The time varies considerably, partly due to the need to gather evidence and talk to witnesses.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Child Care

9. Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research her Department is undertaking on whether cost acts as a barrier to take-up of child care. [49945]

Maria Eagle: The Department has commissioned a series of surveys of parents' use, views and experiences of Childcare and Early Years Services. The latest of these was conducted between 2004 and 2005. The survey collected data on a wide range of issues associated with childcare early years provision, including information on the barriers to such provision.

The findings from the survey are expected to be published in a research report at the end of March 2006.

Setting/Streaming

10. Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures her Department has introduced since 1997 to promote setting and streaming in schools. [49946]

Jacqui Smith: We have published case studies and research evidence to inform school practice on pupil grouping. Through our national strategies and gifted and talented programmes, we have issued guidance to schools to consider a range of ability grouping practices, which includes setting and streaming, to better meet the learning needs of pupils. As a result the evidence suggests that there are more young people taught in ability sets now, than in 1997.

Children's Centres

13. Vera Baird: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress has been made in the establishment of children's centres. [49949]

Maria Eagle: I am delighted to report that we now have over 500 Sure Start children's centres, supporting nearly 400,000 children in the most disadvantaged areas. We are on course to have centres supporting 650,000 children being supported by children's centres by March. From April we will start rolling out children's centres beyond the most disadvantaged areas, as part of our drive to have 2,500 children's centres by March 2008. Our goal is to have 3,500 children's centres by 2010, one for every community.

School Discipline

14. Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on school discipline. [49950]

Jacqui Smith: Although the great majority of schools are orderly places we remain determined to reduce misbehaviour to an absolute minimum. So we are implementing a major national programme that makes behaviour management training available to all schools and provides extra resources for schools facing the greatest challenges. We are also legislating to give school staff an unequivocal power to discipline pupils and extend the use of court orders to reinforce parents' responsibility for behaviour in school.

Education Standards

15. Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent assessment she has made of standards in education for 16 to 18-year-olds; and if she will make a statement. [49951]

Bill Rammell: This year saw the highest standards we have ever achieved at every key stage and at A-level. In the 14–19 Education and Skills White Paper and Implementation Plan, we set out our plans for a new 14–19 curriculum and qualifications entitlement which will transform opportunities for 16–19-year-olds and introduce greater stretch and challenge. There will be 14 sets of specialised diplomas, at three levels up to A-level equivalent, covering all sectors of the economy, delivered through partnership arrangements between schools, colleges and training providers.

16. Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures her Department is taking to improve the standard of basic skills of school leavers. [49953]

Jacqui Smith: The 14–19 Education and Skills White Paper set out our plans. We will provide catch up opportunities at key stage 3; toughen GCSE English and maths so that no-one can get a higher grade without mastering the functional basics; make these a core element of our new specialised diplomas; introduce a general diploma to recognise those who achieve five good GCSEs or equivalent, including English and maths, and reflect this in the attainment tables.

Skills Olympics

17. Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps she is taking to bring the Skills Olympics to the UK. [49954]

Phil Hope: Following a successful Pre-Qualification Visit from the WorldSkills Executive in January, we are now preparing a formal bid to host the 2011 WorldSkills Competition in London. The final decision will be made in Melbourne on 10 May, by secret ballot of WorldSkills member countries. A period of international lobbying prior to this will focus on securing the votes of countries considered undecided or unlikely to vote for the UK.

Our bid will focus on the UK's ability to raise WorldSkills' profile and reputation by giving the competition a global stage from which to spread its messages. We aim to establish links with media interest in the 2012 Olympics (held only six months after WorldSkills 2011) to associate world class achievement in sport with world class achievement in skills in the public mind, and change perceptions of vocational education and training positively and permanently.

The social and economic diversity of England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland offers a distinctive experience to competitors and observers alike, and a unique opportunity to extend the reach and impact of the competition to many different countries and communities.

If our bid is successful, the Government will build a social partnership with individuals, partners and business to encourage skills investment across the UK. This will be a national wide celebration of world class vocational skills, and promises to be a very exciting time, with the potential to offer great economic and social rewards for the whole of the UK.

Education White Paper

18. Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research was undertaken which supported the contents of the Education White Paper; and if she will make a statement. [49955]

Ruth Kelly: A wide range of research was used to inform the White Paper and the policies contained within it.

All the research commissioned by the Department is published on the Department's website when it is complete.

Language Teaching

19. Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent guidance she has issued to schools on the teaching of foreign languages. [49956]

Jacqui Smith: On 27 January I wrote to all secondary schools setting out measures being introduced from September 2006. I expect all schools to set a benchmark for numbers of students studying languages leading to a recognised qualification at Key Stage 4. Schools will decide a target to set themselves between 50 per cent. and 90 per cent., dependant on their circumstances. Also, on 27 October 2005 the Key Stage 2 Framework for Languages was launched introducing languages into primary schools.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps she has taken to reduce the total administration costs of (a) her Department, (b) its non-departmental public bodies and (c) Ofsted; and what assessment she has made of the savings made as a consequence. [5012]

Bill Rammell: The Department has agreed budgets which reflect a commitment to make 15 per cent. efficiency savings in real terms in administrative expenditure by 2007–08, within the Department itself, and across the landscape of its non-departmental public bodies and Ofsted. We are monitoring spend across all these budgets to ensure spend does not exceed profiled levels.

My Department reported progress towards our Gershon Review target in the Department's Autumn Performance Report. It will report further progress in the Departmental Annual Report which we expect to publish in April.

Higher Education

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on measures to promote fair access to higher education. [49999]

Bill Rammell: The Government remains committed to fair access and widening participation in higher education for reasons of social justice and economic need. In England, from 2006, no full-time student will have to pay fees up-front, nor will they repay anything until they leave higher education (HE) and are earning a reasonable wage. Repayments are suspended when not earning and interest will grow only in line with inflation. Students from low income households will once again be entitled to non-repayable grants.

Alongside this, we have established the Office for Fair Access (OFFA) to promote fair access. OFFA has approved access agreements from 180 institutions intending to charge higher level fees. These will deliver around £300 million in financial support to students from low income backgrounds.

In 2005–06, HEFCE has allocated £282 million to higher education institutions to help offset the costs associated with recruiting and retaining students from groups under-represented in HE.

Our Aimhigher programme seeks to raise aspiration and attainment levels among those currently under-represented in HE. We have announced that Aimhigher will continue until at least 2008.

In addition, we have set out proposals to reform the higher education applications process to make the system fairer to all applicants. We will publish our response to the consultation in the spring.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what recent discussions she has had on the Higher Education Funding Council for England's review of its methods of funding teaching; and if she will make a statement; [49231]

(2) what representations she has received on the Higher Education Funding Council for England's proposal that funding for teaching in higher education institutions should be based on the number of credits obtained by students; and if she will make a statement; [49277]

(3) if she will make it her policy that changes in the funding mechanisms for higher education institutions should provide those with a high proportion of part-time students with appropriate support. [49278]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 7 February 2006]: We discuss these matters on a regular basis with HEFCE. The council has been consulting the higher education sector on the future formula to be used for the distribution of grant for teaching. I am sure the council will consider carefully any arguments and evidence which are put forward in the consultation exercise on these issues. We have already brought forward proposals to provide additional support amounting to £40 million over the next two years for part-time students from non-traditional backgrounds.

Learning and Skills Council

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps she is taking to encourage greater involvement of small companies in funding the Learning and Skills Council and its initiatives. [50034]

Bill Rammell: The Department funds a wide range of learning provision through the Learning and Skills Council's Learner Participation budget which is £6.7 billion for 2005–06. In April 2006 we will roll out Train to Gain which will target small and hard to reach employers in particular. Train to Gain will provide skills brokers whose role will be to help employers analyse their skill needs and source the training to meet those needs. Some of the provision will be funded by the LSC, employers themselves will contribute to the funding of other learning.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how local Learning and Skills Council offices will be funded to deliver partnership arrangements and economic regeneration; and if she will make a statement. [50037]

Bill Rammell: As part of its restructuring plans, the Learning and Skills Council proposes to establish 148 local partnership teams which will work closely with their local communities, understand the needs of individuals and employers at grass roots level and build strategic relationships with local schools, colleges and other learning providers. The local partnership teams will work alongside 35 economic development teams which will focus on skills for employment, regeneration and economic development.

The local partnership and economic development teams will be funded from within the LSC's existing administration budget. The new structure is expected to achieve savings of around £40 million, which can be reinvested in front-line delivery. The final agreed changes will take effect from summer 2006.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures are in place to resolve differences between national and local priorities in the Learning and Skills Council, with particular reference to those between level 2 and level 3 obligations. [50041]

Bill Rammell: The Government's priorities for post-16 learning are set out in my right hon. Friend's annual Grant Letter to the Learning and Skills Council and in the LSC's "Priorities for Success" document published in October 2005.

The LSC has introduced a new business planning cycle which is helping to strengthen the local, regional and national planning process. The LSC's Annual Statement of Priorities, along with the more detailed guidance in "Planning for Success" set out the priorities for the LSC. These provide the strategic framework for the development of local plans, which themselves reflect the key learning and skills priorities for the local area, as well as taking into account key national and regional priorities. National priorities include tackling basic skills and extending a new entitlement for fully funded first full Level 2 qualifications in all regions from September 2006. Through the mechanisms outlined above we anticipate a marked increase in the delivery and achievement of first full Level 2s from 2006–07 while also supporting progression to Level 3 and higher skills including technician, advanced craft and trade skills and apprenticeships for adults.

The LSC's proposed new structure will help to further strengthen its ability to respond flexibly and rapidly to local priorities, while at the same time providing stronger drivers at regional level. The national office will continue to provide the overarching planning and funding framework.

Park Life Centres (Gloucestershire)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how Park Life centres in Gloucestershire will be funded after the movement of funds to regional offices of its Learning and Skills Council. [50040]

Bill Rammell: Parklife centres offer a valuable link between the key business parks and business support services in Gloucestershire. The initiative has been jointly funded by the South West Regional Development Agency and Gloucestershire LSC from its discretionary budgets. As my hon. Friend is aware, the Learning and Skills Council is undertaking a major organisational restructuring. However, this should not impact on local arrangements to support the Parklife project.

Qualifications

Ed Balls: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of the population in (a) West Yorkshire, (b) Wakefield District and (c) Normanton constituency aged between 16 and 65 years have no qualifications. [48390]

Phil Hope: The following table shows estimates of the proportion of the population aged between 16 and 65 years who have no qualifications. Data come from the Local Labour Force Survey for 2004–05.

	Percentage
West Yorkshire	17
Wakefield District	17
Normanton constituency	11

Note:

As with all sample surveys the estimates presented in this table are subject to sampling variability.

Student Finance

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent assessment she has made of the period of time which elapses before student loans begin to be repaid; and if she will make a statement. [45665]

Bill Rammell: It is difficult to generalise about how long it takes people to find jobs after graduation and enter repayment as this is largely dependent on individual circumstances. The annual Destination of Leavers from Higher Education (DLHE) survey (conducted by the Higher Education Statistics agency) illustrates this. For the 2003/04 cohort of graduates surveyed six months after graduation, 64 per cent. were in employment, 10 per cent. in employment combined with further study, 14 per cent. in further study, 6 per cent. unemployed, and 6 per cent. were not available for work. Of those in employment who gave details of their salary, nearly two thirds were earning £15,000 or more and were thus eligible to make repayments.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Bin Liners

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether local authorities have the power to charge their residents for bin liners; and if she will make a statement. [46318]

Mr. Bradshaw: Under section 46(1) of the Environmental Protection Act 1990, waste collection authorities may serve notice on the occupier of a household requiring that specified receptacles be used for waste awaiting collection.

Under section 46(3) of the Act waste collection authorities may propose that receptacles be provided on payment by the occupier. A bin liner may be classed as a receptacle.

Abandoned Vehicles

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many abandoned vehicles were removed and destroyed in each London borough in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [47382]

Mr. Bradshaw: Results for abandoned vehicles removed and destroyed have been reported in the DEFRA municipal waste management survey from 2000–01 until 2003–04. Results for 2004–05 onwards are being collected through WasteDataFlow. The results for London boroughs are shown in the table.

Bovine TB

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what assessment she has made of the likely change in (a) stores, (b) finished cattle and (c) fat cattle going to live auction market following the introduction of the requirement for testing for tuberculosis in cattle; [47839]

(2) what assessment she has made of the likely effect on prices of (a) stores, (b) finished cattle and (c) fat cattle of the introduction of the requirement for testing for tuberculosis in cattle. [47861]

Mr. Bradshaw: Pre-movement testing will be introduced in England on 20 February. It will apply to cattle over 15 months of age moving out of one-two year tested herds, unless the herd or the movement meets any of the exemptions set out in the TB (England) Order 2005 (as amended).

The impact of pre-movement testing on cattle prices and auction markets was considered by the Tuberculosis Pre-Movement Testing Stakeholder Group. It is also addressed in a regulatory impact assessment, available on the Defra website at: www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/tb/premovement/index.htm.

We will keep the policy under review.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs under what legislation the Department has the authority to block a second bovine tuberculosis test for a calf that tested positive to the initial tuberculin skin test when the owner is willing to pay for the test: [48713]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 6 February 2006]: The current skin test for bovine tuberculosis (TB) is an effective test. It is the accepted standard laid down in both national and international legislation for determining the existence of disease in a cattle herd.

The Tuberculosis (England and Wales) Order 1984 requires cattle failing the tuberculin test, and those considered to have been direct contacts exposed to TB, to be compulsorily slaughtered. There is no provision for a second TB test nor is there a mechanism for appeals.

In the case of statutory tuberculin testing of cattle, any request to release tuberculin for a further private test will always be declined by the Department. Approval for private tests is generally granted in the context of a test for purchaser assurance, or as a condition for cattle export in herds not subjected to tuberculosis restrictions.

Canada Geese

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reasons Canada geese treated for fishing line injuries in sanctuaries are not allowed to be released back into the wild. [48361]

Jim Knight [holding answer 6 February 2006]: As with other non-native species of goose that have become naturalised, the Canada goose can have a localised impact on habitats. This can include the destruction of vegetation, as well as competing with native wildfowl for food and resources, such as nest sites. They can also pose a health risk to other animals and humans, for example through deposited faeces. This is why the Canada goose was added to Schedule 9 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981. It means that Canada geese are subject to the provisions of section 14 of the Act, and it is an offence to release them or allow them to escape into the wild.

We have recently publicly reviewed the provisions of Part I of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 including the possible adoption of a general licence to allow the release of certain non-native species that have been rehabilitated. I am currently working up more detailed proposals on these issues for inclusion in a consultation paper that we hope to issue later this year. The Canada goose is one of the possible species under consideration.

Centre for Ecology and Hydrology

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will list the research projects being undertaken by the Centre for Ecology and Hydrology. [48177]

Mr. Morley: The current research projects undertaken by the Centre for Ecology and Hydrology for the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs are listed as follows:

1. A Literature Review and Gap Analysis of Grassland Restoration Research in the UK and Europe

2. Acid Deposition Processes in the UK

3. Bioenergetics of Salmon Migration

Climate Change

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions she has had with the National Assembly for Wales about extending the Climate Challenge Fund to Wales. [47638]

Mr. Morley: There have been no ministerial discussions about extending the fund to Wales. However, officials from Defra and the National Assembly for Wales have been in discussion about the scope of the initiative since its inception last year. Public communication on climate change is a devolved matter, so the existing resources for the fund are for England only. The fund could only be extended to the devolved Administrations if they were to contribute towards it.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on what date she expects to publish the outcome of the Climate Change Review. [48524]

Mr. Morley: We expect to publish the review of the UK Climate Change Programme as soon as possible.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which Departments she has consulted as part of the Climate Change Review process; and if she will make a statement. [48525]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 6 February 2006]: We have been working closely with other Government Departments throughout the Climate Change Programme review. We are aiming to publish the outcomes of this work in the revised UK Climate Change Programme as soon as possible this year.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether it is her policy to secure a 20 per cent. reduction of UK carbon dioxide emissions by 2010. [48526]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 6 February 2006]: The Government remains fully committed to reducing UK carbon dioxide emissions by 20 per cent. below 1990 levels by 2010.

Commercial Developments (Energy Efficiency Standards)

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government are taking to promote zero carbon renewable energy systems in commercial buildings; and if she will make a statement. [49539]

Malcolm Wicks: The Major PV Demonstration Programme has offered £3.7 million in grants to fund the installation of solar PV panels on commercial buildings. The Low Carbon Buildings Programme (to be launched in April, subject to state aids approval) will continue to provide grants for the installation of renewable energy systems in commercial buildings. In addition the Government strategy for the promotion of micro generation will aim to encourage the installation of small-scale renewable energy systems in all buildings.

Countryside and Rights of Way Act

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many and what mileage of new (a) byways and (b) bridleways have been created since the enactment of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000. [49995]

Jim Knight: This information is held by local highway authorities and could be gathered only at a disproportionate cost.

Drought (Contingency Plans)

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what contingency plans are in place in case of drought in summer 2006.[48624]

Mr. Morley: Each water company has a drought plan to manage short term water shortages that contains various triggers to be used depending on the severity of a drought. The provision of drought plans became a statutory requirement in October 2005.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many gallons below their capacity level are the (a) reservoirs and (b) other areas of water supply that supply Leicester; and what these figures are as a proportion of their capacity level. [48625]

Mr. Morley: The Dove and Derwent reservoirs supply Leicester. The Dove is 94 per cent. full and the Derwent is 95 per cent. full. It would require 3,415 cubic metres (751,209 gallons) of water to bring these reservoirs to full capacity.

EU Habitats Directive

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the UK has implemented the EU Habitats Directive. [49379]

Jim Knight: Yes. In the UK there are three principal instruments transposing the directive:

The Conservation (Natural Habitats etc.) Regulations 1994 (SI 1994 No. 2716) in relation to England, Wales and Scotland.

The Conservation (Natural Habitats etc.) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 1995 (SR 1995 No. 380), in relation to Northern Ireland, and

The Nature Protection Ordinance 1991, in relation to Gibraltar.

Fuel Poverty

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she is taking to eradicate fuel poverty. [48700]

Mr. Morley: We have a PSA target in place that affirms our commitment to eradicate fuel poverty, as far as reasonably practicable, in vulnerable households in England by 2010. More information on the target, which is shared with the Department for Trade and Industry, and information on the targets in place in other parts of the UK, is available in the UK Fuel Poverty Strategy, published in November 2001.

The Government's main tool for eradicating fuel poverty in the private sector in England is the Warm Front Scheme, which offers a range of heating and insulation measures to householders in receipt of one of a range of qualifying benefits. The Scheme has assisted over one million households since its launch in June 2000. The new phase of the Scheme got under way in June last year, and is better equipped to target and assist those most in need in a sustainable way. The Scheme benefited from a boost in fuel poverty funding in England announced in the 2005 pre-Budget report of £250 million. This is additional to the extra £140 million announced in the last Spending Review and takes DEFRA's total fuel poverty funding over the 2005 08 period to over £800 million.

We are also working closely with colleagues across Government, not just with DTI but also ODPM, DWP, DH and HMT. Defra has a PSA Management Board that brings senior officials from these Departments together to monitor and tackle the range of issues relating to our targets. This ensures that the full policy agenda is properly considered, moving beyond the central tenets of energy efficiency and energy prices and taking in concerns relating to poor housing, benefit take-up, health risks and wider points relating to deprivation more generally.

GM Food

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the delegation from her Department which will attend the conference in April in Austria to discuss genetic modification in the EU will represent different shades of opinion on the subject of GM crops; and if she will make a statement. [49340]

Mr. Morley: The membership of the UK delegations which will attend the two conferences on genetic modification in April in Austria has yet to be finalised. However, those Defra officials who attend will represent agreed UK government policy on genetically modified organisms.

Greenhouse Gases

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will estimate the annual emission of methane gas emitted by (a) cattle, (b) sheep and (c) pigs; and if she will make a statement. [48242]

Mr. Bradshaw: [holding answer 2 February 2006]: The following table presents the total UK emissions of methane (CH_4) from cattle, sheep and pigs for the years 1990 and 2004, in million tonnes of carbon dioxide equivalent (Mt CO_2 equivalent). This data is taken from the most recent UK greenhouse gas inventory.

Category	Methane emissions (Mt CO_2 equivalent) 1990	2004
Cattle	15.85	14.25
Sheep (includes goats and deer)	4.48	3.73
Pigs	0.71	0.49

Between the years 1990 and 2004, annual UK methane emissions fell by 10 percent. for cattle, by 17 percent. for sheep and by 31 percent. for pig categories.

Mr. Forth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the carbon dioxide emission levels were for (a) the United Kingdom, (b) the EU, (c) the USA, (d) Russia, (e) China, (f) India, (g) Japan, (h) Brazil, (i) Indonesia and (j) the world in the last year for which figures are available; and what her projections are for (i) 2020 and (ii) 2030. [48344]

Mr. Morley: The following table shows historical and projected carbon dioxide (CO_2) emissions in million tonnes of CO_2 ($MtCO_2$) for the UK, EU, USA, Russia, China, India, Japan, Brazil, and Indonesia, together with global emissions.

Countries submit emission estimates to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC). The UK, EU, USA, Russia and Japan are developed country (Annex I) Parties to the UNFCCC, and submit emissions inventories annually; the most recent year for which data are available is in general 2003. China, India, Brazil and Indonesia are developing country (non-Annex I) Parties to the UNFCCC; the most recent data they have submitted is for 1994. Annex I CO_2 emissions for 1994 are provided for comparison. The data in the table cover all sectors including land-use, land-use change and forestry. Global emissions are estimated as the sum of those submitted to the UNFCCC in 1994 by 136 participating countries, including all major developed economies, plus an estimated 680 $MtCO_2$ for emissions from international shipping and aviation which are not included in national totals under international reporting guidelines.

The UK, EU, USA and Russia have submitted projections to the UNFCCC for CO_2 emissions in 2020, and Japan has submitted projections for 2010. China, India, Brazil and Indonesia have not submitted projections. UK projections are have been updated for consistency with the inventory and projections information published in January 2006. Projections to 2030 are not available for any of the countries, although the UK policy, as set out in the 2003 Energy White Paper, is to put ourselves on a path to a reduction of some 60 per cent. by 2050.

CO_2 emissions including LULUCF

Country	1994	2003	$MtCO_2$ 2020
UK	559.2	559.2 (for 2004)	536.4
EU	2,963.8	3,138.3	3,238.0
US	4,327.8	5,013.5	6,763.0
Russia	1,421.9	n/a (1,297.3 in 1999)	1,180–1,430
China	2,666.0	n/a	n/a
India	793.5	n/a	n/a
Japan	1,104.6	n/a	1,183.7 (for 2010)
Brazil	1,029.7	n/a	n/a
Indonesia	333.8	n/a	n/a
Global (136 countries)	21,090	n/a	n/a n/a = not available

The International Energy Agency provides estimates of projected emissions from use of fossil fuels which indicate, for China and India respectively, increases of about 110 per cent. and about 140 per cent. over the period 1994–2020. Fossil fuels account for the majority of CO_2 emissions in China and India but do not include land-use, land-use change and forestry which in 1994 reduced emission from China by about + 5 per cent. and increased those of India by about 8 per cent.

For Brazil the IEA data indicate an increase of about 120 per cent. in emissions from fossil fuel use over the period 1994 to 2020; however this does not include projections of emissions from deforestation, which accounted for about three-quarters of total CO_2 from Brazil in 1994. We do not have projections specific to Indonesia. In total, emissions from world fossil fuel usage, including emission from international marine and aviation, are predicted by IEA to increase by 55 per cent. between 1994 and 2020.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of carbon emissions generated by water desalination plants; and if she will make a statement. [48454]

Mr. Morley: Water companies have duties to maintain water supplies and the inclusion of desalination plants in their water resource plans is an option to overcome supply deficits. In considering planning permission for such plants, the planning authority will take into account sustainability factors including energy requirements and carbon emissions. Any appeal against a refusal of planning permission would come before the Secretary of State. One such appeal, by Thames Water, is currently before the Secretary of State for determination once a public inquiry has been held.

Incineration

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans her Department has to increase incineration capacity in England. [46404]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government have no plans to increase incineration capacity to any particular level; local authorities are responsible for deciding the most appropriate waste management facilities for their areas. Incineration with energy recovery is a sustainable option for the treatment of residual, post-recycling waste and preferable to landfill.

Landfill Licences

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to speed up the process of granting landfill licences. [47857]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Environment Agency is responsible for determining applications for landfill permits. It set up the Strategic Permitting Groups (SPGs) in March 2003 to oversee Pollution Prevention and Control (PPC) permitting applications. To date, the Environment Agency has determined some 1,150 applications for PPC permits received from the landfill and industry sectors.

SPG operation has become more effective and quicker as the Groups have become established. Determination times have been reduced by 20 per cent. The Environment Agency intends to build on this in 2006 by continuing to improve the permitting tools, for instance, by updating permit templates to make them easier to use.

Official Gifts

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will list the gifts received by (a) Ministers and (b) officials in her Department in each of the last two years for which information is available; what the approximate value of each was; and how many were (i) accepted and (ii) returned. [34749]

Jim Knight: The Government publishes an annual list of gifts received by Ministers valued at more than £140. The list provides details of the value of the gifts and whether they were retained by the Department or purchased by the Minister.

Information relating to the period 2003-04 and 2004-05 is available in the Library of the House.

No details are held centrally of gifts to officials and this information could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Organic Entry Level Stewardship

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will provide compensation for those farmers who have been unable to register their applications for Organic Entry Level Stewardship due to the timing of the provision of necessary data for farmers from the Rural Land Registry; and if she will make a statement. [49075]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 7 February 2006]: It is not our intention to provide compensation for farmers who have been unable to submit applications for Entry Level Stewardship (ELS) or Organic Entry Level Stewardship (OELS) due to delays with the registration of land parcels on the Rural Land Register (RLR). Well in advance of the launch of the new scheme it was made clear to farmers and land managers that registration of land on the RLR would be a pre-requisite for joining the scheme. Environmental Stewardship (ES) is a voluntary environmental scheme and while we are aware that delays with land registration have caused difficulties for some farmers, we believe that reasonable steps have been taken to limit the impact of these delays as far as possible. All applicants who submit a valid application will secure a full five-year agreement, so although their entry to the scheme may have been delayed, they will not be disadvantaged. The Rural Development Service (RDS) will process all valid applications with a view to applying the earliest available monthly start date.

Waste Paper

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what guidance is offered by her Department to (a) private businesses and (b) other Government departments on minimising waste paper and paper usage; [42732]

(2) what guidance her Department issues to (a) private businesses and (b) other Government Departments on minimising waste paper. [46684]

Mr. Bradshaw: Envirowise, funded by DEFRA and DTI, promotes the resource efficiency message to business, with an emphasis on prevention (avoidance and minimisation of production of waste including paper). Envirowise solutions are driven by the specific needs of individual firms, to y improve their business practices, profitability and competitiveness. Since 1994, Envirowise has helped UK industry save more than £1 billion pounds. The BREW programme also funds initiatives which provide advice to businesses on minimising waste.

From 1 November 2003, all new central Government Department contracts have been required to apply minimum environmental standards when purchasing certain types of product. At present standards have been set for 27 product types including copier paper (100 percent. recycled with a minimum being 75 percent. post-consumer waste) and paper for printed publications (minimum 60 percent. recycled of which 75 percent. should be post-consumer waste).

Work is underway to expand this list to around 50 products (details can be viewed at:

http://www.ogcbuyingsolutions.gov.uk/environmentalproducts/environmentalquickwins.asp)

The OGC website also includes best practice advice for Government Departments.

The Sustainable Procurement Task Force are due to produce an action plan in spring this year setting out recommendations to help enable the UK to be amongst the leaders in sustainable procurement by 2009. We cannot say anything about the content of the action plan as it has yet to be completed and agreed with taskforce members.

Pedigree Cattle

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice she received on the criteria for tuberculosis slaughter valuations for pedigree cattle (a) under six months and (b) over three years of age. [49096]

Mr. Bradshaw: New table valuation based compensation arrangements for bovine tuberculosis were introduced on 1 February 2006. Under the new system, compensation rates for pedigree cattle are calculated monthly using the average sales price obtained for animals within the same category over the previous six months. For pedigree cattle there are 18 table categories. These categories, which are based on the animal's age, sex and sector, were drawn up with the assistance of industry advisors.

There is no table value for pedigree cattle under 6 months. Animals that age would always be suckling, and it would be unusual to sell them without the dam.

Plant Imports

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the basis was for her application to extend the derogation on the import of plants under Commission Decision 2005/775/EC on 8 December 2005; and if she will make a statement. [48121]

Mr. Bradshaw: Under EC plant health legislation the import of certain genera of conifers from the Republic of Korea is normally prohibited. However, following interest from a number of traders and a request from the UK, a derogation allowing the import from the Republic of Korea of bonsai plants of the genera Chamaecyparis, Juniperus and Pinus was agreed by the European Commission in June 2002. A thorough assessment of the potential plant health risks associated with the import of such material was undertaken as part of the derogation process and stringent measures put in place, both pre-export in Korea and for handling the material on arrival in the EC, to mitigate any potential risk. The original derogation expired in 2005. Following a request from importers in the UK the derogation has been extended to 2007.

There have been no instances of quarantine pests or diseases being found on material imported under the derogation.

Recycling Targets

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the Government's plans are for future recycling targets; and if she will make a statement. [47808]

Mr. Bradshaw: Waste Strategy 2000 set out national recycling and composting targets for household waste, of 25 per cent. in 2005–06, then 30 per cent. in 2010 and 33 per cent. in 2015. I recently consulted on options for local authority recycling/composting targets in 2007–08. Analysis of the responses is under way and there will be a formal announcement once a decision is made.

For the longer-term, as part of the review of waste strategy, Defra is looking at what levels and what forms of targets will be the most efficient at continuing the recent improvements we have seen in waste performance. The review will take into account existing policy levers designed to drive the management of waste up the hierarchy (such as the Landfill Allowance Trading Scheme, the landfill tax escalator, and the obligations on producers in relation to packaging and waste electrical and electronic equipment). The Government intend to publish a consultation document on the waste strategy review in the next few weeks, followed by a revised waste strategy in the autumn.

Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what time period elapsed between the publication of each Report by the Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution and the publication of the official response by the Government; and what the time scale is for publishing outstanding responses. [48457]

Mr. Morley: The Government aims to respond to reports of the Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution (RCEP) within one year of their publication. Government needs to consider fully the reports and their recommendations before responding, so response timings depend on the complexity of the reports and the need to take account of the development of policy and proposals for new legislation.

There are two reports currently awaiting Government response:

1. 25th Report: "Turning the Tide—Addressing the Impact of Fisheries on the Marine Environment", launched in December 2004. The Government response will be published after the publication of the draft Marine Bill this year in order to reflect the new proposals under the Bill.

2. Special report "Crop Spraying and the Health of Residents and Bystanders", launched in September 2005. Government expects to publish its response to this report by the summer.

Previous responses were issued as follows:

Special Protection Area Status

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what role English Nature plays in the planning process for special protection area status; and if she will make a statement. [49814]

Jim Knight: As the statutory conservation advisor for England, one of English Nature's roles is to recommend sites to DEFRA that qualify as special protection areas (SPAs). Before making a recommendation, English Nature undertakes a scientific assessment of sites using the UK SPA selection guidelines (available at http://www.incc.gov.uk/page-1405). English Nature also carries out consultations with interested parties on behalf of the Department.

Seed Imports

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many lots of seeds for (a) maize and sweetcorn, (b) winter oilseed rape, (c) spring oilseed rape, (d) sugar beet, (e) fodder beet, (f) beetroot and (g) winter brassicas were imported into the UK in each of the last six years; and what the (i) weight and (ii) country of origin of the seeds was in each year. [46866]

Mr. Bradshaw: Imports of seeds for sowing by country of despatch from 1999 to November 2005 are provided in the attached table.

Note that oilseed rape seeds are not separated into winter and spring varieties. Also imports of fodder beet seed are not separated from salad beet seed. Information is only available on the quantity of seeds imported rather than the number of individual consignments.

These statistics reflect levels of trade as recorded by traders. It is possible that some imports for consumption or processing have been inadvertently recorded as seed for sowing. They therefore need to be treated with a degree of caution.

Severn Trent Water

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government are taking to ensure a good service for customers of Severn Trent Water. [49036]

Mr. Morley: Customers of water and sewerage companies are entitled to guaranteed standards of service, as laid down in the Water Supply and Sewerage Services (Customer Service Standards) Regulations. These regulations, known as the guaranteed standards scheme, set minimum standards of services to be met for all customers and prescribe minimum payments where service is below these standards.

The economic regulator Ofwat monitors the level of service provided to customers by water companies. Each company's performance against a number of measures is included in "Levels of service for the water industry in England and Wales report 2004–05". Performance is measured against a number of indicators. Severn Trent's performance is acceptable or better for each of these measures. At reviews of price limits companies are rewarded for good performance and penalised for poor performance in delivering services to customers.

Fair comparisons between companies depend on Ofwat receiving accurate information of a comparable nature from the companies. Following allegations by a member of Severn Trent's staff Ofwat is undertaking an investigation into the accuracy of information submitted by Severn Trent. The Serious Fraud Office is also investigating matters referred to it by Ofwat. Ofwat will shortly be publishing a report on its findings. The company has agreed that if it were found that customers had been overcharged any necessary corrections would be effected in a prompt manner to be agreed with Ofwat.

Social Exclusion

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans the Government have to provide core funding for (a) wheels to work and (b) wheels to learning schemes in rural areas. [50069]

Jim Knight: Across England there are 69 'wheels to work' and 'wheels to learning' schemes, providing short term transport solutions for young people who have difficulties accessing training, employment and educational opportunities. Many of the schemes have operated successfully for a number of years, supported by funding from a range of different sources.

It is up to each RDA to determine the priorities for its region and, through its corporate plan, how they will achieve their agreed outcomes. A number of RDAs are planning ongoing support for 'wheels to work' schemes in their regions. For example, following a successful evaluation of the region's wheels to work schemes, Advantage West Midlands have determined to ensure a consistent region wide service is in place from the beginning of the 2006–07 financial year. The Northwest Regional Development Agency (NWDA) has commissioned a region-wide proposal to deliver a 'wheels to work' scheme across rural areas. This will draw on good practice from the ex-Countryside Agency schemes, which will come to an end on 31 March.

Local authorities continue to be the main funders of transport in rural areas. And guidance for those who are seeking funding is available in the Countryside Agency's publication "A guide to finding funding for Rural Transport Partnership projects", which is available at:

Spent Nuclear Fuel

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much spent nuclear fuel has been stored in Wales in each year since 1997, (a) in total and (b) broken down by (i) low level waste, (ii) intermediate level waste and (iii) high level waste; and if she will make a statement. [43330]

Mr. Morley: Currently around 400 tonnes of spent fuel is stored in Wales. Spent fuel from Welsh reactors is of the Magnox type and is not regarded as waste and is routinely reprocessed at Sellafield. Reprocessing spent fuel there does create high level waste but there is no high level waste in Wales. More detailed information on the location of spent fuel at specific locations at specific times is not normally made public for security reasons.

Data are not separately recorded for the wastes produced at Sellafield as a result of reprocessing spent fuel from Welsh reactors. However, there has been and still is intermediate and low level waste in Wales which arises from both reactor operations and radio-pharmaceutical production. Data from the 1998, 2001 and 2004 UK radioactive waste inventories have been used to generate the following table of wastes in Wales. The cost of obtaining annual figures exceeds the normal threshold.

Waste type	1998	2001	2004
Low	161	633	558
Intermediate	2,208	2,851	2,740
High	0	0	0
Total	2,369	3,484	3,298

Notes
1. Units: cubic meters of waste in stock.
2. Aggregated conditioned and not-yet conditioned volume fractions.

Syngenta

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will list the occasions on which she met representatives of Syngenta during (a) 2004 and (b) 2005. [50176]

Mr. Morley: My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State, did not meet with representatives of Syngenta during 2004 and 2005.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when (a) she and (b) her officials last met representatives of Syngenta. [50177]

Mr. Morley: According to records dating back to 2002, my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State, has not met with representatives of Syngenta during this time.

Officials in the Department dealing with GM policy have met with representatives of Syngenta as part of their regular engagement with industry and other key stakeholders. The last such meeting involving Syngenta was on 26 August 2005.

Timber

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment the Government have made of the compatibility of further legislative options for prohibiting the import of illegal timber into the EU with World Trade Organisation rules; and when she expects to make a decision on the compatibility of such options. [49632]

Mr. Morley: The European Commission's proposal to tackle illegal logging, the Forest Law Enforcement Governance and Trade (FLEGT) Action Plan, was adopted by Council Conclusions in October 2003. This included proposals for bilateral agreements with timber producing countries and a commitment that the Commission would investigate 'additional options' to tackle illegal logging. Government is frustrated at the time it has taken the European Commission to produce this additional options report.

One of these 'additional options' could be measures to prohibit the import of all illegal timber into the EU. This option was raised at a European stakeholder consultation meeting held by the European Commission and the UK's Chatham House (the Royal Institute of International Affairs) in Brussels on 31 January 2006. Some support for the proposal was voiced as well as concern that the effective enforcement of such a ban would demand additional evidence on all imports of timber to the EU. As such demands would be unlikely to be required of domestic producers, this could raise the likelihood of a challenge in the World Trade Organisation.

The European Commission will consider all the options and issues raised at the stakeholder consultation meeting and produce the delayed report on addition options by early summer 2006.

Once the Report is published, Government will review the applicability of the options presented, including compatibility with the World Trade Organisation, before deciding what, if any, additional measures the UK Government will pursue at a national or EU level.

Correspondence

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects a reply to be sent to the letters of 12 July 2005 and 20 November 2005 to the Fisheries Minister on behalf of Mr Tom Purborough. [50280]

Mr. Bradshaw: My reply to the hon. Member's letter of 12 July 2005 was sent on 17 October 2005. I will arrange for a further copy to be sent.

We have no record of having received the hon. Member's letter of 20 November 2005.

Veterinary Surgeons

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many veterinary surgeons have abandoned farm animal practice in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [48914]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 7 February 2006]: The Department does not hold this information. However, we are working with the veterinary profession to improve our understanding of the latest trends within farm animal practice. We contributed to the development of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons' survey of the profession for 2006 and we are also working with the British Veterinary Association, which is consulting its regional divisions on the availability of farm animal veterinary services.

Waste Management

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will list levels of household waste recyling by each local authority in 2004–05. [48072]

Mr. Bradshaw: Defra issued a News Release on the 2004–05 Best Value Performance Indicators of local authority recycling and composting rates on 23 January 2006. Both this news release and the individual local authority recycling and composting rates are available from the Defra website at: www.defraweb/news/2006/060123a.htm. The full list of individual local authority Best Vale Performance Indicators for 2004–05 can additionally be viewed on the Audit Commission's website at: www.audit-commission.gov.uk/performance/dataprovision.asp

Water

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations she has received on water supply shortages in East Sussex; and what plans she has to combat such shortages. [49469]

Mr. Morley: I have received no specific representations concerning water supply in East Sussex. Water companies have drought plans which set out how the company will continue to meet its duties to supply adequate quantities of wholesome water during drought periods with as little recourse as possible to drought orders and permits.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of (a) water shortage in East Sussex and (b) the possible effect of such shortages on consumer supply in (i) 2006 and (ii) the next five years. [49470]

Mr. Morley: We have asked the Environment Agency to monitor and report on the drought prospects for 2006. This will focus particularly on south-east England where the continuing drought is most pronounced.

Any projected shortage in supply this year will be addressed though the relevant water company's drought plan. These plans set out how the company will continue to meet its duties to supply adequate quantities of wholesome water during drought periods with as little recourse as possible to drought orders and permits.

For longer term planning water companies maintain 25 year water resource plans which seek to reconcile supply with anticipated demand. These water resource plans are produced voluntarily every five years at present but will become a statutory requirement under the provisions of the Water Act 2003. The Department is currently consulting on the exercise of the new powers in respect of statutory water resource plans.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much water on average was (a) available to and (b) consumed by each person in the UK in the last year for which figures are available, broken down by (i) water company and (ii) region. [48527]

Mr. Morley: The Director General of Water Services publishes data on the extent of water supply annually in the 'Security of Supply, Leakage and the Efficient Use of Water' reports, copies of which are available in the Library of the House. In 2004–05, the figures for England and Wales were as follows:

Water company	Distribution input (Ml/d)	Average household Consumption (l/h/d)
Anglian	1,163	143
Bournemouth and W Hants	164	167

Regional data for average household consumption are based on unweighted averages.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the (a) merits, (b) practicality and (c) costs of constructing a water grid to enable the transportation of large volumes of water over long distances. [48528]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 6 February 2006]: The Environment Agency is the statutory body with a duty to manage water resources in England and Wales. As part of the Agency's management role it has national and regional water resource strategies, published in 2001, which set out the pressures over the next 25 years.

A good deal of water is already transferred within water companies' areas of operation, and between companies, to give individual companies greater flexibility to meet local shortages. The Agency's national strategy notes though that water transfers can be a relatively expensive option. Pipelines for long distance transfers are large and their construction may be disruptive. Pumping can consume much energy and add to carbon emissions.

Water companies have statutory duties to maintain water supplies. It is for them to plan the investment necessary to deliver their services, including the necessary financial provision, and it is for Ofwat, in the light of companies' plans, to secure that companies carry out and are able to finance their functions. I am not aware that water companies collectively are considering the establishment of a water grid.

The merits of a water grid would be considered by Ministers if applications for planning and other consents came before them for determination.

Wind Turbines

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the effects of wind farms on wild birds; what research her Department has commissioned on the impact of wind turbines on wildlife; how many protected birds have been recorded as killed in collisions with wind turbines in the last five years; what steps her Department is taking to reduce the risks to birds of wind turbines; and if she will make a statement. [49603]

Malcolm Wicks: I have been asked to reply.

Applications for consent for wind farms submitted to the DTI are accompanied by an environmental impact assessment that includes details of the likely impact of the project in question on the environment and wildlife, among other things. In considering an application, the Department will consult with a range of stakeholders, including the statutory advisers on nature conservation—English Nature and the Countryside Council for Wales, as appropriate—as well as others with an interest in the project. This ensures that decisions on whether to grant consent for a wind farm are considered in the light of the best available information about its likely impacts.

The Department has established a Research Advisory Group to fund research into the impact of wind farms on the environment. This has included a joint study with wind farm developers and DEFRA to collect data on the distribution of sea birds in the three strategic offshore wind farm areas, the results of which will inform decisions on the grant of consent for wind farm projects in those areas. However, the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds (RSPB) make clear that the available evidence suggests that appropriately positioned wind farms do not pose a significant hazard for birds. The RSPB's conclusion is supported by a report last year for the Swedish State Energy Authority, which found that only 14 of the total 1.5 million migrating seabirds that each year passes two wind farms at Kalmarsund in south east Sweden are at risk of being killed.

In any case, the likely impact on wildlife must be kept in context. A paper in Nature, by a large group of scientists including one from the RSPB, indicated that in sample regions covering about 20 per cent. of the Earth's land surface—15 per cent. to 37 per cent. of species (not just birds) will be committed to extinction as a result of mid-range climate warming scenarios by 2050.

TRANSPORT

A1079

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents there have been on the A1079 road in each of the last five years; and how many resulted in fatalities in each year. [50128]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is as follows:

	Total accidents	Fatalities
2001	59	3
2002	59	2
2003	55	3
2004	59	4
2005	[1]43	[1]4
Total	[1]275	[1]16

[1] Provisional data.

A21

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received from the South East of England Regional Assembly regional prioritisation and the proposed A21 upgrade. [49467]

Dr. Ladyman: On 31 January the Government received the South East region's advice on funding priorities, including schemes on the A21. This was submitted jointly by the South East of England Regional Assembly and Development Agency.

Heathrow Noise Review

Alan Keen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what account his Department took of the potential impact of the Review of the British Airports Authority Heathrow Noise Fines Fund in preparation of the Civil Aviation Bill; what discussions his Department has had with the review team; what assessment he has made of its terms of reference; when he expects it to report; and whether his Department plans to respond to its findings. [49860]

Ms Buck: The BAA Heathrow Noise Fines Fund is a matter for the airport operator concerned. The Department is aware that BAA is reviewing this fund, but has not discussed it with the review team or made any assessment of the review's terms of reference.

Highway Policy

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to permit traffic to turn left at red lights. [50073]

Dr. Ladyman: No.

Light Dues

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will assess the ruling of the Petitions Committee of the European Parliament in favour of a petition from the Independent Light Dues Forum, with particular reference to the Petitions Committee's request that the European Commission and the Internal Market Committee of the European Parliament begin a preliminary investigation into the compatibility of the British-Irish subsidy of navigational aids with the treaty establishing the European Community; [48387]

(2) whether he has conducted research into the likely consequences of the European Parliament and the European Commission finding that the Irish subsidy regime on navigational aids is incompatible with the Single Market. [48725]

Dr. Ladyman: We have received no notification or approach for information from either the European Commission or the European Parliament's Committee on the Internal Market and Consumer Protection. We will await their consideration of the petition before deciding whether further action needs to be taken.

Rail Safety

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of trains are fitted with data recorders; and if he will make a statement. [47460]

Derek Twigg: All passenger and freight trains that operate on Britain's mainline rail network are fitted with a form of data recording system. The data recorded include information such as train speed, the brake controller position and brake equipment response. The information can be used to record and monitor a driver's and the train's performance. It is also of vital importance for investigating rail incidents.

Stage Cottage

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what refurbishment work has been undertaken at Stage Cottage, Hurst Green, East Sussex; and what the total cost of this work is expected to be. [49466]

Dr. Ladyman: Stage Cottage has undergone substantial re-decoration and refurbishment to make it suitable for the rental market. The ground floor bathroom has been converted into a study and a new family bathroom has been created upstairs. Floors in the kitchen, utility areas, and family bathroom have been tiled. Some bedroom walls have been re-boarded and plastered. The master en suite has been converted into a shower room. A large range cooker has been provided in the kitchen. Curtain poles have been fitted to windows and blinds fitted to kitchen and bathroom. Externally unstable paving slabs have been removed and the area re-turfed. A rendered wall has been redecorated and the fascia and soffit boards have been repaired and redecorated. The total cost of the work is £22,000.00 plus vat. This expenditure will be recovered from rental income within the next two to three years and reduced maintenance costs during the letting period.

Transport Demand Research

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with the Association of Train Operating Companies regarding using peak fare differentiation as a means of demand management on the railway network; and if he will make a statement. [49569]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 8 February 2006]: The possibility of cheaper shoulder-peak fares to spread peak travel demand is one of many fares-related issues which need to be considered. However, no discussions with operators have yet been held.

Vegetable Oil

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent on research into the use of vegetable oil as a fuel in each of the last five years. [50904]

Dr. Ladyman: The only such research this Department has funded was a study in 2003 of the relative emissions performance of two light duty diesel vehicles using various fuels, including unprocessed vegetable oil. The study showed that the use of unprocessed vegetable oil could result in significant increases in emissions of certain air pollutants compared to the use of ultra low sulphur mineral diesel. The total cost of the study was £80,153, and the results are available at http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_roads/documents/page/dft_roads_027622.pdf

Accountancy Profession

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on what dates he (a) wrote to and (b) met with representatives of the recognised supervisory bodies in relation to their policies on ethnic monitoring and racial discrimination within the UK accountancy profession. [49721]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has not written or met with representatives of the recognised supervisory bodies in relation to their policies on ethnic monitoring and racial discrimination

Alternative Fuels

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when companies will be able to bid for the £15 million funding package for UK demonstrations of hydrogen and fuel cell energy technologies announced by his Department on 14 June 2005. [50066]

Malcolm Wicks: The precise timing of the launch of the demonstration scheme is dependent upon EC state aid approval. The department is working up the details of the demonstration scheme in discussion with industry players, and has begun the process of obtaining EC state aid approval. The Department will publicly invite bids for project proposals when such approval has been obtained.

Carbon-free Electricity

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what research the Government are (a) commissioning and (b) sponsoring on the development of a hydrogen-based economy, with particular reference to the production of carbon-free electricity. [49343]

Malcolm Wicks: The DTI commissioned two reports in 2004 in relation to hydrogen: "Hydrogen Energy Support in the UK" and "A Strategic Framework for Hydrogen Energy in the UK". These reports have been published on the Department's website[1].

Government research funding includes support for industrial collaborative research and development for fuel cell and hydrogen technologies through the DTI's Technology Programme. The programme seeks to advance these technologies for both stationary power generation and transport applications, with a view to achieving the cost reductions and performance levels necessary for commercial deployment. This support currently amounts to approximately between £2 million–3 million per annum.

Basic research in universities on both fuel cells and hydrogen is supported by the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council (EPSRC), including through the SUPERGEN initiative. SUPERGEN supports the UK Sustainable Hydrogen Energy Consortium (UK SHEC) which has received funding of £2.5 million. This programme is supporting projects on: hydrogen generation; hydrogen storage; and socio-economic implications for a hydrogen economy. In addition to SUPERGEN, EPSRC has awarded £1 million to investigate the potential role of formic acid as a chemical method for the storage of hydrogen. £500,000 has been granted to three projects on fundamental science and engineering relevant to the hydrogen economy. EPSRC also contributes to projects through the DTI's Technology Programme. More widely, the research councils EPSRC, ESRC, and NERC have recently established the UK Energy Research Centre.

Hydrogen and fuel cell projects are also eligible to apply to the Carbon Trust for research funding. The list of projects currently funded (including those that relate to hydrogen and fuel cells) is available on their website at: http://www.thecarbontrust.co.uk/carbontrust/low_carbon tech/dlct2_1_4.aspx.

On 15 June 2005, I announced the Government's response to the report "A Strategic Framework for Hydrogen Energy Activity in the UK"[2] which includes a funding commitment of £15 million over four years for a UK wide hydrogen and fuel cell demonstration programme. The demonstration scheme is currently in preparation, and will require EC state aid approval.

The Government have also provided funding of over £450,000 for the trial of three hydrogen-powered fuel cell buses in London as part of the EU CUTE (Clean Urban Transport in Europe) project. £7.5 million of funding has been provided for the fuel cell and low carbon vehicle technology Centre of Excellence (CENEX) based in Loughborough.

The Department for Transport announced in January, as part of their Horizons innovative research programme, a competition for projects to investigate the options for the further steps required to move to the adoption of a hydrogen transport infrastructure. It is hoped to support between two and four projects examining the practicality and timing of the introduction of the required infrastructure to support hydrogen-fuelled vehicles at a cost of up to £500,000.

[1] The text of these reports is freely available at: http://www.dti.gov.uk/energy/sepn/hydrogen.shtml.

[2] The Government's response is also available on the website.

Centre for Ecology and Hydrology

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he made of likely job losses at the Centre for Ecology and Hydrology. [48173]

Barry Gardiner: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given in another place on 18 January 2006, Official Report, column WA107 by my noble Friend Lord Bach, the Minister with responsibility for farming and food to the noble Baroness Byford.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many people have been employed by the Centre for Ecology and Hydrology in each of the last five years. [48174]

Barry Gardiner: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 30 January 2006, Official Report, column WA102 to my hon. Friend the Member for Bridgend (Mrs. Moon).

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what is the estimated cost of his restructuring proposals for the Centre for Ecology and Hydrology. [48175]

Barry Gardiner: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given in another place on 30 January 2006, Official Report, column WA3 by my noble Friend the Minister for Science and Innovation to the noble Baroness Miller of Chilthorne Domer.

Civil Servants (Overseas Visits)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what costs were incurred by his Department as a result of sending civil servants on overseas visits in each of the last 10 years. [46280]

Alan Johnson: Overseas Travel and Subsistence for the Department of Trade and Industry has been carried out in compliance with the requirements of the Civil Service Management Code and the expenditure for the past three financial years is shown in the following table. Information for the other years requested is not readily available on a consistent basis and would be available only at disproportionate cost.

Financial year	Expenditure on Overseas Travel and Subsistence (£000)
2002–03	5,508
2003–04	5,684
2004–05	5,484

Departmental Paper

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what percentage of total paper consumption by his Department in their conference and seminar literature was recycled paper, in the last year for which figures are available. [42380]

Alan Johnson: The information on conference and seminar literature is not separated from the Department's general marketing materials. All the marketing literature that is handled centrally (by the Department's Marketing Directorate) is printed on recycled paper.

Energy Supplies

Peter Law: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the Eurobarometer Public Opinion Survey on attitudes to renewable energy and nuclear power, published by the European Commission on 24 January. [47247]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government has noted this survey. In bringing forward proposals to help the UK meet its medium and long-term energy policy goals, we will take account of the opinions and evidence (including this survey) brought forward in the consultation exercise that was launched earlier this year.

Estate Agent Regulation

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) if the Government will undertake a consultation on (a) how to strengthen regulation of estate agents, (b) the setting up of a redress mechanism, (c) possible qualifications and national quality standards for estate agents and (d) measures to increase the effectiveness of the Office of Fair Trading and local trading standards departments in protecting consumers and making estate agents' dealings with consumers more transparent following the March 2004 report by the Office of Fair Trading; [49574]

(2) if he will bring forward legislation to regulate estate agents; and if he will make a statement. [49575]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Yes. It remains our intention to issue a consultation document covering the issues raised by the Office of Fair Trading report, and developments since then.

The Government have also made clear their intention to bring forward legislation when parliamentary time permits to expand upon the provisions of the Housing Act 2004 relating to a redress scheme for estate agents. We intend to allow a statutory redress scheme to deal with a wider range of consumer complaints against estate agents and to provide for redress schemes in Scotland and Northern Ireland.

European Union Directives

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations have been received on the proposed (a) waste electrical and electronic equipment directive and (b) the restrictions on hazardous substances directive; what response the Government have made to those representations; and what estimate has been made of the (i) cost and (ii) other implications of implementation. [49578]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government have received a large number of representations on the proposed waste electrical and electronic equipment (WEEE) directive as well as on the restrictions on hazardous substances (RoHS) directive.

As I announced on 14 December 2005, we are in the process of reviewing progress on implementation of the WEEE directive. We will make an announcement in due course, which will take into account the representations made to us during the review.

The Government's view of the costs and implications of the implementation of the WEEE directive were set out in our regulatory impact assessment (RIA), which is available on the DTIs website. Any revised proposals would be the subject of a further RIA. I also refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 1 February 2006, Official Report, column 553W.

The RoHS directive has already been transposed into UK law and will enter into force in July 2006. The RIA for the implementing regulations, together with information about representations made to the DTI, are available on the Department's website.

Executive Agencies

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what (a) targets, (b) advice and (c) guidance his Department has given to executive agencies that fall under the remit of his Department on the reorganisation of their administrative functions on a regional basis; and if he will make a statement. [41649]

Alan Johnson: My Department has not issued any such guidance and advice to its executive agencies.

External Consultants

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much his Department has paid since 2004 to external consultants who had previously been employed by the Department in any capacity within the previous five years. [41199]

Alan Johnson: The information requested is not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Money Transfer Services

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received on the regulation of international money transfer services. [49643]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Treasury has consulted a wide range of stakeholders in relation to a variety of issues related to the regulation of international money transfer services.

In particular, the Treasury has participated in a series of seminars aimed at consulting the industry on the future direction of the UK's regulatory regime for money service businesses.

In addition, Treasury officials have discussed forthcoming European legislation on payment systems in detail with a variety of stakeholders in the international money transfer market on a number of occasions.

New Delhi Declaration

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how co-operation between India and the United Kingdom in the fields of (a) civilian nuclear activities, (b) civilian space programmes and (c) high technology trade has changed since the 2002 New Delhi Declaration. [48397]

Ian Pearson: The information requested is as follows.

(a) Civilian Nuclear Activities

The UK Government seeks to promote scientific, technological and academic co-operation with India, consistent with our international commitments. India is a key international partner and we attach great importance to developing our strategic partnership on civil nuclear activities and to stopping onward proliferation. In August 2005, the Government revised the position adopted in 2002 on our policy regarding the export of nuclear related items to India. The restrictions now in force are less stringent than that in force in 2002 and conform to the UK's current international obligations and non-proliferation commitments. The effect of our approach is to refuse only those exports or scientific contacts that are of serious concern, taking into account the circumstances of each particular case.

(b) Civilian Space Programmes

The British National Space Centre (BNSC) held a meeting with the Indian National Institute of Advanced Studies to discuss areas of collaboration, in December 2004. We continue to look for further opportunities to co-operate bilaterally with India and in multilateral fora.

The British High Commission in New Delhi is working with the Indian Space Research Organisation on space programmes.

A workshop on using Earth Observation to measure the effects of climate change on agricultural productivity is due to take place from 28–30 March 2006. Two of BNSC's partner organisations, the Natural Environment Research Council and the Met Office are also involved.

(c) High Technology

The UK-India joint economic and trade committee (JETCO) has followed up on the 2002 Delhi Declaration with high technology as an area for bilateral co-operation. The most recent discussions were held on the 30 January 2006 in London by the JETCO working group to explore synergies and co-operation in the area of high technology. The group presented its report to the Secretary of State for the Department of Trade and Industry and the Indian Minister of Commerce and agreed that they would focus on collaboration in the biotechnology sector, advanced manufacturing, and forging alliances between high technology regions in India with clusters in the UK.

North Sea Energy Reserves

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent discussions he has had with the Norwegian Government regarding North sea energy reserves; and if he will make a statement. [49644]

Malcolm Wicks: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry has had no such discussions. However, I have met the Norwegian Energy Minister on three occasions—on 26 October 2005, 31 November 2005 and 2 February 2006. We discussed a wide range of energy related issues including matters relating to the recovery of North sea oil and gas resources and carbon capture and storage.

Officials from the Department of Trade and Industry also regularly meet their counterparts in the Norwegian Petroleum Directorate and the Norwegian Ministry of Petroleum and Energy to discuss ways of maximising the economic recovery of hydrocarbons from the North sea. This includes the review of future exploration, appraisal and development activities in both countries.

Since the beginning of 2005, co-operation between UK and Norwegian Governments have resulted in the approval of six development projects involving Norway, including the construction of the Langeled pipeline to Easington in Yorkshire and the redevelopment of the transboundary Statfjord field. The Langeled pipeline, which is due to deliver gas to the UK later this year, will also deliver gas from the Norwegian Ormen Lange field when the field begins production in 2007. New pipeline infrastructure will also be built as part of the Statfjord redevelopment and will provide further capacity to deliver gas from major new gas reserves being developed on the Norwegian Continental Shelf.

Nuclear Power

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent discussions he has had with the Welsh Assembly Government on the future of nuclear power. [44054]

Malcolm Wicks: Neither my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry nor I have had recent discussions with the Welsh Assembly Government which relate specifically to the future of nuclear power.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much it cost to dispose of spent nuclear fuel in Wales from the (a) Trawsfynydd and (b) Wylfa nuclear power plants in each year since they were built; and if he will make a statement. [49742]

Malcolm Wicks: It is not current UK policy to dispose of spent nuclear fuel and therefore no costs have been incurred to dispose of spent nuclear fuel in Wales.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much has been spent from public funds on (a) purchasing and (b) moving uranium for use in the (i) Trawsfynydd and (ii) Wylfa nuclear power plants in each year since they were built; and if he will make a statement. [49743]

Malcolm Wicks: Until the creation of the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority on 1 April 2005, the now decommissioning power station at Trawsfynydd and the operating nuclear station at Wylfa were owned by BNFL, Magnox Electric Ltd or its predecessors, during which time no public funds were spent on purchasing and moving uranium for use in the Trawsfynydd and Wylfa power plants. Operational costs were matched year on year by income from electricity generation.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much has been spent from public funds on (a) moving spent fuel out of Wales and (b) disposing of nuclear fuel from the (i) Trawsfynydd and (ii) Wylfa nuclear power plants in each year since they were built; and if he will make a statement. [49744]

Malcolm Wicks: Until the creation of the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority on 1 April 2005, the now decommissioning power station at Trawsfynydd and the operating nuclear station at Wylfa were owned by BNFL, Magnox Electric Ltd or its predecessors, during which time no public funds were spent on moving spent fuel out of Wales from the Trawsfynydd and Wylfa power plants. Operational costs were matched year on year by income from electricity generation.

It is not current UK policy to dispose of spent nuclear fuel and therefore no costs have been spent from public funds on disposing of nuclear fuel from Wales.

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what is the timetable for planning the clean-up of ex-military and civil nuclear programmes; and which companies are advising him on the project. [50328]

Malcolm Wicks: The Nuclear Decommissioning Authority assumed responsibility for the decommissioning and clean up of the UK's civil nuclear legacy on 1 April 2005. It now has responsibility for nuclear sites previously operated by UKAEA and BNFL. Its remit is to provide national strategic control and direction to deliver accelerated clean up at its sites whilst maintaining high standards of safety. The Nuclear Decommissioning Authority has set out its proposed approach to the decommissioning and clean up of its sites in its draft Strategy. The Scottish Ministers and I have until 31 March to consider and approve the NDA's proposed Strategy. Further information is available on the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority website at www.nda.gov.uk

Parliamentary Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he will provide an answer to question 10236, on departmental expenditure, tabled by the hon. Member for Monmouth on 4 July 2005.[49837]

Alan Johnson: According to our database this question was answered on 21 July 2005 but, unfortunately did not find its way into the Official Report for that day. The answer was as follows:

"Expenditure on advertising by my Department through COI for 2000/1, 2001/2, 2002/3, 2003/4 and 2004/5 was £6.1 million, £9.4million, £11.5million, £4.1 and £2million respectively. Figures include advertising by the Small Business Service and exclude VAT".

Press Complaints

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on how many occasions since 1 April 2003 he has complained to the Press Complaints Commission about the coverage in the press of (a) Ministers or officials and (b) his Department; and how many of these complaints were upheld. [47078]

Alan Johnson: The Department of Trade and Industry has not made any complaints to the Press Complaints Commission about press coverage of (a) Ministers or officials or (b) the Department since 1 April 2003.

Renewable Power

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what percentage of the renewable power generated in England and Wales was accounted for by co-firing in 2004–05. [50779]

Malcolm Wicks: In 2004, 7.2 percent. (or 1,022 GWh out of 14,171 GWh) of renewable power generation in the UK came from the co-firing of bio fuels. We do not have statistics for England and Wales only.

Information on electricity generated from renewable sources is published in the Digest Of UK Energy Statistics (DUKES). A copy of DUKES is available from the Libraries of the House.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to reduce surplus co-fired renewables obligation certificates; and what assessment he has made of the implications for (a) their market price, (b) co-firing and (c) carbon dioxide emissions. [50781]

Malcolm Wicks: Under the rules on co-firing within the renewables obligation, licensed electricity suppliers can meet up to 25 percent. (from 1 April 2006, this changes to 10 percent.) of their obligation by presenting renewables obligation certificates (ROCs) from co-fired generation.

Above this level, co-fired ROCs cannot be redeemed. For this reason, we would not expect the market to generate a significant number of surplus co-fired ROCs, and any surplus would only arise due to miscalculation on the part of electricity suppliers or co-firers.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assistance is available to microgenerators in relation to the sale of renewables obligation certificates. [50284]

Malcolm Wicks: Sale of Renewable Obligation Certificates (ROCs) is a matter for the generator concerned. However, the Government does recognise the barriers that microgenerators may experience in accessing the benefits of the Renewables Obligation (RO) and intends to introduce several measures, through the Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Private Member's Bill, which will make this easier. In particular, allowing agents to act on behalf of small generators and to amalgamate output for several small generators as well as the removal of the need for a sell and buyback agreement. The detail of these changes will be set out in secondary legislation and subject to full consultation.

Shell

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will publish his Department's report on Shell's oil and gas reserves. [49720]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has not made a report on Shell's oil and gas reserves. The Financial Services Authority (FSA) is responsible for regulating the financial services industry and investigating potential cases of market abuse. The FSA formally investigated various issues surrounding the oil and gas reserves announcements made by Shell leading up to Shell's announcement in January 2004 in which it restated its hydrocarbon reserves. The FSA's Final Notice setting out its findings in relation to Shell is available on the FSA website (www.fsa.gov.uk). Shell also published the conclusions of its own inquiry in April 2004.

Singapore

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make it his policy to negotiate a free trade agreement with Singapore. [47768]

Ian Pearson: The European Commission has competence for trade policy, and conducts all trade negotiations on behalf of EU member states.

The UK and the EU's number one trade priority remains a successful conclusion to the Doha Development Agenda (DDA). The multilateral rules-based system, under the WTO, is the most effective means of managing and expanding trade relations. However, the EU has not ruled out a possible expansion to its network of bilateral and regional trade agreements once the DDA negotiations have been completed and will evaluate the merits of any future proposals on a case-by-case basis.

Zirconium Silicate (Iran)

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry with which company his Department had discussions about the export of zirconium silicate to Iran (a) before its shipment in September and (b) subsequent to this shipment's interception by the Bulgarian authorities; whether the company informed the Department (i) to whom they were supplying this material and (ii) what its end use was; and if he will make a statement. [34698]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 6 December 2005]: The DTI did not discuss the export in question with any company prior to its shipment. The goods were not controlled for export from the UK and the exporter was not therefore required to submit an export licence application when he would have been required to provide details of the end-use and end-user of the goods. Subsequent to its interception by the Bulgarian authorities however, DTI was in contact with the exporter who provided full information about the consignment, including its end-user and expected end-use.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Broadcasting

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many households are unable to receive (a) Channel 5 and (b) Freeview, broken down by Government office region; whether her Department plans to offer these households a reduction in their licence fee; and if she will make a statement. [50072]

James Purnell: Information on the availability of television services by Government office region is not held centrally. For the United Kingdom as a whole, the Channel 5 analogue service is available to an estimated 80 per cent. of households and Freeview services to 73 per cent.

The Government have no plans to offer households unable to receive these services a reduction in their television licence fee. The level of the licence fee has never varied according to the range of services that can be received. The vast majority of UK households can, with the right equipment, access the free to view digital channels, including Channel 5, via either terrestrial, satellite or cable platforms.

Following digital switchover the coverage of digital terrestrial television will match current analogue levels, all of whom will also be able to watch the BBC's digital channels.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on advertising by (a) her Department, (b) each (i) non-departmental public body and (ii) executive agency for which her Department is responsible and (c) each independent statutory body, organisation and body financially sponsored by her Department in each year since May 1997. [39104]

Mr. Lammy: The Department had a zero spend on advertising from 1997 to 2002. The expenditure on advertising from 2003 has been as follows:

	Spend (£)
2003–04	[1]20,987
2004–05	[1]37,085
2005–06	[2]153,545

[1] BBC Charter
[2] Licensing

Information on advertising spend by non-departmental public bodies, executive agencies and independent statutory bodies is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Library Closures

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment the Government have made of the causes of public library closure for those due to do so in (a) 2005–06 and (b) 2006–07. [51056]

Mr. Lammy: Public libraries are delivered by local authorities. Of those authorities who are reported to be considering library closures currently, I understand that the rationale ranges from service restructuring following review processes to budget-setting considerations. I recognise that locally elected representatives are best placed to judge the needs of the people they serve.

However, I also believe that public libraries are valuable community assets and local decision makers should think carefully about what might be lost through closures.

London Olympics

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Warley of 8 December 2005, Official Report, column 1469W, on the London Olympics, when her Department expects the Local Employment and Training Framework for the London Olympic and Paralympic games to be published; and if she will make a statement. [49226]

Mr. Caborn: The Government are committed to using the London 2012 Olympic games and Paralympic games to maximise the potential for job creation, training and business growth so that the games leave a lasting social and economic, as well as physical, legacy for London and the rest of the UK. The Government and the Mayor for London have supported the setting up of the London 2012 Employment and Skills Task Force. It will work to ensure effective support for both local people, and those drawn from across London, in accessing direct and indirect employment opportunities arising from the games.

The London Development Agency (LDA), together with the local boroughs and other partners, is working to ensure that communities located in and around the Olympic park are well placed to benefit from the opportunities offered by the games. The Local Employment and Training Framework (LETF), a condition of the Olympic planning permissions, is a first step in this process.

A draft LETF document has been submitted by the LDA to the Joint Planning Authorities Team (JPAT) as a basis for negotiation. These negotiations will be concluded in the next few weeks with the submission of a final revised document to JPAT for formal consultation. At the conclusion of this consultation process the four local planning authorities of Newham, Tower Hamlets, Waltham Forest and Hackney, in conjunction with Greenwich council, will then make a decision regarding the framework. The precise date of this decision is for the local authorities themselves to determine and, as such, is not yet known.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 30 January 2006, Official Report, column 50W, on the Olympic games, if she will list the occasions on which (a) the Inter-Departmental Steering Group and (b) the network of Olympic co-ordinators have met; and if she will make a statement. [49380]

Mr. Caborn: As I explained to the hon. Member on 2 February 2006, Official Report, column 640W the inter-departmental steering group and the network of Olympic co-ordinators will meet on a quarterly basis.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the 2012 London Olympic Games will use renewable energy derived from fuel cell technology. [50068]

Mr. Caborn: Renewable energy will play a vital role in fulfilling the commitment to host 'low carbon Games' in 2012. While plans for energy provision at the Games are, as yet, at an early stage, fuel cell technology will certainly be one of the techniques considered as the programme moves forward.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will place in the Library a copy of the local government finance data and methodology used to calculate how much the proposed Olympics precept on London council tax bills would rise over 10 and 12 years. [47891]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

Council tax is one element of a public funding package, which has been put in place to cover the cost of hosting the Games. This package includes provision for up to £1.5 billion of lottery funding and up to £625 million from London council tax.

The council tax element of the funding package is a matter for the Mayor and the Greater London Authority (GLA).

Looted Works of Art (Nazis)

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what estimate she has made of the number of works of art in public collections which are thought to have been looted by the Nazis; [50067]

(2) what estimate she has made of the number of objects in museums or galleries for which her Department has responsibility that are considered to be objects stolen by the Nazis. [50130]

Mr. Lammy: The National Museums Directors' Conference, which is funded by Government to represent national UK museums, maintains a database on its website of items held in national collections which may be of uncertain provenance during the 1933-45 period. It has made no estimate of the number which are thought to have been looted by the Nazis.

Parliamentary Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many parliamentary questions tabled in the last 12 months for answer by her on a named day (a) were transferred and (b) received a substantive answer (i) on the day named and (ii) after the day named. [49885]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport aims to ensure that hon. Members receive a substantive response to their named day questions on the named day. However, as my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House said at business questions on 2 February 2006, Official Report, column 475, it is also important that Departments have the opportunity to produce accurate and detailed responses to such questions. From time to time, that necessitates the issuing of a holding answer. DCMS does make every effort to meet the deadline requested.

314 parliamentary questions were tabled to DCMS for answer on a named day during the last 12 months (1 February 2005 to 31 January 2006. 184 (58.6 per cent.) received a substantive answer on the day named with 130 (41.4 per cent.) receiving an answer after the day named.

Information on questions transferred to other Government Departments could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many ordinary written parliamentary questions tabled for answer by her in the last 12 months have been answered (a) within 14 days, (b) between 14 and 28 days, (c) between 28 days and two months and (d) in excess of two months after the date of tabling; and if she will make a statement. [49808]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport aims to answer Ordinary Written questions within a working week of being tabled. Unfortunately, this is not always possible but DCMS does make every effort to achieve these timescales.

The following table provides details of the response times for those Ordinary Written parliamentary questions received and answered by the department in the last 12 months.

	Number	Percentage
Answered within 14 days	1,177	84.0
Between 14 and 28 days	142	10.1
Between 28 days and 2 months	27	1.9
In excess of 2 months after the date of tabling	56	4.0

54 of the 56 questions were tabled just prior to the summer recess. These questions were formally answered and printed in the Official Report when the House returned in October. Answers to the majority of these questions were issued to hon. Members during the recess period. The parliamentary questions database however only records the date that a question is formally answered.

Public Relations

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on her Department's public relations and information services in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [48963]

Mr. Lammy: The Department's public relations spend in the last five years only occurred in 2004-05 and 2005-06 and both relate to the digital campaign. They are:

	Spend (£)
2004-05	100,000
2005-06	250,000

With regard to the spend on information services (web services and phone lines set up as part of advertising campaigns) no costs were involved in the development of either the digital campaign or the BBC Charter Review websites as they were built internally. Neither campaigns had an associated phone line.

The only spend on a phone line associated with a campaign was for licensing in 2005-06 at a cost of £40,000. The licensing campaign did not have a specific website and all related information is currently available on the DCMS website.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Bolivia

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance the UK has provided to Bolivia following the recent flooding; and if he will make a statement. [49596]

Mr. Thomas: Initial assessment findings from joint missions involving the Government of Bolivia, United Nations agencies, the Red Cross and non-governmental organisations report that 12,000 families have been affected by the recent floods in Bolivia, brought on by heavy rainfall over the last few weeks. Heavy rains are expected to continue in parts of the country before slowing down towards the end of this week. A total of 2,3000 families are reported to be displaced and in temporary shelters across the affected areas (largely in the departments of Santa Cruz and Beni). 2,400 houses have been damaged or destroyed. The immediate relief needs identified are food (for up to 7,000 families), water (for 4,645 families, temporary shelter, mosquito nets and mattresses (for approximately 3,500 families).

The United States Agency for International Development has already provided $300,000 of relief assistance including sufficient plastic sheeting for 1,000 tents, seven water bladders of 10, 12,000 litres capacity and 3,000 wool blankets. It has also provided 100 tons of food and is considering additional funding. The United Nations office for the coordination of humanitarian affairs has allocated an emergency grant of $30,000 for the purchase of relief items. The European Commission's humanitarian office is also considering a response.

The early response of traditional donors in the region indicates that the immediate emergency needs of affected people appear to have been or will soon be met. However, DFID is continuing to monitor the evolving situation in Bolivia closely.

Public Relations

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much was spent on the Department's public relations and information services in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [48956]

Mr. Thomas: DFID expenditure on public relations is through the Press Office in the following table are the figures available:

Financial year	Amount £
2001-02	[1]48,000
2002-03	[1]191,000
2003-04	404,000
2004-05	682,000
2005-06[2]	600,500

[1] staff costs only
[2] to 7 February 2006

DFID's information services are through the DFID website and the public inquiry point.

The public inquiry point is an integral part of the larger building support for development team, and as such, the costs have never been held separately and would incur disproportionate costs to disaggregate them.

Website costs

Financial year	Amount £
2001-02	122,504
2002-03	64,677
2003-04	147,958
2004-05	[1]130,370
2005-06[2]	121,983

[1] estimated
[2] to date

Please note that the figure for financial year 2004 05 is an estimate because of structural re-organisation within DFID, which has made costs difficult to disaggregate.

Economic Partnership Agreements

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the UK position is on (a) investment, (b) public procurement and (c) competition policy within the economic partnership agreements between the EU and African, Caribbean and Pacific countries; and if he will make a statement on the progress made in negotiations of these issues during the UK presidency of the EU. [49221]

Mr. Thomas: The UK position on investment, public procurement and competition policy in the Economic Partnership Agreements (EPAs), as published in March 2005, is that these issues should be removed from the negotiations, unless specifically requested by any of the regional groups in the African Caribbean and Pacific (ACP). It is for the ACP regional groups to judge the development benefits of any agreements on these issues and the EU should not push for them to be discussed. In addition, we believe that if included, any negotiations on Government procurement should be limited to transparency.

During the time of the UK presidency in 2005, the European Commission and the ACP did not negotiate on these issues. Some regions have requested to negotiate some of these issues. For example, the Pacific has requested to negotiate investment, while the Caribbean has requested to negotiate all three of the issues. However, while on their jointly agreed agendas, the negotiations on these issues are only just beginning.

EU Trust Fund (Africa)

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on progress towards the establishment of an EU trust fund for Africa. [49595]

Hilary Benn: We expect the European Investment Bank and the European Commission to shortly sign a Memorandum of Understanding establishing a Trust Fund to finance infrastructure in Sub-Saharan Africa.

The Trust Fund is in support of the EU-Africa Infrastructure Partnership, which is part of the wider EU Africa Strategy, approved in December 2005. It will support water, energy, transport and telecommunications infrastructure, with a focus on cross border projects.

The Commission and the European Investment Bank will begin to discuss member state participation in the Trust Fund with member states.

Increased investment in infrastructure is needed to boost growth in Africa and help meet the Millennium Development Goals. The UK is therefore supportive of the EU-Africa Infrastructure Partnership, which is complementary to the new Infrastructure Consortium for Africa.

Food Shortages

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made on the scale of food shortages in Chechnya and Ingushetia; and if he will make a statement. [49669]

Mr. Thomas: DFID relies on the UN organisations working in Chechnya and Ingushetia to provide information on the humanitarian situation in both republics. We are informed by the World Food Programme (WFP) that thousands of vulnerable people are currently suffering from the extreme weather experienced in Russia and are in urgent need of food. WFP have therefore appealed for funds to resume food rations to the region.

In response to the WFP appeal, DFID will provide £200,000 through the WFP to support continued food distribution in the short-term and will maintain close contacts with the UN and the WFP to re-assess the situation over the coming months. At the same time, DFID will continue to push for better targeting of food for particularly vulnerable groups and continue efforts to move to more sustainable and recovery focused assistance to reduce dependency on food distributions.

Freedom of Information Act

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what total sum has been received by his Department for the provision of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in its first year of operation. [48495]

Mr. Thomas: In 2005, DFID received no payments for requests which fell above the appropriate limit and received no payments for disbursements.

The Freedom of Information Act allows for public authorities to determine when the cost of processing a request will exceed the appropriate limit, which for central Government is set at £600 and for the wider public sector £450. In this instance the public authority may decide to either approach the applicant to help them refine their request and where possible to bring it under the appropriate limit. Alternatively, public authorities may charge the applicant the cost of processing the request. There is, however, no obligation for departments to provide information if the cost of processing the request exceeds the appropriate limit.

Public authorities may also charge for disbursements when handling requests where it is deemed appropriate. Further information on the Freedom of Information (FOI) fees regime can be found on the DCA website at http://www.foi.gov.uk/feesguide.htm.

Global Fund

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the withdrawal of the Global Fund to fight HIV/AIDS, TB and malaria from Myanmar. [48944]

Mr. Thomas: Burma is facing a generalised HIV and AIDS epidemic and has high Malaria and TB infection and mortality rates. On 18 August 2005, the Global Fund terminated its US$98 million grant to Burma, citing the Burmese authorities' tightening of restrictions on UN and international non-governmental organisations (INGOs) (particularly on travel). Some but not all of these restrictions have subsequently been relaxed.

Although a phase-out plan has been adopted to mitigate the cancellation of the grants, the termination was a significant setback to work to combat the three diseases. DFID has provided technical assistance to the UN resident co-ordinator to help learn from the experience and consider alternative funding arrangements. Working with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), DFID has stressed to the authorities, the need to ensure access for the UN and INGO's. DFID and other donors are designing a replacement programme to respond to the three diseases. During design, we are consulting with a wide range of stakeholders and will ensure a focus on transparency, accountability, equity and effective monitoring.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what mechanisms are in place to ensure that money pledged to the global fund to fight HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria is spent where it is intended. [48945]

Mr. Thomas: The Global Fund has a number of fiduciary mechanisms in place to ensure that grant proceeds are used for their intended purpose. The country co-ordinating mechanism, a country-level partnership which includes representatives from both the public and private sectors, is responsible for submitting the initial grant proposal for approval and nominating the principal recipient(s). It also oversees and monitors the progress of the grant during implementation. The global fund and the principal recipient(s) for each grant negotiate a grant agreement which sets out specific, measurable results that will be tracked using a set of key indicators to assess performance against the agree objectives. Principal recipients are legally responsible for local implementation of the grant, including oversight of sub-recipients of grant funds.

The global fund does not have a country presence outside its offices in Geneva. It relies on independent financial advice from local fund agents which are local auditors. In the initial stage, the local fund agent assesses the financial and administrative capacity of the principal recipient. Over the life of the grant, the local fund agent will verify periodic disbursements based on demonstrated progress towards intended results. This performance-based system of grant-making is key to the glob fund's commitment to results. To ensure transparency and reduce fiduciary risks, the global fund compiles key information including results and financial accountability for each grant into a grant performance report which is posted in the global fund's website: www.theglobalfund.org.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on distributing the US$ 241 allocated by the global fund to fight HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria to schemes to fight HIV/AIDS in India. [48948]

Mr. Thomas: The Global Fund is supporting eight grants in India that are currently in their first two years of implementation (Phase 1) and the total approved for this phase is US$ 107.3 million. The progress of disbursements against these grants has been variable. Where disbursements have been slow, this has been due to several factors including institutional issues and procurement delays. The table provides a summary of the position on current disbursements and also takes account of additional disbursements expected in February and March (where these are known):

The India Country Co-ordinating Mechanism responsible for overseeing implementation of the grants meets regularly to review their status and consider appropriate action. The Global Fund is also working with the Country Co-ordinating Mechanism to help speed up the disbursement process. In line with the Global Fund's performance-based funding approach, subsequent funding of these grants in Phase 2 (covering the next three years) will be subject to an assessment of their performance before additional funds totalling US$ 202.7 million can approved.

Haiti

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral aid the UK has given to Haiti in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [49597]

Mr. Thomas: Our bilateral assistance between 2000 and 2005 was largely in the form of small grants provided through partnerships with UK international non-governmental organisations and their local partners in Haiti. However, in 2004–05, of the total amount provided in bilateral aid to Haiti, £1,913,000 was in the form of humanitarian assistance following the outbreak of violence, floods and landslides, and the passage of hurricane Ivan. DFID continues to provide support to Haiti through our partnership programme agreements with British non-governmental organisations (NGO)s working in Haiti, such as Oxfam and the Catholic Institute for International Relations (CIIR).

The following tables detail the bilateral and multilateral aid provided by the UK to Haiti over the last five year period.

	UK bilateral (£000)
2000–01	61
2001–02	130
2002–03	125
2003–04	130
2004–05	2027

The figures provided for multilateral aid reflect the UK's share of contributions to the European Commission, United Nations, World Bank, and others. For example, the UK's recent pledge to the soft loan window of the Caribbean Development Bank, includes close to £3 million for Haiti from 2005–08.

Kashmir Earthquake

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions his Department has had with UK commercial airlines on the carriage of aid collected in the UK to Pakistan as part of the relief effort following the earthquake in Kashmir in October 2005. [49276]

Mr. Thomas: DFID uses an air brokering service for its relief flights arranged through commercial carriers. DFID contracted 15 flights to deliver relief items and 78 flights on behalf of the agencies of the Disasters Emergency Committee (DEC). DFID encouraged the DEC agencies to offer available space on the aircraft to non-DEC agencies where appropriate. DFID was also made aware of a number of organisations being offered free space on commercial airlines outside of this arrangement, for instance one of the DFID supported UK rescue teams received a free outward flight from British Airways.

Poverty Reduction

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the impact of remittances sent by migrants to their families in the developing world on reducing poverty; and if he will make a statement. [49665]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has a range of initiatives to enhance the development impact of remittances for developing countries, and this includes an analysis of the effects of migrant remittances in reducing poverty.

In general, evidence shows remittances reduce poverty in developing countries. For example:

New findings from Guatemala show that remittances reduce the level, depth and severity of poverty. Households receiving internal and international remittances spend around 50 per cent. more, respectively, than households with no remittances.

Recent World Bank research from the Philippines confirms that remittances reduce poverty for those that receive them;

In Bangladesh, remittances from internal migration can represent the majority of household income. Households receiving remittances have higher nutritional and health status.

higher levels of educational investment, and pools of money available for emergencies. There is clear evidence that without access to remittances, children's access to education would be severely limited. Remittance transfers can make up as much as 40 per cent. of the household budget for receiving poor families.

At the level of the economy, research suggests that remittances provide valuable foreign exchange for developing countries, and strengthen the balance of payments. Unlike other financial flows, remittances are counter cyclical, thus alleviating macroeconomic shocks. Remittances can also provide investment capital for economic activity, contributing to economic growth. Where remittance flows are saved rather than spent, they help improve the savings ratios and provide a higher deposit base for the banking system, which is necessary for economic growth.

DFID has a number of initiatives underway to reduce barriers to remittance flows and improve their developmental impact. In particular, DFID has initiated remittance country partnerships with Bangladesh, Nigeria and Ghana. These partnerships include work to extend access to remittances to poorer and more rural people, encourage greater competition and lower remittance prices, and improve data. DFID also works closely with economists in the World Bank that are researching in depth the impact of remittances on poverty reduction.

In terms of work in the UK, DFID has recently set up a task force comprising of banks and money transfer companies, in order to lower remittance prices and improve the services they provide to low income migrants. The task force will implement recommendations from a public/private sector working group report that DFID launched late last year.

DFID initiated a website (www.sendmoneyhome.org) for those wishing to send remittances to developing countries from the UK, which provides easily available comparative information on remittance prices and providers. The aim is to improve choice and stimulate competition, leading to lower prices and a better service for low income migrants. DFID funded a household survey in the UK among the Bangladeshi community which explores the impact on recipients of remittances to Bangladesh, and has recently commissioned a wider household survey to better quantify remittance flows from key ethnic minority communities within the UK.

Sierra Leone/Ivory Coast

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much (a) financial and (b) food aid the United Kingdom has given to (i) Sierra Leone and (ii) the Ivory Coast since 1997. [49414]

Hilary Benn: DFID's total bilateral assistance to Sierra Leone has been £207 million since 1997. Of this, £14.4 million has been in the form of humanitarian assistance, comprising food aid and other humanitarian assistance. The remaining £192.5 million has been in the form of programme aid, direct budget support, technical assistance and other in-kind expenditure. In addition to this, the UK's imputed share of financial assistance to Sierra Leone through the EC is £14.4 million since 1997 (see Table 1 for details of assistance by year and type of assistance).

Regarding Cote d'Ivoire, DFID's total bilateral expenditure since 1997 is £45.9 million. This includes £1.6 million in the form of humanitarian assistance, and £44.3 million in technical cooperation, debt relief and other aid in kind. As its imputed share of EC expenditure, the UK has also provided an additional £18.1 million to Cote d'Ivoire since 1997 (see Table 2 for details of assistance by year and type of aid).

TREASURY

Better Regulation Action Plan

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the Financial Services Authority's Better Regulation Action Plan. [50083]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Financial Service Authority's (FSA's) Better Regulation Action Plan, which sets out how the FSA is planning to continue improving the regulation of financial services, was published on 2 December. The Government welcome the FSA's Better Regulation Action Plan. On 1 February 2006 the FSA published its Business Plan for 2006–07, which includes further information on how it will deliver its better regulation initiatives. The Business Plan also commits the FSA to publish an update to its Better Regulation Action Plan in November 2006.

Condoms

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will reduce the current level of VAT on condoms to five per cent. [49239]

Dawn Primarolo: All taxes are kept under constant review and the Government are fully aware of the importance that has been attached to this issue by hon. Members and policy stakeholders.

Domestic Property Surveys

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether VAT is levied on a surveyor's report produced on a domestic property. [49812]

Dawn Primarolo: The supply of a surveyor's report on a domestic property is VAT standard-rated.

Employment Statistics

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) private sector jobs in (i) agriculture, (ii) manufacturing and (iii) the service sector and (b) public sector jobs there were in (A) Ribble Valley and (B) Lancashire in each of the last 10 years. [49795]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell dated 9 February 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your parliamentary question about private and public sector employment. (49795)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics for the United Kingdom of public sector employment from a quarterly survey of public sector organisations. However, estimates at local area level are not available.

Information at local area level is only available from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS)/Annual Population Survey (APS) of individual people in households. However, in this source, the categorisation of employment in the public or private sector depends upon the responses from the individuals interviewed. As reported by ONS in October 2005 in the publication "Public Sector Employment Trends", some individuals tend to misreport private sector employment as being in the public sector hence leading to overestimates of the share of public sector employment.

With this reservation about the data quality, table 1 shows the number of persons in private sector and public sector employment for people resident in the Kibble Valley parliamentary constituency, as shown by the annual local area LFS for the 12 month periods ending February 1999 to February 2004, and from the APS for the 12 months ending December 2004. Table 2 shows data for people resident in Lancashire. Estimates are not available for earlier years.

These estimates, as with any from sample surveys, are subject to a margin of uncertainty. Changes in the estimates from year to year should be treated with particular caution.

Financial Services Authority

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many letters he has received from members of the public regarding the Financial Services Authority in each year since its creation. [50228]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: HM Treasury does not record this information. It could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

HM Revenue and Customs Estate

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his oral answer of 26 January 2006, Official Report, column 1505, on HM Revenue and Customs Estate, what clawback clauses were included in the contract awarded to Mapeley in 2001 regarding properties included in his Department's estate. [46914]

Dawn Primarolo: The STEPS contract provides HMRC with rights to leave properties during the 20-year life of the deal. On leaving a property HMRC is entitled to share in certain gains in the value of the property. These are described as development gains.

The development gain is calculated by reference to the price obtained by Mapeley unless there is no disposal within two years at which point the gain is calculated by reference to the market value of the property.

Income Tax

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what additional rate of standard income tax would have been required to raise revenue of (a) £17.4 billion in 2004-05 and (b) £16.4 billion in 2003-04. [48821]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 8 February 2006]: A basic rate of 27½ per cent. on earned income in both 2003-04 and 2004-05 would have raised an additional £16.2 billion and £17.0 billion respectively in each year.

These estimates assume the basic rate on savings and dividends remain unchanged at 20 per cent. and 10 per cent. respectively.

The 2003-04 estimates are based upon the 2003-04 Survey of Personal Incomes (SPI), and the 2004-05 estimates are based upon the 2003-04 SPI projected forward in line with December 2005 pre-Budget HM Treasury assumptions.

The figures exclude any estimate of behavioural response to the tax change, which could be significant given the scale of the changes.

Insurance Premium Tax

Gregory Barker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received from organisations representing leaseholders with concerns about alleged fraud regarding the insurance premium tax. [49465]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Some allegations of underpayment of insurance premium tax have been received from one organisation and these have been investigated by HM Revenue and Customs.

Ministerial Visits

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the (a) dates and (b) locations of his nationwide tour undertaken to date; and when he expects the tour to be completed. [50110]

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will visit Shrewsbury to discuss his main economic priorities with the Shropshire Chamber of Commerce and Shrewsbury Business Chamber. [41562]

Mr. Gordon Brown: As part of my official duties I have made a number of visits to the regions and nations of the United Kingdom and will be continuing to do so over the coming months.

Ports (Security)

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many whole-time equivalent staff of HM Revenue and Customs and its predecessors were employed in the investigation and surveillance of (a) ports and (b) airports in each year since 1999-2000; [49760]

(2) if he will list (a) ports and (b) airports which had a permanent HM Revenue and Customs presence in each year since 1999-2000. [49761]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer to the answer given on 8 June 2004, Official Report, column 370 by the Financial Secretary to the Treasury to the hon. Member for South-East Cambridgeshire (Mr. Paice).

Prescriptions (VAT)

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what criteria were used in deciding that (a) NHS hospital pharmacies would pay VAT on prescriptions and (b) other pharmaceutical outlets would not. [49675]

Dawn Primarolo: VAT is chargeable on all drugs, medicines and other pharmaceutical items that pharmacists purchase to dispense to patients. Neither a hospital nor a community pharmacy charges VAT on drugs and medicines dispensed by a pharmacist on the basis of a prescription issued by a medical practitioner.

While different VAT reclaim rules apply for the different types of pharmacies, these reflect how successive Governments have funded NHS VAT costs, and the fundamental difference for VAT purposes between NHS hospital pharmacies, which dispense prescribed drugs as a non-business activity, and community pharmacies, which make a 'business' supply when they dispense drugs.

Real Estate Investment Trusts

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the merits of establishing a regulatory framework for unlisted real estate investment trusts. [50436]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Lady to the answer she received from my hon. Friend the Financial Secretary to the Treasury on 26 January 2006, Official Report, columns 2265-2266W.

Revenue Help Lines

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the adequacy of Inland Revenue help lines (a) 01274 532007 and (b) 01274 539628 at busy times of the year for people with queries about paying their tax; whether he plans to improve the service; and if he will make a statement. [49594]

Dawn Primarolo: Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs is continually looking to improve services to customers especially around peak periods. Last year the department put considerable time and effort into trying to encourage people to file, and where necessary seek help, before the peak time at end of January and not leave things until the very last moment.

In anticipation of the Self Assessment filing peak in the last few days of January a substantial number of additional staff were made available on the telephone numbers quoted. In addition a telephone service was provided over the weekend prior to the filing date and up until 8.00 pm on 30 and 31 January. This was supported further by improvements to facilities for processing payment over the telephone.

Tax Credits

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families were sent (a) one, (b) two, (c) three, (d) four to seven and (e) eight or more different entitlement notices for a single application for tax credits in each year since the tax credit system was introduced. [47206]

Dawn Primarolo: This information could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) longest and (b) average time taken was for information relating to an application for tax credit to be updated on his Department's computer system in (i) 2003–04 and (ii) 2004–05; and how many open cases on the system have waited more than four months to be updated. [47207]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not available.

HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) has service delivery agreement targets for deciding tax credit claims within five working days and 30 working days. The Department's annual report reported its progress against those targets. It reported that, for 2004–05, 95.9 percent of all new claims, renewals and changes of circumstances were decided within 30 working days of receipt.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when his Department expects to publish full results for the level of compliance in tax credits for 2003–04; and what research has been undertaken on compliance risk monitoring. [48442]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 6 February 2006]: HMRC is carrying out a random inquiry programme of a representative sample of finalised claims across the tax credit population to measure the level of fraud and claimant error in tax credits. Final results for the 2003–04 exercise will be published in spring 2006.

HMRC constantly monitors claim activity and acts to intercept potentially fraudulent claims before payments are made and adapts its methods in the light of evidence on attempted fraud. HMRC continuously reviews and updates their processes to ensure they provide a robust defence against the risk of organised fraud.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the total value has been of compensation payments made as a result of (a) delays and (b) mistakes in calculating tax credit awards; [48764]

(2) how many people have received compensation payments as a result of (a) delays and (b) mistakes in the calculation of tax credit awards. [48766]

Dawn Primarolo: The circumstances in which the former Inland Revenue and HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) will make compensation payments to its customers are explained in the Department's code of practice 1 "Putting things right" which is available at www.hmrc.gov.uk/leaflets/cop1.pdf

The Department will pay compensation for reasonable costs incurred as a direct result of their mistakes or delays and to recognise worry and distress caused by those mistakes and delays.

The Department will make a compensation payment if they believe it is justified even if the customer has not asked for compensation.

For the value and number of compensation payments made in relation to tax credits, by HMRC's Tax Credit Office and contact centres, to 30 September 2005, I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave the right hon. Member for Maidstone and The Weald (Miss Widdecombe) on 22 November 2005, Official Report, column 1913W and the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 15 November 2005, Official Report, column 1212W.

Mr. Quentin Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the annual cost to public funds of withdrawing tax credit as beneficiaries' income rises to the marginal income tax rate applicable. [49190]

Dawn Primarolo: No such assessment has been made.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Valuation Office Agency has paid in (a) recruitment costs and (b) redundancy payments as a consequence of the postponement of the council tax revaluation in England. [47879]

Dawn Primarolo: Nothing.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Valuation Office Agency (a) has and (b) will have access to the local authority lettings continuous recording (LACORE) database. [49811]

Dawn Primarolo: The Valuation Office Agency has no current plans to seek access to LACORE data.

Vandalism

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the acts of vandalism which have been perpetrated (a) inside and (b) on the outside of his Department's buildings in the last 12 months. [49511]

John Healey: There have been none.

Vehicle Excise Duty

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many vehicle excise duty payments were made in each of the last six weeks for which figures are available in each local authority area in North Wales. [46068]

Dr. Ladyman: I have been asked to reply.

Figures according to local authority area are not available by Local authority. Information could be provided for the North Wales area, but only at disproportionate cost. Work is underway to gauge the level of vehicle re-licensing in the North Wales police force area during the period of their recent operation to tackle untaxed and uninsured vehicles.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what criteria he uses to judge the success of (a) the peacekeeping mission and (b) the counter-narcotics operation in Afghanistan. [42991]

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the key aims are of the deployment of troops in Afghanistan. [42792]

John Reid: Our aims in Afghanistan are: democratic government that can maintain the rule of law and deliver basic services; a sustainable security environment where the population is free from coercion; a viable legitimate market economy that is increasingly able to support basic social needs and reduce poverty; and a sustainable decrease in poppy cultivation and drug trafficking. The extent to which Afghanistan's own Ministries can meet these objectives themselves forms the basis of our criteria for success.

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he expects the recent deployment of British troops to Afghanistan to result in reduced opium production in that country. [48797]

John Reid [holding answer 6 February 2006]: Counter-narcotics (CN) operations are the responsibility of the Government of Afghanistan. UK forces deployed under the International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) can provide training and operational support to Afghan counter-narcotics forces, and they contribute to the broader counter-narcotics effort by providing the secure environment in which the rule of law can be applied, reconstruction can take place and legal rural livelihoods can be developed.

While there remains a risk that opium cultivation may increase again this year, our goal is to ensure that the downward trend in cultivation seen in 2004–05 is maintained in the long term. We are working with the Government of Afghanistan and other international partners to ensure delivery of this goal.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what funds his Department has provided to support training of the Afghan army and police force in each year since 2002; and if he will make a statement; [45163]

(2) what preparations have been made by his Department to build Afghan national army and police capacity with a view to transferring responsibility for security in Afghanistan to the indigenous forces; and if he will make a statement. [45168]

John Reid: The US is the G8 lead nation for developing the Afghan national army (ANA), and 27,000 Afghan soldiers have been trained under their auspices. Over 60,000 policemen have been trained by the German-led police reform programme.

The UK has assisted training by providing resources and assisting ANA capacity building within the US-led effort, including NCO training for the ANA and, from April 2006, junior officer training for the ANA. The UK Ministry of Defence (MOD) has also provided two civilian advisers to work with the Afghan MOD to help build its capacity, and there are Afghan cadets at Sandhurst.

The UK Ministry of Defence does not contribute funds specifically to ANP training, although financial support has been provided by the global conflict prevention pool, which is jointly funded and administered by MOD, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Department for International Development. This breaks down as follows:

£ million

	ANA	ANP
2002–03:	5	90,000
2003–04:	1.25	2.5
2004–05:	3.5	1.5

In addition, the UK has provided senior police advisers based at UK-led provincial reconstruction team and UK forces deployed under the NATO-led international security assistance force (ISAF) help provide the secure environment in which police reform can take place. The UK's provincial reconstruction team in Helmand will include police reform experts, and UK troops will work closely with the ANA as they take on an increasing responsibility for security in the Province.

The ISAF has a key role to play in facilitating the development of both the ANA and ANP, enabling them to operate with greater and more co-ordinated effect, thereby bringing security and stability to the entire country.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many NATO-trained and deployed Afghan combat troops there are; and if he will make a statement. [45162]

John Reid: So far 27,000 Afghan troops have been trained by the US-led programme for the development of the Afghan national army (ANA). This programme is supported by the UK and other nations. The UK is providing NCO training and from April the UK will also support junior officer training in Kabul. The NATO-led international security assistance force (ISAF) is not part of this programme. However, British forces as part of the ISAF will assist with the training and mentoring of Afghan army units in Helmand Province. The Afghan Minister for Defence recently estimated there were now 34,000 soldiers, NCOs and officers in the ANA.

Chemical Defence Establishment

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which research programme at the Chemical Defence Establishment at Porton Down is designed to contribute to the understanding of Parkinson's disease. [48585]

Mr. Touhig: The remit of the Defence Science and Technology Laboratory, Dstl, at Porton Down is to provide the UK and its armed forces with safe and effective countermeasures against chemical and biological warfare agents. Thus, Dstl is not currently involved in research into Parkinson's disease, nor has any previous work been undertaken in this area.

However, the research that Dstl undertakes in the marmoset model for other applications could potentially have some relevance for research groups working on Parkinson's disease. The results of the research undertaken by Dstl are, wherever possible, submitted for publication in the open peer reviewed scientific literature and presented at open scientific conferences.

Commemorative Badges

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many 1945 55 commemorative badges have been issued in (a) each local authority area and (b) each constituency. [46072]

Mr. Touhig: This information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Records prior to April 2000 have been archived and could not be obtained within a reasonable time scale, and may have been destroyed. I will write to the hon. Member to either provide the 1997 figures, or confirm their earlier destruction and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many residents of (a) each county and (b) each constituency in North Wales have received a veteran's badge. [47998]

Mr. Touhig [holding answer 2 February 2006]: This information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

523 residents from North Wales have received veterans badges since April 2005, but prior to this date records were not kept geographically.

Cruise Missiles

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Tomahawk cruise missiles have been (a) purchased for and (b) launched by the Royal Navy in each year since 1997; and how many Block IV Tomahawk cruise missiles are due to be purchased. [49648]

John Reid: The total number of Tomahawk Cruise Missiles purchased for the Royal Navy in each year since 1997 is shown in the table as follows:

	Total number of missiles purchased
1997	48
1998	17
1999	0
2000	0
2001	20
2002	0
2003	22

In addition, 64 Block IV Tomahawk cruise missiles are currently on order.

I am withholding the information on Tomahawk launches as this could enable deductions to be made on current stockpiles, which could be prejudicial to national security.

Defence Medical Service

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required and (b) current strength levels of (i) trained anaesthetists, (ii) trained general surgeons, (iii) burns specialists and (iv) general medical practitioners in the Defence Medical Service was (A) on the last date for which figures are available and (B) in 1997. [48779]

Mr. Touhig: The following table shows the required and actual strength levels in the Defence Medical Services of the above four specialties as at January 2006 and April 2000:

Specialty	January 2006		April 2000
	Required	Actual	Required	Actual
Anaesthetists	76	44	120	30
General Surgeons	36	21	44	19
Burns Consultants	6	5	10	2
General Medical Practitioners	270	260	440	210

Figures above 100 have been rounded to the nearest 10.

Disability (Armed Forces)

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps the Government are taking to support (a) former and (b) current members of the armed forces who are disabled; and if he will make a statement. [49142]

Mr. Touhig: The policies and procedures of the armed forces aim to avoid unnecessary threats to health; to provide the treatment and rehabilitation to ensure personnel can return, where possible, to normal service duties; or, where medical retirement becomes necessary, to provide proper resettlement and after-care services.

Personnel who become disabled but who are still able to contribute usefully to operational capacity, may be retained. Those who have to be medically retired are provided with advice on pay, allowances and pension compensation entitlements, housing and financial matters before returning to civilian life, including, if appropriate, resettlement advice and information to assist them to prepare for, and find, suitable employment.

The Veterans Agency provides a single point of contact within the MOD for veterans and their dependants seeking help and advice on a range of issues including health, housing, employment and financial matters. The War Pensioners' Welfare Service, a nationwide network administered by the Veterans Agency, provides help and advice on a wide range of welfare needs.

Early Retirement

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many departmental employees have taken early retirement due to ill health in each of the past five years for which figures are available. [46749]

Mr. Touhig: The following table gives details of the number of Ministry of Defence civilian employees that took early retirement due to ill health in each of the financial years 2000–01 to 2004–05.

	Headcount
2000–01	500
2001–02	440
2002–03	365
2003–04	290
2004–05	250

Note:
This table used the revised definition of civilian personnel (www.dasa.mod.uk), but excludes Royal Fleet Auxiliary and Locally Engaged Civilian staff for whom no information on civilian ill health retirements is available.

Gulf War

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many individuals from the British armed forces served in the first Gulf war; and if he will make a statement. [49543]

Mr. Ingram: During the period of the first Gulf conflict, between 1 September 1990 and 30 June 1991, 53,462 UK armed forces personnel were deployed to the Gulf region.

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans the Government have to conduct research into Gulf war syndrome; and if he will make a statement. [49545]

Mr. Touhig: It has been a key principle of this Government's approach to the health concerns of veterans of the 1990–91 Gulf conflict that there should be appropriate research into veterans' illnesses and into the factors that may have a bearing on them. Research already sponsored by the Ministry of Defence includes: epidemiological studies; clinical and laboratory tests; a programme of investigation into the possible adverse health effects of the medical countermeasures offered to troops; a systematic review of research literature; and a study of the social aspects of the issue. Most of this work has been completed and published. We have also maintained close contact with the US authorities to ensure visibility and understanding of the extensive programme of research that they have commissioned. The research has shown no evidence of a unique illness associated with service in the Gulf, nor has it identified a specific cause of the illnesses in question.

Independent advice on the direction of this research is provided by the Medical Research Council. The Ministry of Defence is currently considering with the council potential additional studies aimed at improving the long-term health of veterans with persistent symptoms and also of an enzyme involved in metabolising organophosphates. Announcements will be made in due course regarding the outcome of these considerations.

Gurkha Recruitment

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what effect developments in Nepal have had on Gurkha recruitment over the past 12 months. [49684]

Mr. Touhig: The Ministry of Defence's ability to recruit Gurkhas over the past 12 months has not been diminished. In the most recent recruitment exercise some 15,000 applicants for selection competed for 230 available places. We have however adjusted and streamlined our recruitment process in recent years, partly in response to the situation in Nepal.

Iraq

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of (a) soldiers in the Army and (b) soldiers serving in Iraq have been diagnosed with a mental health condition. [48780]

Mr. Touhig: Between January 2003 and September 2005 inclusive, 1,333 United Kingdom service personnel who had served in Iraq were subsequently assessed as suffering from a mental health disorder,. This represents less than 1.5 per cent. of total UK service personnel deployed to the region during the same period. Of those 1,333 personnel, 182 were assessed as suffering from Post Traumatic Stress Disorder.

Figures are not held centrally on a tri-service or single service basis on the total number of service personnel who are suffering from any mental health condition and this could therefore be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Military Explosive Manufacturing

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the warheads carried by the United Kingdom's Trident nuclear deterrent will continue to contain high-explosives manufactured exclusively in the UK. [49650]

John Reid: We have previously withheld and are continuing to withhold the information requested as it relates to national security.

Parkinson's Disease

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when (a) he and (b) Ministers in his Department last discussed possible links between Parkinson's disease and Gulf War illnesses with US counterparts. [49667]

Mr. Touhig: I am aware of research undertaken by Robert Haley at University of Texas Southwestern Medical Centre raising the possibility of a link between Gulf war illnesses and Parkinson's disease. Defence Ministers have not held any formal discussions with US counterparts about this research. Officials keep abreast of research published in the US through a British liaison officer who is based permanently in Washington DC. He is tasked with ensuring that the UK has full visibility of US research into Gulf health issues and with providing a channel for communicating our own work to interested US parties.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what research projects related to possible links between Parkinson's disease and Gulf war illnesses are being undertaken by his Department; [49670]

(2) what funding his Department makes available towards research into possible links between Parkinson's disease and Gulf war illnesses in the US. [49671]

Mr. Touhig: It has been a key principle of this Government's approach to the health concerns of veterans of the 1990–91 Gulf conflict that there should be appropriate research into veterans' illnesses and into the factors that may have a bearing on them. Under the direction and guidance of the Medical Research Council, the Ministry of Defence has sponsored a broad programme of research. No research has been undertaken or sponsored by the United Kingdom Government into possible links between Parkinson's disease and the ill health reported by some Gulf veterans. However, we are aware of work undertaken in the United States suggesting the possibility of such a link and are following developments on this closely.

Parliamentary Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many parliamentary questions tabled in the last 12 months for answer by him on a named day (a) were transferred and (b) received a substantive answer (i) on the day named and (ii) after the day named; [49887]

(2) how many ordinary written parliamentary questions tabled for answer by him in the last 12 months have been answered (a) within 14 days, (b) between 14 and 28 days, (c) between 28 days and two months and (d) in excess of two months after the date of tabling; and if he will make a statement. [49906]

Mr. Touhig: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

During the period 1 February 2005 to 31 January 2006, the Ministry of Defence received 637 parliamentary questions for answer on a named day and 2,729 ordinary written parliamentary questions for answer.

Defence Ministers aim to ensure that Members receive a substantive response to their named day question on the named day and to endeavour to answer ordinary written questions within a working week of being tabled.

Unfortunately, this is not always possible but the Department makes every effort to achieve these timescales.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead (Mike Penning) on 2 November 2005, Official Report, columns 1067–68W, in which I advised of our plans to introduce a new toolkit to better track and handle all parliamentary questions and correspondence later in the year; which should enable us to better monitor and report on our performance.

Pingat Jasa Medal

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number of soldiers, sailors and airmen serving in Malaysia between 31 August 1957 and 31 December 1966 would be eligible for the Pingat Jasa medal if approval for wearing it were given. [48213]

Mr. Touhig: No centrally collated figures are available to show the total number of individual service personnel who served in the Federation of Malaya and subsequently in the Federation of Malaysia between 31 August 1957 and 31 December 1966 and such figures could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Further, as the Malaysian Government have not yet released a definitive qualification criterion for the Pingat Jasa medal, it would not be possible to estimate the numbers who might be eligible even if the overall figures for those who served in the area were available.

Post-traumatic Stress Disorder

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the average annual amount spent by the Government in a year on the treatment of servicemen and ex-servicemen suffering from post-traumatic stress disorder and related conditions over the last five years. [49471]

Mr. Touhig [holding answer 7 February 2006]: Figures are not held centrally on the total number of Service personnel who are suffering from post traumatic stress disorder and related conditions. Information on the amount spent could only therefore be provided at disproportionate cost.

Furthermore, we do not hold information on the treatment received by ex-Service personnel because the NHS has responsibility for the treatment of ex-Service personnel suffering from both mental and physical disorders.

For those ex-Service personnel whose condition is due to service and for whom it is appropriate, courses of remedial care are funded at facilities provided by the charity, Combat Stress. For the year ending December 2005, funding was some £2.8 million.

Press Coverage

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions since 1 April 2003 he has complained to the Press Complaints Commission about the coverage in the press of (a) Ministers or officials and (b) his Department; and how many of these complaints were upheld. [47091]

John Reid: Since 1 April 2003 the Ministry of Defence has made four complaints to the Press Complaints Commission; all by the then Secretary of State, my right hon. Friend the Member for Ashfield (Mr. Hoon). Three were upheld and one was not pursued.

Public Relations

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent on his Department's public relations and information services in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [48962]

Mr. Touhig: The Ministry of Defence engages in a range of public relations activities in order that the work of the MOD and armed forces is communicated to the general public. While the MOD, its Agencies and the Services employ full-time and part-time Communications staff, and who, on occasion, engage external PR consultancies to assist them, the Department does not centrally record overall expenditure on public relations. This information therefore could be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

Neither does the Department centrally record expenditure on information services, a broad term that could refer to a range of activities from press offices, to internal communications, to web services.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

1911 Census

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will authorise the early release to the Public Records Office of the 1911 census for England and Wales. [49704]

Bridget Prentice: The Government's policy is to make the decennial census returns publicly available after a period of 100 years, in order to honour assurances given about the confidentiality of personal information contained in census returns. The National Archives is, therefore, developing plans to release the 1911 census in 2012.

Freedom of Information Act

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs whether it is Government policy that civil servants routinely remove their names from documents before releasing them under the Freedom of Information Act 2000; and if she will make a statement. [49032]

Bridget Prentice: Disclosing or withholding officials' names in freedom of information releases is dealt with on a case-by-case basis. The names of many officials are already made public in a variety of ways, such as in the civil service yearbook or as speakers at conferences, therefore it is unnecessary to redact names. However, there may be cases in which it is necessary to remove officials' names, for example for health and safety purposes or because releasing their name into the public domain could cause disruption to their day-to-day work.

Road Traffic Claims

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what assessment her Department has made of the effects of the introduction of predictable costs in road traffic claims where damages are under £10,000. [48629]

Bridget Prentice: Research on the operation of fixed recoverable costs for road traffic accident claims is underway, and it is expected that this will be completed in summer 2006.

Small Claims (Personal Injuries)

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to the answer of 28 November 2005, Official Report, column 130W, on small claims (personal injuries), if she will list the organisations she plans to consult as part of the review of personal injuries limits for small claims. [48462]

Bridget Prentice: A list of consultees is not yet available. I will ensure that a copy is sent to the hon. Member when the consultation paper is published.

Unsafe Gravestones

Mr. Todd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what progress has been made in discussions with (a) burial authorities and (b) other interested parties on the means of promoting best practice in dealing with unsafe gravestones. [49432]

Bridget Prentice: We expect to complete very shortly our assessment of existing guidance and then to discuss our findings with burial professionals and others. Subject to their views and any need to obtain any further technical advice, we aim to publish more comprehensive guidance later this year.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Education

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking to improve education standards in Northern Ireland. [48315]

Angela E. Smith: We are committed to driving up performance in schools in Northern Ireland by taking forward a wide range of initiatives aimed at raising standards, tackling under achievement and targeting funding at those areas of greatest social need. These include:

the recognition of social deprivation and education underachievement in the formula used to determine schools' budgets;

the School Improvement Programme which is focussed on raising standards and encompasses interventions in under achieving schools and literacy and numeracy standards;

the implementation of the new post-primary arrangements which will provide all pupils with access to a much wider range of courses, including vocational courses;

the Key Stage 4 Flexibility Initiative, which allows schools to discontinue certain aspects of the statutory curriculum in favour of innovative work-related programmes; the introduction of a revised statutory curriculum which has a reduced statutory element to give schools the flexibility to tailor their teaching to the needs of the individual; and, the introduction, from 2006-07, of the Children and Young People's Package, the aim of which is to reduce underachievement and improve life chances of children and young people.

This is underpinned by an ongoing programme of monitoring and evaluation, including not only inspection activity but also self evaluation by schools.

A-Level Results

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proportion of pupils making A-level entries in Northern Ireland obtained passes at (a) grade A level and (b) grades A and B level in each of the last 20 years. [50310]

Angela E. Smith: The requested information is as follows:

Percentage

Academic year	Entries achieving pass at Grade A	Grades A-B
1995-96	32	57
1996-97	33	59
1997-98	33	61
1998-99	37	64
1999-2000	39	67
2000-01	41	68
2001-02	44	72
2002-03	43	72
2003-04	44	73

Notes:

1. The latest available data relates to the 2003-04 academic year.
2. The earliest available data relates to the 1995-96 academic year.

Child Poverty

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many children are living in poverty in Northern Ireland in each constituency; and what the equivalent figures were in each of the past five years. [47579]

Angela E. Smith: Information is not available for the period requested as the data source households below average income was introduced to Northern Ireland in 2002-03 whereas in GB the survey was introduced in 1994-95. Also to enable estimates for individual Northern Ireland constituencies as requested, it was necessary to combine data for years 2002-03 and 2003-04. The following table shows the numbers and percentages of children living in relative income poverty before housing costs and after housing costs across parliamentary constituencies in Northern Ireland for that period.

Number and percentage of children in relative poverty by parliamentary constituency for 2002-03 and 2003-04 combined

Parliamentary constituency	Relative poverty: Before housing costs Number	Before housing costs Percentage	After housing costs Number	After housing costs Percentage
Belfast East	3,500	23	4,200	29

West Tyrone	6,600	30	8,500	38
All	95,000	22	110,500	25

Notes:

1. Numbers are rounded to the nearest hundred and percentages to the nearest whole number, therefore individual numbers by parliamentary constituencies may not sum to Northern Ireland total.
2. As with any sample survey the numbers and percentages quoted in the table above are subject to a degree of sampling error.
3. A single year's data do not provide robust results at the level of parliamentary constituency. It was therefore necessary to combine two years data to allow robust analysis this level.

4 The data were sourced from Households Below Average Income Northern Ireland (HBAI NI). The HBAI NI is based on information collected from the Family Resources Survey (FRS). The FRS was first run in NI in 2002–03. Therefore data is not available prior to 2002–03. The NBAI was first introduced in Great Britain in 1994–95.

5 The HBAI is the main source of income poverty measures throughout the UK and is used to monitor the United Kingdom's child poverty targets.

6 Relative income poverty is defined as having an income less than 60 per cent. of the contemporary median income.

7 Income before housing costs (BHC) includes the following main components: usual net earnings from employment; profit or loss from self-employment (losses are treated as a negative income); all social security benefits (including housing benefit, social fund, maternity, funeral and community care grants but excluding social fund loans) and tax credits; income from occupational and private pensions; investment income; maintenance payments, if a person receives them directly; income from educational grants and scholarships (including, for students, top up loans and parental contributions); the cash value of certain forms of income in kind (free school meals, free welfare milk, free school milk and free TV licence for those aged 75 and over).

8 Income is net of the following items: income tax payments; national insurance contributions; domestic rates (this includes water and sewerage charges for Northern Ireland); contributions to occupational pension schemes (including all additional voluntary contributions (AVCs) to occupational pension schemes, and any contributions to personal pensions); all maintenance and child support payments, which are deducted from the income of the person making the payment and parental contributions to students living away from home.

9 Income after housing costs (AHC) is derived by deducting a measure of housing costs from BHC income measure. Housing costs include the following: rent (gross of housing benefit); water rates, mortgage interest payments (net of tax relief); structural insurance premiums (for owner occupiers); ground rent and service charges.

Children's Food Bill

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will take steps to introduce in Northern Ireland the measures contained in the Children's Food Bill. [49033]

Angela E. Smith: The Department of Education, along with the Education and Library Boards and other school authorities, are already in the process of introducing many of the measures contained in the proposed Children's Food Bill.

New Nutritional Standards for school meals are presently being rolled-out to all schools in Northern Ireland. Around 500 schools are operating the standards at present and the remaining schools will be included as soon as possible. Additional funding has been provided to support the initiative which will address not only school meals but will also include other areas of food provision in schools such as tuck shops and vending machines. The Department will shortly be consulting on the timetable for introducing these changes.

In addition, from the 2006–07 school year the Education and Training Inspectorate will be evaluating the nutritional quality of meals in schools. It will also be examining schools' general approaches to promoting healthy eating.

Health education is a compulsory element of the curriculum for all pupils. It provides opportunities to learn about a healthy diet and to know and understand the contribution of food to growth, energy and health.

Civil Service

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps have been taken by the Civil Service to address the under-representation of Protestants in the general service grades of the Civil Service in 2005. [44804]

Angela E. Smith: In 2005 the Northern Ireland Civil Service included statements particularly welcoming applications from Protestants in the following recruitment competitions:

Administrative officer
Temporary administrative officer
Administrative assistant
Temporary administrative assistant

The Northern Ireland Civil Service has been aware that Protestants have been under-represented in applications for certain general service grades since 2002 when it last carried out a review as required under Article 55 of the Fair Employment and Treatment (NI) Order 1998. Since that time job advertisements for administrative assistant and administrative officer have carried messages particularly welcoming applications from the Protestant community. Appointments continue to be made strictly on merit from those who apply.

The Service's Article 55 review is currently in train and will examine the latest available figures. I expect to be in a position to provide this report to hon. Members in Northern Ireland later in the spring.

In addition, the Service is currently developing a new outreach strategy which will set out actions to be taken to promote Civil Service careers among under-represented groups.

Cognitive Therapy

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans there are to increase the number of cognitive therapists in the Province. [49387]

Mr. Woodward: There are no central plans to increase the number of cognitive therapists. The recruitment of staff, including cognitive therapists, is a matter for individual health and social services trusts taking into account factors such as service needs and available resources.

Domiciliary Carers

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people are on waiting lists for domiciliary carers; and what the average waiting time was in each health, social services and public safety board area in the last period for which figures are available. [49970]

Mr. Woodward: Information on the number of people on waiting lists for domiciliary carers, and average waiting times is not collected centrally. However, information is collected centrally on numbers of adults waiting in the community for domiciliary care packages.

The number of adults waiting in the community for domiciliary care packages at 30 September 2005 (the latest date for which information is available) was 767.

Information on waiting times is collected by time band and therefore average waiting times cannot be calculated. Information on waiting times by time band is shown in the following table for each health and social services board area, and for Northern Ireland, at 30 September 2005. At this date, 534 adults (70 per cent. of those waiting) had been waiting for 12 weeks or more, 59 (8 per cent.) had been waiting for between eight and 12 weeks, 63 (8 per cent.) for between five and eight weeks, 47 (6 per cent.) for between three and five weeks and 64 (8 per cent.) for less than three weeks. 403 (75 per cent.)of those waiting for 12 weeks or more were in the northern board area.

GCSE Results

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proportion of pupils at (a) grammar schools, (b) secondary modern schools and (c) comprehensive schools in Northern Ireland obtained five A-C passes at GCSE in each of the last 20 years. [50309]

Angela E. Smith: In Northern Ireland the only distinction made by the Department of Education is between grammar schools and other secondary schools. The requested information for these types of school is as follows:

Hostel Closure

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the reasons for the closure of the Lee Hestia Association Ltd./Novas Ouvertures Group Ltd. Hostel at 3–7 Brunswick Street, Belfast. [49321]

Mr. Hanson: The Brunswick Street hostel was operated by the Lee Hestia Association Ltd. as a member organisation of the Novas-Ouvertures Group Ltd. Support services in the hostel were funded by the Northern Ireland Housing Executive under the Supporting People programme. The Novas-Ouvertures Group subsequently decided to withdraw its services from Northern Ireland and a number of other areas and the Brunswick Street hostel closed in July 2005. While this is entirely a matter for the Novas-Ouvertures Group, I understand that the decision was taken for business reasons.

Industrial Derating

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the Government's plans are for a phasing out of industrial de-rating in Northern Ireland; and what the average expected change in non-domestic rates is for an average industrial business as a consequence of the phasing-out. [49563]

Angela E. Smith: The phasing out of industrial derating, which was fully consulted on as part of the overall Review of Rating Policy, came into operation on 1 April 2005 when businesses entitled to industrial derating became liable for rates at 15 per cent. of their full rate assessment.

The percentage amount of the full rate liability payable in 2006–07 will be 25 per cent., in 20070–08 35 per cent., in 2008–09 50 per cent., 75 per cent. in 2009–10 and in 2010–11 with full rates becoming payable from 1 April 2011.

As with all new policies the Government will review the phasing out of industrial derating. In this case a reasonable period of time is considered to be two years from the date of implementation.

The average rate bill for properties entitled to industrial derating in 2005–06 is estimated at £2,290. Over the period of phasing out it is projected to be £3,990 in 2006–07, £5,840 in 2007–08, £8,710 in 2008–09, £13,660 in 2009–10, £14,270 in 2010–11 and £19, 890 in 2011–12.

Public Relations

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the value was of (a) public opinion research and (b) public relations contracts issued by his Department in 2004–05. [36005]

Mr. Hain: In the Northern Ireland Office during 2004–05 the value of:

(a) public opinion research was £250,698.16[1] and

(b) public relations contracts was £9,517.

[1] Some of this expenditure was incurred over financial years 2005–06.

Pupil Profile Report

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will place in the Library a copy of the report produced by Durham university on the pilot of the proposed pupil profile. [49623]

Angela E. Smith: Neither the Department, nor the Council for Curriculum, Examinations and Assessment (CCEA) are aware of any report by Durham university about the pilot for the proposed pupil profile. Any evaluation information on the pupil profile pilot is available on CCEA' s website www.ccea.org.uk.

Rates Revaluation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate the Government have made of the (a) number and (b) proportion of households in Northern Ireland whose bills will (i) increase, (ii) decrease and (iii) not change under the planned rates revaluation and shift to discrete capital values. [49562]

Angela E. Smith: This cannot be determined until the Valuation and Lands Agency completes the revaluation process in the spring of 2006. A study published by the university of Ulster in 2003, using sales information, suggested that the proportion whose bills would decrease following the move to discrete capital based rating would be 61 per cent., while 39 per cent. would face an increased bill. The Department's own analysis supports these estimates and indicates that the proportion of properties which will experience a decrease in bill of more-than 5 per cent. is 52 per cent., the proportion that will face an increase in bill of more than 5 per cent. is 35 per cent. and the proportion with no change in bill (that is, between + /- 5 per cent.) is 13 per cent.

This assumes overall revenues remain static. Furthermore the estimates do not allow for households which may qualify for housing benefit nor does it take into account the moderating impact of a three year transition scheme and any interim arrangements that may be considered for the treatment of district rates.

Road Accident Prevention

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been spent in each of the last 10 years on measures to prevent road traffic accidents in the Province. [49386]

Mr. Woodward: The chief executive of Roads Service (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Lady in response to this question.

Letter from Dr. Malcolm McKibbin, dated 9 February 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question regarding how much has been spent in each of the last 10 years on measures to prevent road traffic accidents in the Province.

I have been asked to reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service.

Improving road safety is a significant factor in developing the vast majority of schemes that are funded from Roads Service's capital budget. Within that budget the programmes that are specifically targeted at reducing road traffic collisions are the collision remedial and traffic calming programmes.

Expenditure in each of the last 10 financial years on collision remedial and traffic calming across Northern Ireland was:

£000

	Collision Remedial	Traffic Calming
1996-97	1,376	570
1997-98	1,514	1,161
1998-99	1,423	1,352
1999-2000	1,557	1,179
2000-01	1,595	1,027
2001-02	1,658	1,545
2002-03	1,589	1,859
2003-04	1,976	2,011
2004-05	2,605	2,549
2005-06[1]	2,410	2,715
Total	17,703	15,968

[1] Anticipated expenditure in this financial year

I hope this information is helpful.

Unemployment

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the percentage unemployment rates are for each ward in Northern Ireland listed in descending order and indicating in which constituency each ward lies. [44601]

Angela E. Smith: A copy of this information has been placed in the Library of the House.

WALES

Objective One

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether the total Welsh block figures set out in annex 1 of the Wales Office annual report 2005 (Cm 6545) include the above Barnett formula additions for objective one in Wales. [45353]

Mr. Hain: Yes.

Statutory Instruments

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the statutory instruments introduced by his Department since 6 May 2005. [46202]

Mr. Hain: One.

The Public Audit (Wales) Act 2004 (Relaxation of Restriction on Disclosure) Order 2004.

Tourism Accommodation

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the costs of introducing a statutory registration scheme for providers of tourism accommodation in Wales. [47645]

Mr. Hain: The Welsh Assembly Government are committed to ensuring that regulatory approaches conform to the best principles of proportionality, and will seek to ensure that the benefits of statutory registration should be achieved whilst minimising and, if possible, reducing the overall regulatory burden and compliance costs.

The Welsh Assembly Government have, however, decided that further work is required to ensure that its policy of driving up the overall quality of tourism facilities in Wales is taken forward in a fully collaborative way, so is no longer seeking to introduce a draft Bill in this session as was originally planned.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the economic impact of introducing a statutory registration scheme for providers of tourism accommodation in Wales. [47646]

Mr. Hain: The clear policy aim is to generate a positive economic impact for the tourism industry in Wales. Boosting quality standards should ensure that visitors to Wales enjoy good standards of accommodation and service, hopefully increasing the number of repeat visits, and greatly assisting in marketing Wales as a tourist destination.

The Welsh Assembly Government have decided that further work is required to ensure that its policy of driving up the overall quality of tourism facilities in Wales is taken forward in a fully collaborative way, so is no longer seeking to introduce a draft Bill in this session as was originally planned.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent representations he has received about a statutory registration scheme for providers of tourism accommodation in Wales. [47647]

Mr. Hain: I have regular meetings with representatives of the business community to discuss various issues of interest to them, including tourism.

Vandalism

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the acts of vandalism which have been perpetrated (a) inside and (b) on the outside of his Department's buildings in the last 12 months. [49512]

Mr. Hain: None.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Building Regulations

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what steps the Government plan to take to amend building regulations to take account of further environmental initiatives. [49757]

Yvette Cooper: On 13 September 2005, I announced improvements to the energy efficiency standards set out in part L of the Building Regulations. The part L changes come into effect in April 2006 and will make a major contribution to the UK's commitment to combat climate change delivering increased energy standards of up to 27 per cent. for new buildings. In total this all means an increase of 40 per cent. since 2000.

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what steps his Department is taking to encourage the construction of more energy efficient buildings above minimum Part L building regulations requirements; and if he will make a statement. [49535]

Yvette Cooper: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is currently proposing a new Code for Sustainable Homes, which goes further than building regulations. Building Regulations will continue to set out the minimum legal standards for buildings. The Code could also provide an indication of the future direction of standards in building regulations.

Council Tax

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 8 December 2005, Official Report, column 1500W, on council tax revaluation, when the collection of value significant codes is forecast to be complete. [47452]

Mr. Woolas: The collection of value significant codes is an ongoing task, as it has been since the onset of the council tax.

Departmental Expenditure

Pete Wishart: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what has been the annual expenditure on vehicles for (a) his Department and (b) each (i) non-departmental public body, (ii) executive agency and (iii) other public body for which he is responsible in (A) Scotland, (B) Wales, (C) each of the English regions and (D) Northern Ireland in each of the last three financial years; and what the planned expenditure is for 2005–06. [39982]

Mr. Woolas: Expenditure on vehicles purchased for ODPM and bodies where information is available is as follows. No vehicles are provided by the ODPM in Northern Ireland or Scotland. The Department also supports specialist vehicles engaged in the transportation of resilience equipment in England and Wales and these figures are shown in the total. The Department does not maintain a record of expenditure broken down by region.

Departmental Groups

Mr. Weir: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many staff work in his Department's Regional Development Group; how many are based in (a) London and (b) each region and what the total salary costs were of the group in each area in the last year for which figures are available. [48834]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has 120.94 staff on full-time equivalent (FTE) basis working in the Regional Development Group, of these 102.27 (FTE) staff are based in London. The total salary costs for the 2005–06 financial year currently stands at £3.782 million.

The above figures are as at 2 February 2006.

The ODPM does not hold data regarding the regions; such a breakdown could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Pete Wishart: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many staff work in his Department's (a) Ministerial Group, (b) Legal Directorate and (c) Tackling Disadvantage Group; how many in each category are based in (i) London and (ii) each region; and what the total salary costs were of each group in each area in the last year for which figures are available. [48852]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is tabled as follows:

	Total (FTE)	London based (FTE)	Total salary costs 2005–06 (million)
Ministerial Group	61.94	61.94	3.187
Legal Directorate	61.93	61.93	3.231

Departmental IT Systems

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much his Department has spent on IT systems in each year since 1997; what the purpose of each system is; what the outturn against planned expenditure of each system was; and what the (a) planned and (b) actual date of completion was of each system. [41311]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister was established in May 2002. For IT projects completed between May 2002 and 2004 I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Tatton (Mr. Osborne) on 19 January 2005, Official Report, column 998–99W. The following tables identify the IT systems completed since that date.

Disabled Facilities Grants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how long it has taken on average to approve an application for the disabled facilities grant in each year since 1997. [49791]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Local authorities are responsible for administering their disabled facilities grant schemes and the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister does not request this information from them. A good practice guidance—Delivering Housing Adaptations for Disabled People—has been issued to the local authorities on indicative time targets for assessments. The targets depend on the complexity and urgency of the case, from 65 working days/three months up to 179 working days/nine months.

Fire Service

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many employees of the fire service on long-term sick leave are claiming incapacity benefit. [49988]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what steps he plans to take to encourage fire authorities to retain firefighters in an administrative role who are forced to retire from front-line duties due to ill health. [49765]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Fire and rescue authorities, as employers, are responsible for issues relating to the redeployment of firefighters in their employ who are no longer able to undertake operational duties due to ill health. Formerly such employees normally took medical retirement, but in September 2004, in order to enable and encourage fire and rescue authorities to consider such redeployment, amendments to the firefighters' pension scheme were made to allow regular firefighters to remain in active employment of fire and rescue authorities performing duties appropriate to the role of a firefighter other than, or in addition to, engaging in firefighting.

In addition The Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004 extended the functions of fire and rescue authorities to include fire safety, consequently giving wider scope for the employment of staff with experience of firefighting on other role-related duties.

Freedom of Information Act

Bob Spink: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what total sum has been received by his Department for the provision of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in its first year of operation.[48472]

Jim Fitzpatrick: No fees have been received by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, its agencies or the Government Office network, for the provision of information under the Freedom of Information Act or the Environmental Information Regulations since 1 January 2005.

Fuel Costs

Mr. Olner: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what additional financial assistance he plans to give to local authorities to fund increases in gas and electricity costs; and if he will make a statement. [48910]

Mr. Woolas: None. On 31 January 2006, I laid before the House the Government's plans for local government financial settlements for 2006–07 and 2007–08. The management of cost pressures within their budgets is a matter for each local authority.

Growth Location Business Plans

Anne Main: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 9 January 2006, to question 37947, what steps he is taking to encourage each growth location to secure local agreement on (a) priorities and (b) funding of growth location business plans. [41894]

Yvette Cooper: The answer to question reference 37947 referred to providers of private sector funding in the growth areas and it stated that Government are encouraging growth locations to follow the principles demonstrated by the Milton Keynes Partnership in securing local agreement on priorities and using both public and private funding to best effect to support their growth location business plans.

This work is being led by local delivery vehicles in each major growth location, to ensure local agreement and buy-in.

Each delivery vehicle includes local authority members as well as other key stakeholders. Work on a similar approach to that achieved in Milton Keynes has begun in North and West Northampton, in Ashford, Aylesbury and Cambridge.

Housing

Anne Main: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 1 December 2005, Official Report, column 681–82W, on housing, how many empty private sector dwellings there were in (a) 2001–02, (b) 2002–03 and (c) 2003–04; and what percentage were returned to occupation in each year. [39336]

Yvette Cooper: The total numbers of vacant private sector dwellings in England based on snap-shot data, for 2002 to 2004, are given in the following table:

	Number of vacant private sector dwellings
2002	631,200
2003	633,300
2004	609,800

Information on the percentage of vacant dwellings that were returned to occupation is not collected centrally. This question is pursuant to the answer to parliamentary question 2104, which is related to the monitoring of local authorities' delivery of empty homes strategies. For this, the centrally held information on the percentage of vacant private sector dwellings that were returned to occupation or demolished as a direct result of local authority action by each district was provided.

The same information for England is 2.9 per cent. for 2004 and 3.4 per cent. for 2003. Data for 2002 cannot be derived because the figures collected at local authority level were in percentages rather than total numbers.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what steps he is taking to enable first-time home buyers in Coventry to buy a home locally. [45657]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 30 January 2006]: In December 2005 details of the open market homebuy scheme were announced that an additional 20,000 households will be helped into homeownership by 2010. Nationally the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has made available over £5 billion funding for investment by local authorities and housing associations in 2006–07 and 2007–08 to support key housing priorities, including support for low cost home ownership (LCHO). The homebuy programme offers shared equity to help first time buyers to buy a share of the council or housing association home they rent, or of a newly built home. Allocations for the region will be announced in the next few weeks.

Local Government Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what access private sector firms have to the business rating list for individual business premises; and what the costs are for such access. [47867]

Mr. Woolas: Local non-domestic rating lists compiled and maintained by valuation officers can be accessed free of charge through the Valuation Office Agency website at: www.voa.gov.uk

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the total Government grant per capita to each local authority in England, including fire and police authorities, was in each year since 1998–99; and what the estimate is for 2006–07. [47871]

Mr. Woolas: The information available has been made available in the Library of the House.

Government grant information for 2006–07 is not currently available centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Information for 2006–07 is obtained from local authorities' Revenue Account Budget (RA) forms. These data are expected to be available by the end of June 2006.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what preparatory work his Department conducted before the decision to postpone the council tax revaluation in England. [47876]

Mr. Woolas: My right hon. Friend the Minister of Communities and Local Government set out the Government's reasons for the decision to postpone council tax revaluation on 20 September 2005.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many households are in each council tax band in each local authority area in London. [48041]

Mr. Woolas: The numbers of dwellings liable for council tax in each local authority area in London as at 19 September 2005 and in each council tax band are tabled as follows.

The data are as reported by local authorities on the annual CTB1 return. Dwellings that are subject to the Council Tax (Reductions for Disabilities) Regulations 1992 (as amended), are charged council tax at the rate of one band lower than that on the Valuation Office valuation list. Council tax for a Band A- dwelling is charged at 5/9 of the council tax of a Band D dwelling; Band A dwellings are charged at 6/9 of the council tax of a Band D dwelling.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many households in each council tax band in London were eligible in 2004–05 for (a) single person's discount and (b) empty home discount. [48043]

Mr. Woolas: The number of dwellings liable for council tax in each council tax band in London that were eligible at 11 October 2004 for (a) single person's discount and (b) long-term empty property discount is tabled as follows.

Council tax band	Single adult discount	Long-term empty property discount
A	62,054	3,153
B	243,392	7,029

G	35,645	2,792
H	6,421	1,272
Total	1,166,336	42,600

The data are as reported by local authorities on the annual CTB1 return.

Dwellings that are subject to the Council Tax (Reductions for Disabilities) Regulations 1992 (as amended), are charged council tax at the rate of one band lower than that on the Valuation Office valuation list. Council tax for a Band A- dwelling is charged at 5/9 of the council tax of a Band D dwelling; Band A dwellings are charged at 6/9 of the council tax of a Band D dwelling.

Long-term empty homes can be subject to a discount of between 0 per cent. and 50 per cent.

Local Government Reorganisation

Tony Baldry: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what discussions officials in his Department have had with chief executives of local authorities on possible future legislation on the reorganisation of local government. [49085]

Mr. Woolas: Officials in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister have held meetings with chief executives of local authorities to discuss local authority restructuring on six separate occasions since December 2005.

Parliamentary Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) how many parliamentary questions tabled in the last 12 months for answer by him on a named day (a) were transferred and (b) received a substantive answer (i) on the day named and (ii) after the day named; [49888]

(2) how many ordinary written parliamentary questions tabled for answer by him in the last 12 months have been answered (a) within 14 days, (b) between 14 and 28 days, (c) between 28 days and two months and (d) in excess of two months after the date of tabling; and if he will make a statement. [49905]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Ministers in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM) aim to ensure that hon. Members receive a substantive response to their named day question on the named day and to endeavour to answer ordinary written questions within a working week of being tabled. Unfortunately, this is not always possible but ODPM makes every effort to achieve these timescales.

In the period 7 February 2005 to 6 February 2006, 480 named day parliamentary questions were tabled to my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister. Of those, 351 (73 per cent.) received a substantive answer on the day named and 101 (21 per cent.) were answered by ODPM Ministers after the day named. The remaining 28 named day questions (6 per cent.) were transferred to another Department and the ODPM does not hold information on when those questions were answered.

In the same period, 2,986 ordinary written parliamentary questions were tabled to my right hon. Friend. Information on the length of time taken to answer those questions is not available in the form requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, of the 2,986 ordinary written questions tabled to my right hon. Friend, 2,284 (76 per cent.) were answered within a working week.

Supermarkets (Planning Permission)

Keith Vaz: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what recent representations the Government have received on planning permission for new supermarkets. [49673]

Yvette Cooper: My right. hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister has decided nine planning cases involving supermarkets since 1 January 2005. There is one retail case involving a supermarket currently before my right. hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister for decision. Representations received by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister are set out in the decision letter of each case and are made available to the public on written request.

Sustainable Building Task Group

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the members of the Sustainable Building Task Group; and to whom this group is responsible within his Department. [45139]

Yvette Cooper: Following the better building summit in October 2003, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, and the Department of Trade and Industry agreed that a working group should be established which would bring together key representatives from the construction sector, green technology companies, local authorities, the housing corporation and others, to consider how best to improve the sustainability of all aspects of construction and design, including off-site construction and low carbon technologies.

This task group was a short-life group set up to identify specific, cost-effective, improvements in the quality and environmental performance of buildings which industry can deliver in both the short and long term, together with further actions that Government could take to facilitate faster progress.

The Secretaries of State asked Sir John Harman (chair, Environment Agency) and Victor Benjamin (deputy chair, English Partnerships) to co-chair the Sustainable Buildings Task Group, and invited the following to serve on the task group:

Michael Ankers, chief executive, The Construction Products Association

Julian Barwick, joint managing director, Development Securities

Sheila Button, board member, The Housing Corporation

John Calcutt, chief executive, Crest Nicholson

Ian Coull, chairman designate, The Sustainable Construction Task Force

Robert Napier, chief executive, WWF-UK

Paul Noon, co-chairman, Trade Union Sustainable Development Advisory Committee

Jennie Price, chief executive, The Waste and Resources Action Programme

Philip Sellwood, chief executive, The Energy Saving Trust

Peter Studdart, head of environment and planning, Cambridge city council

Lynne Sullivan, sustainability director, Broadway Malyan

Pamela Taylor, chief executive, Water UK

Bryan Woodley, UK Timber Frame Association

Terry Wyatt, president, CIBSE (The Chartered Institution of Building Services Engineers

The task group presented their recommendations to Government on 17 May 2004.

The Government response was issued on 27 July 2004. The task group was then disbanded.

Sustainable Buildings

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what representations he has received from private sector developers on his Department's proposed code for sustainable buildings; and if he will make a statement. [49536]

Yvette Cooper: The proposal for introducing the code for sustainable homes went out on consultation on 5 December 2005. This will last until 6 March 2006. A small number of responses have been received so far. All these will be analysed once the consultation period is over.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders were made in Wales in each of the last five years. [48562]

Hazel Blears: The available information is given in the following table.

The number of antisocial behaviour orders issued at all courts within Wales, as notified to the Home Office, from 1 July 2000 to 30 June 2005 (latest available)

Period	Total issued
1 July 2000 to 31 December 2000	2

1 January 2002 to 31 December 2002	12
1 January 2003 to 31 December 2003	59
1 January 2004 to 31 December 2004	94
1 January 2005 to 30 June 2005	98
Total	270

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders have been imposed in (a) England and (b) Wales in each year since their introduction. [48720]

Hazel Blears: The available information is given in the following table.

The number of antisocial behaviour orders issued at all courts within England and Wales, as notified to the Home Office, from 1 April 1999 to 30 June 2005 (latest available)

Period	England	Wales	Total

1 January to 31 December 2004	2,566	94	2,660
1 January to 30 June 2005	1,730	98	1,828
Total	6,227	270	6,497

[1] During this period ASBO data were collected on aggregate numbers only by police force area.

Basic Command Units

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 29 November 2005, Official Report, column 428W, on the basic command unit boundaries, whether the table is based upon (a) 2003-04 and (b) 2004-05 basic command units. [48152]

Hazel Blears: The table relates to those boundaries in use for (b) 2004-05. Basic command unit and ward boundaries are subject to change and in the absence of any current requirement for such data this table has not been updated. Any such updating could only be undertaken at disproportionate cost.

Paragraph two, schedule two of the Police and Justice Bill amends the Police Act 1996 to place basic command units on a statutory footing and mandate co-terminosity with local authority boundaries.

Christmas Cards

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will estimate the cost to his Department of sending Christmas cards in 2005. [45917]

Mr. Charles Clarke: For 2005 the Home Office sponsored an official Christmas card produced by, and in support of, the charity Victim Support.

The cost of the design and production of the 20,000 copies of the card was £11,641.

The Department does not hold separate costs of postage from its overall postage costs.

All expenditure incurred in the purchase and postage of the official Christmas card was made in accordance with the departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in Government Accounting.

Citizens Juries

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions his Department consulted citizens juries on departmental policies in the last five years; in how many of those consultations the recommendations of the citizens' jury differed from existing departmental policy; and on how many occasions departmental policy was changed to reflect the recommendations of the citizens' jury. [46236]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The Home Office has no central policy for consulting citizens' juries on departmental policy and therefore this information is not stored in one place. To check practice over the last five years with every policy area would incur a disproportionate cost.

The Home Office consults the public on policy using a wide range of other methods, including policy consultation papers. A list of current open consultations is available on the departmental website.

Crime Statistics

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many violent crimes were committed (a) in Romford, (b) in Havering and (c) by illegal immigrants in (i) Romford and (ii) Havering in each of the last five years. [48551]

Hazel Blears: It is not possible to identify violent crimes committed by illegal immigrants from the recorded crime statistics. The available data are at basic command unit (BCD) level and are provided for the London borough of Havering only in the following table.

Recorded offences of violent crime for Havering basic command unit

	2000-01	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05
Violence against the person	2,787	3,225	3,901	3,922	4,191
Sexual offences	158	173	178	181	159
Robbery	392	549	479	512	442

Notes:
1. The National Crime Recording Standard was introduced on 1 April 2002.
2. Figures are therefore not directly comparable with those for earlier years.

Departmental Estate

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) land and (b) property is owned by his Department in Forest of Dean constituency. [47254]

Mr. Charles Clarke: My Department does not own land or property in the constituency of Forest of Dean.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the items valued at over £100 that have been reported as stolen from Home Office buildings in the past 12 months. [43436]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The items valued at over £100 stolen from Home Office buildings relate specifically to a robbery from Graeme House, Liverpool on 9 December.

The items stolen were (i) right of abode receipts totalling £120, (ii) citizenship ceremonies receipts totalling £14,288 and (iii) nationality receipts totalling £35,991.

Total items recovered were (i) right of abode receipts—none, (ii) citizenship ceremonies receipts—£12,036 and (iii) nationality receipts—£30,494.

The net loss stands at £7,869.

Departmental Staff (Castle Point)

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff employed by his Department live in Castle Point. [42818]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The Home Office (including the Immigration and Nationality Department) has no staff residing in Castle Point. However, Her Majesty's Prison Service has thirty staff living in the area (rounded to the nearest ten staff).

Drug Classification

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make it his policy to reclassify methamphetamine as a class A drug pending further report of the Advisory Committee on the Misuse of Drugs; and if he will make a statement. [49352]

Paul Goggins: I asked the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD) to keep the classification of methylamphetamine under close review when accepting its recommendation, in November 2005, that it should remain a class B drug. I will await the Council's further advice, which I requested within 12 months, before making any further decisions on classification.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will refer methylamphetamine to the Advisory Committee on the Misuse of Drugs for review as a matter of urgency. [49353]

Paul Goggins: The Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD) recently reviewed the classification of Methylamphetamine under the 1971 Misuse of Drugs Act and published its report in November 2005. I accepted its recommendations that it should remain classified as a class B drug, but I have asked the Council to keep the matter under close review and report back to me within 12 months.

Drug Treatment Programmes

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the waiting time is for access to residential drug treatment for heroin addicts in Plymouth. [48405]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 6 February 2006]: I have been asked to reply.

The waiting time, provided by the Plymouth drug action team, for access to residential drug treatment for drug users accessing rehabilitation is three weeks. Waiting time data is not collected for patients in terms of an addiction to a specific drug.

In December 2001, there was an overall average waiting time of 9.1 weeks in England. This had reduced to 2.4 weeks in September 2005.

Forensic Science

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which body is responsible for ensuring standards in forensic science laboratories; and if he will make a statement on its work. [49164]

Andy Burnham: There is currently no national body responsible for the setting of national standards for forensic science laboratories. However, forensic science organisations can be accredited to the international standards for general testing of laboratory processes, such as ISO 9001: 17025. The United Kingdom Accreditation Service (UKAS) is the body available to the government for assessment and verification audits against these standards.

UKAS is a commercial non-profit distributing company limited by guarantee, and operates under a memorandum of understanding with the Department of Trade and Industry. UKAS employ 130 technical professionals and contract the services of an additional 260 external assessors and technical experts as required. UKAS have an explicit duty to act in the public interest.

Drug Offences

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been convicted of possession of (a) a Class A drug, (b) a Class B drug and (c) a Class C drug in each of the last five years; and what percentage received a custodial sentence in each case. [44140]

Hazel Blears: The number of people who have been convicted for possession of class A, B and C drugs in the last five years is shown in the table. The table includes the percentage of people given a custodial sentence for the possession offences.

The number of people found guilty or cautioned for drug possession offences

Type of offence	2004[1]	Percentage of custodial sentences	2003	Percentage of custodial Sentences	2002	Percentage of custodial sentences
Offences under Drugs Acts
A	45500	3	5,450	8	20,900	13
B	5230	8	82,950	3	83,540	3
C	45,500	3	560	4	630	3

Type of offence
Offences under Drugs Acts.	2001	Percentage of custodial sentences	2000	Percentage of custodial sentences
A	18,520	16	19,990	14
B	73,180	3	75,976	4
C	410	15	14	<0.5

Cannabis was reclassified in January 2004. There were 45,390 cannabis possession offences in 2004 where the offenders were found guilty of cautioned as compared with 77,500 in 2003. However, there were 27,520 street warnings for cannabis possession since the street warnings were introduced nationally in April 2004 and this is likely to have reduced cautioning figures for cannabis possession.

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were convicted of possession of (a) a Class A, (b) a Class B and (c) a Class C drug with intent to supply in each of the last five years; and what percentage received a custodial sentence in each case. [44143]

Hazel Blears: The number of people who have been convicted for possession with intent to supply a class A, B and C drugs in the last five years is shown in the table. The table includes the percentage of people given a custodial sentence for the possession offences.

The number of people found guilty or cautioned for drug possession with intent to supply offences

Class	2004	Percent receiving custodial sentences	2003	Percentage of custodial sentences	2002	Percentage of custodial sentences
A	2,200	39	440	66	3,730	77
B	520	63	2,940	43	2,900	45
C	2,200	39	0	0	10	0

A	3,230	77	3,634	68
B	3,020	49	4,365	44

Note:
Cannabis was reclassified in January 2004. There were 2,200 possession with intent to supply cannabis offences in 2004 and 2,500 in 2003.

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the percentage of police time spent on drug-related crime in the last period for which figures are available. [44645]

Hazel Blears: This information is not collected centrally.

Identity Cards

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 30 November 2005, Official Report, column 594W, on Identity Cards, whether the Identity Cards Programme has now mapped the impact of the proposed scheme on efforts to defeat money laundering and organised crime. [50318]

Andy Burnham: As noted in the answer of the 8 of December 2005, Official Report, column 1527W, work to identify benefits to fight organised crime and money laundering with law enforcement agencies and Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs as well as with organisations like the Financial Services Authority will be ongoing up to and beyond the launch of the Identity Cards Scheme so that, along with planned activities, its potential to assist any emerging threats can be assessed.

Thus, there is no definitive end date for this work. However, as stated in the answer of the 30 of November 2005, Official Report, column 594A, the results of this work feeds into the development of the Identity Cards benefits case, an overview of which was published on 27 June 2005.

In general, the work continues to show that the Identity Cards Scheme can disrupt and impede the activities of criminals, improve the intelligence picture available to the law enforcement agencies, establish greater certainty in establishing the identity of individuals involved in large cash transactions, will have an additional deterrent effect in terms of money laundering and will assist in investigations.

London Bombers (Surveillance)

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the nature was of surveillance carried out in relation to (a) Sidique Khan and (b) Shahzad Tanweer before 7 July 2005; when any such surveillance commenced; and when it finished.

Mr. Charles Clarke: It has been the established policy of successive Governments to neither confirm nor deny speculation about covert operations or to comment on on-going police investigations.

National Identity Register

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 21 November 2005, Official Report, column 1755W, on the National Identity Register, whether a decision has been taken on the type and quantity of biometric data to be held for each person on the National Identity Register on the basis of the Bill as it stands following amendment in the House of Lords. [50319]

Andy Burnham: It is currently envisaged that 10 fingerprints, two irises and a facial image will be recorded on each person's entry in the National Identity Register, subject to personal circumstances. There have been no amendments to the Identity Cards Bill in the Lords that have affected that assumption. Final decisions will depend on the outcome of the procurement stage and will be constrained by the legal framework set out in the Bill.

Police National Computer

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals have access to the Police National Computer (PNC); what safeguards exist to prevent unlawful access to the PNC; what audit arrangements are in place to monitor inappropriate access to the PNC; what penalties exist for unlawful use of the PNC; and what guidance has been issued on the appropriate course of action if officers are found to have misused the system. [47570]

Hazel Blears: We take the security of the Police National Computer (PNC) very seriously. Ownership of all the police data rest with chief constables. Each force's security and access protocols must be in accordance with the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) and Association of Chief Police Officers in Scotland (ACPOS) Information Systems Community Security Policy that also governs usage of the Police National Computer (PNC). Security of the PNC is also governed by an Accreditation Document Set, which contains security countermeasures specifically relating to the PNC. Similar arrangements are also in place for the agencies that have been given authorised access to the PNC.

For security reasons I am not in a position to describe the arrangements that are in place to prevent or detect unauthorised access to the PNC but I am satisfied that these arrangements are adequate.

Misuse of the PNC is controlled by legislation and it is for the chief officer to determine the action for redress through the courts or by internal police disciplinary procedures via the police discipline regulations.

The fact that forces control PNC access locally means that I am unable to provide you with information on the number of people authorised to have access.

Police Officers

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers resigned from police forces in England and Wales in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [47789]

Hazel Blears: The information requested is provided in the following table. More resignations are to be expected as there has been record growth in police service staffing over the last five years.

Total number (headcount) of voluntary resignations from police forces (2001-05)

	Police officers
As at 31 March 2001[1]	1,468
As at 31 March 2002[1]	1,674
As at 31 March 2003[2]	1,969
As at 31 March 2004	2,187
As at 31 March 2005	2,109

[1] In 2001 and 2002 these data were collected by HMIC
[2] Total excludes one force

Public Appointments

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 who have since been appointed to public bodies by his Department, broken down by party; and who is responsible for making each appointment. [36686]

Mr. Charles Clarke: There were no Members of Parliament who left Parliament in 2005 and who have since been appointed to public bodies by the Home Department.

Race-related Crime

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government are taking to tackle race-related crime; and if he will make a statement. [48557]

Paul Goggins: In recent years the Government have strengthened the criminal penalties for offences such as incitement to racial hatred. The Government have also introduced racially aggravated and religiously aggravated offences. The Racial and Religious Hatred Bill introduces an offence of using threatening words or behaviour with the intent to stir up religious hatred.

In May 2005, the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) and the Home Office published a Hate Crime Manual: "Hate Crime: Delivering a Quality Service." The manual aims to provide tactical and practical guidance to police forces and authorities on the handling and investigation of hate crime including racially and religiously motivated offences.

In July 2003 the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) published a policy statement which made a clear commitment to prosecute racist and religious crime fairly, firmly and robustly. The publication of the CPS Racist Incident Monitoring Annual Report 2004–2005 shows the achievements of the CPS in bringing offenders to justice.

Under the terms of the Code of Practice for Victims of Crime on reporting and recording racist incidents, victims of racially or religiously motivated offences are defined as vulnerable and will receive an enhanced service.

The Race Relations Act places a statutory general duty on public authorities to promote good relations between persons of different racial groups and in July 2005 the Commission for Racial Equality produced "Promoting Good Race Relations: A Guide for Public Authorities."

Additionally, in 2002, the Home Office issued guidance to crime reduction partnerships on tackling racist antisocial behaviour. This included a Racist Crime and Harassment Toolkit.

Home Office officials are currently working with a small number of key stakeholders to take forward a range of work to tackle race, faith and homophobic hate crime more effectively. It is envisaged that this work will include projects to improve the local response to hate crime, increase victim confidence in the criminal justice system, increase the proportion of victims who report hate crimes and the proportion of those crimes that are brought to justice, and improve the evidence base on hate crime.

Raoul Wallenberg

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations he has received about including Raoul Wallenberg in Holocaust Memorial Day. [48881]

Paul Goggins: I have not received any representations about including Raoul Wallenberg in Holocaust Memorial Day, an event which, from this year onwards, is arranged under the auspices of the Holocaust Memorial Trust.

Photographs of Raoul Wallenberg were included in the trust's information pack that provided guidelines for local activities. Also, prior to the main event, which took place on 26 January in Cardiff, First Minister of Wales, Rhodri Morgan and Cardiff Council Leader Rodney Berman signed a Book of Commitment to Holocaust Memorial Day, at a special ceremony on Wednesday 18 January. Chair of the Holocaust Memorial Day Trust Dr. Stephen Smith and Chief Executive Nick Joseph presented the book at the ceremony, which took place at the Raoul Wallenberg Memorial in Cathays Park, Cardiff.

The Chair of the Trust, Stephen Smith, spoke about Raoul Wallenberg, when he signed the book of commemoration in Cardiff saying pointing out it was particularly fitting that the ceremony should take place at the memorial to Raoul Wallenberg, who was instrumental in saving thousands of lives during the war and at considerable risk to himself.

Respect Agenda

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how the Government's Respect agenda will affect Romford; and whether the implementation of that agenda will include increasing funding for law enforcement in Romford. [48552]

Hazel Blears: The Respect Action Plan sets out the Government's plans for a renewed and broader drive against antisocial behaviour. The measures include: plans to develop neighbourhood policing and increase the number of police community support officers; measures to build stronger communities and empower local people including the community call for action to deal with antisocial behaviour; increasing the accountability of Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships; and a range of new powers to help police and local authorities take action against unacceptable behaviour.

I announced the final details of the 2006–07 grant settlement for all police authorities in England and Wales on 31 January. On a like for like basis Government grant and central spending on services for the police will have increased by nearly 50 per cent. or around £3.5 billion between 2000–01 and 2006–07.

The Metropolitan Police Authority (MPA) will receive an increase in general grant of 3.1 per cent. (£54.7 million) over the comparable figure for 2005–06. This is in line with the broadly flat rate increase of 3.1 per cent. for all forces in England and Wales. The MPA also gains £4.3 million and £1 million from the Amending Reports for 2004–05 and 2005–06, bringing its overall increase in 2006–07 to 3.4 per cent.

In addition to general grant the MPA will receive £54.72 million in special formula grant and £339.76 million in specific grant and capital provision.

Allocation of these resources and appropriate budget management are matters for the MPA and the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis.

Secondments

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people from science and technology backgrounds have been seconded into the civil service in his Department in each of the last three years. [48407]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Secondments are part of the interchange initiative, which promotes the exchange of people and good practice between the civil service and other organisations—public, private and voluntary. Interchange provides opportunities for civil servants to learn new skills, widen their experience and develop ideas. It also brings in skills and experiences from other sectors.

During the period 1 April 2002 to 31 December 2005, 208 staff were seconded into the Home Office from outside the civil service. The Home Office records data on inward secondees according to their originating sector—i.e. private, voluntary, academic and public service—but it does not specifically collate data on secondees with a science and technology background.

The annual number of inward secondments to the Home Office from outside the civil service for each of the past three years was:

	Number of inward secondments
2002–03	78
2003–04	64
2004–05	66

Sex Offenders

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 30 January to Question 44622, on sex offenders, what information is supplied to the police regarding the relevant conviction in court to enable enforcement of the requirement of the offender to notify the police; how many relevant offenders were required to make an initial notification to the police in 2005; and how many did so. [48890]

Hazel Blears: The courts will provide the police with an offender's name, address and date of birth; the offence(s), sentence(s) and date of the conviction(s); any ancillary orders made by the court and the duration of the notification period (the period of time the individual will spend "on the sex offenders register"). Figures for the number of offenders who become subject to the notification requirements in any 12 month period are not held centrally. In 2001 we introduced the Multi-Agency Public Protection Arrangements (MAPPA) and the requirement on each police and probation area to produce annual reports detailing the work undertaken to safeguard the public and manage dangerous offenders in the community. The MAPPA reports include statistics on the number of offenders who are subject to the notification requirements. The 2004–05 reports state that on 31 March 2005 there were 28,994 registered sex offenders living in the community.

Terrorism

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been arrested in (a) Romford, (b) Havering and (c) Greater London under anti-terrorism legislation in the last five years. [48558]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Statistics on Terrorism Act 2000 arrests and outcomes of those arrests are published on the Home Office website on the following link: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/security/terrorism-and-the-law/terrorism-act/

Figures are not currently broken down into specific areas because they are not collated in this way. The statistics have instead been collated nationally from 11 September 2005 and are updated quarterly.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many arrests linked with terrorism have been made in Wales in each of the last five years. [48566]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Statistics on Terrorism Act 2000 arrests and outcomes of those arrests are published on the Home Office website on the following link: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/security/terrorism-and-the-law/terrorism-act/

Figures are not currently broken down into force areas because they are not collated in this way. The statistics have instead been collated nationally from 11 September 2001 and are updated quarterly.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what meetings have been held in the last six months of the pilot group tasked with taking forward the recommendation adopted at the EU Justice and Home Affairs Council in Brussels on 28 and 29 November 2002 in relation to terrorist profiling; and what was discussed at those meetings. [47574]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Following the last meeting of the pilot group, held in November 2003, the task of developing terrorist profiles has been taken forward by Europol's Counter-Terrorism Task Force. The pilot group itself has therefore not met again since November 2003. Europol hosted a project workshop, with UK representation, on 28 and 29 June 2005, and another meeting is planned for early February 2006. This is an ongoing project which continues to receive member states' contributions and share its interim results. However, you will understand that it would not be appropriate for me to disclose the specific details of these discussions.

Vehicle Thefts

Jim Dowd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many thefts have been recorded by the Metropolitan police of (a) cars, (b) motorcycles, (c) vans and (d) heavy goods vehicles in each of the past five years. [47151]

Hazel Blears: The available information relates to the offence of theft or unauthorised taking of a motor vehicle and is given in the following table. A more detailed breakdown of type of motor vehicle is not collected centrally.

Theft or unauthorised taking of a motor vehicle

Financial year	Metropolitan police
2000-01	62,452
2001-02	62,112
2002-03	58,405
2003-04	55,158
2004-05	48,026

Note:
The National Crime Recording Standard was introduced on 1 April 2002. Figures are therefore not directly comparable with those for earlier years.

Young Offenders (Record Retention)

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in what circumstances the police are permitted to retain records on juveniles who have been accused of an offence but against whom no further proceedings have been taken. [47023]

Hazel Blears: Section 64 of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act (PACE) 1984 provides that fingerprints, footwear impressions and samples taken from persons suspected, at the time of taking, of having committed a recordable offence may be retained and used in connection with the prevention and detection of crime, the investigation of an offence, the conduct of a prosecution, or the identification of a deceased person or body part.

Section 64A(4) of PACE, provides that photographs of persons suspected, at the time of taking, of having committed a recordable offence may be retained and used in connection with the prevention and detection of crime, the investigation of an offence, the conduct of a prosecution, or the enforcement of a sentence.

Fingerprints, footwear impressions and samples taken with consent for elimination purposes from someone not suspected of having committed an offence must be destroyed after they have fulfilled the purpose for which they were taken, unless the person gives written consent for their samples to be used as above.

These provisions apply to both adults and juveniles and are irrespective of the outcome of the investigation. Chief officers of police have discretion on the retention of fingerprints, footwear impressions, samples and photographs.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Afghanistan

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how his Department is liaising with the Afghanistan Government to deal with the opium problem in Afghanistan. [48915]

Dr. Howells: The UK, as designated partner nation for counter narcotics, has worked closely with the Government of Afghanistan since 2002. Recently, we supported the Government of Afghanistan in reviewing and updating its National Drugs Control Strategy. The strategy was endorsed by the Cabinet Sub-Committee on Counter Narcotics, at which HM Ambassador is an observer, and approved by President Karzai in January 2006. The strategy was launched during the Counter

Narcotics (CN) session of the London Conference on Afghanistan on 31 January. It sets out four key priorities, which we believe will help make a greater impact on the trade and sustain the reduction in cultivation we have seen in 2005. These are: targeting traffickers; strengthening and diversifying legal rural livelihoods; developing institutions; and demand reduction.

The UK is working very closely with the Government of Afghanistan to help build Afghan capacity to tackle the drugs problem. We are funding a £12.5 million Institution Development project to strengthen the Ministry of Counter Narcotics, established at the end of 2004, and other institutions in Afghanistan.

We have helped to establish and provide training for the Counter Narcotics Police of Afghanistan (CNPA)—the lead drugs law enforcement agency, headquartered in Kabul with seven provincial offices. The CNPA is currently around 500 strong, but will be expanded further to give it the capacity to operate nationwide. The UK is also providing training for the Afghan Special Narcotics Force (ASNF), an elite and highly trained force equipped to tackle high value targets across the country. Since January 2004, the CNPA and ASNF have seized approximately 165 tonnes of opiates, destroyed over 264 drugs labs and made a significant number of arrests.

We are also working with the international community to recruit and train a counter narcotics Criminal Justice Task Force of Afghan investigators, prosecutors and judges to work with the CNPA, to be able to push through successful drugs investigations and prosecutions. The Criminal Justice Task Force is currently around 80 strong and made its first convictions in May this year for drug trafficking in Kabul. A new drugs law was also passed in December 2005.

As partner nation, the UK is also responsible for co-ordinating international assistance and encouraging the international community to increase their support to counter narcotics activity. To this end, we helped design the Counter Narcotics Trust Fund which was officially launched at the Afghan Ministry of Finance on 29 October 2005. The fund will enable the Government of Afghanistan to raise funds from donors specifically for the CN effort and gives them a greater say over how this money is spent.

In support of the Government of Afghanistan's efforts, the UK will spend £270 million over this and the next two financial years, including some £130 million on legal rural livelihoods and institutional development from the Department for International Development.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in identifying the opium supply route in Afghanistan. [48916]

Dr. Howells: The identification of opium supply routes out of Afghanistan is based on seizure rates of opiates along the heroin trafficking routes. The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime's 2004 Afghanistan Opium Survey showed that of Afghanistan's total opiate exports (500 metric tons of morphine and heroin and close to 100 metric tons of opium), about a quarter is exported via Central Asia (the "Northern" or "Silk" Route), but the bulk is still exported via Pakistan and Iran to Turkey and into the Balkans, (the "Balkan Route"). 90 per cent. of the drugs exported on the "Northern Route" are for the Russian market. Most of the opiates exported on the "Balkan Route" are destined for Europe. There is some evidence that the "Caspian Route", from Turkmenistan across the Caspian Sea into the Caucasus, is increasingly being used to traffic drugs into Europe.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the estimated time scale is for eradicating poppy production in each region of Afghanistan; and what methods are being deployed to that end. [48924]

Dr. Howells: Afghanistan has been the world's major supplier of illicit opium for a decade. It will take a long time to uproot something so deeply entrenched in Afghanistan's culture and economy. Without a strong state, a fully functioning judiciary or a properly trained and manned police force, Afghan capability to date has been limited.

There is no simple answer to how long the Afghan counter narcotics effort will take. At the opening of the London Conference, President Karzai said

> "In my view, and in the view of the United Nations that shares it with me, perhaps Afghanistan will need at least 10 years of a strong systematic consistent effort in eradication, in law enforcement and in the provision to the Afghan farmer of an alternative economy in order for us to be free of poppies by that time. So I would give it a decade, at least."

It will certainly require a sustained effort by the Afghan Government and the international community.

But progress is being made. Last year, the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime reported a 21 per cent. reduction in poppy cultivation from 131,000 hectares (ha) in 2003–04 to 104,000 ha in 2004–05. These overall percentages, however, mask significant variations between provinces. For example, Nangarhar (-96 per cent.), Badakshan (-53 per cent.) and Helmand (-10 per cent.) saw the most significant decreases, while other provinces, such as Balkh and Farah, saw increases. Progress was also made in 2005 with the establishment of a Ministry for Counter Narcotics in Afghanistan, the passage of vital counter narcotics legislation, the conviction of over 90 drug traffickers and the seizure of some 160 tonnes of opiates.

The Government of Afghanistan has, with the support of the UK as designated partner nation for counter narcotics, recently reviewed and updated its National Drugs Control Strategy to ensure its policy approach is the right one. The strategy, which was launched at the London Conference, focuses on four key priorities: targeting the trafficker; building institutions; strengthening rural livelihoods; and reducing domestic demand. The strategy also sets out the basis for a targeted ground based eradication policy and highlights the importance of raising public awareness and improving international and regional co-operation on counter narcotics. The UK is spending over £270 million over the next three years in support of the strategy.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the estimated size is of the area dedicated to poppy production in each region of Afghanistan. [48925]

Dr. Howells: The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) conducts an annual survey into the level of opium poppy cultivation and production in Afghanistan. In 2005, UNODC estimated a total of 104,000 hectares of land were under opium poppy cultivation, with the highest levels of cultivation seen in Helmand, Kandahar, Balkh, Farah and Badakshan provinces. Total production was estimated at 4,100 tonnes. These figures represent a 21 percent. reduction on cultivation and a 2.5 percent. reduction on production over 2004 figures. The smaller scale of the decrease in total production resulted from higher yields per hectare arising from good weather conditions and less disease. Full details, including the level of opium cultivation by province from 2002–05, can be found in the UNODC Afghanistan opium survey, November 2005, or on UNODC's website http://www.unodc.org.

A final assessment of opium cultivation and production for the 2005–06 growing season will not be available until the end of the year.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the UK took over responsibility for controlling opium production in Afghanistan; and what progress has been made since then. [48926]

Dr. Howells: The Government of Afghanistan is responsible for controlling opium production in Afghanistan. In April 2002, the UK took on G8 lead nation status for counter narcotics with responsibility for coordinating international activity in support of the Government of Afghanistan's counter-narcotics campaign. Following endorsement of the Afghanistan compact at the London conference on 31 January–1 February, the UK remains fully committed to this work. We are spending £270 million over this and the next two financial years, including some £130 million on legal rural livelihoods and institutional development from the Department for International Development.

While we do not underestimate the scale of the challenge, progress is being made. Since the end of 2004, we have seen the establishment of a Ministry for counter narcotics; a 21 percent. reduction in the area of land under opium poppy cultivation; the passage of vital counter narcotics legislation; the conviction of over 90 drug traffickers and an increase in drug related seizures. The UK has also supported the Government of Afghanistan's work to update its national drug control strategy (NDCS) which was approved by President Karzai in January 2006. We believe the updated NDCS represents a more sophisticated approach to tackling the drugs problem which will help the Government of Afghanistan make a greater impact on the trade.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government prefers destruction, licensing or substitution by other crops to tackle poppy production in Afghanistan; and what budget his Department has allocated to each of these alternatives. [48927]

Dr. Howells: The UK believes that the Government of Afghanistan's recently updated national drug control strategy represents the best means of securing a sustainable reduction on the production and trafficking of opiates in Afghanistan. The strategy highlights four key priorities. These are: disrupting the drugs trade by targeting traffickers and their backers; strengthening and diversifying legal rural livelihoods; developing effective state institutions to combat drugs at the central and provincial level; reducing the demand for illicit drugs and treatment for problem drug users. The strategy also states that there is a role for targeted ground-based eradication where alternative livelihoods exist, in order to incentivise the shift away from poppy cultivation.

The UK does not carry out eradication, but we do support Afghan eradication activity where alternative livelihoods exist. We have therefore provided support to the planning, monitoring and targeting work of the Government of Afghanistan's central eradication planning and monitoring cell. We have also funded a United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime project to verify governor-led eradication and provided funding to support targeted eradication by the Afghan national police.

On licensing of opium production, the Afghan Minister for counter narcotics has said:

> "The poor security situation in the country means there can simply be no guarantee that opium will not be smuggled out of the country for the illicit narcotics trade abroad. Without an effective control mechanism, a lot of opium will still be refined into heroin for illicit markets in the West and elsewhere. We could not accept this."

The UK agrees with and supports the Government of Afghanistan's position.

We do not believe that licensing opium cultivation in Afghanistan is a realistic solution to the problems of the opium economy in Afghanistan. In the absence of a strong state presence throughout the country there is currently too high a risk of diversion of legally produced opium into illegal channels, and overall levels of illicit cultivation could increase as a result.

Helping Afghan farmers develop viable commercial crops as feasible economic alternatives to poppy is an important part of the UK's support. But farmers also need access to credit, land and markets, alternative employment opportunities (on and off the farm) infrastructure such as irrigation and roads to help grow and transport produce; and government emergency mechanisms to ensure food security. The UK is supporting the Government of Afghanistan to deliver in all of these areas, to enforce the Afghan law against growing poppy and inject risk into the system through a credible drugs law enforcement and manual poppy field eradication threat. Only in this way will we make a sustainable impact on cultivation and production.

The UK will spend over £270 million over this and the next two financial years in support of the national drugs control strategy. During this period, £130 million will be spent on legal rural livelihoods (including research into alternative crops) and institutional development by the Department for International Development. In 2005–06 the UK spent £6 million in support of Afghan eradication and related activity and £30 million in support of activity to target the trafficker (for law enforcement and criminal justice action) and the top end of the trade. We envisage that similar budgets will be allocated to these activities in 2006–08. The UK does not support licensing and no budget was allocated to this as a result.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much opium has been confiscated in Afghanistan in each of the last three years. [48928]

Dr. Howells: There are no reliable records of opium seizures in Afghanistan before November 2004. The counter narcotics police of Afghanistan and the Afghan special narcotics force have seized approximately 165 tonnes of opium since this date.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in tackling and destroying opium processing facilities in Afghanistan. [48929]

Dr. Howells: According to counter narcotics police of Afghanistan and Afghan special narcotics force figures, an estimated 317 drugs laboratories/sites in Afghanistan were destroyed between October 2004 and November 2005. There are no reliable records of the number of drugs laboratories/sites destroyed in Afghanistan before this time.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial assistance his Department (a) is providing and (b) plans to provide to the Afghan Government to tackle the problem of heroin production. [49444]

Dr. Howells: On 5 September last year, I announced new UK funding for Afghan counter narcotics activity in a joint press conference with Afghan Counter Narcotics Minister Qaderi. In total, we will provide more than £270 million over the next three years (financial years 2005–06, 2006–07 and 2007–08). £130 million of the funding will be provided by the Department for International Development with the rest coming from other Government Departments including the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, Ministry of Defence and the Home Office. Of the £270 million, the UK will contribute at least £30 million to the Counter Narcotics Trust Fund, which was set up specifically to support the National Drugs Control Strategy. We announced this contribution at the London Conference on Afghanistan, along with several other partner nations. The fund will bring counter narcotics funding on budget; give the Afghans greater ownership over this important agenda; and ensure that assistance is targeted as effectively as possible.

The funding will be spent on counter narcotics activity supporting the Government of Afghanistan in delivering their National Drugs Control Strategy. The strategy focuses on four key priorities: disrupting the drugs trade by targeting traffickers and their backers; strengthening and diversifying legal rural livelihoods; developing effective state institutions to combat drugs at the central and provincial level; and reducing the demand for illicit drugs and treatment of problem drug users.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what arrangements are in place for liaison between his Department and (a) UN Stabilisation forces and (b) Operation Enduring Freedom to deal with the opium problem in Afghanistan. [49458]

Dr. Howells: There are no United Nations Stabilisation Forces in Afghanistan. The International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) is a UN-authorised NATO force designed to assist the Government of Afghanistan with the maintenance of security. ISAF's role in support of the Government of Afghanistan's counter narcotics campaign is set out in the counter narcotics annex of the NATO Operations Plan (OPLAN). NATO Ministers approved the revised OPLAN in December 2005. ISAF forces will be able to help with the provision of training to Afghan counter-narcotics forces and will when necessary provide support to their operations. They will also help the Afghan Government explain their policies to the Afghan people. ISAF forces will not take part in the eradication of opium poppy or in pre-planned and direct military action against the drugs trade. The British Embassy Drugs Team (BEDT) in Kabul works closely with HQ ISAF in deconflicting and informing the international military forces about counter narcotics activity.

Military forces operating under Operation Enduring Freedom (OEF) are also authorised to provide support to the Afghan counter narcotics campaign. BEDT again works closely with the US OEF military headquarters, CFC-A, based in Kabul, to encourage coalition forces, as well as ISAF, within means and capabilities, to support the Afghan Government's National Drug Control Strategy. Liaison is particularly close on support for the counter narcotics information campaign and for day-to-day support provided to Afghan counter narcotics forces through the thirteen coalition Provincial Reconstruction Teams based around the country.

There is also a regular Afghan Government/UN/US sponsored forum in Kabul at which the five key pillars of Security Sector Reform (SSR) are discussed with representatives from the US (reform of the military), Germany (Police Reform), Italy (Judicial reform), Japan (disarmament and demobilisation) and the UK (counter narcotics). All five pillars of SSR are inter-connected and are significant in dealing holistically with the opium problem.

Belarus

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the British ambassador in Minsk about UK relations with Belarus. [49089]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and the British ambassador in Minsk have not had a recent discussion. However, our ambassador keeps the Department up-to-date with developments, is in constant touch with our embassies in neighbouring countries and our missions to the EU, OSCE and Council of Europe. He liaises closely with other EU missions in Minsk and meets regularly with officials in the Belarusian Government, outlining our disappointment at the deteriorating situation in Belarus at every opportunity. In line with our policy of supporting the democratic process and engaging with civil society we maintain good contacts with the opposition and I had a worthwhile bilateral discussion with Mr. Milinkevich, leader of the official opposition, at the last General Affairs and External Relations Council in Brussels.

Burma

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will assess the implications of the decision of the Burmese authorities to move the capital from Rangoon to Pyinmana with particular reference to (a) the implications for the governance of that country and (b) its relations with (i) the UK and (ii) the rest of the world; and if he will make a statement. [49489]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave the hon. Member for Buckingham (John Bercow) on 15 November 2005, Official Report, columns 1180–81W, and the hon. Member for Hertsmere (James Clappison) on 17 November 2005, Official Report, column 1479W.

Cyprus

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the plans of the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus to designate 3,000 donums of land in occupied Morphou for tourist development and to grant 1,500 donums of Greek-Cypriot-owned land in Morphou to Turkish settlers. [48898]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: We are aware of plans to develop the Morphou district of northern Cyprus but not of plans to transfer 1,500 donums of land. While we maintain a dialogue with the Turkish Cypriot community on all aspects of the Cyprus settlement, we cannot control property development in the north. I continue to believe that the many difficult and complex property issues in Cyprus are likely only to be resolved as part of a comprehensive settlement.

Elections

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the merits of citizens of British overseas territories being able to take part in (a) Westminster and (b) European parliamentary elections. [49037]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Government have made no assessment of this kind.

As the overseas territories are constitutionally not part of the United Kingdom, unlike the position between France and some of the French territories, British overseas territories citizens resident in a territory are not eligible to have representation in the Westminster Parliament or in the European Parliament. The only exception is Gibraltar, which is part of the European Union by virtue of article 299(4) of the EC treaty. Gibraltarians have the right to vote in the elections for the European Parliament as part of, and on the same terms as, the electorate of the South West England European parliamentary electoral region.

Extraordinary Rendition

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether it is the Government's policy to permit US flights to land and refuel in the UK without being required to (a) submit and (b) verify a list of passengers. [48292]

Dr. Howells: The Immigration Service may require passenger information in respect of any person arriving in the United Kingdom by aircraft of any nationality, including transit passengers, members of the crew and others not seeking to enter the United Kingdom, in order to determine whether they are eligible for leave to enter. However it is not the practice of the Immigration Service to require the details of passengers unless they intend to disembark in the UK.

Falkland Islands/Argentina

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on relations between the Falkland Islands and Argentina. [49114]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Falkland Islands are a United Kingdom overseas territory and as such the United Kingdom Government are responsible for their international relations. The United Kingdom values its relationship with Argentina and wants it to be as constructive and as positive as possible. Argentine co-operation on important South Atlantic issues has an effect on the bilateral relationship as a whole.

Father Wenceslas Munyeshyaka

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the French Government to assist the Rwandan Government in its request for the extradition of Father Wenceslas Munyeshyaka. [49195]

Ian Pearson: None. The Rwandan Government has not asked the Government to make representations to the French Government with regard to the extradition of Father Wenceslas Munyeshyaka.

Iceland (Whaling Programme)

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on his discussions with the Icelandic Foreign Minister on 18 January on Iceland's whaling programme. [49272]

Ian Pearson: The UK's opposition to Iceland's whaling programme has been consistent and strong. In May 2005, the UK-led protests against Iceland's decision to take 39 minke whales for "scientific" reasons and we will continue to oppose any future whaling activities. The focus of the recent meeting between my right. hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and his Icelandic counterpart was Afghanistan and the Middle East. Whaling was not discussed.

India

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the attitude towards (a) Christian and (b) other minority religions by extremist Hindus in India; and if he will seek to use the EU-India Strategic Partnership to impress upon the Indian Government the need (i) for greater religious tolerance and (ii) to give equal rights to the Dalit community. [49588]

Dr. Howells: We are aware of the alleged involvement of Hindu Extremist organisations in attacks against Christians and other minority religions in India and we condemn all instances where individuals are persecuted because of their beliefs. In January this year, Mr. V. V Augustine of the National Commission for Minorities visited Dang District where many attacks on minorities have occurred. Police officials assured him that they would uphold law and order during upcoming festivals and maintain a strict vigilance in all 312 villages of the district at all times. The Indian Minister of Home Affairs, Shivraj Patil, has written to Mr. Augustine to confirm that the Home Ministry will provide additional forces if required. Our High Commission will continue to follow this issue closely.

As President of the EU, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister signed an EU-India Joint Action Plan during his visit to New Delhi in September. This identified areas where the EU and India agreed to co-operate and work together. One of these areas was human rights. The first meeting with the Indian side under the EU-India Joint Action Plan took place on 1 December 2005 in New Delhi. During the meeting, the issues of religious minorities and Dalits were raised. It is for the current EU presidency and the Indian Government to agree when the next formal set of dialogue will take place but we hope that this initial meeting might lead to a further, ad hoc dialogue between minorities experts from the EU and India.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the Indian Government to end the practice of using dancing bears for entertainment; and if he will make a statement. [49863]

Dr. Howells: This is an internal issue for the Indian Government to address. We welcome Indian Government initiatives to tackle the problem, in particular further implementation of The Indian Wildlife Protection Act of 1972, which prohibits anyone from possessing any animal listed as being at risk of extinction. We will continue to monitor the situation through our high commission in New Delhi.

Iran

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to his meeting of 30 January 2006 with the Foreign Ministers of China, France, Germany, Russia, the US and the High Representative of the EU, how long he expects the extensive period of confidence-building required of Iran to be; what assurances are being sought from Iran; and if he will make a statement. [48751]

Dr. Howells: The nature of Iran's nuclear activities; its long record of concealment and failure to be fully transparent with the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA); its many breaches of its obligations; and its refusal to take and sustain confidence building steps requested by the IAEA Board of Governors have all contributed to a lack of confidence among the international community that Iran's nuclear programme is, as it claims, for exclusively peaceful purposes.

In August 2005, the E3/EU presented proposals covering long-term arrangements for Iran's nuclear programme. These stated that continued confidence building would be required over a significant period of time, and outlined ways in which Iran could build confidence, including by making a binding commitment not to pursue fuel cycle activities other than the construction and operation of light water power and research reactors. They suggested that a final agreement could be reviewed every 10 years.

Iran left the negotiations in August 2005 when it unilaterally decided to restart uranium conversion activities, contrary to repeated requests by the IAEA board and in violation of the Paris Agreement, which had set out the framework for talks. E3/EU officials held an exploratory meeting with Iran in December 2005 to see if it would be possible to agree a basis for resuming negotiations. The E3/EU stated that it would be essential, inter alia, for Iran not to renege further on its commitment to suspend all enrichment related and reprocessing activities. Iran's subsequent decision to restart enrichment related activity was a further rejection of efforts to seek a diplomatic solution, and has aroused further suspicion of Iran's intentions. We hope that Iran will reinstate a full suspension of enrichment related and reprocessing activities, address in full the outstanding requests of the IAEA Board of Governors and return to negotiations on a long-term agreement.

We welcome the resolution adopted by the IAEA Board of Governors on 4 February. At the board's request, the United Nations Security Council will now become involved, to reinforce the IAEA's authority. The decision was made necessary by Iran's failure to comply with requests made in previous board resolutions and its failure to take steps that would build confidence that its nuclear programme is for exclusively peaceful purposes. The resolution was backed by the great majority of the board's 35 members, and demonstrates the strength of the international community's determination to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons in the Middle East.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on Iran's nuclear programme. [49416]

Dr. Howells: We welcome the resolution adopted by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) board of governors on 4 February. The resolution was supported by the large majority of the board's 35 members, from across the regional groupings, and demonstrates the strength of the international community's determination to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons in the Middle East.

At the board's request, the United Nations Security Council will now become involved, to reinforce the IAEA's authority. The board's decision was made necessary by Iran's failure to comply with requests made in previous board resolutions and its failure to take steps that would build confidence that its nuclear programme is for exclusively peaceful purposes.

We hope that Iran will take this opportunity to comply immediately and in full with the board's requests, including by reinstating a full suspension of all uranium enrichment related and reprocessing activities and addressing all outstanding questions about its nuclear programme.

Iraq

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 20 December 2005, Official Report, column 2852W, on Iraq, whether (a) the Intelligence and Security Committee in 2003 and (b) the Butler Review had access to the same intelligence material on the Government's claim that Iraq sought to procure uranium from Niger. [49257]

Mr. Straw: Both the Intelligence and Security Committee and Lord Butler's Review investigated this issue thoroughly and put their findings, and the basis on which they were made, in the public domain.

Jewish Festivals

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his Department did to (a) celebrate Hanukkah and (b) mark Yom Kippur in 2005. [46758]

Mr. Straw: It is left to individual staff members to decide how to mark religious festivals. In line with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Diversity Policy, all line managers are encouraged to be flexible when considering leave requests for staff wishing to take time off to mark religious festivals.

Kosovo

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his EU counterparts concerning the final status of Kosovo. [49608]

Ian Pearson: We are in regular contact with other EU partners on Kosovo. Kosovo was discussed at the General Affairs External Relations Council on 30 January following the death of President Rugova of Kosovo.

The EU was represented at the contact group plus ministerial which my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary chaired on 31 January. That meeting issued a statement which I am placing in the Library of the House.

Madagascar

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect on UK (a) trade with and (b) investment in Madagascar of the closure of the British Embassy. [47937]

Ian Pearson: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is not aware of any significant change in the pattern of British trade with or investment in Madagascar since the closure of the British embassy. The former embassy had only two British diplomatic staff, neither of whom had a specific commercial role.

Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment the Government have made of the implications of Dr. A. Q. Kahn's visits to Myanmar for the proliferation of nuclear weapons; and what assessment he has made of the risk of transfer of Pakistani nuclear technology to the Myanmar regime. [49394]

Dr. Howells: We have no evidence that Dr. A. Q. Khan visited Burma, but we are aware that Dr. A. Q. Khan's weapons of mass destruction proliferation network involved a wide range of businesses in a number of countries, acting outside both national and international controls. We are not aware of any transfer of Pakistani nuclear technology to Burma.

President Paul Kagame

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to invite His Excellency President Paul Kagame to visit the UK. [49193]

Ian Pearson: There are currently no plans for an official visit to the UK by President Paul Kagame. Ministers and senior British officials meet President Kagame on a regular basis in Rwanda to discuss matters of bilateral and regional interest. His last official visit was in November 2004.

Republic of Yemen

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of (a) the security situation and (b) the democratic process in the Republic of Yemen. [49071]

Dr. Howells: We continuously monitor the security situation in Yemen, and review our assessment of it in response to developments. Our full assessment is set out in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) travel advice on the FCO website (www.fco.gov.uk). During my recent visit to Yemen, I discussed security with the Yemeni Government, and emphasised the importance of determined action against security threats.

Yemen's presidential elections this year will be a test of its democratic system. We hope that it will be possible for independent monitors, including from the EU, to observe the electoral process. It is vital for the future of Yemen that the elections meet international standards.

Russia

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications of President Putin's recent warning of foreign Governments against trying to exert influence via non-governmental organisations in Russia. [49609]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Our relationship with non-governmental organisations (NGOs) in Russia has consistently been one of partnership, not control. We have supported their work with total openness and transparency, in line with publicly stated objectives. We welcomed President Putin's comments last week when he acknowledged the importance for Russia of effective NGOs independent of Governments.

Sierra Leone

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Sierra Leone. [49413]

Ian Pearson: Sierra Leone is a fragile post-conflict society that is making progress, with the assistance of the international community, towards consolidating security and governance reforms to lay the foundations of a more secure future.

The political climate is set to intensify in the run-up to presidential and legislative elections in 2007. The ruling Sierra Leone Peoples party and the main opposition party, the All Peoples Congress, have been joined in the contest by a new political force, the Popular Movement for Democratic Change. The UK is assisting in preparations for the elections, to ensure that they are free, fair and credible. For instance, we are giving £3 million to assist with strengthening of the national electoral commission, and electoral boundary delimitation.

But after 11 years of civil war, Sierra Leone's institutions and governance remain weak. The UK is helping to develop democratic political institutions, including support to the judiciary and police through a £25 million project, as well as assistance to the civil service reform programme, and further wide-ranging governance and anti- corruption support.

Uzbekistan

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the recent arrest and trial of the Uzbekistan opposition leader Sanjar Umarov for alleged economic crimes. [49610]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Sanjar Umarov was detained on 22 October 2005. He is being held in Tashkent city prison on charges of large scale embezzlement related to his business affairs. On 26 October, when Umarov's lawyer first gained access to his client, he reported that Umarov was naked in his cell and incoherent. On subsequent visits Umarov was able to talk to his lawyer in the presence of the investigation team. Umarov had requested medical treatment for high blood pressure, but has not had an independent medical assessment to date.

Umarov's trial began on 30 January. He faces nine charges. He is accused of misappropriating around $3 million worth of oil between 2003–04 through his company, Neftgaztrans, stealing nearly $240,000 worth of petrol from a Tashkent garage, and tax evasion to the tune of $2.9 million. Umarov denied each of the charges and said that he could not remember anything between 23 October and 1 November. He has denied statements which the prosecution said he made during that period.

Our embassy in Tashkent is monitoring the trial and remains in close touch with Umarov's family and lawyer.

WORK AND PENSIONS

"We Can Help"

Sir Malcolm Rifkind: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total cost of the production and distribution of the "We Can Help" DVD has been to date. [27872]

Mrs. McGuire: The total cost is £156,579, including VAT (£133,259 excluding VAT).

The DVD was produced to promote Jobcentre Plus disability services. The product is flexible to allow information to be given in Welsh, ethnic minority languages, British Sign Language and sub-titles. It also provides audio-description for those with visual impairments.

Benefit Agencies (Staff Redundancies)

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many (a) Disability and Carers Service, (b) Child Support Agency, (c) Pensions Service and (d) JobCentre Plus staff have been made redundant under the Government's latest spending review in (i) Wales and (ii) each constituency in Wales; and if he will make a statement; [39549]

(2) how many (a) Disability and Carers Service, (b) Pensions Service, (c) Jobcentre Plus and (d) Child Support Agency staff in (i) Wales and (ii) each constituency in Wales are expected to be made redundant under the Government's latest spending review in (A) 2005–06 and (B) 2006–07; and if he will make a statement. [39535]

Mrs. McGuire: There have been no compulsory redundancies in any of the Department's businesses in Wales as a result of the efficiency programme announced in the 2004 Spending Review. While detailed work force plans continue to be developed, at this time, no compulsory redundancies are planned to be made in Wales.

The planned reduction in staff numbers is being largely managed through normal staff turnover, controlling recruitment and promotions, and re-deploying staff to fill vacancies. Compulsory redundancy will only be used as a last resort when all other measures have been considered.

The Department has and will continue to run a limited number of voluntary early release and voluntary retirement schemes where these are shown to support operational requirements and be cost effective. Over the spending review period to date, 302 members of staff (equating to 270 Full Time Equivalents) have left under these schemes in Wales.

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the cost of (a) fraud and (b) error in (i) incapacity benefit and (ii) severe disability allowance since 1997; [42546]

(2) how many staff are employed by his Department to investigate incapacity benefit and severe disability allowance fraud (a) in total and (b) per 100,000 recipients of that allowance; and what his latest estimate is of the total level of incapacity benefit and severe disability allowance fraud in each of the last six years. [42760]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Department's benefit fraud investigators deal with allegations of fraud relating to all benefits administered by The Department for Work and Pensions. We do not employ a specific number of staff to investigate incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance fraud.

The available information on the level of fraud in incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance is in the following table.

Results of incapacity benefit review 2001: overpayments

Category of overpayment	Monetary value (£ million)	Percentage of incapacity benefit expenditure
Fraud	[1][2]19	[1][2]0.3
Customer error	16	0.3
Official error	22	0.4

[1] Up to.

[2] This is an upper limit, as insufficient cases of fraud were uncovered in the review to enable a robust central estimate to be made.

Results of incapacity benefit review 2001: underpayments

Category of overpayment	Monetary value (£ million)	Percentage of expenditure
Customer error	15	0.2
Official error	9	0.1

Notes:

1. Results from a national benefit review of fraud and error in incapacity benefit were published in 2001. The estimates made relate to the period April 2000 to March 2001.
2. There has been no equivalent review of fraud and customer error in severe disablement allowance.

Estimates of official error in incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance are produced each year. Previous results were carried out using a different methodology and are not comparable. The available information is in the following table.

Incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance: official error overpayments

	Total	IB	£ million SDA
April 2001 to March 2002	43	32	11
April 2002 to March 2003	43	39	4
April 2003 to March 2004	53	52	2
April 2004 to March 2005	104	[1]100	5

[1] These estimates are subject to wide margins of error. Our best estimate of IB overpayments for 2004–05 includes a further amount of around £20 million due to incorrectness types not captured under methodology in earlier years. The components may not add up to the total as all figures have been rounded to the nearest million.

Incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance: official error underpayments

	Total	IB	IB credits	£ million SDA
April 2002 to March 2003	26	16	9	1
April 2003 to March 2004	23	13	6	4
April 2004 to March 2005	36	21	10	5

Note:
These estimates are subject to wide margins of error. The components may not add up to the total as all figures have been rounded to the nearest million.

Mr. Davidson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what sanctions are faced by individuals from other EU member states who are found to be fraudulently claiming (a) jobseeker's allowance and (b) housing benefit. [45324]

Mr. Plaskitt: Anyone committing benefit fraud in the UK is subject to the relevant legislation and criminal laws governing action that can be taken against them. Individuals from EU member states are subject to the same sanctions as British citizens found to be committing benefit fraud involving jobseeker's allowance, housing benefits and any other benefits administered by the Department for Work and Pensions.

The sanctions that anyone committing benefit fraud can face will range from administrative caution, administrative penalty or prosecution.

Benefits

Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many home visits his staff made to benefit (a) claimants and (b) recipients in (i) 2003–04 and (ii) 2004–05; and how many such visits his staff expect to make in each of the next two years. [48445]

Margaret Hodge: The available information is on the tables.

Jobcentre Plus home visits made by staff to claimant/recipients

	2003–04	2004–05	2005–06	2006–07	2007–08
Gateway intervention[1]	131,040	75,406	18,232	—	—
Caseload intervention[1]	209,421	176,971	85,196	—	—
Customer compliance[2]	—	—	—	299,699	305,693

Jobcentre Plus home visits made by staff to claimant recipients

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Core visits[3]	169,963	143,130	145,850	149,243	151,199
Total	510,424	395,507	249,278	448,942	456,892

[1] Gateway and caseload interventions are performed as part of customer compliance activity from 2006-07.
[2] Customer compliance figures for 2007-08 are forecasted based on 2006-07 calculations and the trend of claims caseload for income support jobseeker's allowance. Approx 200,000 cases per annum previously handled by Fraud Investigation Service will be actioned by customer compliance officers from 2006-07. Customer compliance activity is always intended to take place face-to-face with the customer, although not necessarily via a home visit. An assumption has been made for these figures that 50 percent will take place in a Jobcentre Plus office while the remaining 50 percent will be carried out by visit.
[3] Core visits figures for 2006-07 and 2007-08 are forecasted based on the previous three years actual data and the volume trend of claims for income support jobseeker's allowance.

Notes:
1. Figures are not kept on the number of home visits made by Fraud Investigation Service investigators.
2. Gateway interventions are visits made before benefit paid based on a risk priority list.
3. Caseload interventions are visits made during the lifetime of a claim based on a risk priority list.
4. Customer compliance visits are made to a customer where there is alleged fraud/error but a sanction prosecution is unlikely.
5. Core visits usually have a customer service angle. Examples are appointee visits and delivery of overpayment letters.

Pension service effective home visits

April 2003—March2004	420,237
April 2004—March 2005	582,790
April 2005—December 2005	661,808

Note:
Figures for future years are not available but the projected forecast is that the current visit volumes will be maintained.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in Wales are (a) entitled to council tax benefits and (b) receiving council tax benefits; and if he will make a statement. [49747]

Mr. Plaskitt: The latest available information on unclaimed council tax benefit is in "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take Up in 2003/2004", a copy of which is in the Library.

As at August 2005 there were 277,000 households in Wales receiving council tax benefit.

Child Support

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the 10 largest total (a) compensation and (b) maladministration payments made by the Child Support Agency to a single individual, including separate payments made in relation to a single case requiring compensation, have been since May 1997; and if he will make a statement. [33435]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 5 December 2005]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive, Mr. Stephen Geraghty. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what ten largest total (a) compensation and (b) maladministration payments made by the Child Support Agency to a single individual including separate payments made in relation to a single case requiring compensation are since May 1997; and if he will make a statement.

The Agency does not hold sufficiently robust information to give you precisely the information you requested. I apologise for this but can give you information on the ten highest financial redress payments awarded due to maladministration between the period 1 December 2001 to 10 November 2005.

The table below contains the available information:

	Amount (£)
1.	41,000.00
2.	27,961.66
3.	22,160.08
4.	19,965.36
5.	19,056.49
6.	18,980.90
7.	16,000.00
8.	14,905.97
9.	14,732.40
10.	14,648.55

As I explained in a previous response to you, in the Answer of 15th November Official Report column 1152W on the Child Support Agency, maladministration and compensatory payments in excess of £10,000 represent only a small fraction (just over 0.1%) of the total number of such payments made by the Agency:

	Number
Total number of payments made since 1 December 2001	35,558
Under £1,000	33,227
Between £1,000 and £9,999	2,289
Between £10,000 and £49,999	42
Over £50,000	0

I hope you find this helpful.

Citizens Juries

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on how many occasions his Department consulted citizens juries on departmental policies in the last five years; in how many of those consultations the recommendations of the citizens' jury differed from existing departmental policy; and on how many occasions departmental policy was changed to reflect the recommendations of the citizens' jury. [46228]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions was formed in June 2001 from the Department of Social Security and parts of the former Department for Education and Employment including the Employment Service.

Since its inception, the Department for Work and Pensions has not used the citizen's jury method to consult on its departmental policies.

Civil Partnership (Benefits)

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many single people receiving (a) income support and (b) pension credit live with another single person of the same sex; whether all such benefit recipients have been informed of their obligation under the Civil Partnership Act 2004 to inform the appropriate benefit office if they are living together as if they were civil partners; what guidance has been promulgated on the meaning of that term; and if he will ensure that those who fail to report their relationship are not subject to penalties or recovery of consequent overpayment of benefits. [36307]

Mrs. McGuire: There is very little information about same-sex couples in this country. The labour force survey suggests that there are about 50,000 cohabiting same-sex couples in the UK. The Department does not have any statistical information about individuals currently receiving income related benefits who are living with someone of the same sex as though they were civil partners.

The Department has conducted a targeted publicity campaign intended to ensure that all benefit recipients are aware of the need to advise the relevant benefit office as soon as they can on or after 5 December 2005 if they are living together as if they were civil partners. This has included publication of a leaflet 'Getting it right' which has been distributed to all Jobcentre Plus offices, pension centres, pension local services and Citizens Advice Bureaux. Additionally it has been sent to Doctors' surgeries and other organisations including the Terrence Higgins Trust, the Department for Constitutional Affairs, libraries and local councils. The leaflet has also been placed on the DWP internet site.

Our policy is not to ask for repayments from someone who has acted reasonably but has failed to appreciate that, although they have not entered into a civil partnership, their benefit is affected because they now form a same-sex couple. Departmental guidance has been amended to reflect this policy and the changes in the law. However, if a customer who is a civil partner or who lives with another person as though they were civil partners knows that this could affect their benefit they must tell the office that deals with their claim. If they fail to do so and they receive too much benefit they may be required to refund the amount that has been overpaid to them.

Departmental Staff (Castle Point)

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff employed by his Department live in Castle Point. [42819]

Mrs. McGuire: There are currently 91 staff employed by the Department for Work and Pensions living in Castle Point.

Equity

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has had with Equity Trade Union about the deficit in the opera singers' pension scheme; and what plans he has to assist in rescuing the scheme. [49425]

Mr. Timms: My right hon. Friend Secretary of State and I have not had any discussions, though I have been in correspondence with Equity about the opera singers' pension scheme.

The Government are committed to protecting the pension funds of individual workers. We have put in place a framework to protect members of final salary pension schemes, and a major part in this has been to establish the Pension Protection Fund (PPF) to protect the members of eligible final salary pension scheme where, after April 2005, a sponsoring employer becomes insolvent and the scheme is under funded to the extent that it cannot afford to pay at PPF compensation levels.

It is not our policy to provide financial support to individual pension schemes on an ad hoc basis.

Financial Assistance Scheme

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will review the current rules of eligibility for the Financial Assistance Scheme before 2007–08. [49336]

Mr. Timms: As Government funding is fixed for the current spending review period up to and including 2007–08, current plans only cover those who were within three years of their scheme's normal retirement age, or above, on 14 May 2004. As with all our spending plans, funding for FAS will need to be reviewed in the next spending review, alongside other spending priorities.

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the effects of changes in annuity returns on the ability of the financial assistance scheme to achieve the best outcomes for members of eligible schemes. [49337]

Mr. Timms: These will have no effect on assistance levels as qualifying members of eligible schemes will receive assistance that will top up their scheme pension to a level broadly equivalent to 80 percent. of their core pensions benefits, subject to a cap and a de minimis rule.

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the status is of the guaranteed minimum pension rights of those individuals covered by the Financial Assistance Scheme. [49338]

Mr. Timms: Qualifying members of qualifying schemes will receive assistance that will top up their scheme pension to a level broadly equivalent to 80 per cent. of their core pension benefits, subject to a cap and a de minimis rule. Qualifying members' core pension benefits include any GMP rights accrued during pensionable service in relation to the qualifying scheme.

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his most recent estimate is of the numbers of people that will be eligible for the Financial Assistance Scheme under the existing rules. [49339]

Mr. Timms: We estimate that up to 15,000 members within three years of their scheme pension age, or above their scheme pension age at 14 May 2004, may benefit from the Financial Assistance Scheme topping up their pensions to around 80 per cent. of their core pension benefits.

Fraud (Benefits/Pensions)

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the change in the levels of fraudulent transactions involving benefits and pensions in each year since the removal of order books. [48729]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not yet available from which to make such an estimate, as payment of benefit by order book ceased on 31 May 2005.

Housing

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to encourage the London borough of Haringey to make use of its discretionary housing payment funding to help those facing significant housing benefit shortfalls, rent arrears, eviction and homelessness in the borough. [50278]

Mr. Plaskitt: The purpose of the discretionary housing payment scheme is to assist those entitled to housing benefit who have a shortfall in meeting their rent and who the local authority consider are in need of further financial assistance. Any award is entirely at the discretion of individual local authorities and must be considered on a case by case basis. Guidance was issued at the introduction of the scheme to all local authorities.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much discretionary housing payment funding the London borough of Haringey was granted in each year since 2001–02; and how much of each year's grant was returned unused. [50279]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is in the table.

Discretionary housing payment funding granted to the London borough of Haringey

	Granted(£)	Unused(£)
2001–02	152,896.00	119,763.00
2002–03	164,456.00	101,291.00
2003–04	142,970.00	22,756.00
2004–05[1]	172,751.00	Nil

[1] 2004–05 is the latest year on which data is available.

Emily Thornberry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he had with the London borough of Islington on making use of discretionary housing payment funding available in 2004–05. [48590]

Mr. Plaskitt: No discussions took place as the award of discretionary housing payments in 2004–05 was entirely at the discretion of the London borough of Islington.

Jobcentre Plus

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the (a) average and (b) maximum wait was for customers to be called back by Jobcentre Plus contact centres when trying to make a benefit application in each (i) week and (ii) month since 1 May; and if he will make a statement; [32505]

(2) what the average waiting time for processing a jobseeker's allowance application was in each (a) week and (b) month since 1 May; how many applications have taken more than 20 days to process; and if he will make a statement. [32506]

Margaret Hodge: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 9 February 2006:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your two questions. Firstly, what the (a) average and (b) maximum wait was for customers to be called back by Jobcentre Plus contact centres when trying to make a benefit application in each (i) week and (ii) month since 1 May 2005; and if he will make a statement. Secondly, what the average waiting time for processing a Jobseeker's Allowance application was in each (a) week and (b) month since 1 May 2005; how many applications have taken more than 20 days to process; and if he will make a statement. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

In answer to your first question please see the table below. The average number of days referred to is the average number across the whole Contact Centre network, and the maximum is the longest time from any Contact Centre within the network. This data is only available from August, and is recorded as actual days.

2005 (W/C)	Average number of days booking ahead (call-back wait time)	Maximum number of days booking ahead (call-back wait time)
15 August	4.2	8
22 August	4.2	9
29 August	4.2	11
5 September	5.0	11
12 September	5.2	14
19 September	4.8	13
26 September	4.8	14
03 October	4.8	22
10 October	4.4	13
17 October	3.3	7
24 October	3.1	6
31 October	2.3	5
7 November	2.4	5
14 November	1.6	4
21 November	0.8	4
28 November	1.2	4
5 December	0.9	3
12 December	1.2	3
19 December	1.0	2
26 December	0.7	2

In answer to your second question, the measuring system for Jobseeker's Allowance claims is based on monthly average clearance times. The table below contains the available data.

2005

	Actual average clearance time
May	12.9
June	13.1
July	13.5
August	14.1
September	14.7
October	15.4
November	15.6
December	14.7
Year to Date	14.1

We do not record weekly clearance times, nor the number of applications which have taken more than 20 days to process and it is not possible to obtain this information.

The roll out of Jobcentre Plus and, in particular the new claims process supported by the Customer Management System (CMS), is a major undertaking. Inevitably this has impacted on JSA clearance times. Whilst the precise nature and degree of the issue varies according to geographical location and stage of roll out, the major issues are as follows:

End to end business processes: the new process we have introduced represents a transformation to the way we deliver our services and require our staff to operate;

Staff recruitment and training: contact centres in particular have faced the difficult task of recruiting and training a new workforce, often with little or no prior experience in the business and, therefore, of benefit issues. This is taking time to develop although underpinning learning and development products are in place;

IT system performance: CMS has been implemented in tandem with Jobcentre Plus rollout and initially some problems were encountered in terms of speed, capacity and reliability of the system. A series of technical releases earlier this year addressed these issues and CMS now performs well and to agreed service levels;

Efficiency challenge: at the same time as we are introducing significant change to the way we deliver our services we are we are implementing a major efficiency programme to deliver the required headcount savings in the Spending Review 2004 settlement.

With any change of this size there are always difficulties as the systems and processes bed in. This has led to some backlogs building up and a lengthening in the average time it takes to process claims.

Because clearance times have been rising in some areas, a task force has been set up to develop a national action plan that coordinates and builds on action that has been taking place locally. The plan will cover a number of issues.

The task force will use the plan to monitor progress and improvements in performance and to ensure the best possible practice.

I hope this is helpful.

New Deal

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average cost is per person helped into a job by the new deal for disabled people (a) through Jobcentre Plus and (b) through other providers. [44952]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 23 January 2006]: The new deal for disabled people services are supplied by private and voluntary organisations who provide support for disabled people. Individuals can be referred to the programme through a range of sources including Jobcentre Plus.

The average cost of helping a person into work through new deal for disabled people is £2,180[1].

Notes:

1. Expenditure data excludes administrative costs.

2. Information is provided to March 2005 as this is the latest available date for confirmed expenditure figures.

Pensions

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of people who would claim one per cent. tax relief in (a) the initial year and (b) subsequent years if the proposed National Pension Savings Scheme were implemented. [49579]

Mr. Timms: The Government are in the process of examining the recommendations made by the Pensions Commission in detail. This includes recommendations on the National Pension Savings Scheme (NPSS). At this stage, nothing is ruled in and nothing is ruled out. The Pensions Commission made an assumption in their report that approximately seven million people would be in the NPSS, based on an 80 per cent. participation rate for those earning above the Lower Earnings Threshold (£12,100 in 2005–06), and a 65 per cent. participation rate for those earning between the Primary Threshold (£4,888 in 2005–06) and the Lower Earnings Threshold. In developing our proposals we will be evaluating those assumptions.

Sunbeds

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on Health and Safety Executive guidelines to (a) operators and (b) users of sunbed tanning equipment. [48741]

Mrs. McGuire: HSE guidance on use of tanning equipment is contained in leaflet INDG209, Controlling Health Risks from the use of UV Tanning Equipment, issued in 1995. It was produced in conjunction with the Department of Health after wide consultation and remains very relevant. It is available either as a free leaflet or from the HSE website. It contains advice for both operators and users of tanning equipment.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many complaints the Health and Safety Executive received about (a) staffed and (b) non-staffed sunbed tanning salons in 2004–05; and what the nature of the complaints was. [48744]

Mrs. McGuire: HSE has received no complaints as enforcement responsibility for sunbed tanning salons is allocated to local authorities to whom any complaints would be directed. HSE does not have direct access to local authority records and so cannot determine how many such complaints have been made to them.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many accidents involving sunbeds have been reported to the Health and Safety Executive in each year since 1995. [48746]

Mrs. McGuire: HSE recording systems do not allow these data to be extracted from our records. Local authorities are allocated enforcement responsibility for the great majority of sunbeds.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many inspections the Health and Safety Executive has made of (a) staffed and (b) unstaffed sunbed tanning retail outlets in each year since 1995; and what the average interval between inspections has been over the period. [48748]

Mrs. McGuire: The Health and Safety Executive is not responsible for the inspection of sunbed retail tanning outlets. This is a local authority responsibility.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what guidance has been issued by the Health and Safety Executive to unstaffed coin-operated sunbed tanning salons on appropriate levels of customer (a) security and (b) privacy. [48757]

Mrs. McGuire: HSE guidance focuses on the health impact of exposure to radiation, and does not cover appropriate levels of customer security or privacy.

Winter Fuel Payments

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of eligible pensioners have received the winter fuel payment in each year since 2003. [49049]

Mr. Timms: We cannot provide an exact estimate of the number of people eligible for a winter fuel payment without establishing their circumstances. A person may be ineligible for various reasons such as serving a custodial sentence, in hospital receiving free in-patient treatment for more than 52 weeks, or subject to immigration control. The vast majority of people entitled to a winter fuel payment are paid automatically as we hold their details on our benefit systems. In the winters of 2003-04 and 2004-05 we made over 11.4 million payments and expect to make around 11.5 million payments this winter.

HEALTH

3G Mobile Telephones

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department has evaluated on the effects on health of 3G mobile telephones. [49604]

Caroline Flint: The Health Protection Agency's radiation protection division (HPA-RPD) periodically evaluates the scientific research relating to mobile phone technology and health including that relevant to third generation (3G) mobile phones. The Stewart report in 2000 comprehensively reviewed the scientific literature and concluded that > "the balance of evidence to date suggests that exposures below [international] guidelines do not cause health effects to the general population".

More recently, Mobile Phones and Health 2004, reiterated the Stewart report's conclusions noting that > "there is a lack of hard information showing that the mobile phone systems in use are damaging to health".

Both the above reports recommended a precautionary approach to the use of mobile phone technology pending the availability of more robust scientific research results. The reports are available on the HPA's website at www.hpa.org.uk/radiation.

The widespread use of mobile phones and the development of newer technologies mean that the possibility of health effects should be continually monitored. Following the results in 2003 of research on 3G base station exposures apparently showing a health effect, the mobile telecommunications and health research (MTHR) programme in this country is now supporting a study at the university of Essex into the symptoms experienced by 3G signals on volunteers (www.mthr.org.uk).

All mobile phones and base stations in this country comply with the international guidelines. Measurements undertaken both by the HPA and by Ofcom (www.ofcom.org.uk) have consistently shown that exposures to radio signals from base stations, including those from 3G stations, are lower than the international guidelines.

Accident and Emergency Departments

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many accident and emergency departments are (a) scheduled and (b) proposed for closure; and if she will make a statement. [48349]

Jane Kennedy: The Department does not routinely collect and hold centrally operational management information on proposals to close wards or capacity.

National health service bodies are under a duty to consult local authority overview and scrutiny committees on any plans to make substantial changes to NHS services. Currently there is one referral from overview and scrutiny committees being considered by the Secretary of State. This referral is not connected to accident and emergency services.

Alcohol Misuse

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 16 January 2006, Official Report, column 1055W, on alcohol misuse, when she expects to award the contract to run a programme of pilots for alcohol screening and brief interventions. [46561]

Caroline Flint: The screening and brief intervention trailblazers are part of our active policy work in the area of alcohol misuse. No decision on the award of contracts is expected until the 2006-07 financial year.

Ambulance Services

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received regarding plans to regionalise ambulance services provision in East Sussex; and if she will make a statement. [49463]

Caroline Flint: The consultation for the proposed configuration of national health service ambulance trusts in England is being led by strategic health authorities (SHAs). SHAs will coordinate consultation locally and ensure that relevant authorities and interested parties are able to express their views. A full analysis of the responses received by the SHAs and the Department will be undertaken at the end of the consultation. The consultation will conclude on 22 March 2006.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on plans to regionalise ambulance services in East Sussex. [49468]

Caroline Flint: "Configuration of NHS Ambulance Trusts in England: Consultation Document" sets out the proposed new ambulance trusts on which we are currently consulting. This includes the proposal for a new trust (referred to in the document as South East A) which would comprise the areas covered by the current Sussex, Kent and Surrey ambulance trusts, if the proposals are agreed. However, no decision has been made, or will be, until the consultation has concluded.

A copy of "Configuration of NHS Ambulance Trusts in England: Consultation Document" is available in the Library. A copy of my ministerial statement on this consultation, dated 14 December 2005, Official Report, column 152WS is also available in the Library.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact that the merger of Gloucestershire Ambulance Service NHS Trust with Avon and Wiltshire ambulance trusts will have on emergency coverage in Forest of Dean constituency. [48785]

Caroline Flint: The merger of Gloucestershire Ambulance Service National Health Service Trust with Avon and Wiltshire ambulance trusts is part of wider process to create fewer, larger ambulance trusts across England. This is intended to reduce management costs and divert savings to front-line services. This is also intended to create teams capable of meeting rising demands by developing new ways of working for community paramedic and emergency care practitioner services which could be particularly beneficial for rural areas such as the Forest of Dean.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on Gloucestershire Ambulance Service NHS Trust's co-responder scheme. [48786]

Caroline Flint: The Department acknowledges the valuable support that community responders offer to ambulance services locally. Clinical evidence proves conclusively that early defibrillation and resuscitation saves more lives, and therefore co-responders trained in life support, first aid and equipped with defibrillators help to ensure that patients receive advanced life support as soon as possible, improving outcomes for those patients.

It is a local matter for ambulance trusts to decide whether or how they use community volunteer responders or other schemes such as community paramedics, in conjunction with the range of ambulance vehicles to ensure all patients get the most appropriate and timely response.

Ashford Hospital

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the progress of negotiations between Capio Health Care and the Ashford and St. Peters hospitals NHS trust for an independent treatment centre at Ashford hospital (Middlesex). [48623]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 6 February 2006]: Agreement in principle has been reached between Capio Healthcare UK and sponsors regarding the provision of an independent sector treatment centre at the Ashford hospital. Legal negotiations are now taking place to proceed towards financial close expected by the end of March 2006.

Bedside Telephones/Entertainment Systems

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact on NHS patients on low incomes of charged-for bedside telephone and entertainment systems; and if she will make a statement. [47825]

Jane Kennedy: The new bedside telephone and entertainment systems represent an additional and enhanced service to what already exists, and consequently attract a charge. Access to free televisions in day rooms and hospital payphones still exist as an alternative.

Discounts apply for some patient groups, such as the elderly and long-term sick, some of whom are patients on low incomes. However, there are no automatic exemption arrangements for patients on low incomes.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will reduce call charges to patients for the use of hospital bedside telephones by providing for the NHS to pay for some or all of the service; [48395]

(2) if she will take steps to reduce the cost of using bedside telephones in hospitals. [48394]

Jane Kennedy: I refer my hon. Friend to the ministerial statement made on 19 January 2006, Official Report, column 33WS.

Blood Transfusions

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate she has made of the cost to the NHS of (a) an autologous blood transfusion and (b) an ordinary blood transfusion; [48378]

(2) how many operations have been performed in which an autologous blood transfusion was carried out in each region in each of the last three years. [48383]

Caroline Flint: The Chief Medical Officer's national blood transfusion committee (NBTC) promotes and encourages the safe and appropriate use of blood. This includes looking at alternatives to blood transfusions using techniques such as intra-operative cell salvage. The NBTC does not recommend pre-deposit autologous donation except in special circumstances, for example where a patient has multiple rare or multiple antibodies.

We do not have data on the cost of intra-operative cell salvage to the national health service. The National Blood Service, part of NHS Blood and Transplant currently charges hospitals £114.71 for a pre-deposit autologous donation. This charge reflects the cost associated with the collection and testing of the blood and not any costs a hospital may incur through using pre-deposit autologous donation.

The Department does not collect information on the number of autologous blood transfusion carried out in hospitals.

In this current financial year, 2005–06, the cost to hospitals of a standard unit of red cells is £131.80.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many units of blood were obtained by the blood transfusion service in the last three years. [48382]

Caroline Flint: The National Blood Service (NBS), part of NHS Blood and Transplant, is responsible for the collection and supply of blood in England and north Wales. The NBS collected the following amount of blood in the last three financial years:

Financial year	Units of blood collected
2002-03	2,332,099
2003-04	2,295,869
2004-05	2,155,409

This reduction in blood collection reflects a reduction in the amount of blood required, largely due to better blood transfusion practices.

Breast Cancer

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department is taking to ensure that every woman newly diagnosed in England with early stage breast cancer is tested for HER2 status. [47424]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Professor Mike Richards, the National Cancer director, is working with cancer networks to ensure that testing arrangements are put in place to enable women who require it to be tested for HER2 status. This work is ongoing.

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of newly diagnosed women with early stage breast cancer (a) in England and (b) living in the Northern Cancer Network area were prospectively tested for HER2 positivity in the latest period for which figures are available. [47426]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not centrally collected.

Breastfeeding

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has for a breastfeeding awareness week in England in 2006. [48384]

Caroline Flint: The Department is committed to supporting and promoting breastfeeding as the best form of nutrition for infants. National breastfeeding awareness week will be held from 14 to 20 May 2006.

Catalytic Converters

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of the possible health implications arising from the use of monomolecular layers of platinum, with particular reference to catalytic converters. [48456]

Caroline Flint: The possible effects of platinum compounds emitted by vehicles fitted with catalytic converters have been considered by both the Committee on the Toxicity of Chemicals in Food, Consumer Products and the Environment (COT) and the Committee on Medical Effects of Air Pollutants (COMEAP). Both committees concluded that emissions of allergenic platinum compounds were unlikely. COMEAP commented that adverse reactions might conceivably arise in those already sensitised by other, higher exposures. Details are available in the COT/COC/COM annual report for 1996 and in the COMEAP annual report for 1994.

Cervical Smear Tests

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she has received the formal options appraisal of reducing waiting times for the results of cervical smear tests from the university of Sheffield; if she will place a copy of the appraisal in the Library; and if she will make a statement. [43563]

Ms Rosie Winterton: A draft version of the options appraisal for reducing waiting times for the results of cervical screening tests was delivered to the Department on 16 January 2006. The advisory committee on cervical screening met on 18 January to discuss the report, and their views have been passed to the authors of the report to consider. A copy of the final version of the options appraisal will be placed in the Library.

Crack Cocaine

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to ensure that frontline staff in (a) health care and (b) social services have adequate education and training concerning crack cocaine use and treatment. [47695]

Caroline Flint: The National Treatment Agency (NTA) has produced a resource pack for treatment providers on crack cocaine treatment, in collaboration with COCA, a stimulant-specialist organisation. The NTA also commissioned training to accompany the resource.

The drugs and alcohol national occupational standards (DANOS) specify the standards of performance that people in the drugs and alcohol field should be working to. They also describe the knowledge and skills workers need in order to perform to the required standard. The DANOS standards on service delivery give guidance on the scope of what competence-based training should cover, including crack, cocaine and other stimulant use.

Diabetics (Eye Tests)

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions her Department has had with (a) patient groups and (b) clinicians on regular eye tests for diabetics. [46250]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The national service framework for diabetes has a specific target of screening everyone at risk of diabetic retinopathy, and ensuring they are treated, by the end of 2007. Patient representatives and clinicians have played an important role on the national diabetic retinopathy screening project advisory group set up to steer the development of the screening programme.

Free sight tests on the national health service are available to people with diabetes and we recommend people with diabetes have their eyes tested every year.

Drug Treatment Programmes

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many problem drug users have participated in drug treatment programmes in each of the last five years. [47702]

Caroline Flint: The numbers in treatment figures for the past two years are shown on the table.

	Number
2003-04	125,545
2004-05	160,450

The 1998-99 baseline against which these figures are calculated is 85,000. The Department's public service agreement is to double the numbers in treatment between 1998 and 2008.

The National Treatment Agency introduced a revised and more accurate methodology for counting the numbers in treatment, in October 2004. Figures are not available for the years 1999-2000, 2000-01, 2001-02, 2002-03 although the potential for providing estimates based on data collecting using the earlier methodology is being explored.

Food Labelling

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health why the labelling information on foodstuffs uses 100 g as the standard unit. [44617]

Caroline Flint: The United Kingdom labelling regulations implement, among other pieces of legislation, a European Community Directive (90/496/EEC) which lays down harmonised rules about how nutritional information should be presented on food packaging. One such rule in the directive is that the nutrient amounts should be given per 100 g of the food. Manufacturers may also provide nutritional information on a per quantified serving or per portion basis, provided the total number of portions per pack is stated.

General Medical Council

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the annual renewal fee for registration with the General Medical Council was in each year since 2000. [48138]

Jane Kennedy: The annual renewal fee for registration with the General Medical Council in the year 2000 was £135. In 2001, the fee was £170. In 2002, this was set at £290 and has remained at this amount in subsequent years.

GM Food

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent research findings she has assessed on the health implications of (a) GM soya and (b) the introduction of genes from bean varieties into GM peas. [36424]

Caroline Flint: The Food Standards Agency (FSA) has sought advice from the advisory committee on novel food and processes (ACNFP) regarding what conclusions may be drawn from the results of a preliminary study conducted in Russia on the offspring of rats given flour from genetically modified soya beans. The ACNFP discussed this study on 24 November 2005 and a statement detailing its comments has been published on the ACNFP's website along with the draft minutes of the meeting.

At the same meeting, the FSA also sought advice from the ACNFP on a paper published by the Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organisation, which details the immunological effects in mice exposed to peas genetically modified to contain a bean protein. The ACNFP's comments will be finalised when the minutes are formally adopted at the following meeting in January 2006. The draft minutes are available on the ACNFP's website at: www.acnfp.gov.uk/meetings/acnfpmeet2006/acnfpmeet25jan06/acnfpagendapapers25jan06.

General Practitioner Appointments

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people have (a) requested and (b) received an appointment to see a GP within 48 hours in (i) Uxbridge constituency and (ii) Greater London; broken down by London borough, in each year since 1997. [48517]

Jane Kennedy: The Department does not hold this information in the format requested.

However, the table shows the percentage of patients that were able to be offered a consultation with a general practitioner within two working days by London primary care trusts for March 2003 to December 2005.

[1] From April 2004, access to a GP at a local NHS Walk-in Centre may count towards the 48 hour primary care access target, but only for practices that have an agreement with an NHS Walk-in Centre, which offers GP services, that includes referring and/or diverting practice patients.

[2] From April 2003 Walthamstow, Leyton & Leytonstone PCT, Chingford, Wanstead & Woodford PCT and Redbridge PCT merged into the two new PCTs, Waltham Forest PCT and Redbridge PCT.

HIV/AIDS

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidelines she has (a) given to primary care staff on equitable and high quality treatment for patients living with HIV and (b) provided to GPs on best practice on HIV testing, referrals and information. [48476]

Caroline Flint: We endorsed the publication of the 'Recommended standards for NHS HIV' services in 2003, which includes a chapter on primary health care for people with HIV. This document was produced by the Medical Foundation for AIDS and Sexual Health, which has also produced the booklet 'HIV in Primary Care'—an essential guide to HIV for general practitioners, practice nurses and other members of the primary health care team.

The British Association of Sexual Health and HIV also have guidelines on HIV testing in primary care.

The National HIV Nurses Association is due to publish a set of HIV nursing competencies in 2006.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will increase resources for HIV testing in England; and if she will bring forward proposals to enable and regulate home testing for the infection. [49234]

Caroline Flint: Resources for HIV testing in England are not centrally allocated, and are included in primary care trust (PCT) baselines. It is for PCTs to determine the level of resources to meet the needs of their populations.

We have no current plans to update the HIV Testing Kits and Services Regulations 1992. We do, however, keep policy on HIV testing under ongoing review.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she plans to launch a new advertising campaign on the transmission of HIV/AIDS. [49797]

Caroline Flint: Awareness of sexually transmitted infections, including HIV, will be addressed through a new sexual health media campaign, announced as part of the "Choosing Health" White Paper to modernise and transform sexual health in England. The campaign will focus on the risks of unprotected sex and the benefits of using condoms to avoid the risk of sexually transmitted infections including HIV.

A major aim for the new sexual health campaign is normalising condom use and implicitly this will contribute to reducing the risk of HIV. The proposed new campaign is additional and complementary to, existing HIV awareness campaigns for those most at risk, in partnership with key voluntary sector organisations.

Hospital Beds

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many hospital beds there were per capita in each health authority area in England for each year for which records are available; [47396]

(2) what the average bed occupancy rate was in each health authority area in England for each year for which records are available. [47397]

Jane Kennedy: Data for the years 2000–01 and 2001–02 are shown in the table. Health authorities (HA) were abolished in 2002 and, therefore, data after 2001–02 are not available on an HA basis.

Data prior to 2000–01 could be provided only at a disproportionate cost. However, trust level data on bed occupancy are available on the Department's website at: www.performance.doh.gov.uk/hospitalactivity. Data prior to 1996–97 are not available.

Influenza

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on which groups deemed at-risk by the Chief Medical Officer for the purposes of the influenza immunisation programme the Health Protection Agency does not require reports on uptake rates. [39362]

Caroline Flint: Uptake data are not collected by residential care home or those who are the main carer for an elderly or disabled person whose welfare may be at risk if the carer falls ill.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 4 January 2006, Official Report, column 136W, to question 32905 on influenza vaccination, if she will include in the groups recommended to receive influenza vaccination those people who are at greater risk of dying from respiratory disease because they are severely mentally ill with psychosis. [42038]

Caroline Flint: The groups recommended to receive influenza vaccination are based on clinical risk and are kept under review by the joint committee for vaccination and immunisation (JCVI). JCVI concluded in 2004 that there was insufficient evidence to show that people with mental illness were at an increased risk from flu.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what support she has offered to the Royal College of General Practitioners' Influenza Surveillance Unit beyond April. [43560]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department intends to continue provide funding for surveillance of influenza by the Royal College of General Practitioners (RCGP) Birmingham Research Unit in 2006–07 and 2007–08. The level of funding to be provided has not yet been determined and will be subject of a forthcoming meeting between Departmental officials and the RCGP.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of possible levels of sickness absence and absenteeism in (a) the NHS and (b) other key services during an influenza pandemic. [43561]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As with many factors during a pandemic, the level of absenteeism will depend significantly on the nature of the pandemic virus and this cannot be known until after the virus emerges.

Over the period of a pandemic, which could be around three to four months, the proportion of the workforce who will take time off due to illness will be similar to the overall clinical attack rate. For example, if the overall clinical attack rate is 25 per cent., then a quarter of the workforce is likely to be ill over the three to four month period. The number absent at any particular time will be less, but will probably peak over two to three weeks.

The absenteeism rate is unlikely to be uniform across all sectors nor is it likely to occur at the same time in each company, sector or region. The level of absenteeism is likely to be dependent on the size of the organisation, the type of industry and the personal circumstances of the workforce.

On the national health service in particular, there is ongoing modelling work in this area to take account of the special circumstances of health care workers. Preliminary results indicate that the picture would be broadly the same as for other organisations, however, work is still in progress.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 11 January 2006, Official Report, column 729W, on influenza, when her Department's research to which she refers began; which bodies are conducting the research; when she expects the research to be completed; if she will place a copy of the research in the Library when completed; whether she expects to take a decision on the routine immunisation of those aged 50 and over in time for the 2006–07 winter flu immunisation programme; and if she will make a statement. [44243]

Caroline Flint: The Health Protection Agency's (HPA) centre for infections has carried out studies to provide estimates of the burden of disease associated with flu in all age groups. These studies included estimates of the impact of vaccinating young children against flu on the burden of disease associated with flu in all age groups.

These estimates have been obtained by developing an age-structured deterministic transmission dynamic model. This work will be published in a peer-reviewed journal in due course.

The main findings were presented at a meeting of the influenza subgroup of the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation on 8 September 2005, the minutes of which is available on the Department's website at: www.advisorybodies.doh.gov.uk/jcvi/mins-flu-080905.htm.

A paper about the effects of universal vaccination of children against influenza, written by a group that includes HPA staff, local and regional services, has been published recently in a peer-reviewed journal [1].

Vaccine 2005.09.017 [email publication—ahead of print]

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received on the effectiveness of stockpiling (a) Relenza and (b) M2 inhibitors to prepare the NHS for tackling an influenza pandemic. [45516]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Departmental officials are actively reviewing the antiviral strategy in the context of emerging data and we are looking carefully at other antivirals as a possible back-up to oseltamivir.

The Department has been approached by the manufacturer of Relenza in relation to supply of that product for pandemic preparedness. There are practical issues to consider concerning use of Relenza during a pandemic, notably that the product is not licensed for prevention of influenza or for use in children and has to be administered via inhalation.

No decision has been made on whether to stockpile alternative antivirals, including M2 inhibitors, however, the Department is keeping its pandemic antiviral strategy under constant review and this remains an option.

Jentle Service

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much revenue has been raised by the Jentle Service at the maternity department of the Queen Charlotte's and Chelsea Hospital; and what the service offers to expectant mothers; [48074]

(2) how many women have so far subscribed to the Jentle Service provided by the maternity department at the Queen Charlotte's and Chelsea Hospital. [48073]

Jane Kennedy: The Hammersmith Hospitals Trust's scheme is called "Birth— the Jentle Midwifery Scheme". The scheme only applies to the Queen Charlotte's and Chelsea hospital.

The scheme provides for two options. The first is for private patients. The second option is a midwifery-led scheme for national health service patients, which offers continuity for the woman and ensures she has a named midwife throughout her pregnancy, birth and the postnatal period. The scheme incorporates antenatal care, the birth and postnatal care. The trust bills the woman £4,000 for this scheme. The option does not include any other services or facilities except that a single amenity room is included in the package for the first night, if one is available.

The number of women that have used the scheme including those delivered and those still pregnant is 74. The number of babies delivered so far is 51.

The total amount invoiced to date for the Jentle Midwifery Scheme is £164,998.

LIFT Scheme

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether the issues set out in the letter dated 13 December to a director of development of a primary care trust from the NHS LIFT Policy Lead of the Capital Investment Branch of her Department outlining mandatory changes to the Local Improvement Finance Trust (LIFT) scheme were previously discussed with the chairman and members of the LIFT Liaison Organisation for Business Investors (LIFT LOBI); and what plans (a) she and (b) officials of her Department have to meet with LIFT LOBI to discuss these issues; [40119]

(2) whether the contents of the letter dated 13 December to a director of development of a primary care trust from the NHS Lift Policy Lead of the Capital Investment Branch of her Department outlining mandatory changes to the Local Improvement Finance Trust (LIFT) scheme represent the policy of her Department; what consultations were undertaken with (a) primary care trusts, (b) LIFT companies, (c) Partnerships for Health, (d) business investors and (e) other stakeholders about the matters contained in that letter; and whether those consultations were in accordance with the Code of Practice on Consultations issued by the Cabinet Office; [40120]

(3) whether the issues set out in the letter dated 13 December to a director of development of a primary care trust from the NHS Lift Policy Lead of the Capital Investment Branch of her Department outlining mandatory changes to the Local Improvement Finance Trust (LIFT) scheme were previously raised by the representatives of the Capital Investment Branch at the Lift in Action Steering Group on 4 November; [40121]

(4) what assessment she has made of whether the policy developments set out in the letter dated 13 December 2005 to a Director of Development of a Primary Care Trust from the NHS LIFT Policy Lead of the Capital Investment Branch of her Department outlining mandatory changes to the Local Improvement Finance Trust (LIFT) scheme are consistent with (a) the findings of the recent National Audit Office Report on the LIFT scheme and (b) the letter from the chief executive of the national health service to the chair of the LIFT Liaison Organisation for Business Investors dated 25 October 2005; and if she will make a statement. [41914]

Mr. Byrne: The letter of 13 December, to the director of development for Bristol South and West Primary Care Trust, confirmed the Department's decision to require the standard private finance initiative contract to be used in future for complex individual Local Improvement Finance Trust (LIFT) facilities with a capital value of over £25 million. This decision was taken to ensure appropriate risk transfer for these very large LIFT facilities, which are much larger and cover additional services than those originally intended to be undertaken under LIFT. The decision simply involves the use of a different contract for the limited number of LIFT facilities where it is more appropriate. It does not represent a major policy, financial or service change, and for this reason, no formal consultations were undertaken with stakeholders including the LIFT Liaison Organisation for Business Investors (LIFT LOBI). This is in line with the Cabinet Office's "Code of Practice on Consultation". The Department's national health service LIFT policy lead met representatives of LIFT LOBI on 9 January to discuss and explain the decision, and is also holding a series of meetings with the primary care trusts affected. I have no plans to meet members of LIFT LOBI.

The issues set out in the letter of 13 December were not raised by officials at the LIFT in action steering group meeting on 4 November as the policy was still under internal departmental development.

The policy developments set out in the letter are consistent with the National Audit Office report on the LIFT scheme, which endorses LIFT as an initiative to support the redevelopment of the primary care estate. They are also consistent with the letter from the chief executive of the NHS to the chair of the LIFT LOBI dated 25 October 2005.

Lyme Disease

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations she has received about the treatment of Lyme disease in England; and if she will make a statement. [46385]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 31 January 2006]: Three representations have been received concerning the diagnosis and treatment of Lyme disease. Two alleged that Lyme disease was not being correctly diagnosed or treated within the national health service and one was additionally concerned about risks of transmission via blood transfusion. A parliamentary question has also been asked about the use of intravenous ceftriaxone for Lyme disease.

The inspector of microbiology and infection control has confirmed that the internationally recognised criteria for the diagnosis of Lyme borreliosis are routinely used for diagnosis within the NHS through the Health Protection Agency's Lyme borreliosis specialist diagnostic service. These are based upon stringent interpretation of serological tests for specific antibodies to the causative organism, Borrelia burgdorferi and are recommended in the United States of America, Europe and the United Kingdom. The Inspector is concerned that some medical practitioners base their diagnosis on positive results from unsuitable and unvalidated tests performed in non-accredited laboratories. A warning was published in the American journal Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, 11 February 2005, advising caution regarding many commercially promoted tests for Lyme borreliosis and restating the internationally accepted diagnostic criteria.

Treatment is with antibiotics. Detailed studies have shown excellent long term outcomes for most people who receive appropriate treatment. Repeated or prolonged courses of antibiotics have been shown not to help the small proportion of patients with post infection syndrome.

Macular Degeneration

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding has been committed in 2005-06 to research into ways of reducing the cost of curing age-related macular degeneration. [40604]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department is investing £1 million in a study to gather evidence on the clinical and cost effectiveness of photodynamic therapy for people with the predominantly classic form of age-related macular degeneration. This study will inform the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence when its guidance on photodynamic therapy is reviewed in September 2006.

The Department is not looking specifically at ways of reducing the cost of curing age-related macular degeneration.

Medical Staff (Tooting)

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) doctors and (b) nurses there were in the constituency of Tooting in (i) 1997 and (ii) the last year for which figures are available. [47755]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is shown in the tables.
